A year ago there was discussion among hunts the why and the where and bad scenting days, the many suggestions that forward was that which to be known as the theory. The argument is evaporation is going on scent should be good, the opposite process—co is in progress, scent must wanting. The basis of this may be correct, but it is no fallible than many another.

Scent certainly at times in a high wind, just as cert a very still day it will un disappear all of a sudden, are days when the wind is the ground wet, at which must be plenty of evapora on, but never a vestige to be discovered, althoug dozen foxes may leave your very eyes.

Country folk will frequ you that scent is never g the fall of the leaf in autu deed, until the fallen l become rotten. The reason support of this argument is fox while running turns leaves as he goes along—s of course—and so conceals as it were, behind him.

It must be a careful fox accomplish this sleight of any degree of accuracy, and nosed pack of hounds that own his scent through the density of a withered leaf. yokel is quite right up to a point in his argument. often is at its worst during fall, but that is because of the decaying leaves thems so pungent that it baffles very pronounced odor of the pack unless the for Perhaps it is because, like tryman, we sometimes forget sues of this description that often puzzled by the myst scent.

One point in particular to scent seems impossible of A fox slips away on one covert while hounds are dr the other. Somebody sees shouts a view hallo' Alon the huntsman at his best lays on his hounds at the the aforesaid person swears fox left the wood, but not a the pack will own the line; whimper breaks in upon the ant silence of the eager after cast is made, but to and eventually the huntsm off to resume his draw, m himself that he "don't beli weren't no fox at all."

For all that, twenty min when hounds happen agai passing that way toward covert, suddenly there is a here and another there, they go like a pack poss across the field and through gap in yonder hedge that pointed out to the unbeliev man. Pipes and Good Taste.

A vast increase in the importations of briarwood pipes is noted, which is complimentary to the taste of old smokers. "I was telling a friend about it and she said: 'We drink nothing at meal but Postum Food Coffee, and it is such a comfort to have something we can enjoy drinking with the children.'

"I was astonished that she would give the children to drink any kind of coffee, but she said Postum was the most healthful drink in the world for children as well as for older ones, and that the condition of both the children and adults showed that to be true.

"My first trial was a failure. The directions I boiled it four or five minutes after the boiling began. It tasted so flat that I was in despair, but determined to give it one more trial. Off the Beaten Track.

The first morning the new teacher was at the village school he taught a lesson in mental arithmetic and gave the following example:

"If I had seven oranges and eleven more are given to me, then I give five of them to a friend, how many oranges have I left?"

The new teacher could not understand the puzzled expression of the children's faces or why he received no answer, but thinking they must be rather dull repeated the question. After a little silence a small hand was raised.

"Well, little boy, how many are left?"

"Please, sir," timidly replied the boy, "we always do our sums with apples."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Work for Automobile.

"There is a farmer out in Walworth county who hit upon a novel way of making the money he has tied up in an automobile," said C. B. Pryor of Elkhorn. "He uses the machine in the summer, but when winter sets in there is little pleasure of profit in automobiling and most of the gasoline buggies are left standing idle.

"In the case of this thrifty settler, however, there is no waste of this kind. He strips the machine of its wheels and sets it upon skids in the loft of one of the farm buildings. With a fly wheel on one of the rear hubs and a drive wheel on the other he uses his engine to do all the farm grinding, pumping, feed cutting and other work where power is required. In this way he saves the cost of another gasoline engine, such as most farmers are now using."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Laying a Ghost.

On one occasion in Scotland a guest arriving rather late at a country house was quartered in the haunted room. Although professing to be a skeptic, like many others, his courage vanished with the light. Determined, however, to protect himself as well as possible, he placed a loaded revolver under his pillow and awaited events. As the clock struck midnight he saw a fleshy hand at the end of the bed, and steadying his nerve he addressed the visitant thus: "If you do not instantly remove your hand I shall fire without further warning." He counted three and then discharged the bullet. A howl of pain which aroused the household followed, and it was soon discovered that the successful marksman had shot away two of his own toes.—The Throne.

Cures Woman's Weakness.

We refer to that born to weak, sorrow, suffering woman known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn Root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator . . . makes for normal energy of the entire reproductive system." In the discussion "in Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women, it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with incompetency; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, with depression and irritability, especially with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhœa, suppressed or absent monthly periods, arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anæmia (thin blood); habits dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, you will find relief sooner than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions . . . and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhœa (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

Innocent but Infectious.

A man running toward the Reading Railway station, Germantown, on Saturday, as if in great haste to make the train, was the cause of enlivening the gate of a number of other pedestrians bent on that purpose, among whom were several women who fancied they were late for the train. As the latter were shoes of the crimped pattern known as pumps, their discomfort in running may be imagined. When, breathless, they reached the station they found the first runner sitting comfortably and reading a paper, with ten minutes' margin before train time. One of the women, made bold by indignation, advanced upon the cause of her anger with the query: "What were you running for?" The answer was "For my health."—Philadelphia Record.

MOTHERHOOD

MRS. JAMES CHESTER

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.

Note what Mrs. James Chester, of 627 W. 36th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.

Atavistic.

Before a great fire of logs in Helicon hall, the seat of his Utopian colony, Upton Sinclair one snowy night talked of the injustice of the private ownership of land:

"A tramp was one day strolling through a wood that belonged to the Duke of Norfolk. The Duke happened to meet him and said:

"'Do you know you're walking on my land?'

"'Your land?' said the tramp. 'Well, I've got no land of my own, so I'm obliged to walk on somebody's. Where, though, did you get this land?'

"'I got it from my ancestors,' said the Duke.

"'And where did they get it from?' went on the tramp.

"'From their ancestors,' said the Duke.

"'And where did their ancestors get it from?'

"'They fought for it.'

"'Come on, then,' said the tramp, fiercely, as he pulled off his coat, 'and I'll fight you for it.'

"But the Duke, hastily retreating, declined to accept this fair offer."—Washington Star.

A WONDERFUL GAIN.

A Utah Pioneer Tells a Remarkable Story.

J. W. Browning, 1011 22d St., Ogden, Utah, a pioneer who crossed the Plains in 1848, says: "Five years ago the doctors said I had diabetes. My kidneys were all out of order, I had to rise often at night, looked sallow, felt dull and listless and had lost 40 pounds. My back ached and I had spells of rheumatism and dizziness. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me of these troubles and have kept me well for a year past. Though 76 years old, I am in good health."

HOME WEEK IN BOSTON.

Sons and Daughters of New England Capital to Visit Scenes of Youth.

The greatest event for Boston and for all New England this season will be the home-coming week in Boston. This will occur at the end of July, and will attract thousands of persons from every part of the country to the city and the section of the country where their ancestors lived and where their affections are centered.

The citizens of Boston have made liberal preparations for a grand celebration of the history and achievements of Boston and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. There will be a week of midsummer reunions of families and of public festivities. The time selected is from July 28 to August 3.

The home-coming week in Kentucky attracted half a million visitors to Louisville and the home-coming for Georgia was likewise gratefully accepted. There is no doubt of the attraction to Boston of a far greater number of sons and daughters who cherish the traditions and the successes of the people and who venerate the history of the famous city which is the leader in the literature, art and the civilization of America.

Indirect Persuasion.

On a vacant lot in West Philadelphia and down in a hollow made by raising the grade of the streets newly opened through some old farming land there were observed the other day two men huddled over a tiny fire, which was fanned by the same wintry wind that blew through their long and flowing whiskers. One of the knights of the road was eating something out of a tin can, and the other was reading a newspaper. "I could dig that channel for the Delaware," said the reader, "for less money than the subway would cost. I'd get a lot of gold dust and suk the bottom; put it light on the surface and squirt it in with a force pump so as to make more gold the deeper you went. This need only be done in one spot. Then I'd have some one discover that spot and begin to dredge out the gold. The city could then sit back and take in money for permits to dredge, and the channel would soon be cleared out all the way down without further expense."—Philadelphia Record.

Biliousness

That sallow, yellow look, those terrible headaches, that dulled brain; all these things spell biliousness, which is the direct result of a liver which fails to perform its functions in a natural way.

Before you can destroy that bilious condition you must get your liver in form and nothing will accomplish this so quickly or so thoroughly as

Dr. Caldwell's
(Laxative)
Syrup Pepsin

This remedy is the most valuable one obtainable for all liver and kindred troubles, possessing properties which drive it directly to the affected parts.

Better than pills, oils, salts and nauseous purgatives which aggravate conditions and leave the sufferer in worse condition than before.

Former afflicted ones, now well and strong, pay eloquent tribute to its efficacy and power.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN can be obtained in both dollar and half-dollar sizes from all druggists.

Your money will be refunded if it does not benefit you.

Your postal card request will bring by return mail our new booklet, "DR. CALDWELL'S BOOK OF WONDERS" and free sample to those who have never tried this wonderful remedy. Write for it today.

Editor Banner—Please allow me a small space in the dear Banner. Seeing so many interesting letters, I'll try and write a few lines.

Farmers are behind with work on account of so much rain. The oat crop is looking fine and promises a bountiful harvest.

Mr. George Middlebrooks and family visited Mr. J. A. Boockholdt recently.

Miss Ethel Deramus of Adams is one of our most pleasant visitors.

Mr. S. E. Davis has opened up a store in our community. May he have much success in his new enterprize.

Pea Vines, come again, your letter was all O. K.

I want to say a few words to the young men of our county. Please don't go to that place called a dispensary; it has its right name, for it dispenses with your happiness, it dispenses with your money and friends, Spend your money for an education, read good literature and thus start to mount the ladder to success, round by round until you gain the last round of fame. Oh, young men, Mrs. Carrie Nation, the great reformer, it was when her young husband lay dead from the effects of the wine cup, looking in that sad face of her beloved one for the last time, that she swore vengeance against the wine cup. So young men let not this be our fate. "Once I had a fortune all laid up in my trunk but spent it all one night when I got drunk." Long may the Banner wave over the land of the free and home of the brave.

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because our record is clean, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then our policy is as liberal as is consistent with security; we are accommodating but prudent.

And finally, our location is central and accessible—right in the centre of business.

We ask your consideration.

Editor Banner—Let me tell you, we are having some fine weather for killing grass now, and the farmers of this section are taking advantage of it.

The Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely under the able management of Mr. H. J. Grooms. The singing, June 9th, in connection with the Sunday school, was reported good. Miss Lena Williams, organist, and Mr. James Franklin, leader.

I notice everybody doesn't fight the dispensary. "Just a Rube" askes Mr. Voter, why everybody fights the dispensary and didn't fight the blind tiger. Now, Mr. Rube, the Bible says: "Do ye not evil for evil." Now, the blind tiger was an evil, and a bad one. We couldn't do anything with that except make some of the boys tell stories, consequently there was no use of writing or saying anything against it. Now, the "dispensary" has come, which is the same thing, only more public. We can put it out of business if we try. Now let us not advocate the dispensary just because we cannot remove all bad things. You also asked Mr. Voter did he know of any boys under twenty-one, that bought whiskey at the dispensary. I will not answer Mr. Voter's question, but will tell you just what I know. I know of a great many boys that say they bought whiskey there. I believe there are more boys under twenty-one that buy whiskey of the "dispensary" than there are over twenty-one. Mr. Rube I am a boy myself. A boy likes to drink, between the ages of 13 and 20, because he is simple and foolish, and thinks it a big trick. See? Boys of twenty or more should know better. I learned better by the time I had acted a fool about 18 months, between the ages of 15 and 17. I am now 19, or will be, the 14th day of August, 1907. I am going to move very shortly, then will try and tell you all something of South Alabama and Mississippi, if I don't forget it.

I will close for this time, wishing the dear old Banner and its many readers much success.

A NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT.

Editor Banner—We are writing in order that we may get a little enterprise before the public which we pledge you will be very enjoyable to all who participate. It is an event that will be a rare treat. We do not like to keep you guessing, so will be clear and concise in our explanations. On Monday, June 17, you will receive a handful of socks. (they are not to wear) There will be with them an invitation, telling you how to use them, also inviting you to spend the following evening, June 18, from 8:30 to 11 o'clock, on the lawn, at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jones, where you return the socks getting value received for what they contain. In connection with this "Sock Social," we will render an open air concert. Some of the best talent in town has been secured. Miss Jackson will favor us with some vocal selections. The readings, instrumental music, violin selections and other vocal selections will make the old young again, and the young find new interest in life. We charge no admittance fee, but know your volunteer offering will fully compensate. All are invited. Sincerely,
METHODIST LADIES AID SOCIETY.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALABAMA.

Some people are too conscientious to preach what they practice.

Says the Washington Herald: Whether they make their lucky strikes in oil or coal or pork, the new rich fairly burn the pikes to get to dear New York.

The Agricultural Department has just issued a vindication to the long shunned and avoided skunk. No other victim of misplaced obloquy and calumny should hereafter wholly despair.

Nearly every mother imagines her daughter has musical talent and frequently she makes the mistake of trying to develop that talent to the neglect of plain sewing, observes the Atchison Globe.

The late Hon. Andrew H. Green, once Controller, and known as the "Father of Greater New York," was a stanch advocate of old-age pensions, under a system toward the support of which employers and employes generally should contribute compulsorily. It may be, muses the Christian Herald, that some not far distant generation will see this vision of an honored and comfortable old age for the worthy workingman fully realized.

Scarcely a day passes that does not chronicle the wreck of some life on the rocks of gambling and speculation, exclaims the New York American. One day it is the suicide of some poor dupe who has lost his last cent on the races. Again it is the disgrace of some trusted employe who has stolen his employer's money to make good his losses at roulette. Still again it is some prominent financier who has gone wrong in speculation.

Observes Puck: "The real question," remarked Mr. Jerome, "is whether this town is to become a mining camp." Well, now, is there any more lawlessness in a mining camp? Is the lust for gold any stronger in a mining camp than in Gotham? Is Justice as leaden-heeled? There is a limit to the patience of the inhabitants of a mining camp. They do, on occasion, put aside their gold-grubbing and clean house. What is the prospect of a house-cleaning in New York City?

The scarcity of rural laborers is giving the farm hands a spirit of independence which is manifest in some peculiar ways. A mercantile firm recently purchased a large farm near Attica, N. Y., and advertised for farm workers. The following is one of the replies they received: "I will work for you if you will give me $300 a year and house rent, a garden and one-half acre to put into potatoes and time to work the same, my wood for a year at the door and split, my horse and cow fed hay and grain, two hogs fattened, fifty hens kept, what apples I want for my own use, all small fruit on the place, if there be any, all holidays to myself, such as Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's, and will agree not to milk over ten cows, and Saturday afternoon shall expect to quit in the lot at 5 o'clock, every Sunday off. I cannot hold this offer open later than Saturday."

President Truesdale, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, complained in an interview in the New York World, that increases in the pay of employes had not been followed by better service. There is evidence to support his case. The service is worse rather than better. Apparently the employe is following the bad example of his superiors. His opportunities are necessarily limited. The humble brakeman cannot emulate Mr. Harriman by selling to the Equitable and New York Life Insurance Companies for 92 and 96 Alton bonds that cost him only 65. He cannot use the treasury funds of the railroad corporation for speculative purposes. He cannot issue $100,000,000 worth of bonds to buy stock in other railroads. There are no Union Pacific melons for him to cut. The best he can do is to exact the highest possible wages and give the least possible return in the way of service. Even this has to be done in a crude, clumsy way which is almost ridiculous in comparison with the methods of his employers.

UNPRECEDENTED IS THE DEMAND FOR IRON.

Furnaces Are Unable To Turn Out Enough.

RECORD IN IMPORTS BROKEN

Heavy Cargoes Received From Russia, Africa, Spain, Greece and Sweden—British Warehouses Almost Emptied—6,000 Steel Cars Ordered.

New York.—While exports of finished iron and steel last month were the smallest for any one month in the last decade, the imports of raw material were the largest in any thirty days in the history of the trade. The May arrivals at New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore reached a total of nearly 250,000 tons. Compared with the previous month, the heaviest increases were made in pig iron, which showed a gain of nearly 80 per cent.

The iron ores by themselves also reached record breaking figures. In addition to the usual Cuban shipments heavy cargoes arrived from Russia, North Africa, Spain, Greece and Sweden.

The American demand for pig is so unprecedented that the stocks of material lying in the British warehouses are smaller than they have ever been before.

Contracts for the construction of 6,000 steel cars, aggregating in cost $6,500,000, have been placed by the United States Steel Corporation. This is one of the largest orders for steel products and the largest for steel cars that has been placed since steel car construction has been an industry in the Pittsburg district. To fill the orders about 90,000 tons of steel plates will be required. Nearly one-half of the contracts have been placed with Pittsburg builders.

HOTEL BURNED.

The Famous Princess Anne Destroyed by Fire at Night.

Norfolk, Va.—The famous Princess Anne Hotel at Virginia Beach, Va., built twenty-five years ago and one of the handsomest summer resort hotels along the middle Atlantic seaboard, was destroyed by fire which had its origin early Monday in the kitchen, supposedly from a defective flue. In two hours the entire hotel building, together with the Norfolk and Southern depot, the bowling alley, hotel laundry, engine house, the office of the Virginia Beach Development Company and all the board walk in front of the hoteel had been wiped away. There were 110 persons, guests and employes, in the hotel. All are thought to have escaped with the exception of Emma Clark, a negro chambermaid, and John Eaton, the white steward. There were no fire escapes.

BOY FLIES AIRSHIP.

Nine-Year-Old Youth Successful in Ascension.

Columbus, O.—Cromwell Dickson, 9 years old, Sunday made a successful flight with an airship of his own construction at the Columbus Driving Park.

The airship, which is about thirty feet long, follows the model of the modern dirigible balloons. Instead of a motor a foot power mechanism is used to drive the propeller, the boy operating it after the fashion of riding a bicycle.

Young Dickson remained in the air an hour and apparently had perfect control of the airship, which he directed at will.

Troops Are Moved.

Mexico City.—A train load of sappers, a number of ammunition traps and eleven ambulances left Monday for Guadalajara. It is officially stated that these troopers will later be transported to a west coast port and from there go by sea to Salina Cruz. Later they will be transferred to the Guatemalan frontier. Offers from governors of the various states to furnish national guardsmen in case of hostility continue to pour into the federal authorities. Guerro was the latest state to offer men.

Twenty-eight Drowned.

Barbadoes.—Twenty-eight passengers, including twelve women and children, were drowned by the sinking of the French schooner La Julinse, from Cayenne for St. Luisana. The schooner sank off Barbadoes last Friday night. Her caption and twenty-one men have reached Barbadoes.

Count Boni Gets Rehearing.

Paris.—The court of appeals Monday rendered a decision granting the appeal of Count Boni de Castellane and his creditors against the verdict of divorce granted to Madame Gould. The case will have a rehearing.

Three new public schools are to be built by the city of Cattanooga, Tenn., immediately at a cost approximately $150,000 for the three. The first is to be built in the First district, and it will cost $100,000.

Sunday's monster demonstration at Montpelier, France, by wine growers marked the climax of the situation which has arisen because of a demand by the growers that the government stop the widespread adulteration of wine.

Two passengers, a man and a woman, were instantly killed and fifteen others seriously injured early Sunday evening when a westbound trolley car at Los Angeles jumped the track while rounding a curve and turned completely over.

That Nicaragua will soon establish a legation in Mexico City was officially confirmed Sunday by the state department. The Nicaraguan minister will be Senor Fernandez Sayeres, now in New York city, who will soon leave for Mexico.

The schooner yacht Dervish, owned by H. A. Morse, of the Corinthian Yacht Club, Marblehead, Mass., one of the yachts which started in the ocean race from New York to Bermuda June 5, reached the stake boat at St. David's Head at 6:25 o'clock, Sunday morning.

On the eevent of the second Hague conference, which assembles Saturday, the part played by America in bringing about this great international gathering and the nature of instructions, under which our delegates are to participate in the congress, have become matters of great interest.

Another murder was the outcome of Sunday liquor. There was a row over a crap game at McDonald's camp, near Parkwood, Ala., just below Oxmoor and south of Birmingham, in which John Holston, of Chattanooga, a white man, was shot and instantly killed by a negro, with whom he was gambling.

Strikes are spreading in France. In the little borough of Granges-le-Roi, near Paris, where it is the annual custom to elect a "Resolere" or queen of the rose (as in many other French towns), the girls have gone on strike because the marriage dowry offered was too small.

Revolver practice begun in childhood stoods Mrs. Nanice Van Holland, of No. 5541 Maple avenue, St. Louis, in good stead Friday afternoon, when with one shot she knocked a sickle from the hands of William Smith, a grass cutter, who was threatening her on the lawn in front of the Van Holland home.

The following statement is accredited to Mrs. Elizabeth F. Ayres, the wife of Lieut.-Col. Charles G. Ayres: "The secretary of war's letter of instruction to my husband forbidding me trespassing on the reservation at West Point is so insulting that I will not repeat it or show it. It has been placed in the hands of my lawyers."

Elder Roberts of Salt Lake City, who was at one time ousted from congress on account of his polygamous practices, spoke in reply to an open letter published by the Ministerial Association. Elder Roberts frankly declared that the church had surrendered not one iota of its belief in the principle of polygamy, but countenanced no polygamous marriages.

In the office of the Hebrew Emigrants' Home in New York Sunday a chase of more than 4,000 miles after a collection of ancient coins was ended. The collection, which had been taken by mistake by three men in Lemberg, Austria, is valued at about $25,000, and is in charge of Mirza Phinias Hanucah, who spent months in gathering it for the Natonal Museum of Art n Venna.

Notwithstanding the reports that Harry K. Thaw, now in the Tombs, in New York, awaiting his second trial for the killing of Stanford White, has secured a new director general for his forces, it was learned authoritatively Sunday that he has reached no decision with his lawyers as to who will direct his defense when he is again called to the bar.

Meeting on Museums.

Sixty delegates, representing all sections of the country, were present when the annual meeting of the American Association of Museums opened at Pittsburg. The three days' session of the meeting will be replete with discussion of museum subjects.

New Orleans, La.—Search has been run for Mrs. Ada Mears, 25 years old charged with embezzlement of $1,200.

The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON

Subject: The Sabbath Day.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, on the above theme, the pastor, the Rev. Ira Wemmell Henderson, took as his text, Exodus 20:9-11: "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy." He said:

If Moses had never handed down this law of God for the guidance of Israel and of Christendom the truth would yet remain the same, that the Sabbath day should be kept holy. The Sabbath day is one of the greatest blessings mankind enjoys, whether it be looked upon as the result of a divine decree or of human legislation. Had God never declared His will on this point it is very certain humanity would from sheer force of necessity set one day in seven apart as God's day, or if not as God's day, at least as a day of rest from toil.

The Sabbath day, viewed from whatever stand you may choose, is abundantly justified. It satisfies the needs of men spiritually and physically. It is right, it is necessary, it is sensible. The longings of the human heart for better and fuller communion with the Father above are satisfied in a peculiar manner, when men set aside one day a week for meditation, communion with God and for the cultivation of the soul. However much we may believe that the Christ life should be our practice in all the walks of our busy life, and however well we may put our theory of the Christian life into action, the truth still is this, that we are better fitted for further victory and strengthened in larger measure for continued service when we set this one day aside in a special sense for God and for our own growth in grace through contact with His people. The highest Christian life is the result of the centering and pooling of like spiritual interests. No man has so much enthusiasm as he who is one of a company whose hearts and minds are single unto service and whose lives are dominated by the same ideals. In the crowd, not the cloister, is the place for the Christian. God is attained most, easiest and best through contact with men of pure life and far vision rather than through personal concentration. This is not to say that meditation has not its place, for it is necessary. But it must not fill our lives to the harm of other interests and duties. Communion with God, contact with God's people, meditation and soul culture, all these are necessary to the man who would grow to be like Jesus, who would cultivate his spiritual powers. And the Sabbath is a special day and a glorious means whereby we may strengthen the spiritual powers God has granted to us.

Then, too, mankind needs a day of rest from material toil for the preservation of the physical powers. No man who does a fair day's work six times a week and who earns an honest living by the sweat of his brow or with mental toil, is fit for six more save as he rests a day between. There is no man so foolish as the one who burns the light of life with never a stop to replenish the fuel that the body must receive. To rest is not necessarily to be lazy. There can be no true rest save for the man who has earned it through willing and healthy toil. Rest is the due and the duty of every true workman. And if it be the need and the reward of those who have honorably and sufficiently labored, how much more must it be necessitous for those poor, downtrodden wretches who are forced to work the wine press of modern business life until heart is sick and body wearied almost unto death? Ah, yes, beloved, man needs the Sabbath—the rest day, as the Hebrews called it—for replenishment and recharging with the physical energies that sustain life.

The Sabbath day is set apart as a day of rest and worship, not without reason, but because it is right so to do. It is the duty of man to serve God all the time and in a special manner to draw near to Him once a week at least. God is worthy of one-seventh of humanity's time and undivided attention for that period. Jehovah can't do much for the soul that spends seven days a week in quest of a living, nor can that man who is foolish enough to so spend his time entirely get very near to God. Then, too, the Sabbath is a sensible institution. We are all well aware that were it not the law of human life to quit work at least once a week we would all end soon in an early grave. The Sabbath with its beneficent blessings sets us on anew with recuperated bodies, with rested minds, with fresh hope in our hearts, with inspired souls, upon the days of the week that are to come if we use it rightly. Had God not filled the hearts of men with this truth that the Sabbath is a sensible institution—a business proposition, if you will, for the physical, mental and spiritual man—it is not hard to realize that greed would have us labor all the days of our lives. Then, too, the Sabbath is a necessity. Man gives God but small chance in the six days of hurry and rush of the business life, no matter how conscientious man may be. Man, on the other hand, cannot stand seven days of uninterrupted labor for long. For the conservation of human strength, for the upbuilding of the spiritual and religious life in man, for the glory of God and the entrance of the soul into fellowship with Him, the Sabbath is a necessity. Without it we should become aged before our time and blunted in spiritual perception. With it we may know the joy of true rest well earned and may take time to become like Jesus.

In this day and time, and in this land, the divine authority of the Sabbath must be emphasized and upheld. The words of Jesus which permitted men to do acts of mercy on the Sabbath and to secure enough to eat to restrain hunger and to sustain the human system, can never, logically or righteously, be made an excuse for unnecessary labor or for a general holiday. The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath. But the Sabbath was instituted for the preservation and regeneration of the body and the inspiration and cultivation of the soul of man, and not as a means to idleness and loose living. There is a difference between the Sabbath and the Saturday half-holiday. And the general disregard by our people of the great memorial days that commemorate the birth of the nation, the sacrifice of her martyrs, the advent of her mighty men, is but a reflex of that disregard of the meaning and the obligation of God's day—the Sabbath—which He gave to man. People who will not revere the Lord will not long remember Lincoln. Men who will cast aside the Saviour of the world cannot be expected to spend much time to commemorate the deaths and sacrifices of the saviours of the Union. To put the Sabbath, the rest day, on Monday will not make men go to church; nor will the placing of Memorial Day on Sunday be efficient to turn the hearts of careless men to the contemplation and commemoration of the blood that flowed at Harper's Ferry, Fort Sumter, Vicksburg, and the rest. The man who feels no sympathy for the Christ on Calvary will feel less for those who fell on the bloody field at Gettysburg. What to him are the birth pains of the nations"

The tendency to turn the American Sabbath into a Continental Sunday is as perilous as it is pernicious. It strikes at the religious, the best and the central life of the people. The endeavor to escape Puritanism has led to all sorts of loose living and misspent leisure. As between Puritanism and Continentalism give me the law to the letter, rather than no law at all. The Sabbath should not be given over to riotous living.

On the other hand, in our endeavor to escape with Christ the killing letter of the law, we have, I think, gone too far. There are many things that are necessary and that must be done on the Sabbath, and contrariwise, there are many things done on the Sabbath that could be as well done on week days, and as many more that could well be left undone altogether. The word of Christ that the Sabbath was made for man can in no wise excuse the unnecessary labors that many tradesmen have to perform on Sunday. How many men and women who go to Coney Island or a hundred other places on Sunday can rightly plead necessity as excuse for putting extra labor upon multitudes of men? The Sunday paper tends to become a curse, not because it is unhealthy or unwise to read the news on the Sabbath, but because it puts unnecessary labor, in the majority of cases, upon a host and robs thousands of the common day of rest. The man who can't get shaved on Saturday has no real excuse for making the barber work on the Sabbath. I do not want to descend to trivial things, but you all know, as well as I, that there are a thousand and one things done that have no business to be performed on the Sabbath.

We need a readjustment to-day in our estimate of values. Sunday as the Sabbath is a boon to man. Sunday as a side show to the other six days of the week is a sacrilege.

The Transforming Power of Life.

The Arabs have a saying about the palm tree, that it stands with its feet in salt water and its head in the sun. They often cannot drink the brackish water found in the oasis where the palm grows, but they tap the tree and drink the sweet palm sap.

The palm tree by the magic of its inner life can so change the elements found in the unkindly soil around it that they minister to its growth and strength and fruit-bearing. So we in our earthly life must often have our feet in the mire and bitterness of sin around us; and upon our heads will often beat the fierce heat of temptation. But in spite of these things we shall be able to grow and grow strong, if within there is the making of a new life through Jesus Christ.—Bible Advocate.

Gentleness.

The strength of God is very gentle. He does not make a great noise in lifting the tides or in speeding the stars in their courses. The sunshine is one of His greatest treasuries of power. He turns the hearts of stalwart sinners by the touch of infant fingers or by the memory of a pious mother's spiritual beauty and fidelity. By loving invitations, tender encouragements and manifold ministries of patience and sympathy, He encourages the penitence and the faith of sinful and weak human hearts. His children should seek more of His gentleness. We are too easily tempted to bluster and violence. We forget that gentleness is greatness as well as goodness. If we would do brave deeds, let us seek to be filled with divine gentleness.—Northern Christian Advocate.

How Christ Makes Something of Us.

An English preacher used the following illustration: "Once there was a brier growing in the ditch, and there came along a gardener with his spade. As he dug round it and lifted it out, the brier said to itself: 'What is he doing that for? Doesn't he know that I am only an old, worthless brier?' But the gardener took it and planted it amid his flowers, while the brier said: 'What a mistake he has made, planting an old brier like myself among such rose trees as these!'"

Carrying the Cross.

In the mind of Jesus the cross is not a particular misfortune, but the measure of suffering implied in every act of love and self denial; this is the sense in which it is the very instrument of redemption; Jesus carried His cross, and those who follow Him must imitate Him, and in like manner carry a cross for the salvation of the world.—Auguste Sabatier.

Sing Amid the Shadows.

Anybody can sing in the sunshine; you and I should sing when the sun has gone down and when clouds pour out their rains, for Christ is with us. —J. R. Miller.

T. H. Turner, a deputy sheriff, lost his foot Sunday night at Bessemer, Ala. He was coming into Birmingham on a North Bessemer car when he tried to step from the front to the rear car. Slipping, he fell between the cars, and the wheels passed over his right foot.

The master painters and decorators of Huntsville held a meeting Tuesday and acted favorably on the request of the journeymen paperhangers and painters for an increase of their wages from $2 to $2.50 per day.

Resolving to name the main building at the Alabama Confederate Soldiers' Home at Mountain Creek "The Jefferson Falkner Memorial Hall," the board of control of the home Friday fixed the name of the founder and maintainer of the home on a lasting monument.

J. M. Coffman, of Limestone county has a curiosity in the way of a young turkey, which has four well developed legs, two at the proper place and one under each wing, the latter just as well developed as the first or proper ones. It only uses the two that any other bird of like species would use, and the two remaining ones do not seem to be in its way.

On Tuesday Clara Belle Cruise, a young daughter of D. L. Cruise, who lives two miles north of Centreville was dangerously burned. She was passing near a fire in the yard, when her clothing became ignited, and but for timely assistance she would have been burned to a crisp within a very short time. The chances are that she will recover.

Lived in a Camp.

A handsome equestrienne, richly dressed, was in Talladega, wearing around her waist a belt, to which was strapped a loaded Smith & Wesson pistol, snugly encased in a handsome scabbard. Her home was at one of the railroad camps some distance from that city, and the weapon was worn as a protection to her purse and person on the lonely ride.

Succeeds Pollard.

Frank M. DeGraffenreid, of Seale, succeeds J. L. Pollard as superintendent of education in Russell county. His appointment was announced on Thursday by Hon. Harry C. Gunnels, superintendent of education. Mr. DeGraffenreid is a lawyer, but after graduating from the Southern University, at Greensboro, he taught a school in Russell county for fo ruyears.

Gets $18,000 for Her Husband.

The widow of H. M. Hanbury, conductor on the Alabama Great Southern railway, has obtained a verdict in Jefferson for $18,000 for her husband's death. He was killed about a year ago at the Woodstock Junction with the Birmingham Mineral in a side collision. It is the largest verdict ever rendered in Jefferson county under similar circumstances, the damage being punitive.

Stock Law at Fort Payne.

At Fort Payne the ticket headed by Dr. W. E. Quinn for mayor, which favors the adoption of a stringent stock law, was victorious in the election held Monday over the ticket headed by Dr. J. B. Haralson. A great deal of trouble has been caused by the running at large of stock, and several law suits have been occasioned.

Work on Warrior River.

A party of government engineers has gone down the Warrior river at Tuscaloosa for the purpose of locating locks Nos. 16 and 17, work on which is to commence at once, the government having allotted enough money to clear the Warrior as far noth as the forks, where Valley creek empties into it. Valley creeks flows from Bessemer a distance of twenty miles. It is this creek which it is proposed to make into a canal as soon as the Warrior is navigable to its junction with the river. Government experts say this is feasible at a cost of $4,500,000. The survey has been made.

Warehouse Site Purchased.

A site has been selected for the Farmers' Union warehouse at Anniston, and at a meeting of the chamber of commerce a committee was appointed to secure subscriptions for the purchase of the site selected. The site is on Sixth street, running from Noble street to the railroad. It is 100 feet wide, extending across what would be an extension of Gurnee and Moore avenues. It is the property of the Anniston City Land Company and the price asked is $4,000. The site was selected by a committee from the warehouse committee of the Farmers' Union, and it is their purpose to erect the Farmers' Union warehouse on the property.

Price of Thread Advances.

New York.—The interests controlling the thread industry have advanced the price of thread 11 cents per dozen spools, and dealers throughout the country have taken material notice of the rise. Dealers say the price will be put up one cent.

Leesburg, Fla.—Five cars of fine watermelons have been shipped from Lady Lake, in this county. One car averaged 35 pounds.

CALL FOR KNOX.

Pennsylvania Republican State Convention Indorses Him For President.

Harrisburg, Pa.—The indorsement of United States Senator Knox for President; the nomination of John G. Sheats, of Philadelphia, for State Treasurer, and the adoption of a platform indorsing the policies and administration of President Roosevelt were the net results of the Republican State Convention.

The platform also commends the course of the Fifty-ninth Congress; indorses the action of Senators Penrose and Knox and the Pennsylvania delegation in that Congress, particularly in upholding the hands of President Roosevelt; declares adherence to the principle of protection to American labor, American industries and American products; commends the administration of Governor Stuart; indorses the work of the recent Legislature, and demands speedy prosecution of those who profited by the alleged frauds in furnishing and equipping the new State Capitol.

UNWRITTEN LAW FOR NEGRO.

White Southern Jury Frees Him For Vengeance in Home Circle.

Columbia, S. C.—The unwritten law was applied to John Jacobs, a negro, by a white jury in the Circuit Court of Richland County, acquitting him of murdering his wife, Bessie Jacobs, and her paramour, John Johnson, on the night of May 5.

Jacobs went home on that night, and, finding his honor compromised, killed both by beating in their heads with a hammer. He interposed the plea of temporary insanity, but the jury was appealed to on the plea of the unwritten law, and this is what it based its verdict on after fifteen minutes' consultation.

The verdict was cheered by the large number of negroes present.

LITTLE GIRLS TAKE POISON.

Two Children Relieve Grandparents of a "Burden."

Cleveland, Ohio.—To relieve their grandparents of the burden of supporting them, two sisters, Margaret Curtis, ten, and Helen Curtis, eleven, mixed arsenic with their food and swallowed it. They died later in St. John's Hospital. This was the fifth time they had tried to end their lives, and Mrs. Helen Curtis, their grandmother, says they inherited a suicidal mania. Their mother is dead and their father is in Marysville, Kan.

Helen M. Gougar Dead.

Helen M. Gougar, the well known temperance leader and lecturer, dropped dead at her home at Lafayette, Ind., of heart failure. Miss Gougar was born at Hillsdale, Mich., July 18, 1843.

Governor's Views on Merger.

Governor Guild announced to the Legislature of Massachusetts the proposed merger of the Boston and Maine and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads, and urged laws against the watering of stock.

SHIRT WAIST FASHIONS FOR THE MAIL CARRIERS.

Washington, D. C.—Letter carriers, if they desire to wear shirt waists, must wear also dark ties and neat belts. This has been determined officially by the Postoffice Department.

A few days ago Postmaster-General Meyer received a letter from a mail carrier suggesting that the postal regulations state that carriers, when wearing shirt waists, must wear dark ties. He then continued:

"I desire very much to know whether the wearing of ties is compulsory for a member of a religious sect that does not allow its members to wear ties at all. Does not the Constitution of the United States insure religious freedom to every legal citizen?"

Postmaster-General Meyer, replying to the communication, said:

"Under the postal regulations if a letter carrier wishes to wear a shirt waist he must also wear a turn-down collar with a dark tie and a neat belt."

BURIED FRENCH WOMAN RESCUED TOO LATE.

Paris.—The wife of a farmer of Mount de Marsan, in the Province of Landes, was buried while in a state of catalepsy.

The woman had suffered from a lingering illness, and death apparently took place a week ago. The body was interred on Friday, and for some unexplained reason the grave was not filled at once.

The following Monday a man who was passing the grave heard stifled cries proceeding from it, and ran to the house of the Mayor to give information.

The Mayor summoned a doctor and hurried off with him to the cemetery. When the coffin was opened the woman inside made a convulsive effort to rise.

The doctor put his arms around her and raised her to a sitting position. Her heart was still beating, but she died shortly afterward.

The woman had torn her shroud to pieces in her desperate efforts to escape from her living tomb.

ROOF GARDEN VAUDEVILLE ON A CHURCH.

Philadelphia. — When the Rev. Charles R. McClellan, D. D., pastor of the Fair Hill Baptist Church, of this city, suggested to his congregation that the church should be surmounted by a roof garden, where a vaudeville show could be held in warm weather to attract men, women and children to Gospel services, those present manifested their approval by subscribing $12,000 for the project. The Fair Hill congregation is composed largely of mill workers.

Dr. McClellan said: "Too many of our people find the church unattractive. We must offer something to draw them from the playhouse, the poolroom and the saloon. If necessary we must supply a free lunch, which attracts so many men to the saloon."

CURES WIFE'S INSOMNIA BY STAGE DEVICE.

He saw in a medical journal that the patter of raindrops on the roof would cure sleeplessness. Getting a theatre employe to help him, he rigged up a thunder and lightning maker on the tin roof of his house near his bedroom. When darkness came he sent his son out, with the garden hose and urged his wife to go to bed, saying it looked like rain.

Soon the rumble of thunder and flashes of lightning were followed by the patter of raindrops on the roof, and in a few minutes Mrs. Benham was asleep. Benham says the trick has worked a complete cure.

Newsy Paragraphs.

The French seamen surrendered to the Government.

Guatemala began to fortify along the Mexican boundary.

Suits against the Minnesota two-cent fare law were started in St. Paul.

Russia, with Austria and Germany, opposes any discussion at The Hague of the question of limitation of armaments.

FISHED WITH HONEY FOR ANT IN THROAT.

Smith is an athlete and takes long walks, carrying his lunch with him. An ant dropped on a sandwich he was eating and lodged half way down his throat, clinging to the membrane by its mandibles.

Two Shrewsbury physicians were unable to release its hold, and Smith was being tickled to death when taken to Worcester.

A waxed thread with honey on it was worked down Smith's throat by a doctor and the ant finally seized it and was pulled out.

MISER SPENDS $30,000 IN FEAR OF BEING SLAIN.

Pulaski, Tenn.—Stricken with the fear that he would be murdered for his money, Willis Smith, eighty-four years old, has flooded the country with $30,000 in quarters and half dollars, which he has been hiding in fruit jars for many years.

The money was coined two generations ago, but is not worn. Many years ago Smith put some money in a bank and the cashier at once paid it out on a check. Smith saw this and withdrew his money, saying he would not do business with a concern that would not keep his money "better than that."

GIRLS ON STRIKE FOR LARGER DOWRY.

Paris.—The most curious strike in France is on in the suburb of Granges-le-Roi, near Paris, where the girls are "out" demanding a larger marriage dowry for the annually elected "Rosiere," or Queen of the Rose.

The "Rosiere" is chosen from among the industrious unmarried women under twenty-five, and the lucky girl receives from the community $50.

Six girls elected in succession this year declined to serve, saying the sum was too small.

TIGER DODGES BULL AND CHARGES CROWD.

Colon.—The arms-carrying habit in Panama City came in handy at the last tiger and bull fight.

Three thousand persons, one-third of them Americans, were in the grandstand, when the tiger broke out of its pen and made for the crowd.

There was almost a panic, but a fusillade of shots ended the career of the beast after he had gone through the first ten rows of seats.

WHOLE TOWN BUSY PLAYING MARBLES.

Sandy Hook, Ky.—Marble playing is monopolizing the time of men, women and children at Sandy Hook.

Everybody is playing the game. Gray-haired men and women enjoy it as much as children.

Even Judge Hargis, who is ready for trial, charged with killing Dr. Cox, plays in the court-yard with other prisoners all day.

SNORER SHOT FOR WILD BEAST IN IOWA.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—Richard Harding's alcoholic snoring, while sleeping behind a hedge at Durfee mining camp, caused him to be shot and killed by friends, who mistook the vibrations of Harding's uvula for the snorting of a wild animal. The slayers surrendered to the Sheriff.

DIED IN ROOM WHERE HE WAS BORN.

Wilmington, Del. — Born seventy years ago in the house at No. 405 Shipley street, William H. Jack, one of the best known men in Wilmington, died from paralysis in the room in which he first saw the light of day.

TRIAL BY JURY FOR TRUSTS.

John R. Dos Passos Proposes Amendments to Sherman Act.

Washington, D. C.—John R. Dos Passos, of New York City, has written to President Roosevelt submitting proposed amendments to the Sherman Anti-Trust law. He says the matter of the trusts must be taken out of politics.

Mr. Dos Passos proposes that the act, contract or combination alleged must be injurious to the public to be illegal and must be passed upon by a jury.

FAMOUS LOTTERY ENDS ITS CAREER

34 PAY FINES OF $204,000

Agree to Surrender All Books and Paraphernalia, and This Means That the Gambling Enterprise Has Come to an End.

Mobile, Ala.—With the imposition of fines, aggregating $214,000, in the Federal Court here, upon thirty-four persons, the Honduras National Lottery Company, which the United States Government has for fifteen years been pursuing, passed out of existence. The penalization of the principals in the company and their agents, and an order confiscating certain property of the company situated in this country, marks the end of a stupendous and highly profitable gambling venture, in which all of the chances were taken by the patrons. The company gathered in about $4,000,000 a year, retained forty-five per cent., and divided the remainder among the prize-winners in the scheme.

The action against the lottery promoters was taken in the court for the Southern District of Alabama, before Judge Toulmin, and resulted in the entering of wholesale pleas of guilty, the charge being conspiracy to cause the interstate carriage of lottery advertisements. In pleading guilty, the defendants agreed to surrender for destruction all lottery books, plates and other paraphernalia, and, also, to dispose of the printing establishment of the company at Wilmington, Del., known as the John M. Rogers Press, where the lottery tickets have for years been printed.

Fines of $10,000 each were assessed against Dave Hennen Morris and Alfred Hennen Morris, of New Orleans and New York City; W. C. Henderson, of Brooklyn, was fined $5000; Harry W. Henderson, of Brooklyn, was fined $2500; Oscar Hauger, of Hoboken, $1500, while fines ranging from $10,000 to $500 were assessed against the following: William H. Parkhouse, James Rea, G. W. Bredow, William P. Johnston, Louis C. Graham, Edward L. Pinac, Frank L. Howard, Albert Baldwin, Sr., Chapman Hyams, Paul Conrad, John M. Demarest and Edward J. Demarest, all of New Orleans; John Morris Rogers, Jesse K. Baylis and Lester K. Baylis, of Wilmington; James S. Moire, Chicago; General W. L. Cabell, Dallas; Robert K. Thompson, Mobile; Joseph L. Shaw, Tom Williams and Henry L. Plum, Washington, D. C.; Herman Bruner, St. Louis; Frank E. Johnson, Hartford; A. B. Kaufman, Detroit; Harry J. Schott, Baltimore; Wallace Masterson, Savannah; Francis X. Fitzpatrick and John Hoag.

The Honduras National Lottery Company was originally the Louisiana State Lottery Company, a duly legalized institution under the State Constitution, with a charter running for twenty-five years—to 1894. John A. Morris, of New Orleans, was the dominant factor. At the expiration of the charter the State declined to renew it, although offered $1,250,000 a year. The company then began business at Puerto Cortez, Honduras, as the Honduras National Lottery Company, having twelve drawing a year—ten for each—of which about $2,000,000 of tickets were sold, and two grand drawings, for each of which double that sum, approximately, was received for the sale of tickets, while the prizes were also doubled.

HAMLIN KILLED IN AUTO.

Millionaire Buffalo Horse Breeder Was Trying to Pass Runabout.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Harry Hamlin, millionaire, clubman, horsebreeder and automobile enthusiast, was instantly killed on the Williamsville road, north of this city. He was riding in his seventy horse power car and was trying to pass a high-power runabout. Both cars were running at a speed said to be in excess of fifty miles an hour. The accident to Hamlin's car occurred when it ran into a horse and buggy.

Hamlin went out riding accompanied by his chauffeur, Peter Minhard, and a workman in his barn, John Hanson. Minhard was driving the car.

BOOST PRICE OF MEAT.

Law Against Diseased Cattle Makes Famine at Packing Centres.

Chicago.—Prices of all kinds of packing products were raised from one to three cents a pound by the wholesale and retail dealers. The packers have protested against pursuing cattle under the new inspection law, which makes it incumbent upon them to permit a post-mortem examination after they buy their animals. They have demanded a better grade of cattle, or that the farmer stand the loss, and the farmers, "to get even," have shut off the supply. As a consequence, the packers have boosted prices.

Temporary Commissions Appointed.

Markers carved from stone and intended to preserve the famous Santa Fe trail that, starting at Kansas City and reaching far into the southwest, served as the highway to this part of the country before the advent of the railway, were unveiled Sunday at Overland Park, Kan.

Tuberan.—It is reported that Hassam Malik, the Basilian prince, attacked Sultan Ali Dowlad, governor of Larissa province, Saturday.

DEATH OF SENATOR MORGAN

The death of U. S. Senator John T. Morgan occurred at Washington, Tuesday night, in the presence of his two daughters. He had not been in good health for some time, but had attended to his congressional duties until about a week ago. After thirty years of public service he dies full of honor. The interment will take place at his old home at Selma.

A word to the business men of the town. You think, no doubt, that a country newspaper is a kind of charitable institution, begging for advertisements just for the sake of the money it brings to the paper. You think you and the other citizens of the city and county could get on without your home paper, and so you could, and so the citizens of the county could get along without the stores, too, but they would find it a very poor and inconvenient way of getting along, and if the county was without a newspaper for as much as one month, you and others would wake up to the fact that a country newspaper is a necessity and a strictly business proposition. You think you get no adequate return for the money expended in advertisement, but just try selecting a certain article you carry in stock, without finding much sale for it, and give it a few weeks persistent advertising and see if it does not bring results. Think this matter over. Look at the city papers and see how the merchants there advertise, see how persistently patent medicine sellers advertise, see how men in other businesses advertise, then ask yourself if they would spend their money in constant, persistent, advertising if it didn't pay. Think about it, for I am coming around to see you, and I want an ad from you if you decide it will pay you to advertise.—Pell City Times.

"THE OLD WORLD AND ITS WAYS"

Col. William Jennings Bryan announces a new book of travel entitled "The Old World and its Ways," which recounts his recent tour around the world and his journeys through Europe. It is profusely and elegantly illustrated with 240 artistic engravings representing men and things seen in the various countries of the earth during that noted journey. The engravings are made from photographs taken by him or his party specially for this publication. It is the monumental literary work of his life, and is published under his special supervision. He has, by special contract with his publishers, made the retail price low down with the view of putting it within the easy reach of every reader and book buyer.

The book gives his experiences—what he saw and did—whom he met and his impressions and conclusions. He made a profound study of men and things as he saw them in this noted journey around the world. He gives governmental, educational, religious and other conditions, from the standpoint of a student and one profoundly interested in all the people of the earth

While Col. Bryan traveled as a private citizen he went with the prestige of having made two memorable contests for the Presidency of the United States, and he was everywhere recognized and entertained as a great representative American, having a leading part in the direction of American affairs. He was given opportunity for observations never before accorded to any one traveling in private capacity.

If one wants to see the world, and the people who are at the head of affairs in all countries, as well as the masses, he has in this book an opportunity of seeing them through the eyes of Col. William Jennings Bryan. It is sold by subscription, and the Thompson Publishing Company of St. Louis Mo., are the fortunate publishers. They offer an especially inviting opportunity to soliciters in another column of this issue.

Buy Hair at Auction?

At any rate, you seem to be getting rid of it on auction-sale principles: "going, going, g-o-n-e!" Stop the auction with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It certainly checks falling hair; no mistake about this. It acts as a regular medicine; makes the scalp healthy. Then you must have healthy hair, for it's nature's way.

Sardis.

The health of this community is good.

Our Sunday school at Sardis is progressing nicely.

The farmers are glad to see the pretty weather; they have all been very busy with their crops.

We are glad to say that Mrs. Ratliff, who has been on the sick list, is up.

Some few of the boys and girls went to the dinner at Mt. Nebo, and repoet a nice time.

There is to be a dinner at Sardis the fifth Sunday in June; everybody is invited.

Our prayermeeting is holding out faithfully; come and let us all try to do more for the cause of God this year than we have in the past year. I will ring off with best wishes to the dear old Banner and its many readers. PSHAW.

Stump's Hill.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words

I have been requested by some of my neighbors to announce a Sunday school basket dinner at Mount Zion church, the fourth Sunday in June, (the 23rd). We hope and expect to have some good singing and something to eat, while we will not object to any full basket that any one may chance to bring. We invite everybody to join us that can conveniently do so, and would be glad to have our friends from Jemison, Clanton, and as far down as Verbena, join us. Will appreciate any good talk, on any interesting subject that any one will give us. We also want to take a collection for Childrens' day on that day, as it is ill-convenient for us to have the regular exercises

We would be glad to have Mr. F. A. Gulledge give us a call and I am satisfied some of his Stump's Hill friends will meet him or any other good man at the nearest railroad station. Success to the Banner and its many readers.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words about our co operation with Nature in our Children's Day. We are proud to say we had a grand success. We were proud to see so many of our good brethren and sisters come to visit us from all over the county, and we do thank everybody for their good behavior; we can say we certainly never saw such good behavior with such a large crowd. We think that God will bless all such services. We do ask God's blessing on the entire congregation. The program was as follows:

Every Man His Own Doctor.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must for necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had when suitable medicines are kept at hand. Chamberlain's Remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm (an antiseptic liniment) for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, swellings, lame back and rheumatic pains.

Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin.

One bottle of each of these five preparations costs but $1.25. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Color Blindness.

If one thousand men gaze at a garden of flowers, fifty of them will see the colors falsely. If one thousand women view them, nine hundred and ninety-six or seven will perceive the hues correctly. Of the six colors of the rainbow, which, mingled in thousands of combinations, give all the varying hues of sky and sea, of mountain and valley, some are never seen by the color blind, or are felt only as light and shade of black and white. Very few persons are totally color blind, yellow, blue and violet being rarely lost. To the totally color blind all landscapes and objects are like an engraving in black and white.—Century.

There is no article of food more nutritious or healthful than Argo Red Salmon. As a brain and muscle builder, it is far ahead of beef or other meats.

Needed His Horse Chestnut.

J. G. Simpson, who had been arrested yesterday as an alleged bookmaker, tearfully begged Lieut. Wheeler, after he had been released for want of evidence against him, to return a horse chestnut which the lieutenant had taken from him.

"Please let me have it," he pleaded. "I might just as well try to play the races without money as without that horse chestnut. I can't lose if I carry it." When it was restored to him he seemed more glad to get it back than he was to obtain his discharge from custody.

Simpson and W. G. Martin, a sailor on the cruiser Washington, at League Island, were arrested at Twelfth and Commerce streets. Simpson had a racing book in his hand, in which he had made a record of a $5 bet on a horse running at the Bennings track. As the police had seen no exchange of money between the men, Magistrate Gallagher allowed Simpson to go with a warning.—Philadelphia Ledger.

English Jurors' Remuneration.

The scale of remuneration of English common jurymen is absurd. In a civil case in England a common juryman is allowed 5 shillings ($1.25) a day for "a view"—that is, for inspecting any property or thing in dispute—but otherwise he is, in law, not entitled to any remuneration.

It is usual, however, in the High Court to give him a fee of 1 shilling, and in the counties 8 pence. Special jurymen receive much higher remuneration. The fee in the County Court is 1 shilling a case, in the Mayor's court twopence, and in the London Sheriff's court fourpence.—Chambers' Journal.

AN OLD EDITOR

Found $2000 Worth of Food.

The editor of a paper out in Okla. said: "Yes, it is true when I got hold of Grape-Nuts food it was worth more than a $2000 doctor bill to me, for it made me a well man. I have gained 25 pounds in weight, my strength has returned tenfold, my brain power has been given back to me, and that is an absolute essential, for I am an editor and have been for 35 years.

"My pen shall always be ready to speak a good word for this powerful nutritive food. I had of course often read the advertisements regarding Grape-Nuts, but never thought to apply the food to my own use, until, in my extremity and sickness the thought came to me that it might fit my case. The statements in regard to the food are absolutely correct, as I have proven in my own case. One very fortunate thing about the food is that while it is the most scientifically made and highly nourishing, concentrated food I have ever known, it has so delicious a taste that it wins and holds friends." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Slow but Sure.

The other day an officer in command of a battalion within Marlborough Lines was startled to observe on the parade ground a traction engine dragging several trucks of gravel. He was told it was to his order from the War Office, and on inquiry at that historic institution he discovered that the order had been found in a pigeonhole, and was dated 1856. We mention this in order to show that, with Mr. Haldane at the War Office, all the clerks are hustlers now.—London Globe.

Dies of Mumps at Ninety-five.

At the age of ninety-five Mrs. Cynthia P. Houghtaling, of this city, died today of mumps. Mrs. Houghtaling was the oldest woman in the city. It was not believed possible at first that at such an age she could be suffering from a disease which she had escaped in her childhood, but her physician declared that it was plainly a case of mumps. She was very ill from the first and died in a few days.—Holyoke (Mass.) Dispatch in the New York Times.

68, BUT PERFECTLY WELL.

The Happy Experience of a New Castle, Pa., Woman.

Mrs. John Mansell, 614 So. Jefferson St., New Castle, Pa., says: "For years I was running down with kidney trouble without knowing what it was, and finally got so bad I was given up. The urinary passages were painful, sometimes scanty and again very profuse. My limbs, feet and ankles bloated dreadfully, and sometimes my whole body. My heart palpitated and I had smothering spells. A week's treatment with Doan's Kidney Pills helped me and a few boxes cured me. At 68 I am strong and well."

A Corporation Parallel.

The late Henry Altemus, the well known Philadelphia publisher, disliked trusts and foresaw trouble from them.

At a journalists' dinner in Philadelphia, Mr. Altemus said of trusts.

"They remind me in their cupidity of a boy I once knew.

"This boy's mother ran into the nursery one afternoon and said:

"Jimmy, what's the matter with your little brother?"

"'He's crying,' the boy answered, 'because I'm eating my stick of candy and won't give him any.'

"'Is his own candy finished?'

"'Yes, ma'am, and he cried while I was eating that, too.'"—Baltimore Sun.

The King's Uniform.

When John Burns entered the Cabinet there were rumors that he would refuse to don the cocked hat and epaulets of official uniform. The king asked him about it. "Not true," replied Mr. Burns; "and, besides, I have already worn your Majesty's uniform." The King naturally asked when that was. "When I was in Pentonville," answered Mr. Burns, alluding, of course, to his three months' sentence after the Trafalgar square riots.—Tit-Bits.

Give Variety.

Variety of feed and palatability is almost as important as quality. It is not always how much feed an animal eats that make the gains, but it is the quality of that feed and the way it is relished.

Montana has a bill compelling boarding house keepers to tell what is in the hash. Still there are some instances where ignorance would be bliss.

TROLLEY SLEEPERS FOR FARMERS.

Running Through Corn Belt and Proving a Big Success.

Sleeping on the trolley cars while gliding through the corn belt country of Illinois is growing popular, and the experiment the McKinley line made of installing sleeping car service between East St. Louis and Decatur, Ill., will no doubt prove an attractive feature of this trans-state service.

Trolley lines have tried to run sleeping cars before, with only moderate success, principally because the routes were not long enough. In Indiana it was tried on a line where patrons could scarcely get forty winks before being awakened at the end of the line.

The McKinley service leaves East St. Louis at midnight and reaches Springfield at half-past four o'clock in the morning. Four hours' sleep and being put off the car in the cold gray dawn does not appeal to patrons of the road, so the car rolls on a siding and remains until eight o'clock. Then the Springfield passengers are routed out, while passengers for Decatur or intermediate points are allowed to dream on. From Springfield to Decatur the time is about an hour and a half, so the passengers for that point reach their destination at half-past nine.

The advantages the trolley sleeper has over the sleeper with which the travelling public are more familiar are many. The price of a berth on the trolley is $1, half the price of the other, but the berth is not intended for two, and no two persons of proportions characteristic of those bred in the corn belt of Illinois are likely to try more than once to reduce expenses by occupying the same berth. The furnishings of the car are fully up to the standard, the woodwork being of mahogany. The ten sections of the car are arranged in compartments, not so large as the compartments of a Mann boudoir car.—New York Herald.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhœa), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections it is often successful in affecting cures.

"Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulæ of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

How It Impressed Him.

Ex-Senator "Billy" Mason tells of a political campaign in South Dakota wherein he had been called upon by the State committee to take a part. When Mason arrived at his first town, where he was to deliver a speech the next day, he found that the two so-called hotels were crowded to the doors.

Not having telegraphed for accommodations, the Illinois man discovered that he would have to make shift as best he could.

He was compelled for that night to sleep on a wire cot that had only some blankets and a sheet on it. As Mr. Mason is a man of considerable avoirdupois, he found his improvised bed anything but comfortable.

"Well," asked the proprietor, when the politician apeared in the morning, "how did you sleep?"

"Fairly well," answered Mason, "but I certainly looked like a waffle when I got up."—Harper's Weekly.

Science at School.

The education of our young in science at school is another hope of the future of our race, for the seed is more readily sown, and has a better chance of bringing forth much goodly intellectual fruit when it falls on the fertile mental field of youth than when it finds before it an older soil, already much occupied with worldly affairs.—Illustrated London News.

Doctor's Advice Taken.

"Medicine won't help you any," a 15th Ward physician told a patient, after diagnosing his case. "I see what ails you. What you need is a complete change of living. Get away to some quiet country place for at least a month. Go to bed early, eat more roast beef, drink plenty of good, rich milk and smoke just one cigar a day. And if you are in this neighborhood in a month or two drop in and let me see you." The man started off feeling that he was already on the road to improvement, and the next day found him headed for the country. A little more than a month passed. One day the patient walked into the doctor's office. He looked like a new man, and the doctor told him so. "It pays to have a change sometimes, doesn't it?" was the doctor's greeting. "Yes, doctor, your advice certainly did the business. I went to bed early and did all the other things you told me to do. But say, doctor, that one cigar a day almost killed me at first. I tell you, it's no joke starting in to smoke at my time of life."—Philadelphia Record.

IRISH HOPEFULNESS.

Sure, Things Are Never So Bad but They Might Be Worse.

The Irishman sees everything through rose colored glasses, says a writer in the Guidon. He is supported, too, by a simple, sturdy faith, a spirit of resignation and unworldliness worthy of the saints of old.

The dread blight had fallen on the fields in most of the district where we were visiting in Ireland, and the potato vines hung limp and brown. No word of complaint was spoken, and when the likelihood of famine was mentioned the answer came:

"Danger, ma'am? Yes, there is, indeed, but God is good. He'll find a way."

So, too, about the hay. The summer had been terribly wet, and for days the new mown hay had laid on the ground. It was an anxious time.

"What will you do," I said to Mike, "if this weather keeps up? Your hay will surely be ruined."

"Oh, please God, it won't keep up," he answered. "He'll send us a bright day soon, just to see how well we'll use it."

"What a glorious night, Mikey," I said to the boy, as he and I and the donkey drove home under the August moon.

"A fine night, indeed, ma'am. Thanks be to God for giving it to us!"

They showed us, on the road to town, a gentleman's place where, in a stretch of what not long since had evidently been thickly wooded land, stood stump after stump of giant trees. Four or five years ago, when the winter was exceptionally long and cold, the peasants suffered from scarcity of peat. They begged this landed proprietor to sell them wood, offering not only to pay his price but to fell the trees and carry them off. He refused.

Again and again they begged, for the suffering grew intense, but he would not let his hand be marred. One night there came a wind so frightful that it seemed for a time as if the "big wind" were blowing again. In the morning the highway along this proprietor's domain was impassable. Huge trees, blown to the ground, lay across the road for a distance of two miles, and the forest beauty was a thing of the past. The town authorities ordered the obstruction cleared away, and the peasants got for nothing more than they had been refused for pay.

"'Twas the hand of God was in that, ma'am," I was told, "for, with all the wind, not a poor man's cot was harmed, nor another tree on the countryside only those. God always looks after His poor."

BABY ITCHED TERRIBLY.

Face and Neck Covered With Inflamed Skin—Doctors No Avail—Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

"My baby's face and neck were covered with itching skin similar to eczema, and she suffered terribly for over a year. I took her to a number of doctors, and also to different colleges, to no avail. Then Cuticura Remedies were recommended to me by Miss G—. I did not use it at first, as I had tried so many other remedies without any favorable results. At last I tried Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, and to my surprise noticed an improvement. After using three boxes of the Cuticura Ointment, together with the Soap and Pills, I am pleased to say she is altogether a different child and the picture of health. Mrs. A. C. Brostlin, 111 N. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 20 and 30, 1906."

TRAVEL IN SKIFF.

Water Floods Southwestern Parish of Louisiana One to Five Feet.

New Orleans, La.—The first definite news from the flooded parish of Cameron, in the southwestern corner of Louisiana, arrived Thursday night. The inhabitants are safe, the dispatch says, but so deep are the floods that the sheriff is traveling in a gasoline launch and skiff over what were fertile cotton fields a few days ago in an effort to summon the July grand jury.

Nearly the entire parish, which contains about 1,500 square miles, and about 2,000 inhabitants, has been under water from one to five feet deep for several days past. A few high ridges standing above the water contain herds of cattle, which will die of starvation unless the floods subside quickly. In the southern and eastern parts of the parish farmers have abandoned their places for the year and will make a temporary living elsewhere. The outlook is serious.

TROWEL WASHINGTON USED.

The Masons Used It in Laying Corner Stone.

Washington, D. C.—Using the same trowel and gavel employed by George Washington in laying the corner stone of the capitol building, Grand Master F. J. Woodman, of the grand lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the District of Columbia, Saturday afternoon laid the corner stone of the new half million dollar Masonic temple. Historic implements were loaned for the occasion by Washington lodge Alaexandria, Va., and Potomac lodge of this city, who have been the custodians since the first president of the United States was the grand master of the Masons of Virginia. President Roosevelt was the Masons' guest of honor and delivered an address. Many government officials were present.

COTTON BLOOMS.

First of the Season Found in Mississippi Fields.

Jackson, Miss.—First cotton blooms are being reported from several of the southern counties, which seemingly belies the reports of a very late crop. The first blooms, however, are generally reported from favored sections where cotton fields, by reason of topography and exceptionally careful methods of cultivation were not greatly damaged by unfavorable weather.

In many counties it has been found that published reports of crop conditions two weeks ago were honestly exaggerated, and the outlook is not so gloomy as it was generally pictured. Conservative observers say that the government estimate of 65 per cent of nirmal condition for this state was a bit too low and could not be made to apply to existing conditions.

IN SEARCH OF THE POLE.

Party Backed by San Francisco Capitalists Starts on Expedition.

Seattle, Wash.—Backed by San Francisco capitalists and under general instructions from the Geological Society, of London, Capt. William Mogg and party sailed from Port Townsend aboard the ship James Drummong Friday on a cruise that carries every detail of a search for the north pole.

The ultimate destination of the party is Point Cape Prince Alfred, in the northernmost extremity of Banks Land and 800 miles northeast of the mouth of the Mackenzie river.

Saloons Voted Down.

Nashville, Tenn.—Bowling Green, Ky., voted out saloons Thursday, the vote being 900 for and 1,127 against saloons. When the law goes into effect there will not be an open saloon on the Louisville and Nashville railroad between Nashville and Louisville.

Woman Is 130 and Well.

Houston, Tex.—Mrs. L. Killcrease, of Pine Mills, ten miles from Mineola, Tex., celebrated her 131st birthday Monday. She was born June 10, 1776. She resided with her daughter and granddaughter, both of whom are also very old.

Boiled to Death.

Charlotte, N. C.—At High Point, N. C., at the Myrtle Furniture Factory, Charles Hayworth, the night watchman, fell into a vat of boiling water. Hayworth was pulled out by a fellow workman, but died a few hours later. He leaves a widow and one child.

DR. YOUNG J. ALLEN DIES IN CHINA

Death of Noted Missionary Announced by Cable.

WAS NATIVE OF GEORGIA.

Had Been in China Forty Years and Wrote One Hundred Books, Some in Chinese, Which Were Very Widely Read.

Atlanta, Ga.—Bishop W. A. Candler, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, received a cablegram Tuesday from Shanghai announcing the death of Dr. Young J. Allen, forty years missionary to China. No particulars were contained in the cablegram beside the announcement of the death.

Dr. Allen was a Georgian by birth. He was 72 years old and was educated at Emory College, graduating in 1858. Surviving him are Mrs. Allen, two sons and four daughters, all of whom excepting one married, Mrs. Mary Turner, residing in New York city, live in China. Dr. Allen was the author of nearly 100 books, some of which published in the Chinese language are widely read in that country.

During a visit to this country last year Dr. Allen was invited to conference by President Roosevelt regarding the situation in the Far East, particularly regarding the massacres, of which he had made a special study.

HISTORIC HAMMER

Used by Sons of American Revolution Convention at Denver.

Denver.—Special religious services at St. Mark's Episcopal church marked the opening of the eighteen annual convention of the National organization of Sons of American Revolution. The gavel to be used at the sessions of the congress is a hammer which was used at the siege of Valley Forge in 1777-78 by Captain Robert Vance, of the Ninth Virginia Regimen. This hammer belonged to a shoemaker's kit, and the handle of oak was made from a beam in the roof of Washington's headquarters at Pottstown, Pa., when the troops were at Valley Forge.

SPREAD OF DISEASE.

Charged to Hotels in Address by Paul Kennedy at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The American Academy of Medicine, in session here, elected Sir Victor Harsley and Sir A. E. Wright, both of London, England, as honorary members. Paul H. Kennedy, of New York, a specialist in the matter of investigating tenement house conditions, delivered an address on health affairs in the metropolis, in which he claimed hotels, as a rule, are breeding places of tuberculosis and other ailments of a contagious nature. He said that the extra death rate in Washington, D. C., was due to "dwellings inhabited by people which are not fit for animals."

Cannot be Naturalized.

Los Angeles, Cal.—According to a decision of the department of commerce and labor, Japanese cannot become citizens of the United States.

Several Japanese residents of Los Angeles had made application to be naturalized, and the matter was referred to Washington. Mandamus proceedings will be begun by the Japanese to determine their rights.

Mitchell Out of Hospital.

Spring Valley, Ill.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, Monday left the hospital where he had been for five weeks, and walked to his residence, a distance of several blocks. Mr. Mitchell will remain at home until he is able to try the mountain air of the west.

Man Snores Too Loud.

Oskaloosa, Ia.—While asleep behind a hedge at a mining camp Monday, Richard Harding snored so loud that friends thought it was a prowling animal, and shot and killed him. They surrendered themselves to the officers.

Oppose the "Ticker."

Vienna.—The International Cotton Congress came to an end May 29. The most important thing the congress did was to reach an understanding as to how cotton could be ginned, baled and delivered. An interesting feature was the fact that both growers and spinners were united in opposition to speculation in cotton futures.

Fire Department Destroyed.

San Angelo, Tex.—Fire here late Monday night destroyed $35,000 worth of business property, including a livery stable and ten horses. The fire department house was also burned, and the entire fire apparatus of the town destroyed.

Goes to Help Calhoun.

Atlanta, Ga.—Alex King, of Atlanta, former partner of Pat Calhoun, under indictment in San Francisco, will Tuesday leave for San Francisco, where he goes to aid in the defense of the United Railways against the attack being made on it. Pat Calhoun is president of the United Railways, and it is declared that the fight on Calhoun is merely an incident in the general plan to depreciate the stock of the street car company.

A GOLD PLATE FOR ROOSEVELT.

President Was Deeply Touched by the Incident.

Washington.—A plate of solid Georgia gold, weighing 22 ounces, and worth more than $400, was handed to President Roosevelt by W. N. Mitchell, president of the Georgia commission, which is arranging the program at the Jamestown Exposition for the president's visit there next week.

The plate is 6 by 10 inches in size, and bears upon its face a picture of old "Bulloch Hall," the home of the president's mother, which has been erected in duplicate at the exposition grounds by the state of Georgia. The Bulloch coat of arms and the coat of arms of the state are also engraved upon the plate, with the following inscription:

"To Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, Georgia Day, Jamestown Exposition, June 10, 1907. W. N. Mitchell, President Georgia Commission. Joseph M. Terrell, Governor of Georgia."

The president said that no incident in his whole public career had touched him more than the presentation of this souvenir, said Mr. Mitchell after his call upon the executive.

Mr. Mitchell said that every grain of gold in the plate had been mined in Georgia, within 20 miles of the Bulloch home, and according to the official assay of the government, it is the purest gold that has been found in a natural state anywhere in the country.

MARRIED 70 YEARS.

Have Been Married Longer Than Any Other Couple.

London.—At their beautiful home in Regent's Park, John Brinsmead, the well-known piano manufacturer, and his wife celebrated their seventieth wedding anniversary Monday. King Edward sent a message of congratulation to the aged couple, each of whom is 92 years old. The anniversary was made an occasion for a great gathering of the Brinsmead clan, including 23 grandchildren, 12 great grand-children and a host of friends and employes of the Brinsmead firm. Both Mr. and Mrs. Brinsmead are enjoying excellent health for persons of their advanced years.

BABIES EXCHANGED.

Iowa Women Distracted Over Mistake and There's No Remedy.

Des Moines, Ia.—Two babies, each under 3 months old, are believed to have been exchanged at a dance Monday night at the home of Gustave Gausthaf, near Marquisville, and the courts may have to settle the matter. When the dance was at its merriest, two youths, who probably had never heard of the little trick of Owen Wister's Virginian, undressed the children who slumbered in an upstairs bedroom and changed their clothing, and the two newest babies were hopelessly confused.

CANAL MAY GO TO SEA LEVEL.

Chagres River Cannot Supply Water for Area, Which is Under Survey.

Panama.—According to a report made by the minority of the Isthmian canal commission, it was estimated that the area of the canal and lakes would not exceed 110 square miles.

It now appears from an excellent authority that that portion of the canal and lake surveyed up to date, which is less than half of the ultimate total, exceeds 200 square miles, and fears are entertained regarding the sufficiency of the water supply.

The Chagres river, it is argued, cannot supply water for this increased area.

5,000 Miners to Quit Tuesday.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The executive committee of the United Mine Workers of America, eleventh district, on Tuesday issued a strike order calling about five thousand miners to leave the mines Friday of this week and go on strike. There are eight or ten grievances of the miners. The test of strength will be made in Union mine where the mine committee would not allow men to work because they did not belong to the local lodge, though they belonged to other lodges.

Expels Brewery Workers.

Washington.—The Brewery Workers' Union, comprising 400 local organizations, gathered throughout the country, has been expelled from the American Federation of Labor on orders of President Gompers.

Castellane Appeal Put Off.

Paris.—The appeal of Count Boni de Castellane against the decision of the court on November 14 last, granting a divorce to his wife, was again postponed Wednesday. It probably will not be heard until December.

Pekin to Paris.

Pekin.—Three French, one Dutch and one Italian motor cars started Monday morning in the Pekin-to-Paris race. They were given an enthusiastic send off by the foreign residents, including the American, Austrian and French ministers. A French band played selections. The Chinese were much astonished, as this was the first time motor cars had been seen in Pekin.

ALABAMA EVENTS FROM OVER THE STATE.

Interesting Items to Dwellers in the Commonwealth

A BRIEF WEEKLY SUMMARY

Though the Crop Will Undoubtedly Be Short, the Commissioner of Agriculture Hopes for Good Prices—65 Per Cent on the Average Crop.

While it is a little early to predict crop shortages, it is quite plain to Commissioner of Agriculture Wilkinson that the cotton output of Alabama for the present years is in danger of falling below what might have been expected. In an address issued Saturday he says: "At this time it seems impossible to make a big crop, and there is every reason to believe that we will have good prices in the fall." He urges the farmers not to despair, that it is early in the season and "good crops may come from very late planting." He has noted that one extreme generally follows another, and suggests that "we may yet have a late fall in which to gather our crops. The government report, which has just been published, shows that the general condition of the cotton crop is about 70 per cent of what we might term our general average. It also shows that the area planted and to be planted in the south equals that of last year. It shows the condition of Alabama to be 65 per cent of an average crop and the acreage planted 6 per cent less than that planted last year.

Timber for Panama.

The firm of Tuthill & Patterson, lumber manufacturers of Sheffield, has just closed a contract with the government, whereby the company is to supply a large amount of heavy timber to be used in construction work on the Panama canal. A. A. Parsons representing Tuthill & Patterson, has left for Panama, where he will remain several months on business connected with the delivery of the material contracted for, which is to be shipped as soon as it can be gotten out by the mill.

Expanding Their Plants.

It is understood that extensive additions are to be made to the plant of the Gadsden Pipe and Fitting Company by T. G. Bush and others, of Birmingham, the recent purchasers. These parties also own and operate the Coosa Pipe Works, adjacent to the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company's furnaces at Gadsden. The combined factories will make the largest single sanitary pipe manufactory in the south.

His Body Cut in Two.

Having been run over and nearly cut in twain by a switch engine of the Wood stock Iron and Steel Corporation in Anniston Saturday evening Charles Carter, a negro employe of the corporation, lived for two hours afterward and talked very rationally to those about him, pleading several times for ice water. He recognized his friends to the last.

Virginia-Carolina Plant Burns.

A shed at the plant of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company in North Montgomery was destroyed by fire late Saturday afternoon, entailing a loss of $85,000, which is covered by insurance. The loss includes 800 tons of cotton seed, 4,000 tons of acid phosphate, the building and valuable machinery. Manager Izlar, of the company, expressed the opinion that the fire was caused by sparks from a passing engine.

Wants a Dispensary.

A bill will be introduced at the adjourned session of the legislature to create a dispensary at Bridgeport, in Jackson county. The dispensary will be conducted and regulated in about the same manner as the dispensary in this city. Jackson county has been prohibition several years and a fight will be made to secure the passage of the bill creating a dispensary.

Furnace Blown Out.

The Hattie furnace, of Sheffield, has been "blown out" for repairs, which will require several days. This furnace has been running continuously for nearly four years without shutting down, which is considered a remarkably good record.

Changes in Furnace Management.

Andy Gibson has been appointed superintendent of the blast furnaces of the Southern Steel Company at Gadsden to succeed T. G. Bush, Jr., who resigned to take the general managership of the two pipe shops in Gadsden. Until a few weeks ago he was head foundryman at the local furnaces of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company, and his record there was of the best.

Short of Cash.

Mayor Teague, of Montgomery, let out a bunch of city employes, and more will go, because of the low state of the city treasury. Only the fire and police departments escaped.

Barn Is Burned.

The big barn of Shelley Lawler at Maysville was burned Saturday morning, causing a loss of about $1,000. The barn contained a large quantity of farming implements.

Slain Accused for Surgery.

E. D. Miner has been arrested and jailed at Cullman on a warrant from Etowah county, and the true facts in a remarkable surgery episode are made public. It is alleged that some time ago E. D. Miner invited Oliver Johnson to his boarding house on Washington street, in Gadsden, to spend the night and that some midnight Johnson was seen to rifle the pockets of another boarder, taking $30 in gold and walked off with a big gun to ward off any possible interference. That same night the Keeling store was robbed. Johnson disappeared and Miner was arrested, but later he was released. Johnson was then caught at his home in Death county and confessed, it is said, that he and Miner planned both robberies and that he watched while Miner robbed the Keeling store. In the meantime Miner disappeared and has just been captured. Both men are white and come from respectable families.

Street Car Accident.

Edward L. Rice, of Memphis, was the victim of a serious accident Tuesday morning at Florence, and is now at the home of his nephew, Mr. Turner Rice, with a broken leg. Mr. Rice had just arrived from Memphis and attempted to step from a moving electric car at the corner of Court and Tuscaloosa streets, when he fell, breaking the bone just above the ankle and barely escaping being crushed under the wheels. He was taken to the office of Dr. Eugene Lindsay and his leg set. Mr. Rice is cashier of the Bank of Commerce, of Memphis, and had come to Florence for a brief visit to relatives.

Good Weather for Farmers.

Farmers throughout Etowah county are taking advantage of the present spell of good weather and are preparing to overcome the disadvantages of the late start and excessive rains. The cotton crop is unusually late in Etowah county and the stand is poor. Continued cool and wet weather, the necessity of replanting one or more times and the delay in giving the first working to the crop are responsible. Labor is also scarce and hard to get at $1.25 to $1.50 per day. Apparently the farmers have renewed hopes and are working with a will to do what they can to retrive their lost fortunes.

A New Episcopal Church.

A new Episcopal church, costing $15,000, is to be built by the members of St. Paul's church on Ferry street, Decatur. The contract has been given to J. I. Transue, and the work on the building will commence at once and the church will be completed as soon as possible. This is one of the oldest church organizations in that portion of the state, but for some time the membership has been inactive, there not having been a preacher for the church there for some time past. As soon as the new building is completed a pastor will be employed and services will be held regularly.

Lacing Causes Death.

Annie Thomas, a well-known negro girl of Selma, who was employed by Marion Gay as a cook, died before medical aid could be rendered. Wince Smith, a porter at Engram's store, was driving with the girl, when to his astonishment she threw up her hands in great agony and fell over in his lap. The negro drove at great speed, but upon reaching Dr. Britt's home the girl was pronounced dead. Upon examination it was found to be due to tight lacing, which caused a rush of blood to her head.

Labor Agent Heavily Fined.

Will Warwick, the Birmingham labor agent, was fined $99.25 in the law and equity court of Huntsville Friday afternoon on charges of enticing laborers from their employment and swearing in the presence of females. The charge of swearing was made against him after he had been placed in jail Wednesday. He was so enraged at being a prisoner that he swore at every pedestrian that passed the jail and Sheriff Mitchell made a case against him.

Daughter of the Revolution Dead.

Mrs. Anne Harriett Hearn, one of the few living real "Daughters of the Revolution" in Alabama or in the country, died Friday afternoon at the home of her nephew, Frank Elmore, at Mountain Creek. She was in her 78th year.

Auburn's Commencement.

The commencement exercises of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute closed Thursday morning with the ceremony of conferring degrees on the graduating class. Seventy students of the senior class who have completed their prescribed courses received sheepskins bearing the title of bachelor of science. Three members of the graduating class are young women. Eleven post-graduates received degrees.

Tax Values Sent Skyward.

Back Tax Commissioner H. A. Thompson has filed with the board of revenue of Jefferson county an estimate calling for a $30,000,000 increase in the tax values of Jefferson county in accordance with their demand of the state board of tax commissioners. The board is to give a hearing to each individual value. The hearing will extend over several weeks. The prospect is that 60 per cent of the raise will be endorsed.

SUMMER CLEARING SALE

On account of the weather having been so bad for the last sixty days, and the farmers being so badly disheartened at the prospects of the crops, it has had a bad effect upon trade, and in order to clear out our surplus Spring and Summer Goods we are offering them at greatly reduced prices.

Our Mr. Kanter wishes to clear them all off before he goes East to purchase the New Fall and Winter Stock.

Dose Begins the Cure.

EDICINE CO., Chattanooga, Tenn.

The greater the hurry you are in, the more likely your shoe-strings are to break.

The general opinion seems to be that economy should begin at somebody else's home.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and other troubles of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by its purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., writes: "I was troubled with sour stomach for years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it for baby."

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because OUR RECORD IS CLEAN, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then OUR POLICY is as liberal as is consistent with security; we are accommodating but prudent.

We ask your consideration.

Richburg, Miss., June 10, 1907

I come once more to say a few words.

We regret to say that Miss Alice Lawler is on the sick list; hope she will soon be out again.

Mrs. Sanders, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Lee, has returned to her home at Scottsville, Ala.

Messrs. Ben Harbin, Rufus Walker and Miss Mamie Harbin taken a flying trip to Hattiesburg Saturday.

Mrs. Wilson and Miss Virgie Harbin accompanied Mrs. Anderson to her home in the country and they thought they would have a nice time, but they sure missed it; they came back with their shoes in their hands. Ha! ha! ha!

Mr. Perry Hall from Canal visited Richburg Sunday.

I guess Mr. Ben Harbin and family will move in their new home next week.

Miss Lonie Page, who has been visiting Miss Alice Lawler, has returned to her home at Peves; we regret her departure very much.

Mr. F. C. Thompson attended an entertainment at Peves Saturday night.

We would like to hear from Alpine and Buster Boy more often.

With best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

Singing Convention.

The Chilton County Singing Convention convened at Mt. Pisgah, on June 16th. Many people came from far and near to aid in the cause. Many people stood around and near the church, as there was not room for them in the house.

The convention was opened by R. T. Grant, with music and prayer. Miss Mariam Aldridge was then appointed secretary, and R. T. Grant chairman. Then a committee of three, consisting of W. Y. Keel, chairman, T. L. Robinson and J. S. Aldridge were appointed to arrange for leaders of music during the day.

The program was as follows:

Organists, J. T. Henderson, and Miss Fannie Belle Robinson. L. N. Henderson 30 minutes, book used "Gospel Gleaner;" W. H. Robinson 30 minutes, book used "Singing for Joy;" Recess 15 minutes. T. L. Robinson 30 minutes, book used "Gospel Gleaner;" R. T. Grant 30 minutes, book used "Gospel Gleaner;" Refreshments for 1½ hours. J. T. Henderson 20 minutes, book used "Gospel Gleaner;" W. G. Culp organist; D. T. Milton 20 minutes, book used "Gospel Gleaner"; A. Y. Williams 20 minutes, book used "Gospel Messenger." Talk by R. T. Grant; Talk by W. H. Robinson; Closing song by T. L. Robinson; Closing prayer by W. Y. Keel.

The singing here Sunday was a grand success and was enjoyed by a large and attentive congregation. The books that were used were the Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony. J. H. Willoughby was elected chairman for the day; A. A. Jackson, T. J. Jackson, and William Lambert, arranging committee. Our leaders were Uncle Nattie Dobbs, William Lambert, J. H. Willoughby, G. W. Williams, T. J. Jackson, A. E. Teel and A. A. Jackson. Uncle Nattie Dobbs and Uncle William Lambert gave us some impressive lecturing on sacred music. We are glad to see so many old gray headed men and women take such great interest in the old time sacred music. We younger people should not hesitate in following the examples of our forefathers. Let us take more interest in learning to sing the old time songs of Zion, which were sung when true religion was established in this country. No Christian man or woman cannot afford to say that they do not like to hear this old time singing, because we know that a Christian loves all sacred music.

Robinson Crusoe's island is still extant, and not submerged, as was recently reported to the grief of all Defoe readers. Dr. J. S. Keltie, secretary of the Royal Geographical Society, has declared that Juan Fernandez did not disappear in the late Valparaiso earthquake. Those valleys and rocks that (as Cowper affirms) have never heard the sound of the church-going bell, still bear their ironical witness to the charms of solitude.

This is the age of condensed foods. We are now to have condensed eggs. Chemists compute that seventy per cent of eggs is water, and that by evaporating this and canning the remainder the product can be kept for an indefinite time. There are no shells and no bad eggs, nothing, in fact, but canned chemicals. It may be a matter of sentiment, but we opine that most men will prefer the fruit of the hen to that of the laboratory. The canned concoction may be just as nutritive, but there is something about the good old egg, sunny side up, that appeals to the imagination.

Every time an assassin is hanged in Russia the revolutionists kill another officer and the officers arrest another assassin; and so the horrible tragedy of mutual hostility and misunderstanding drags itself along, exclaims Youth's Companion. The terrible competition in reprisal has resulted since August in the assassination of twelve hundred and forty-two public officers, accompanied by the death of at least two thousand innocent bystanders. One thousand and eighty men and women have been hanged or shot on the charge of responsibility for these assassinations.

The old order has radically changed when the Governor of North Carolina, meeting the Governor of South Carolina at the Jamestown Exposition, must needs refrain from the historic salutation because of temperance scruples on the part of each, announces the New York World. The Southern States are now the stronghold of prohibition sentiment. In 150 of the 250 counties of Texas the sale of liquor is forbidden, and fifty others are largely free from licensed saloons. Georgia and Mississippi are overwhelmingly prohibition. The great whisky-making State of Kentucky has forty-seven prohibition counties. Tennessee and Virginia are "dry" except in a few cities.

Says the New York World: The corn crop of the country is usually worth nearly as much as the wheat and cotton crops combined, but it is less interesting to speculators. The great bulk of the corn never moves far from the farm where it is raised, and gives work to neither railroad men nor millers. A hog's time is worth nothing; he grinds his own corn and afterward travels to market himself as its highly concentrated product. Wheat, on the other hand, travels long distances by water or rail, furnishes work for miller, cooper, lumberman and flour-sack maker, and then travels again as flour to the myriad mouths that wait it. Cotton provides far less freighting business than wheat, but it is by all odds the greatest crop for paying American bills abroad. Cotton exports in 1905-6 outvalued those of corn, wheat, flour, petroleum, beef and pork combined.

Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot declares that the great flood which has devastated the upper Ohio Valley is due fundamentally to the cutting away of the forests on the watersheds of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers, announces Harper's Weekly. Commenting upon Mr. Pinchot's statement the Sun says that he is fundamentally right, but that Congress will not be ready to transact business again until next January, and then the lesson will have been forgotten. Yes, by most of us; but will Pittsburg have forgotten it? She has had the worst flood of her record, has barely got her head above water, and, as we write, is threatened with a fresh submersion. Surely Pittsburg's memory of her losses will still be lively enough ten months hence to make her stir up Congress to do what can be done for her future protection. Maybe the flood-taught people will back up Mr. Pinchot.

SENATOR J. T. MORGAN DEAD

The Venerable Senator Succumbs to Heart Failure. He Passed Away at 11:15 p. m. Tuesday, With His Daughters at His Bedside.

INTERMENT IN SELMA.

Only Three Days Before His Death Representative Richardson Called to See the Senator and Reported His Recovery From an Attack of Grippe.

Washington, D. C.—United States Senator John Tyler Morgan, of Alabama, for thirty years a member of the upper house of congress, chairman of the senate committee on interoceanic canals, and prominent as a brigadier-general in the Confederate army, died at his home Tuesday night.

Senator Morgan had been in bad health for a number of years, but had more or less regularly attended the sessions of congress. He suffered from angina pectoris, which was the cause of his death. He passed away at 11:15 o'clock. At the death bed were his daughters, Miss Mary and Miss Lena Morgan, both of this city, and his secretary, J. O. Jones.

Senator Morgan had been in very bad health since last December, when taken with an attack of the grippe. He was confined to his residence for the better part of the session of congress. Against the advice of his physicians and his friends he frequently came to the senate chamber and on several occasions took a prominent part in the proceedings of the upper branch of Congress.

Only three days before his death his friend, Representative Richardson, of Alabama, called to see him and reported the senator as very much improved. Late Tuesday evening the senator complained of severe pains in the region of the heart. His physician, Dr. Fry, was called in, and realizing at once the seriousness of his distinguished patient summoned two of his advisors. They used every effort to prolong the life of the senator, but he sank slowly, and at 11:15 o'clock Tuesday night breathed his last.

Senator Morgan will be buried in Selma, Ala. The remains will be taken there on Thursday or Friday.

Mr. Morgan had held a number of important offices besides that of senator, including membership in the Hawaiian laws commission and arbitrator on the Behring Sea for years. His chief active interest in the senate in recent years has been in connection with the isthmian canal question. He was a persistent advocate of the Nicaraguan route and made a number of notable speeches during his long but unsuccessful fight for the adoption of a Nicaraguan water way. In the hearings on the canal question in committees and on the floor Mr. Morgan took an active part, despite his feeble strength.

Mr. Morgan was a familiar figure in this city, where he has made his home for a long time at 315 John Marshal place.

Senator Morgan's home life was one of gentle and affectionate character. It is a fact that while he nor members of his family have appeared in the public prints as attending the public functions of the White House he and his daughters were especially invited to dine with the families of President Cleveland, President Harrison and President McKinley. Senator Morgan was the warm personal friends of Senator Harrison and regarded him as one of the most cultured and able men in public life.

At the time of his election to the senate he occupied a comfortable home of modest pretensions in Selma, which was sold a few years after. It was only a few years ago that he purchased a nice home in the old part of Washington, which by reason of its location cost about one-third of what such a residence would cost in the northwest section, where most of the notables resided.

Some years ago one of his sons, John Morgan, met a tragic death while boat riding on the Potomac with a party of ladies. The senator leaves two daughters, Misses Mary and Lena Morgan, and one son, George.

JOHN TYLER MORGAN

Born June 20, 1824

Died June 11, 1907.

For the past few years he has been spending a part of the summer at Blount Springs, Ala., a quiet place. He was planning to go there when taken with his last illness.

In social life he was a most fascinatin personality and very approachable and won the regard of men in all walks of life.

As a public speaker before his election to the senate he was considered one of the most eloquent men in Alabama and attracted immense audiences.

He was practicing at the bar at a time in the affairs of Alabama when the condition of the people by reason of reconstruction did not enable him to earn large fees. He had accumulated about $15,000, which the cost of living in Washington consumed in a few years together with his salary and necessitated one of his daughters becoming his secretary and drawing the salary for a time.

Sketch of Morgan's Life.

John Tyler Morgan, United States senator from Alabama, was born at Athens, Tenn., June 20, 1824. He received an academic education chiefly in Alabama, whither he came as an emigrant when 9 years old, and settled in Calhoun county. He read law in the office of William P. Chilton and was admitted to the bar in 1845. In 1855 he moved to Dallas county, located first in Selma, then in Cahaba. He formed a partnership with William M. Byrd, and maintained this connection until the latter was raised to the supreme court bench.

In 1860 he was named as one of the electors at large on the Breckinridge-Lane electoral ticket, a ticket that carried in Alabama. In his canvass as an elector he laid the foundation of his reputation as an orator of the first rank. In 1861 he was elected a delegate from Dallas county to the state convention that passed the ordinance of secession, and still further increased his fame among Alabamians as a debater by his speeches in that body. He joined the Confederate army in May, 1861, as a private in Company I, Cahaba Rifles, and when that company was assigned to the Fifth Alabama regiment, under Col. Robert E. Rodes, he was elected major, and was afterwards lieutenant-colonel of that regiment. He was commissioned in 1862 as a colonel and raised the Fifty-first Alabama regiment. He was appointed brigadier-general in 1863 and assigned to a brigade in Virginia. He resigned, however, to rejoin the regiment he had assisted in raising, its colonel having in the meantime been killed in battle. In 1865 he was again appointed brigadier-general, and was then assigned to an Alabama brigade that included his regiment. He returned to Selma after the war and resumed the work of his profession, and at once entered upon a large practice. Being nominated as a presidential elector at large in 1876 he again canvassed the state and renewed the spell he had cast over men's minds sixteen years before. As a result of his splendid canvass he was elected the ensuing winter a member of the United States senate, defeating George S. Houston, who was then governor of the state. He served continuously as senator from Alabama until his death.

In the senate General Morgan was confessedly a leader, and an eminent one. He was a great student and an indefatigable worker, and had the power of argument and statement that was fairly amazing. If he had any weakness it was the readiness with which he poured out the wealth of ideas on all the leading subjects mooted in the senate. In the matter of the Behring Sea dispute with England he spoke for four days, and there is probably not in the annals of congress a finer example than this speech of sustained, untiring application of mind to a master subject. He recalled by his readiness and coplousness the great lights of the senate in olden times, and exceeded them all as any great senator of today, in the wider knowledge and broader scope of vision necessary to fairly weigh and judge the immense and multiform national interests of the United States.

Senator Morgan was nominated for his fifth term not only by a caucus of the democratic party, but also by a meeting of the republican and populist parties, who differed with him politically, and in November, 1900, was chosen by a unanimous vote of the state senate and house of representatives for his fifth term. In 1907 he was re-elected unanimously to serve a sixth term.

Americans Must Register.

Paris.—On July 15 there will go into effect in this city a new law making obligatory the registration in detail of the Americans residing permanently in Paris, and there is a consequent flurry among 8,000 members of the American colony. The consulate is flooded with requests for information and explanation of the new law, and lawyers are busy defining the status of American children born in France.

Many Injured in Texas Wreck.

Dallas, Tex.—Eastbound passenger train No. 6 on the Texas Pacific railroad was wrecked near Edgewood, about 40 miles east of here, Tuesday. All the cars left the track and turned over except the sleeper. The chief mail clerk was probably fatally injured. The assistant and bridge foreman from Lowery were seriously injured. Many others are reported to have received minor injuries.

To Fight Two-Cent Law.

Kansas City, Mo.—The railroads of Missouri will fight the 2-cent fare law in the federal courts. Frank Hagerman, of Kansas City, representing 11 railroads, has served notice on Herbert S. Haddley, attorney general that at 10 o'clock Friday morning he will ask the federal court to enjoin the enforcement of the 2-cent fare law. A copy of the application for the injunction was sent to the attorney general.

WEEK'S EVENTS CONDENSED

One of the Greatest Revivals Ever Seen in Alabama is Being Carried on at Fort Deposit—They Have Closed the Dispensary.

About 275 Greenville citizens went to Fort Deposit Wednesday to attend the revival services conducted by the Rev. R. R. Jones. It was a great day there, and the audience was augmented from the surrounding country and neighboring towns until the large auditorium was packed as it had never been before. An average of fifty a day had gone from Greenville all the past week. Never before has the old town had such a revival of religion and the citizens are happy over the wonderful results. A remarkable feature of the week's services was the transformation made in regard to the dispensary and abatement of the same. The doors of the dispensary were closed Saturday night to be opened no more, and there was great rejoicing.

To Build New Road.

At a meeting of the Commercial Club at Anniston definite steps were taken looking to the building of a better road to Oxford. It is likely that a similar road to the government road north of the city will be built, the estimated cost to be $3,000. A committee of ten of the city's most enterprising business men have been appointed to raise the necessary funds to build the road. They expect to secure from the city $1,000, from the county a like amount, and to raise the blance by subscription. It is expected that the road wil be finished during the summer months.

New Fire Boxes.

After a test of the auxiliary fire boxes at Mobile, recently installed in hose company No. 4's house, Fire Chief Tom Price says that the new equipment is excellent in every respect and will greatly facilitate work in the future. The new equipment enables boxes to be sent in to companies in any district in the city, making a great saving of time in sending in calls. One, two, three or four taps can be sent n to call additional companies after a regular alarm has been sent in.

Florence's New Depot.

At a meeting of the Young Men's Commercial Club of Florence Thursday night a telegram was read from Vice-President and General Manager Ackard, of the Southern railroad, stating that the contract had been let for the new Southern depot, the site for which was purchased recently in East Florence. The Florence depot burned about two years ago, and the telegram received from Mr. Ackard was in response to letters from Florence business men urging him to give the city a depot. Work on the building will commence next week.

Clio's Rapid Strides.

The village of Clio is fast assuming city like proportions and promises soon to occupy a much more conspicuous place on the map of the state. The town now maintains three well equipped hotels, and a local telephone exchange has already begun operations. Clio also boasts of a semi-weekly newspaper that is enjoying a liberal patronage. The town also has a fine band.

Birmingham Secures Them.

The Birmingham postoffice was officially notified that beginning with the close of the quarter ending June 30 all funds from fourth class postoffices in the state wil be deposited here. The order is a far-reaching one, as more than 1,500 postoffices will be affected.

Meets Next in Mobile.

G. A. Thomas, of Montgomery, was elected president and E. S. Moore, of Birmingham, secretary and treasurer of the Alabama Fire Underwriters Wednesday at Montgomery. The next meeting will be held in Mobile.

Ate Concentrated Lye.

While its mother was engaged in housework the 1-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Jabez Avery, of Cottonwood, ate part of the contents of a can of concentrated lye. The child is suffering horrible agony, and its life is despaired of.

His Neck Broken.

J. A. Cunningham, of Tupelo, Miss., was instantly killed near Hamilton Thursday morning by being thrown from a wagon. The wheels ran over Mr. Cunningham and broke his neck.

Killed His Cow.

Arthur Strickland, of Martin, hearing a noise in his hen house, and thinking it to be a negro stealing chickens, fired a shotgun in the dark and when he secured a light found that he had killed his only cow.

CRIES ABOUT THE STRIKE.

Patrick Connors Breaks Down While Making Announcement.

New York.—There was a pathetic scene at the meeting of the longshoremen, whose strike for increased pay was declared off Thursday. Patrick Connors, leader of the strike, a big man who has fought determinedly for the men, broke down and wept when compelled to make the acknowledgement that the men were beaten. There was a moment's silence and then the hall rang with cheers for the leader, while many of the men, who had faced privation in an effort to win their demands, hurried to the platform, shook Connors by the hand and assured him that he had made a good fight and did the best he could.

More than 12,000 of the original 30,000 strikers who remained firm will return to work. They must return for the same pay they received as when they went out on strike—30 cents an hour.

The strike has lasted nearly six weeks and was a great financial loss to the steamship companies and the workers. The loss in wages to the longshoremen has been close to a million dollars.

IN A CANNON.

Boy Was Thrown Into an Apple Tree by It.

New York.—Young Henry Remsen was playing hide and seek near his home in South Norwalk, Conn., Friday, and hid in one of the old spring guns or mortars once owned by P. T. Barnum, the show man. He had hardly got himself comfortably fixed when he suddenly shot up in the air and landed in an apple tree near by. He was bruised, but not seriously hurt. The mortar responsible for Remsen's flight was one which Barnum used in his old "human cannon ball" act. George L. Britton obtained the mortar and had used it as an ornament on his lawn. The boys in the neighborhood have used it for years as a plaything, but none of them heretofore had touched the powerful spring hidden in it.

Chicago Wants All.

Chicago, Ill.—Plans to raise a fund of $150,000 to secure for Chicago the two national political conventions next year will be laid at once by a joint executive committee representing both republicans and democrats. $200,000 GIVEN FOR WESLEY MEMORIAL

By the Methodists of the Southern Churches.

BUILDING TO BE IN ATLANTA

Seven Bishops, Constituting Episcopal College of Methodist Church, South, Preach in Atlanta—Besides Other Methodists Are There.

Atlanta, Ga.—The seven bishops constituting the Episcopal college of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, occupied the pulpits of Atlanta's principal Methodist churches Sunday to inaugurate the movement for a great Wesley memorial to be erected in Atlanta, to be constructed by the church in Georgia. At the morning services subscriptions amounting to $200,000 were made, the largest individual among given being $75,000 by Asa G. Candler, of Atlanta. At a mass meeting Sunday afternoon, at which all the bishops and ministers of the church in the city were present, these subscriptions were announced amid great enthusiasm. The attending bishops were:

Seath Ward, Nashville, Tenn.; C. B. Galloway, Jackson, Miss.; James Atkins, Waynesville, N. C.; J. S. Key, Sherman, Tex.; W. A. Candler, Atlanta; E. R. Hendricks, Kansas City, Mo.; H. C. Morrison, New Orleans.

The Wesleyan memorial enterprise represents a great institutional church work, the first of its kind in the south. In addition to a large auditorium and church, located on the present site of the Wesley Memorial Tabernacle, the group of buildings will include a hospital, nurses' home, boarding house for young men, another for young women, reading rooms, editorial offices of the Wesley Advocate, gymnasium and other places for holding amusements.

Executive offices have been opened here, and the work will be pushed to rapid completion.

Methodists from all parts of the state came to Atlanta to take part in Sunday's meetings.

Cremated in Shaker Fire.

Hamilton, O.—Three women are dead and two persons seriously injured as a result of the burning of four principal buildings of the Shaker settlement of White Water village early Thursday morning. Mrs. Kuele Barr, Katherine Sterr and Mary Middleton, who occupied quarters in the main building, were burned to death before any one could arouse them. Mr. Sterr and Andrew Paas, in making their escape, were seriously burned. The loss is estimated at $20,000, covered by insurance.

TO GIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND.

Gould Would Settle This Sum on Wife, But Not Quarter of Million.

New York.—Announcement was made Tuesday that Howard Gould is considering the advisability of starting a counter-suit for separation from his wife. Such an action, he thinks, would lessen the chances of Mrs. Gould's obtaining a court decree for alimony of $250,000 a year.

One of Mr. Gould's friends is quoted today as saying that Mr. Gould would be willing to set aside a sufficient sum for the support of his wife, but that he would not entertain the demand for a quarter of a million dollars a year.

He thought it likely that Mr. Gould would be willing to give his wife $100,000 a year alimony, and felt sure that Mr. Gould would consent to settle the suit on that basis, although Mr. Gould had never said so directly. Briefs of the arguments between Delancy Nicoll, attorney for Howard Gould, and Clarence Shearn, counsel for Mrs. Gould, have been submitted to Supreme Court Justice McCall, and a decision is looked for in a few days. This argument took place last Thursday, and was on a motion by Mr. Nicoll to strike out three allegations from Mrs. Gould's bill of complaint.

MURDERS HER ROOM-MATE.

Shocking Tragedy Occurs in Mississippi State Insane Asylum.

Jackson, Miss.—Susie Campbell, a patient at the Mississippi insane hospital, was killed by her ward mate, Nannie Fisher, Monday night, the weapon used being a bed slat. The killing occurred during the early morning hours, when no attendants were on duty in that section of the yard.

Owing to the crowded condition of the hospital, it has been necessary to confine two or more patients in one cell, the patients who are considered harmless being placed together.

The position of the dead woman's body, coupled with the fact that a bed slat smeared with blood was found beside the corpse and the other woman a raving maniac, plainly told the manner of death, and the coroner's jury brought in a verdict in accordance with the circumstantial evidence.

CHEESE WAS BAD.

One Child Dead and Another in Serious Condition.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—A pathetic incident is reported from the home of George Wilson, at 404 Citico avenue. Tuesday morning Mrs. Wilson went away from home, leaving the two small children, gade3 and 4 years, respectively, to enjoy the freedom of the house. The children found a small children, aged 3 and 4 years, read, and together they ate it. About 8 o'clock they were seized with convulsions, and the smallest of the children writhed in direst agony until death relieved her. Medical assistance was summoned, and the physicians, seeing that the baby was to die, devoted their energies to saving the older child. She will survive, although she is still in a serious condition.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON, DYING, WEDS WEEPING GIRL

Fate Overtakes Him on Eve of Date For Fashionable Marriage—Fortune to Young Widow.

Father of Bridegroom-Elect Arrives Barely in Time For the Death-bed Ceremony.

Louisville, Ky.—Six hours before his death here Robert Horner, twenty-nine years old, son of Samuel Horner, a multi-millionaire of Philadelphia, married Miss Elizabeth Dallam Burnett, a member of one of the most prominent and wealthiest families in this city. The wedding of the couple had been set for Tuesday, and several guests already had arrived. Horner died of blood poisoning caused by a carbuncle.

The young man came here three years ago as manager of a cement company owned by his father. He fell in love with Miss Burnett at first sight, and their engagement was announced last winter. The wedding was to have been one of the most fashionable of the early summer. Horner was preparing for the union, and had arranged for a wedding trip of two months. A week ago the carbuncle developed in his neck and he grew steadily worse until his death.

At first Horner made light of the carbuncle, but on Thursday evening his condition had become so serious that he decided to go to the Norton Memorial Infirmary. There the physicians said an operation should have been performed at least twenty-four hours before. They placed him at once on the operating table, but the knife gave no relief. Instead, the patient was attacked by blood poisoning, and early in the morning it became apparent he could not recover.

Horner read his fate in the face of his fiancee, and he bore it like a Spartan. The doctors tried to hide the truth from him, but he silenced them by his questions. Then he asked that Miss Burnett become his bride, and the girl consented. The young man's father, expecting to attend the arranged wedding on Tuesday, arrived from Philadelphia barely in time to be present at the hurried ceremony. He was accompanied by his second son, Charles, who was pledged by the dying man to care for the widowed bride.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Minnegerode. Horner was so weak that the physicians refused to prop him up with pillows. He gathered strength, however, to make his responses in a full, clear voice. Miss Burnett was so overcome her voice hardly could be heard. Several nurses were affected so deeply that they left the room. Charles Horner broke down and cried, but the father stood without the movement of a muscle looking straight into the face of his stricken son. After the wedding Mrs. Horner bent over and kissed her husband, then she took a chair at the bedside and held his hand on the counterpane until death came.

Only ten days ago Horner took out a life insurance policy for $25,000 for Miss Burnett. It is believed that all his estate, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, will go to the widow.

Des Moines, Iowa.—Emily Haven, a baby orphan, has the proud distinction of having twelve mothers, and all college girls at that.

BABY HAS A DOZEN MOTHERS.

For a lark the girls visited the Iowa Children's Home and all fell in love with the baby and decided to adopt her. They will "mother" the child on the instalment plan, each taking her for a month at a time.

The baby is to-day getting acquainted with the home of Edna and Amy Symires, two of the dozen girls who have adopted her. She is to stay there six weeks, and will then go to the home of Miss Ahlt, and then on around the circuit.

The mother of the child died when it was an infant.

Salt Lake City.—Former Congressman Brigham H. Roberts defended Mormonism in the Tabernacle and asserted he would live with his plural wives in spite of the Church and the State. He admits having contracted plural marriages since the manifesto.

ROBERTS ADMITS PLURAL WIVES.

President at Oyster Bay.

President Roosevelt arrived at his Oyster Bay summer home, where he expects to remain until October.

Boston.—That babies deformed or otherwise physically unfit should be put to a painless death was the theory advanced here by Dr. Andrew Christian, one of the most prominent physicians in this city. Furthermore, the doctor advised that there should be a Government control of marriages, requiring a clean bill of health of every man and woman before they might approach the altar.

STATE OUGHT TO RULE MARRIAGES.

"The world would be better," said Dr Christian, "if mothers would consent to have their deformed or mentally deficient children quietly put to sleep. If I myself had a little child born and it was deformed or showed that it would be mentally weak I would be willing that it should be put to death with no suffering, and it would be the prudent thing to do, because it would save it from untold suffering later. This may seem harsh, but it really isn't.

"A board of overseers of marriages appointed by the State is what we want. The race is degenerating and some radical change must be made soon or we will in time have only idiots and imbeciles. Just take, for example, what Luther Burbank has accomplished with the flowers. Even more can be done with human beings and greater results obtained.

"Only the fit should marry, only those who are mentally and physically normal and sane, those whose ancestors were clean of life and well balanced mentally. To be born under right conditions with as nearly perfect mother and father, mentally and physically, as possible, is the heritage of every child, and the man or woman who cheats a child of that heritage is committing a double crime, one against the child and one against society.

"The board of overseers I suggest should understand thoroughly physiology, psychology and sociology. I should think doctors, appointed by the State, would be best. These could have lists of people in that State and so far as possible of their ancestry. They could fix a period of time to look the individuals up before deciding whether two persons were fit to marry."

Washington, D. C.—Washington society is beginning to speculate on the possibility of Miss Ethel Roosevelt, now in her seventeenth year, being presented New Year's next. Although she will not have finished her school course here in the National Cathedral for Girls, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, it is said, feel she should see as much of White House events and entertainments as possible, and she will appear more frequently.

ETHEL ROOSEVELT'S "COMING OUT" PLANS.

Miss Ethel is budding into a very handsome woman, and has all the frank charm of her sister, Mrs. Longworth, with added vivacity. She is a devotee of horseback riding and, with her mother, is often to be seen on the boulevards and in the parks around the city.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel are among the best horsewomen in Washington, and are quite as much at home on a good horse as they are in a drawing room. Mrs. Roosevelt invariably wears the plainest of black broadcloth habits, made with a severely plain tight fitting jacket and rather a short skirt. She usually wears a sailor hat, although through the winter she appeared with a derby. Over her hat and face she always wears a thin black chiffon veil, which is tied down closely over the hat and about the neck.

Miss Ethel frequently wears a black suit with white shirt waist and a black and white sailor hat.

Newsy Gleanings.

Next in order will be a gyroscope railway.

There is a dearth of surgeons in the United States Army.

The second-class traffic of the English railroads shows a material falling off.

Nearly 2000 Koreans weekly are said to be crossing the border into Russian territory to escape the Japanese rule.

NO TAX SALE FOR ANOTHER MONTH.

There will be no sale of land for delinquent taxes next Monday, as has been advertised, on account of a bad blunder in the Union, the official organ of Chilton county, as it has described itself.

For the last four weeks the Union has been advertising a sale of land for taxes due in 1907, taxes not yet due, and it has taken four good weeks for our efficient Tax Collecter to discover the blunder, which of course makes the advertisement of no account, and necessitates its all being advertised again.

The notice published in THE BANNER is merely a copy of the notice in the Union, and is published gratuitiously by THE BANNER for the information of our readers—please bear in mind it is not the "official" notice, but, nevertheless, the notice in THE BANNER is correct and answers all of the requirements of the law. We noticed the blunder in the Union when it was first published and corrected the mistake in the first issue of THE BANNER after its publication, but it has taken four weeks for our efficient Tax Collector to find the same error, which involves a serious loss of time to a number of probable purchasers who will undoubtedly be on hand next Monday with the intention of buying.

Our object in calling attention to this very annoying blunder is, so far as is possible, to prevent would-be purchasers from coming to Clanton next Monday, but if they are determined to purchase delinquent tax lands in Chilton to wait untill further notice is given.

The fact of the matter is that so long as our officers are content with an "official" organ printed in Birmingham, and mailed from Clanton, they are very liable to such mistakes, the "Editor" of the Union having no more control over what is published than a yellow dog, merely sending the copy to Birmingham and that ends it so far as he is concerned, right or wrong he has not the slightest control over it.

HON. J. H. BANKHEAD has been appointed U. S. Senator by Gov. Comer, in accordance with the pledge made prior to his election. There seems to be some fear that the Legislature, which meets next month, may take some other action and elect another man, but in all fairness Bankhead is entitled to the position.

ANOTHER big batch of correspondence and we have already three columns in type which we are unable to use this week. We would issue a supplement and dispose of it in that way, but recent rulings of the post office department make us rather afraid to venture it.

"THE OLD WORLD AND ITS WAYS"

This the title of a new and profusely illustrated book by Col William Jennings Bryan, recounting his noted journey around the earth and through Europe, which was so widely heralded through the American Press.

The book is an illustrated and descriptive record of that journey, which is so memorable in current history. The journey embraced a period of a year and covered practically all the nations of the earth.

Col. Bryan traveled with camera and pencil, and not only described in brilliant phrase, what he saw, but further illustrated his journey by photographs. The photographs constitute a striking pictoral presentation and lend especial interest to the book. They number 240 and they show in picture the world as he saw it. They constitute just that many striking Object Lessons of the people of all countries in their cities, towns and villages—in their homes and everyday occupations.

The book will interest every reader as a unique presentation of a wonderfully interesting journey. It is sold only through solicitors. The Thompson Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo., are the fortunate publishers. They advertise for agents in another column of this issue.

Dear Editor—Here I am again, but I haven't much to say this week, for I was out calling Sunday night, and on my return home, I met one of those Jack o'lanterns, which I have often heard my grandma speak of. Now, I suppose you all realize the condition of a man who has been seeing things at night. I hope the next trick will be played on the man that visits west.

At last the fan and parasol take the place of wraps and rain coats, while the farmer with his hoe and plow, makes way with the grass, and everything in general looks more promising.

Rev. W. A. Crim filled his appointment here Sunday.

Miss Ollie Armstrong visited Rockymount Sunday. Best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

The Song of the Hair

There are four verses. Verse 1. Ayer's Hair Vigor stops falling hair. Verse 2. Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. Verse 3. Ayer's Hair Vigor cures dandruff. Verse 4. Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the scalp healthy, and keeps it so. It is a regular hair-food; this is the real secret of its wonderful success.

Editor Banner—Please allow me a small space in your valuable paper for my first time.

The health of this community is very good at present.

Rev W. S. Cox filled his regular appointment at this place Saturday and Sunday, and preached an excellent sermon each day.

Crops are very sorry in this part of the country, but I guess it is for the best.

Mr. W. E. Parrish visited Providence Sunday and reports a nice time.

Wasn't that article that Just a Rube wrote to the Banner, in regard to the dispensary, a dandy? Come again Mr. Voter, your letters are very interesting to me. I also would like to hear from Pea Vines every week. I will close with best wishes to the Banner and its many readers. HILL BILLY Winfield, Ala., June 15th, 1907.

Editor Banner—Please find enclosed one dollar, for which please extend my time one year longer to THE BANNER, from the time it expired, as I don't know just when it is out but I can't get along without THE BANNER.

Please tell the owner of the farm advertised in the Banner, 124 acres, to write me and give a full description of it, church and school facilities as I would like to have a good farm near Clanton, but it must be handy to school and church.

So I will close by wishing you well in all your undertakings for good and so far you seem to be on the right side according to my views. Very respectfully,

J. L. DRIVER.

Do Not Neglect the Children.

CHILDRENS' DAY.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to announce that we will have a Childrens' day at New Prospect church, July 4th 1907. We hope to have a nice time. The people of the community are making preparations for dinner, and extend invitation to all. Come and bring a basket full. Besides exercises by children, we will have talks by several good speakers, as follows:

Why do we have Childrens' day? by W. M. Deloach.

What will the work of to-day accomplish? by Dr. Caffey and J. L. Long. We will have good speeches by all the children of our Sabbath school. Everybody come and enjoy it with us. May we all become more and more interested in the work of the Master, and may He bless every effort for good and give us more faith, more grace, more charity, more laborers and more success, is my prayer.

A BROTHER.

Remarkable Rescue

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pooper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed for coughs and colds 50c. and $1.00, at Upchurch Drug co. Trial bottle free.

FARMERS' UNION.

The meeting of the Chilton County Division of the Farmers' Educational and Co Operative Union of America will convene at Wayside Local, 13 miles southwest of Clanton, June 20 21, 1907. We hope to have full delegation.

Every Man His Own Doctor.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must for necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had when suitable medicines are kept at hand. Chamberlain's Remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm (an antiseptic liniment) for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, swellings, lame back and rheumatic pains.

Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin.

One bottle of each of these five preparations costs but $1.25. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

SENATOR BANKHEAD NOMINATED ON MONDAY

His Commission is Being Prepared.

FEW SKETCHES OF HIS LIFE

He Reviews the Situation at Length and Declares That the Alternate Proclamation is Not Binding Upon Members of the Legislature.

Montgomery.—Governor Comer on Monday morning announced that he had appointed Hon. John H. Bankhead, former congressman from the Sixth district of Alabama, to the vacancy in the United States senate from this state caused by the death of Senator John T. Morgan.

Colonel Bankhead's commission will be prepared at once, and will be signed and delivered in about a week. The governor is going to the country to spend the rest of the week fishing, and will sign the commission as soon as he returns.

The appointment holds until the meeting of the legislature next month, when the duty of electing a senator will devolve upon that body.

The governor makes it clear that under no circumstances will he be a candidate for the senate.

Hon. John Hollis Bankhead, who was Monday appointed United States senator from Alabama to succeed the late Senator John T. Morgan, is a farmer and a resident of Fayette. He was born in Moscow, Marion (now Lamar) county, September 13, 1842. He was self-educated, and served four years in the Confederate army, and was wounded in action three times. Colonel Bankhead's first office was as a member of the legislature from Marion county, serving in 1865, 1866 and 1867. He was a member of the state senate in 1876-77, and returned to the House of Representatives again in 1880-81. From 1881 to 1885 Colonel Bankhead served as warden of the state penitentiary. He was elected to the Fiftieth congress from the old Sixth district, which included Jefferson county, and served continuously for ten terms, being defeated last year for the nomination by Congressman R. P. Hobson. When the democrats controlled the house Colonel Bankhead was chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds. He was a member of the house committee on rivers and harbors for many years, and was otherwise prominent in congressional work. He led the race in last year's democratic primary for alternate senator receiving 48,362 votes.

ANOTHER ONE RESIGNS.

He Could Not Stand the Offer of a Better Job.

Washington.—Joseph Ripley has resigned his position as one of the consulting engineers of the Panama Canal Company to accept a more lucrative position in this country. Mr. Ripley was a member of the international board of consulting engineers which met in Washington two years to accept the type to be constructed across the isthmus, a board which has since passed out of existence.

He was also state engineer on the Isthmus under Chief Engineer Stevenson, and has lately been employed by Colonel Gathens in designing the details of the great lock for the canal, a work for which he was regarded as particularly fitted because of success attending his design and construction of the Soo locks.

Feigned Sleep 77 Days.

Kansas City, Mo.—Thomas C. Webster, aged 60 years, of Horse Shoe Bend, Idaho, who began to sleep on a train between Kansas City and Denver on April 1, and who did not open his eyes thereafter for 77 days, died at the general hospital here Monday. A committee of physicians said his sleep was feigned. He was suffering from acute melancholia. Webster was a well-to-do farmer, and was en route to visit his brother at Gainesville, Ga.

Bunker Hill Day.

Boston, Mass.—Although Monday was not a legal holiday, practically all the business activities of Greater Boston were suspended in observance of the one hundred and thirty-second anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill. The patriotic celebration centered, as usual, in Charlestown, the scene of the famous fight.

Austrian Parliament.

Vienna.—The first Australian parliament elected on the basis of equal universal suffrage was opened Monday. Thousands of people gathered about the parliament building to watch the arrival of the deputies, who wore badges symbolizing their parties and nationality.

Killed in Earthquake.

Valparaiso.—Late reports from Valdivia state that thirty-four persons in all were killed or injured by the recent earthquake. The region affected by the shocks extends from Valparaiso to Magellan Straits, and from the Pacific coast to Neuquin in Argentina.

Another Assassination.

Sevastopol, Russia.—Col. Gussekowsky, deputy commander of the harbor, was assassinated Monday. The murderer escaped.

GREAT HARM WORKED.

Crisis in Fuel and Ore Transportation in Mexican Republic.

Torreon, Mexico.—Willard S. Morse, one of the high officials of the American Smelting and Refining Company, states that mining and smelting interests in Mexico are facing a crisis in the matter of fuel and ore transportation. This is particularly true at such points as are dependent upon the Mexican Central railroad. Mr. Morse states that the American Smelting and Refining Company has at the present time over 60,000 tons of ore, and about 25,000 tons of fuel tied up, with no prospect of being able to have them moved. Among the worst sufferers are the mine owners, who are unable to send their product to the smelters and turn their money over for the purpose of meeting new expenses. This condition of affairs, in the opinion of Mr. Morse, has already worked great harm to mining as well as smelting interests, and unless a remedy is speedily applied, he believes disastrous results will ensue.

STOLE SIXTY THOUSAXND.

Man Confesses He Struck His Victim Over the Head.

San Antonio, Tex.—Charged with assaulting and robbing Mrs. Sallie Gibbons, of Columbia, S. C., of $61,000, Rufus Williams Friday night confessed the crime in the county jail. He was caught on an eastbound Southern Pacific train on his way to New Orleans. Mrs. Gibbons and Williams arrived in the city Friday. She had on her person $51,000 in bills and the balance in gold coin. Williams obtained a buggy from a local livery and suggested a drive in the woods. Mrs Gibbons was struck on the head and an attempt was made to drown her. Williams stated he took her money and fled to this city.

PIRATES IN NEW YORK.

They Ravage the Shores of Long Island Sound.

New York.—The Sound pirates, whose depredations among the country homes that line Long Island Sound have caused much terror, are active again after a long disappearance. They appeared in a black sloop off Rye, N. Y., according to police reports, Monday, and entering the home of Jacob H. Longleta, president of the American Metal Company, secured property valued at $10,000.

Concentrated efforts by the authorities of the towns along the Sound have hitherto always failed to catch the pirates. Another effort is to be made.

REMARKABLE DEATH.

Manager of American Syndicate Falls From Big Tree.

Oaxaca, Mexico.—After a meteoric career in Mexico as the manager of large agricultural interests belonging to an American syndicate, J. W. Johnson, of New York, died a very remarkable death near here Saturday, falling from among the branches of the famous "Arbol del Tule," a great tree, said to be the largest in North America, and located near this city.

The authorities are of the opinion that Johnson's death was suicidal. The tree of Tule is an enormous growth, and witnesses state that Johnson fell from the branches 50 meters above the ground.

New York Car Barns Burn.

New York.—Fire Sunday night destroyed the car barns of the New York City Railway Company, situated in Madison avenue. A number of nearby residences were damaged. The loss will exceed $200,000. Thirty electric automobiles and several cars which were in the building were destroyed. Several firemen were badly bruised.

Slayer of Four Dead.

Bloomington, Ill.—Thomas Baldwin, slayer of four people, died in the county jail here from nervous collapse, aged 58. February 28, at Arrow Smith, he shot Mrs. Sim Eisman and daughter, Cora, and Thomas Kennedy and wife. He was then out on bail charged with criminal assault on the Eisman girl. He became a nervous wreck immediately after his arrest.

Call for $30,000,000.

Washington, D. C.—Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou has issued a call for the return to the treasury by July 10 of $30,000,000 of the government's money now held in various banks throughout the country. The money is needed for the redemption of bonds.

Burned in House at Savannah.

Savannah, Ga.—Mrs. Thomas Cook and her daughter, Miss Estelle Fountain, were burned today Saturday in a fire that destroyed the home of N. A. Fountain, a son of Mrs. Cook.

Bridge Collapses.

Madrid.—A wooden bridge over the river Manzanares, which flows through the city, collapsed Sunday, precipitating more than a hundred pedestrians into the stream. All were rescued alive, but more than a score were seriously injured.

Hearst Paper in Japan.

Manila, P. I.—William R. Hearst is reported to be seeking to buy a Yokohama daily paper published in English.

The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON

Subject: Lying.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, Hamburg avenue and Weirfield street, on the theme "Lying," the Rev. Dr. I. W. Henderson, pastor, took as his text Ex. 20:16, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor."

To cut the text down to four words and to make it come straight to the point and our own day, we will rewrite it: "Thou shalt not lie." In our time—whether because of the prevalence of the evil or not, I shall not attempt to say—the word lie seems to cause a shudder to run over the average human frame and to merit reprimand from many. Plain words, we are told, are too harsh, and besides, you know they aren't good form. The thief, be he weak enough to give us strength of courage so to do, we will generally name without the slightest hesitation, but we are slow to give any man the lie. This desire to be proper and polite is all very well in its place. Harsh words are not necessary over points upon which we may honestly and reasonably disagree. Either or both of the parties to a matching of ideas may be at fault. All men are fallible and prone to error and mistakes. None of us is infallible and most of us now and then remember things that are not so, and make statements that the facts will prove untrue. The sharp answer is here very manifestly out of place. But the common liar who wilfully, deliberately, maliciously spreads untruth should be branded as a liar—and that in hot haste.

The varieties of falsehood are like the shades of black—endless. But perhaps in no other place than our courts of law is the lie found more frequently or in a more vicious and abandoned form. The unbridled perjury which takes place in our courts is really past belief. One would think that men would hesitate to swear in falsehoods under cover of God's name, but any judge will tell you that hundreds do.

The infamous attacks upon men in our public life, the lies gigantic of our political campaigns, started with malign intent to destroy trust in a candidate who is beyond reproach, are unworthy of a self-respecting people and should be abandoned. The unfounded attacks upon the characters of good men, by editors who should be above such things, are not fair either to the attacked or to the intelligence of the writers. The stories that are spread through financial centres in order to weaken public confidence in standard securities or to destroy public faith in the standing and solvency of individuals, firms, or corporations, are pieces from the same cloth. They are clearly within the meaning of the text. No desire to give vent to spite, no satisfaction of a grudge, is sufficient excuse for any man to endanger the happiness of other men or the health of his own soul. The jugglery of figures to prove balances, trade or profits that never did or will exist, is wrong; and the men who do it know it to be unmixed evil.

The number of palpable falsehoods that are told in the business world is beyond compute. The desire to excel leads many a man to become exceedingly careless in his choice of words. The very advertisements of our day are self-confessed falsehoods. No one believes them half the time, for experience has proven the need to take them with a grain of salt. Palming off something "just as good" which really isn't; selling adulterated food stuffs under the guise of pure supplies; unloading on the public veneers of all sorts as solid material throughout; the publishing of symptoms that may exist at intervals in the physical condition of any man, as the certain and unmistakable signs of the speedy destruction of our bodies by incurable disease; these and a hundred more untruths may be charged against the liar. The great American sin of falsification by exaggeration and overstatement is too rife in our land. It bodes no good for respect for truth and it can and does do harm.

In our social, or should I say society, life we find the seeds of falsehood also. The desire to seem to be more than we are makes many of us resort to means that are, at bottom, false. Simulation of position, wealth, character or wisdom that is not ours, is precarious business. Sooner or later the lie will down us and the truth will find us out. Before we expect we may be caught. Who of us does not pretend to friendships which never did or will exist? Those little social catch words that slip so glibly from our tongues but that have no heart behind them, had just as well be left out of our vocabularies. The desire to say something that we do not feel, in order not to hurt, makes many of us liars. It is not necessary to perjure oneself to escape embarrassing predicaments. The sure way is to be silent. If you can't speak the truth say nothing—or better turn the point of conversation. Don't be affected, for affectation is a sham, and anyway the cultivation of self is best.

Of all the mean and despicable things in this world the lie that is born of malignant motives is the worst. The lie, like the opportunity that is passed, never can be called back. Spawn of an evil mind, it goes on a way of sin. Before its scorching breath good reputations die, and in its wake sorrow, trouble and distrust are sure to lurk. Of all the mean things in this world the lie is the most contemptible.

Here as in other cases the popular mind is slow to perceive the truth behind a sentence. Men are not quick to carry principles to conclusions nearly half so extensive as logic will demand. The point-blank falsehood with intent to ruin reputation or to bulster up another lie is usually what we think of first. Most of us are fairly quick to see and to go thus far. But is the lie from the tongue the only lie that does harm. Is the story of malignant falsehood which never stops the only sort of untruth that we should avoid and disdain? I think not. That knowing look, or that evasive answer, or that suspicion of a smile, which we all can use and have seen, all these are parties to too frequent lies that we dare not utter. The knowing look has struck fear to many a trusting heart. The evasive answer has caught away the faith of not a few believing souls. That silent, quiet smile has shattered confidence in many a character ere this. "They say" and "some one told me so" are the unholy parents of a godless host of lies. Here is a mother who has asked for good news of her boy, only to receive that mean and false evasive answer that leaves so much unsaid and so much to be implied. The implication kills her trust.

Here is the man who paints to you the virtue of a friend. You give to him that knowing look, as if to say, "and you, too, trust him, poor fool;" and confidence is gone. The dainty maiden with her heart so full of love recounts to you the nobleness of the man she loves, and you give to her a smirk. Of course you've said nothing, perhaps you know nothing to contradict her view, but you smile and the light of her life is dimmed. Lies by consent, perhaps, falsehoods by implication no doubt they are; but before the judgment bar of God they shall be termed "unclean."

But thus far our talk has been largely negative. Let us approach our topic for a moment from the positive point. The command not to speak evil of our neighbor when revised in the light of the life of Christ becomes a positive demand for strict adherence to the truth. The sense of the obligation to be true and to live true is at the base of all individual and social life and advancement. No man can lie to himself and be a party to his own uplift-ment. To move ahead and into unison with God we must be true to our personalities. The desire to obey the pure dictates of a good conscience is the beginning of individual advance. We cannot be untrue to self and true to men and to God. The agreement of each man by and with himself, to be consistent with the demands of his highest inner light is the basis of social credit. The power of credit, that is to say, credibility or trustworthiness, cannot be too much remarked. Credit or the assurance we have of the honesty and reliability of individuals or companies of men, whether firms or nations, is the foundation upon which political systems are built. We could not do business nor conduct a government for a day were it not for this great and fundamental principle of human life: that credit—that is to say, honor and truth—must be maintained. For how long think you would the fabric of our state remain intact were mutual faith destroyed and credit given up? The elaborate business system to which we point with pride will be a wretched thing of the past so soon as personal and social honesty is removed. Immanuel Kant regarded falsehood as "the forfeiture of human personal worth, a destruction of personal integrity," and another forceful thinker has declared that "credit rests on the general social virtue of truthfulness."

Truthfulness is necessary to the maintenance of personal integrity. Integrity is unity with our best ideals. To say it short—personal integrity is the individual recognition of the necessity for personal unity—unity in personality if you will. The man of integrity is the man whose mind and heart and actions are at one. His conscience is the arbiter of his deeds. Disintegration comes with the denial of the rights of conscience—that is to say, of the voice of reasonable truth. The disintegrated man is a man without integrity, whose life is a jumble at the best or whose conscience and deeds when at their worst are disreputable and a discredit to self and society. Be true to self! Be yourself! Maintain your personal integrity. Be a unified soul growing in the nuture of the Spirit into the stature of Christ.

Thus only can personal truthfulness be maintained and social credit be assured support. The best individual is the one whose integrity is unquestioned. The only sound governmental and political system is that which is rested upon that social credit which has its roots in personal unity with the truth of God.

Moral Inability.

What is the meaning of "dead in trespasses and sins?" We must take great care in our use of the illustration of death in connection with sins! Physical death, of course, includes absolute insensibility, or else there would be nothing to which the evangelist could appeal and no consciousness of responsibility. What it does mean is moral inability. Man is so far gone from original righteousness that he is absolutely unable by his own unaided effort, without divine grace, to come back to God. Thus the sinner, so far as ability is concerned, needs, not merely an awakening from slumber, but the bestowal of new life.

Keep in view this distinction between moral insensibility and moral inability, and apply the term "dead in trespasses and sins" to the latter. —Rev. W. H. G. Thomas, in London Christian.

Wondrous Love.

A repulsive-looking old woman who, after a life of unbelief, had been converted, became the subject of persecution at the hands of her godless neighbors. In every way they sought to anger or otherwise disturb the spirit of patience and lovingkindness that now possessed her. Finally an old persecutor, having exhausted all her resources in the attempt, venomously exclaimed, "I think you're the ugliest old woman that I ever saw." To which the old woman, her face beaming with a light that made her beautiful, replied in tears, "Wasn't it wonderful that He could have loved an ugly old woman like me?"

Where the Soul Refreshes Itself.

There is a power in the peace God giveth of which the men who are rushing along the broad and dusty highway can form no conception. The meadows on which the soul refreshes itself are ever green.—Thelwall.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

More Blessed.

"I have showed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, it is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20:35). The world's principle is that it is the most blessed thing in the world to receive, and to keep that which we have. The principles of heaven works on exactly the opposite principle from that of the ruler of this world.

It is a wonderful thing that this saying, though not recorded in the gospels by any of the evangelists, was thought worthy of record by Luke, who received it from the apostle Paul. This was the controlling principle of the life of Jesus, also of the life of the apostle Paul, who followed Jesus. It will be the controlling principle of every one who is a Christian. We receive but to give, and the greatest joy in this world is to give. The greatest blessing comes in giving.

My dear brother, do you know that one reason why your spiritual experience is not clear and bright may be that you do not give as is your privilege? What a blessing would come to many who read this article if they were to give until it became a real sacrifice! During the week of prayer just past you may have had your heart drawn out in longing for the blessing of God, and yet it may be that you are closing the channel to God's blessing by not giving what God has given you.

There are many calls. A blessing is in every one for those who give, and not only give, but sacrifice to give. Some one who reads this article could easily give $1000 and more to the various funds appealing for aid, and it would be a great blessing and joy to him. Others could give, by a little effort, one-half that amount, and there are many who read this article who can give $100. My brother, my sister, you know whether you can do this. He who gives will in return receive a greater blessing than he would were some one to make him a present of that same amount.—Review and Herald.

The Good Endures.

"No good deed, no genuine sacrifice, is ever wasted. If there be good in it, God will use it for His own holy purposes; and whatever of ignorance, or weakness, or mistake, was mingled with it, will drop away as the withered petals drop away when the full flower has blown."

Taking the Life Out.

By the time you have boiled your faith down to a form you have taken the life out of it.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

It's a very strong friendship that can survive intimacy.

Some men expect you to do a favor for them as if they were doing it for you.

One reason a man likes to drink is the doctor tells him it's bad for his health.

After a man has had his engagement broken off he can afford even an automobile.

A man makes as much fuss over doing his duty as a boy over getting a tooth pulled.

A woman feels she isn't loyal to her husband unless she fibs about all the money he makes.

It's hard for a girl to take as much interest in your love making if she suspects you mean it.

When a man is making all sorts of faces at himself in a mirror he usually isn't crazy, only shaving.

If a man that a girl is in love with asks a policeman where a street is she calls him strong and brave.

A girl's idea of being bold is to forget to look daggers at a man who gives her his seat in a street car.

You can generally figure out somehow what a man means by what he says unless he is running for office.

You can't make a woman believe there is any real trouble in the world on the first afternoon she wears her new hat.

There's hardly anything in the world excites a woman more than to have somebody call her up on the telephone when she is away and not leave word who it was.—From "Reflections of a Bachelor" in the New York Press.

ALIENISM BY TELEPHONE.

David McClure Describes a Specimen Apropos of the Thaw Case.

At a dinner of the Association of the Alumni of the Civil Engineers of Columbia University at the Hotel Astor David McClure told of some of his experiences as chairman of the commission to examine into the sanity of Harry Thaw. Incidentally he took a rap at expert testimony on the witness stand.

"In the course of my career," he said, "I have had much to do with alienists and alleged experts, and I have found that a lawyer can get as many alienist experts to testify for his side of the case as the funds of his client will allow. Not long ago I was appointed chairman of a commission to examine into the sanity of a certain man. Two sets of alienists appeared before the commission. One set said that the fact that the man was insane was indicated by a certain movement of the hand while the other swore that the same movement of the hand tended to show that the man was perfectly in his right mind."

He told of a case he had recently known where an alienist who had never seen the man under consideration had given the opinion in court that the man was insane and had based his judgment entirely on a talk he had held with him over the telephone.

Mr. McClure went on to say that the law, which formerly was one of the greatest professions, had degenerated, until it had become a mere business. "There was a time," said he, "when the lawyer was the big man of the town and the people sought his advice and counsel, but today the lawyer seeks his client. The successful lawyer is the one who can build railroads that exist only on paper and arrange for the issue of watered stock. The mad desire for money has got the lawyer in its clutches."—New York Sun.

The Carnations of 300 Years Ago.

A St. Louis florist says that we pride ourselves nowadays on the size of our carnations, but the florists of three hundred years ago grew carnations three to four inches across, as large as any that we see, and thought nothing of it. All through Spain, Southern France and Italy, the carnation is the favorite flower, and has been for hundreds of years, but along the Mediterranean there are a few glass houses, for in protected situations and on southern slopes of hills even delicate flowers grow outdoors all winter long and bloom as freely at Christmas as in July. The big carnations, however, were not grown in Spain or Italy, but in England, outdoors during the summer time and before glass houses were known.—Ohio State Journal.

Kissing the Book.

The exact origin of kissing the Book in English courts, though modern, is obscure. It is not, I should say, a matter of legal obligation, but seems to be mere a custom dating from the middle or end of the eighteenth century. If a witness claims to follow the law according to Coke and to take his "corporall oath" by touching the Book who shall refuse him his right?

"The kissing act" seems akin, indeed, to what the "fancy" call, somewhat unpleasantly, a saliva custom, which in modern western life exists in very few forms, though many of the lower classes still "spit" on a coin for luck.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Correction.

The Orator—I believe that the great body of American people are gentlemen.

Voice from the Rear—You're wrong. The last census shows that over half of them are ladies.—Troy Budget.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by some of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the uninstructed Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal, pelvic or uterine inflammation, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Singing Hen Amuses Big Congregation.

Miss May Prick's Rhode Island hen, "Queen Ann," known for miles around as the singing chicken, burst into song today in front of the Methodist church and so amused the worshippers that the services were suspended temporarily.

"Queen Ann" is probably the most extraordinary fowl that ever came from an egg shell. She was one of a brood of eleven hatched under a tree in which a colony of thrushes had made their home, and filled the air with their melody at early dawn.

The theory is that some pre-natal influence was exerted on the chick before she broke through the shell and that her unhenlike voice is the result.

"Queen Ann" does not "cluck" like other hens. Tempted with a few grains of rye, which she seems to prefer to corn, she will trill like a canary. The volume of sound is deeper and not so shrill as that of the yellow-feathered songster, but the graduations from the sharp staccate to the long legato are perfect.—Liberty (Pa.) Dispatch to the N. Y. World.

Calcutta's "Jungle Villages."

The houses, or huts rather, that form the majority of Calcutta's dwelling and working places are low and mean and crazy to a degree. This vast congeries of dwellings that stretched itself along the Hooghly bank scarce deserves the name of town except for its supreme commercial and political importance and its great population. It is not a town, this city of huts, except in the Central African sense. It is a series of jungle villages spread out and plastered on the river bank with a trowel. —Calcutta Englishman.

WORKING WOMEN, WHAT THEY SHOULD KNOW.

MRS. SADIE ABBOTT — MRS. PREE McKITRICK

Women for the most part spend their lives at home, and it is these women who are willing and ambitious that their homes shall be kept neat and pretty, their children well dressed and tidy, who do their own cooking, sweeping, dusting and often washing, ironing and sewing for the entire family, who call for our sympathy.

Truly the work of such a woman is "never done" and is it any wonder that she breaks down at the end of a few years, the back begins to ache, there is a displacement, inflammation or ulceration of the abdominal organs a female weakness is brought on, and the struggle of that wife and mother to continue her duties is pitiful.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, is the exact medicine a woman needs whose strength is overtaxed. It keeps the feminine organs in a strong and healthy condition. In preparing for childbirth and recuperating therefrom it is most efficient. It carries a woman safely through the change of life and in making her strong and well assists her to be a good wife and mother.

Mrs. Sadie Abbott, of Jeannette, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"I suffered severely with pain every month and also a pain in my left side. My doctor prescribed for me but did me no good; a friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I wrote you in regard to my condition. I followed your advice and am a perfectly well woman. The pains have all disappeared and I cannot recommend your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pree McKitrick, of Le Farge, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"For six years I suffered from female weakness. I was so irregular that I would go from three weeks to six months, so I thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

"Now I am once more well and can do my work without a pain. Any one who wishes, can write to me and I will answer all letters gladly."

Women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of female ills. Every suffering woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Friend in Need

B 10

No friend in need could be more welcome to a sick woman, than a medicine that will relieve her suffering, build up her strength and bring back to her cheeks their lost bloom. Cardui has done this, for thousands of sick, miserable women. Composed of ingredients with special, curative action on the womanly organs.

Wine of Cardui

goes to the seat of your trouble and is sure to do you good. J. F. Stone, of Lawrence, Kas., writes: "My wife suffered for 10 years from female troubles and was given up to die, but took Cardui, and now she is in good health." $1.

Death Duties in England.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer's estimate of the net receipt into the Exchequer from the death duties during the financial year is £13,000,000, apart from the expected yield of £600,000 from the proposed increase of charge on estates over £150,000 and the proposed super tax on estates of more than a million each. The estimated receipt, which the last twelve years has been less by £8,500,000 than the actual receipt, will probably be again this year much less than the yield of the duties. The estimate is at the rate of £250,000 a week.—London Daily Graphic.

BLACK, ITCHING SPOTS ON FACE.

Physicians Called It Eczema in Worst Form—Patient Despaired of Cure —Cuticura Remedies Cure Her.

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black splotches all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of ——. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. Their treatment did me no good. Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. Then my husband purchased a single set of the Cuticura Remedies, which entirely stopped the breaking out. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every splotch was entirely gone. I have not felt a symptom of the eczema since, which was three years ago. Mrs. Lizzie E. Sleige, 540 Jones Ave., Selma, Ala., Oct. 28, 1905."

ALL CHILDREN

at birth inherit a predisposition to bodily ills and ailments—more or less serious. The stomach and bowels are the most prolific sources of ill-health. They are the hotbeds of disease, and because less attention is given them, more evil can be traced directly to them than to any other organs of the body.

Where there is the least indication of trouble or you are feeling out of sorts,

Dr. Caldwell's
(Laxative)

should be taken at once.

It is the best preparation for the stomach and bowels.

If they are all out of order, it will eradicate the trouble, tone up the parts and restore them to their natural condition. DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN communicates itself to the whole system and its beneficial and curative effects are pronounced and instantly experienced.

It will keep you in good health.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN can be obtained in both dollar and half-dollar sizes from all druggists.

Your money will be refunded if it does not benefit you.

Your postal card request will bring by return mail our new booklet "DR. CALDWELL'S BOOK OF WONDERS" and free sample to those who have never tried this wonderful remedy. Write for it today.

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because OUR RECORD IS CLEAN, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then OUR POLICY is as liberal as is consistent with security; we are accommodating but prudent.

We ask your consideration.

On Friday evening the handsome parlor and spacious dining room of the 20th Century hotel was a scene of social brilliancy and epicurean pleasure. The evening was a beautiful one, as Sweet Luna was shining brightly, which impaled the evening in an atmosphere of cheer, which added zest to the joy and mirth within. There were several unique features of the entertainment, but the most attractive was the music, both instrumental and vocal, which was beautifully rendered by Misses Mahan and Damsky. After repairing to the dining room, Dr. T. Dunlap was honored as "toast master," and the "toga" could not have fallen on better shoulders. The toasts were quite applicable and afforded much amusement. Delightful refreshments were served consisting of ices and cakes. The balance of the evening was spent in pleasant conversation. At the "wee smaw" hour good nights were said reluctuantly, and all thanked their charming hostess for the bright and happy evening, which she had so kindly made for them. Little Miss Meade Martin entertained her friends on Wednesday afternoon at a lawn party. Dainty refreshments were served, and the little folks had a jolly good time.

Messrs. W. Walker, T. U. Crumpton and Geo Fox attended the funeral services of Sen. Morgan.

Mrs. Saportas entertained a few friends on Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Florence Adair. J. W. Mitchell spent Monday in Selma.

Enterprise

As I have not seen nor heard anything from Enterprise in some time, I will say that we are moving along. Our crops are late. We are having some hot days now; we think they will do our cotton good; oats were good; our corn needs rain. Would like to say through the Banner to the patrons of Enterprise school district (No. 13) that I would be glad if the patrons would come together and try to have a good school. We believe we have some of as good boys and girls as there is if they only had a chance. Who is our children to look to for their schooling? There is nothing in our way but a little prejudice. Would say to the patrons of our district that if I have done wrong in any way that for the sake of our children I want the people to show me where and I will try and right it. I would say to the patrons that if they will employ some good teacher for six months, I will pay $40 as supplement money and to repair the school house. We have 100 or more children of school age, I have four. Would like to hear from some of our patrons in regard to our school. With best wishes to the Banner, I will say no more.

It seems that playing ball is all the go these days. The Buck Creek boys played the Stanton boys Saturday; Stanton boys winner 36 to 9. Come again, boys, we are always glad to see you.

We also noticed our friend, J. O. Middleton, of Clanton in town Sunday. Some of the boys thought J. O. was representing Dr. Henry's bitters, as he was passing it around to the boys. ONE OF THE BOYS.

Old Waddy.

The health of this community is very good. Farmers are about up with their work, but are needing rain very bad. The cotton crop is very sorry; corn looks very well considering the late spring.

Several of our young people visited Union last Sunday, where they had preaching and foot washing in the morning and singing in the afternoon, and report a nice time; also a nice rain. Waddy and Rockymount ball teams played on the former's ground last Saturday evening, Waddy winning by a score of 8 to 3. The feature of the game was the batting of Smith and Burnett; Blaine Burnett also done some fine work behind the bat. Batteries, Dorminy, Mahan and Burnett; Davenport, Cofer and Carver. A PLAYER.

Mountain Springs.

Dear Editor—Give me a little space in the Banner to say something about our singing at Mountain Springs church last Sunday. We had a nice time and good singing and good order. The books used were the Harp and Harmony, led by N. A. Dobbs and other good leaders. The singing made we old folks think of good old times and days that are past and gone. We hope they will come again. We also had a fine dinner. Everybody enjoyed themselves.

ASSASSIN PAID BY THE GOVERNMENT

Charges That Russian Ministers Plotted Crime.

LETTERS BEING PUBLISHED

Showing That the Revolutionary Leader Was Asphyxiated by a Man Who Was Paid 3,000 Roubles for His Crime.

New York.—The Wahrheit (The Truth), a Yiddish newspaper and the organ of the Russian revolutionists in this city, makes the sensational accusation, which it backs up with facsimile copies of what purport to be official letters, that the Russian government, as represented by certain of its ministers, brought about the murder of Yankel Tsherniak, a revolutionary leader, on a steamer between Sweden and Antwerp last winter and sacrificed the lives of three other passengers who occupied the same cabin.

The paper declared that the murderer was Andrey Victoroy, an agent of the Russian government. He was paid 3,000 roubles and received the title of "citizen of honor" for his work, the paper says. Louis E. Miller, editor of the Wahrheit, announces that he is ready to show the originals of the letters of the officials that he publishes, but will not disclose how he obtained them.

Tsherniak's body was found in his cabin whe nthe steamer on which he had taken passage reached Antwerp. Three other persons, who shared his cabin, were also dead, but a fifth occupant had disappeared. The inquest developed that the men had been asphyxiated. The revolutionists say this was accomplished with poisonous gas which the assassin carried with him.

Bitten by Alligators.

St. Louis.—While feeding live rats to the alligators at Delmar Garden, Annie Woods, 15 years of age, fell into a pit containing six large reptiles. She was knocked down by the tail of one, and was bitten on the leg before she could be taken out. Only by her presence of mind was the girl saved from being badly bitten by the ferocious creatures.

Got Wrong Bottle.

Atlanta, Ga.—Frank T. Ryan, 69 years of age, an ex-Confederate soldier, who had served as a member of the city council on several occasions, and who was at one time clerk of the superior court, is dead as a result of a dose of poison he is thought to have taken by mistake. It is believed that he got hold of the wrong bottle in his medicine chest.

Heart Big as Bull's.

Augusta, Ga.—An autopsy performed on the body of Nick Simmons, a negro, who fell dead on the streets, disclosed the fact that the man had a heart as big as a full grown bull. It filled the entire chest cavity on the left side. Coroner Goodrich says it is by far the largest specimen of that important human organ he has ever seen.

Inheritance Tax Cost $1,000,000.

New York.—In order to pay the inheritance tax on the estate of the late James Henry ("Silent") Smith, the executors, it is said, have placed all the New York real estate holdings on the market. The inheritance tax, it is said, will be close to one million dollars.

Wooding Out Navy Officers.

Washington, D. C.—Rear Admiral Evans, commanding the Atlantic fleet, presided over a special meeting of the naval personnel board at the navy department Saturday. This board is engaged in wooding out as many officers in the various grades, except those of commander and lieutenant commander, as are necessary to meet the requirements of the naval personnel act.

CRISIS JUST PASSED.

Worst That France Has Seen in Thirty-seven Years.

Paris.—A profound sense of relief pervaded the French capital Saturday night at the check to the outbreak in the south, which is described by ex-Premier Ribot as the worst crisis in France in thirty-seven years. The government apparently is satisfied that it has the situation well in hand, and that the troops will prevent a recrudescence of armed revolt. Such a mobilization of military force has not previously been witnessed in the life of the third republic. All the towns and a majority of the villages in the disturbed department are armed camps.

Saturday night's dispatches represent that a general surface calm prevails, although there are one or two storm centers in isolated districts.

Monster Sea Turtle.

San Diego, Cal.—One of the puzzles of the sea came to the surface Saturday, when a gigantic sea turtle was captured by Pusile Solisen, a fisherman. The monster weighs 1,902 pounds and its shell is five feet, two inches from tip to tip. On its back is burned or carved this inscription: "British ship Sea Briene, August 12, 1881, 3 south 86 west. If found, please notify Thomas Fletcher, Brawley road, Irvington, England." It would appear from this fact that the turtle was captured twenty-six years ago in the South Pacific, and that he was released after the lettering had been burned in its shell.

Admits Stealing $30,000.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Frank E. Woller, clerk of the municipal and district courts, has been arrested on a warrant signed by Judge Neelfee, charging him with embezzlement of $30,000. The Largest Afloat.

Kiel.—The Hamburg-American line, through its managing director, Herr Ballin, last week gave an order to the Harlan-Wolff firm of Belfast for a 50,000 ton steamer. The ship will be the largest vessel afloat, surpassing even the big Cunard liners

Big Dividends in New York.

New York.—The July dividend and interest disbursement this year by various corporations will reach a grand total of $182,881,849. This is $18,576,-679 greater than the aggregate of last year and eclipses the total of any previous July in history.

Thought Son Burglar.

Carmi, Ill.—Mistaking his 9-year-old son for a burglar, George South, a resident of this city, shot and killed the boy. Thursday night burglars attempted to enter the South home and were frightened away. About 4 o'clock Friday morning South heard a noise in an adjoining room. It was his boy who had arisen, but South did not discover this until he had fired and the lad fell mortally wounded.

WALTER LAMAR'S BODY IS FOUND

The Boy Who Was Stolen And Held For $8,000.

THEY DID NOT COLLECT IT.

After Telling Officers How the Kidnapped Boy Was Strangled to Death They Led Them to the Body in the Swamp.

New Orleans, La.—Two miles into the interior of a big swamp near this city the headless body of Walter Lamana, an Italian child between 7 and 8 years old, who was kidnapped and held for $6,000 ransom two weeks ago, was found by police and vigilantes just before daybreak Monday. He had been strangled to death, according to the confession of one of several Italians held by the police. The boy's neck is supposed to have been broken when he was strangled, causing the head to become separated from the body when decomposition set in. The head was found a short distance from the body.

Five Italians, two of them women, are under arrest charged as accessories to the murder. All day long small crowds have been dispersed promptly by the police, despite whose precautions a report has gotten out summoning a mass meeting at Elk Place. Seventy armed deputies have been placed on guard at the Orleans parish prison, the strongest in the state, where three of the prisoners are held and some apprehension has been felt over the safety of two other prisoners who were taken to an adjoining parish.

Seldom since the Mafia lynchings, sixteen years ago, has New Orleans been so stirred with threats of violence as now, and some of these threats are made by those who participated in the disorders at that time. The law and order element is much stronger than it has been heretofore, a large number of leading citizens of all nationalities and the city's leading commercial bodies having pledged themselves to prevent violence.

To Take Census of Oklahoma.

Washington, D. C.—Upon the advice of the attorney-general the president instructed the secretary of commerce and labor to have the census bureau make a special enumeration of the inhabitants of the proposed state of Oklahoma, including both the present territory of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, to determine the population of the proposed state and its distribution among the several territorial subdivisions into which the state will be divided, should the constitution be confirmed at the polls.

J. B. Hammond Insane.

New York.—Judge Bartlett Hammond, president of the Hammond Typewriter Company, of New York, has been pronounced insane by a jury which has been hearing evidence before a commission in lunacy. His estate, consisting largely of stock in the Hammond Company, is valued at $800,000.

New York Detective Dismissed.

New York.—Detective William E. Peabody was dismissed from the New York police force Monday after a trial on a charge of giving false testimony being absent without leave and disobedience. All the charges grew out of the investigation of Peabody's work in securing evidence in the divorce suit of Mrs. Howard Gould against her husband.

How Miss Foutz Got Married.

Edwardsville, Ill.—Acting in her capacity as deputy to her father, County Clerk Edward Foutz, of Madison county, Miss Edna Foutz was married and was able to keep the fact secret for more than three months. Saturday Mr. Foutz received a letter telling him of his daughter's marriage to Albert L. Steiner. Miss Foutz had access to the marriage license blanks and filled out one for herself, taking care that it was not placed on the records.

SAFETY IN RAILWAY TRAVEL.

Promotion to Be Featured Campaign for Long Coverall Back Inspection.

Kansas City, Mo.—President Roosevelt and the governors of several states have been asked by the National Union of Railway Trainmen in a campaign for greater safety in railway travel. J. G. Sheppard, of Fort Scott, Kan., secretary of the organization, has sent out a letter addressed to the president and several governors, in which he says:

"If we can obtain the co-operation of all who should be interested we will have as safe conditions for railway travel in our country as prevail in Europe. We certainly should have either government or state inspection of railway tracks. Some one should be held responsible to the people for keeping the tracks in proper repair and properly patrolled.

"It is a curious condition of affairs, but it is true. We have state inspection of factories and mines, of beer, barbers, pharmacists and dentists. There is a state control over the product of the busy bee, and the farmer who raises wheat must pay a state inspection fee before he can market his grain. But there is no law that is observed that provides for the inspection of railroad tracks."

Eight Dead From Balloon Trip.

Budapest.—While endeavoring, with the assistance of several farmers, to remove a balloon from the roof of his house, where it had fallen during the night, the owner of the house and four other persons were killed and a half dozen injured by the explosion of the gas in the bag. No basket was attached to the bag, and a search was instituted to find it. Finally it was found some fifteen miles away. In it were three persons, all dead. Evidently the basket had become detached from the envelope and fallen a considerable distance.

Japanese Heir at Vancouver.

Vancouver, B. C.—Prince Sadimura Fishima, heir to the Japanese throne, arrived here Saturday afternoon on his way home after a tour around the world. The prince will sail for Victoria Tuesday on the British battleship Monmouth, placed at his disposal by the British government and sent to this coast from Hong Kong. The prince will not cross the United States on his trip.

Prominent Attorney Goes to Joliet.

Peoria, Ill.—Daniel F. Raum, once a prominent attorney and society leader of this city, and son of Green B. Raum, ex-commissioner of pensions, was taken to Joliet penitentiary Sunday to begin serving an indeterminate sentence, having been convicted of forgery and embezzlement. Mrs. Raum has shown her devotion by taking up her residence at Joliet.

The Oil Octopus.

Chicago.—The Standard Oil Company, facing federal court fines that may amount to $29,240,000 and lay it open for prosecutions that strike at its very existence, came under the ban of Judge K. M. Landis, who threatens drastic action against th ecorporation and its representatives for practical contempt. The trust had been ordered to bring into court answers to a number of questions asked by Judge Landis.

Cuban Secretary at the Hague Resigns

Havana.—Orestes Ferrara has cabled to Governor Magoon his resignation as secretary to the Cuban delegation at The Hague, stating that he would give his reasons for so doing later. The resignation was accepted. Recently the Paris Temps published an article charging Ferrara with being an anarchist.

All Hands Lost.

Santiago, Chile.—The Pacific Navigation Company's coasting steamer Santiago, a vessel of 1,366 tons, trading between Panama and the south coast of South America, has been wrecked in a heavy squall, fifty miles north of Corral. One passenger and one officer are known to have been saved. The remainder of the passengers and crew are reported to have perished.

Locusts Vanquish Birds.

Alton, Ill.—Clouds of locusts have settled among the trees of "Hop Hollow," a popular picnic ground near here, and have driven every bird out of the woods. The hollow has been marked for its songbirds, but all have disappeared under the onslaught of the insects.

Flood Claims Many Victims.

Athens, Greece.—More than a hundred persons were drowned in the flood caused by the overflowing of the Lithos river, which inundated the town of Trikkala, in Thessaly.

Twenty Indicted for Land Frauds.

Denver, Colo.—As a result of the work of the special grand jury which closed its session Saturday afternoon and reported to Judge Lewis about twenty indictments against men prominent in Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada and eastern states, including Wisconsin and Missouri, were returned for coal and timber land frauds. The names of the indicted men will not be given until the arrests have been made.

MUTINEERS SURRENDER TO FRENCH ARTILLERY

Whole Army Poured Into Disaffected Winegrowing District.

PREMIER CLEMENCEAU UPHELD

Chamber Cheers as Civil War Cloud Blows Over—Battalion Marched into Beziers, Where the Inhabitants Gave Them Food.

Paris, France.—Six hundred and seven men of the Seventeenth Infantry Regiment deserted with arms and ammunition near Beziers, in the Department of Herault, and joined the insurgent winegrowers.

On receipt of the news General Baillond entrained for Beziers with artillery and other troops.

This display of force cowed the mutineers and the battalion agreed to return to the regiment.

After the terroristic events of the day before the aspect of Narbonne next day was comparatively calm. Soldiers were everywhere in such great force that the inhabitants were at least temporarily coerced into inactivity. The wreckage resulting from the riots still litters the streets and all the stores and banks are closed and barred.

Two additional regiments of infantry and two of cavalry arrived at Narbonne during the morning and detachments of artillery are on their way there.

The authorities of Narbonne have issued orders that specific routes must be followed by those attending the funerals of the riot victims in the afternoon. The routes will be entirely isolated by troops in the hope of thus preventing dangerous demonstrations.

The grave view the French capital takes of the revolutionary events in the south of France and the tragic outcome was evidenced by the scene in the Chamber of Deputies when the Government was interpellated on the measures it proposed to take to reestablish order.

Premier Clemenceau lost no time in imparting to the Deputies the news from Narbonne adding to the information already published the fact that over a hundred soldiers were wounded in the fighting with the rioters. The peasants from the surrounding villages, terrified at the shooting, took the first trains for their homes.

Then, amid impressive silence, the Premier gave the official version of the mutiny of the battalion of the Seventeenth Infantry and its march to Beziers, and concluded by demanding a vote of confidence in the Government, so that the Ministers could carry out the work of repression on which in the future so much depended.

The Opposition Deputies fiercely attacked the Government, accusing the Ministers of sending agents to stir up the populace in the South, asserting that the Cuirassiers acted like Cossacks, that the troops fired without provocation and without notification, and that women and children had been slaughtered, and insisted that the release of M. Ferroul, ex-Mayor of Narbonne, would alone restore calm.

Otherwise, one of the speakers asserted, "the bloody rioting of to-day will be the revolution of to-morrow."

Ex-Minister of Commerce Millerand's denunciation of M. Clemenceau was particularly violent, but fell flat, as he is strongly suspected of a desire to succeed to the Premiership.

After six hours' debate the Chamber decided by 327 to 223 votes to support the Cabinet.

Details of the mutiny in Herault show that a battalion of the Seventeenth Infantry Regiment sent from Beziers to Agde on account of the soldiers' sympathy with the local winegrowers, mutinied there, raided the magazine, filled their pouches with cartridges, and with fixed bayonets and flags flying marched out of Agde and entered Beziers. When notified of the mutiny General Croisade, commanding the Sixty-first Brigade, met the mutineers at Villeneuve and attempted to persuade them to return to duty.

"Soldiers," he commanded, "kill me or obey me!"

The soldiers replied that they had no desire to kill the General, but were determined to return to Beziers.

A detachment of gendarmes tried to bar the road, but after the mutineers had fired a volley in the air they were permitted to pass.

The mutineers, although without officers, marched into Beziers in perfect order at 6 o'clock a. m., the cheers of the local crowds mingling with the rolling of the drums and the strains of the bugles. The people gave the mutineers the warmest welcome and furnished them with ample provisions and supplies of straw, upon which the tired soldiers threw themselves, after stationing pickets and proclaiming their determination to defend their lives in the event of being attacked.

Colby Football Player Drowned.

While boating with a fellow student and two young women on the Messalonskee River at Waterville, Me., Oscar H. Peterson, fullback of the Colby College football eleven last fall, was drowned. Peterson and another of the party in attempting to change seats upset the boat. Peterson was to be graduated next week.

Lieutenant William Stewart, of the Eleventh Pennsylvania Infantry in the Civil War, was killed by sunstroke at the Soldiers' Home, in Leavenworth, Kan.

ALABAMA HAPPENINGS AS TERSELY TOLD

Items of Interest to Dwellers of The State.

WEEK'S EVENTS CONDENSED

Theatre Built on the Site of an Old Slave Market at Montgomery—Pushing Prohibition—Gen. Forrest's Grandson Takes State Position.

In connection with the erection of a new theatre on Dexter avenue, Montgomery, it is of interest that it is to be built on the site of the old slave market. At that place negroes were bought and sold, there being rooms for their accommodation until a purchaser was found. The market was well patronized by planters and others looking for servants, and the business was not discontinued until the war began. After the war the building was let for various other purposes, some of the rooms being used by junk dealers, Italian fruit sellers and by others who had small wares to dispose of to the public.

Hurt in a Collision.

Eleven persons were hurt, some fatally, in a head-on collision between a work train going east and a local freight westbound on the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad at 6 o'clock Thursday 10 miles west of Birmingham. Sam King, engineer of the steam shovel on the work train, is the most seriously injured. Two firemen were badly bruised. All the injured are railroad employes.

Tried to Wreck a Street Car.

Dastardly attempt was made to blow up a crowded street car of the Alabama City, Gadsden and Attalla Railway Company near Attalla Friday night, and but for the high speed at which the car was going the attempt would have been successful. All the car windows were broken and shattered glass was showered over the thoroughly frightened occupants.

Strange Ground Rumblings.

On the Rainer place, three miles from Union Springs, rumblings have been heard for some days, the sound seeming to come from the ground at a certain spot. The belief is that there is a subterranean stream, possibly of oil, and arrangements have been made to tap it. A well will be sunk at the point where the noises are most pronounced.

Fifty Years Away From Greensboro.

J. D. Cary is visiting relatives and around Greensboro this week. Mr. Cary was mayor of Greensboro fifty years ago, but for many years has lived away. Graduating at old LaGrange College at the age of 16, he was denied his diploma for several years on account of its youthfulness. He still retains that youthfulness to an amazing degree.

Canning Property to Be Sold.

In answer to a petition filed by the receiver of the Queen Canning Company, of Carbon Hill, asking for the right to sell the property of the bankrupt company, Judge O. R. Hundley Friday issued the necessary order and the property will be sold and the proceeds applied to the liquidation of the company's debts.

Engine Turned Over on Them.

In a wreck on the Louisville & Nashville near Flat Creek Frank Jackson, colored, was killed; Adolph Clayton, white, was seriously injured and John Sheppard, colored, had a leg and arm broken. They were caught beneath a switch engine, which overturned.

To Install Arc Lights.

At a meeting of the city council of Eufaula it was determined to install the lights on the resident streets of the city, and to this end six arc lights will make bright the dark places which complaint has been made for a long period.

Court at Abbeville.

Circuit court is in session at Abbeville, Judge Evans presiding. This is the first time that court has been held since Henry county was taken from the Twelfth judicial circuit and placed back in the Third.

Boy Drowned.

Joe Edwards, the 15-year-old son of J. H. Edwards, of Birmingham, was drowned in Silver Lake while attending a picnic of the St. John's Methodist Sunday school.

Will Carry Alabama Artillery.

The Western of Alabama will carry the Alabama artillery to Fort Moultrie, leaving the state with 225 men on the afternoon of July 4.

Big Check Received.

For the single month of May from one company which leases the convicts of Alabama the sum of $21,978 was received Friday at Montgomery. This was the May payment.

Will Establish Zinc Furnaces.

A zinc factory that will establish eight furnaces is making arrangements to locate in Huntsville. F. J. Thompson has charge of the local arrangements here.

Sheffield Grows in Importance.

The headquarters of the Sheffield Coal and Iron Company will be removed from Catasauqua, Pa., to Sheffield just as soon as the transfer can be made. Mr. Edenborn was last week elected president of the Sheffield Coal and Iron Company, succeeding Leonard Peskitt, resigned. The offices which will be removed from Pennsylvania to Sheffield are those of treasurer and secretary, and the change is to be made in order that the headquarters of the company may be located at the same place their furnaces are located. A. J. McGarry, superintendent of the company's furnaces was elected temporary secretary. The removal of the headquarters of the company to Sheffield has long been desired by the business men of this city, and now that a decision has been reached the people are highly gratified.

Many Fish Dead.

Thousands of dead fish line Valley creek in the vicinity of Bessemer, and the stench from the decaying matter is arousing considerable complaint from those living within a reasonable distance of the waters. The cows in the same neighborhood are also getting sick from drinking the water, and it is said that the chemical works are responsible for the damage. The people of Brighton are especially complaining, while at the Robertson furnace it is said the fish are banked up in quantities.

Birmingham War on Saloons.

A strong effort is being made to put out the saloons in the "Red Light" district of Birmingham as well as raise the present license of $800 per annum to $2,500. Mayor Ward heads the advocates of the raise, but is thus far opposed bby a bare majority of the council, who are contrary. Some are in favor of a $1,500 license. The proposal to cut the saloons out of the "Red Light" district is thought to probably be a card to win over those opposing the raise in the license.

Pushing Prohibition.

Rev. Brooks Lawrence, state organizer for the Anti-Saloon League, has confered with the Alabama representatives of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, with the result that that organization will co-operate in an effort to advance the cause of prohibition still more in Alabama. The women will have a state agent in the field this fall. They will not assist in the dispensary movement, but strive for the absolute expulsion of liquor.

They Elected Teachers.

Fleming White, his wife and their little baby had a strange experience with a bolt of lightning near Meridianville a few night ago. During an electrical storm their house was struck by lightning while they were asleep. The bolt descended the wall through the roof, jumped to the head of the bed and then zigzagged across the bed between the sleeping man and woman, setting fire to the bed clothing and gown of the baby, but injuring neither of them.

Brandon on Pension Laws.

Auditor W. W. Brandon has called attention to the pension laws and the ways of getting names on the rolls. He says: "The law was not changed as to the methods of being placed on the rolls. The county boards will soon be in session to pass on the applications and applicants should apply to them if they desire to get the benefits. The law now provides for the payment of all pensions quarterly, and the first payment will be made October 1."

Picture Agent Released.

H. C. Cockerell, a picture agent representing an enlarging house of Chicago, Ill., was arrested at Decatur on the charge of taking orders for pictures without paying a license according to a bill passed at the recent session of the legislature. It was shown that United States Judge Oscar R. Hundley has but recently held that this law was unconstitutional, and Mr. Cockerell was therefore released.

New Coal Mines.

A good deal of activity is reported in the Acton coal field, where H. F. DeBardeleben and others are prospecting. The railroad spur has now reached the coal veins, and shipping of coal commenced this week. State Mine Inspector Edward Flynn says the new field is promising in the extreme.

Changes Position.

Miss Mary DeBardeleben, who was assistant teacher of mathematics of the Alabama Normal College at Livingston, has accepted the position of secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in the Montevallo Industrial school.

Barn Burned.

Charles Tomlinson's barn at Jeff was burned Thursday night. Loss, $750; insured.

New Bank at Sheffield.

The certificate of incorporation of the People's Bank, of Sheffield, was filed Saturday, and the new bank began Monday. It has an authorized capital of $50,000, $30,000 having been paid in cash.

First Cotton Boll.

To A. V. Batton, of Forkland, in Greene county, belongs the honor of having the first cotton blooms and boll of the season.

EUROPE IS ANXIOUS OVER COTTON CROP

McElderry Who Has Been There Tells About It.

A DELEGATE TO CONVENTION

Mr. McElderry, of Alabama, Returns From Spinners' Convention at Vienna—Reads Report of Farmers' Union in Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn.—J. A. McElderry, of Alabama, who recently returned from the convention of European cotton spinners, held in Vienna in May, was present at the meeting of the state agents of the Farmers' Union, held in the Franzioli Hotel Wednesday, and read an interesting report of the conditions of the cotton industry in Europe. He presented numerous statistics concerning the various mills in Europe and made several suggestions regarding future relations between the planters and spinners. He also told of the great anxiety that was prevailing in all parts of Europe concerning reports of the poorness of the present crop.

Several topics were discussed in Wednesday's meeting, the most important of which was one relating to the establishment of commission houses in the various states for the purpose of consummating sales between the farmer and spinner without the aid of the cotton exchanges.

Boy Slays Father.

Providence, R. I.—Ralph Crumb, 19 years old, killed his father Wednesday while defending his mother from a murderous attack. According to Mrs. Crumb's story, her husband became suddenly insane. Rising from bed, he started for his wife and attacked her with a chair. The son, hearing his mother's screams, took up a shotgun that stood in the corner and struck his father a terrific blow on the head, fracturing the skull, that afterwards proved fatal.

Seek Smokeless Fuel.

Washington.—The geological survey announces the government and railroads are about to experiment at Norfolk, Va., by burning "briquettes" in locomotives with the hope of evolving a smokeless fuel. Previous experiments have proved successful. "Briquettes" are made by taking the waste or slack coal and mixing it with tar, then pressing the mass into blocks by machinery.

Eight Men Hurt.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Eight men were hurt by the partial falling of a bridge under construction on the Stevenson extension of the Southern system Monday morning. The structure was to span Battle Creek near South Pittsburg, Tenn. A work car capsized and a girder fell, the locomotive remaining on the track.

After Thread Trust.

Washington.—The thread trust is to be investigated by the department of justice. Formal complaint has been made to the department alleging that the American Thread Company is a monopoly to restrict trade and asking that it be dissolved through prosecution by the federal government.

She Saved Her Sister.

For Woman's Suffrage.

Madison, Wis.—The senate has passed the Stout bill to submit to the people the question of granting the right of suffrage to women. Friends of the bill declare they have assurance it will pass the assembly.

Lumber Mills Shut Down.

Fernandina, Fla.—At the regular meeting of the Georgia-Florida Sawmill Association Wednesday, after much discussion, it was decided to shut down a number of mills for an indefinite period, or until lumber prices are again strengthened.

Theosophists' New President.

Kansas City, Mo.—Mrs. Anna Besant, of Adyr, India, the noted writer and lecturer on matters occult, has been elected world president of the Theosophical Society to succeed the late Colonel Henry Steele Olcott, formerly of New York.

Seven Are Killed.

Scranton, Pa.—By the explosion of gas in the Johnson No. 1 mine at Priceburg Wednesday, seven men were killed outright and two others seriously injured.

Jury for Japan.

Washington.—After spending several days in Washington investigating the American judicial system, with the view of introducing the jury system of the country in Japan, M. Takagi, a prominent Tokio lawyer, has gone to New York and will sail for London.

By a vote of 6 to 4 the council elected Patrolman J. M. Sweets chief of police of Anniston over Acting Chief Joe Dill.

INDIAN VS. INDIAN.

Squaw Sues Her Indian Husband for Support.

Washington.—What is believed to be the first suit for maintenance ever brought by an Indian woman against her Indian husband has been filed in the district supreme court. The case assumes additional importance when it is considered that the defendant is the son of a former head chief of the Omaha tribe; that he is a graduate of the National University law school, of this city, holding an LL. M. degree; that he is an author of repute and a member of the Anthropological Society of this city.

Mrs. Rosa B. LaFlesche, through Attorney James H. Taylor, has begun suit for maintenance against her husband, Francis LaFlesche, and also asks the court to compel him to disclose the nature of his property and to issue an order restraining and enjoining him from disposing of or lending same. Mrs. LaFlesche says she is by birth a member of the Chippewa tribe.

GOOD FOR THE UNITED STATES.

Our Government Gives $27,000,000 to China Empire.

Washington.—President Roosevelt has just made one of the most stupendous gifts to China that the United States or any other government ever made to a foreign power.

Through Secretary Root he has notified Chinese Minister Liang Cheng that with the approval of congress, the United States will voluntarily relinquish the difference between the total expenses and claims incurred in the suppression of the Boxer revolt in 1900 and the amount China agreed to pay this country in satisfaction thereof. The difference amounts to $27,000,000.

Killed Her and Himself.

Pocomoke City, Md.—Miss Bessie Lambertson, daughter of John Lambertson, a well-known farmer of Worcester county, was shot Tuesday night by Lodie Davis, a rejected suitor, and is in a precarious conditon. Davis afterwards committed suicide by shooting himself. The shooting occurred while the couple were out driving a short distance from the home of the young lady.

Miss Giles' Report.

New York.—Miss Giles at noon on Tuesday issued a report on the cotton crop which made the average condition of the growing plant 68.7, compared to 63.4 on May 25, and 84.3 on June 15, 1906. The report says: "Taking the agricultural bureau's revised acreage of last year as a comparison for this year, an increase of 1.6 per cent., or 32,476,000 acres, is shown.

Home of Harvard for Posterity.

London.—Once more an American has come to rescue a monument which belongs alone to the old country and the new. The restoration has just been completed of John Harvard's house in Stratford-on-Avon, one of the most interesting relics of Shakespeare's town, and the home of John Harvard, the founder of Harvard University.

Vanderbilt Receives $100,000.

Nashville, Tenn.—At the annual alumni dinner at Vanderbilt Tuesday night Chancellor J. H. Kirkland announced another handsome contribution from the Vanderbilt family to the university. The latest contribution is one of $100,000, and comes from William K. aVdnerbilt, grandson of the founder and the father of the Duchess of Marlborough.

Chattanooga Buys Waterworks.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The election held Tuesday on the proposition to issue $900,000 bonds for the purpose of buying or building a waterworks, resulted in a vote of 1,572 for and 109 against the proposition. This means that Chattanooga will have its own waterworks plant by the purchase of the rights of the company now operating here.

Increase in Wages.

Chicago.—Five thousand freight handlers in the employ of railroads in Chicago probably will receive wage advances amounting to $250,000 annually within the next few days. The St. Paul railroad has offered its men a 7 per cent. increase in pay, and other roads are expected to follow the example.

Booze Safe in Kansas.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Judge J. C. Pollock, in the United States district court yesterday, in the case of the Kansas Brewing Company, issued an injunction to prevent C. W. Trickett, assistant attorney-general of Kansas, from seizing the liquors in transit from Missouri to Kansas.

Roanoke, Va.—Fourteen merchants of Roanoke and Salem, who recently were indicted by a federal grand jury for selling obscene postal cards, were Tuesday fined $25 each by Judge McDowell in the United States district court sitting here. The fines were paid.

The tax assessment of Hunter county for 1907 is finished and shows a gain of $297,620 over the assessment for 1906.

SCIENCE AND MECHANICS

A French inception consisting of bulb thermometers, predicts at sundown whether there will be a frost.

The number of different species of animals known to naturalists is, roughly, 156,000, of which 15,300 are vertebrates, or backboned.

Prof. von Hanseman, of Germany, has concluded, after examining the brains of Mommsen, Von Helmholtz and the painter Menzel, that geniuses are hydrocephalous.

The use of train speed indicators is said to be compulsory on passenger locomotives in several countries of Continental Europe and they are largely used on freight locomotives as well.

Failure of a concrete arch bridge which had just been built but not yet put into service is reported to have occurred at Lowry, near Bedford City, Va., on April 27. The bridge is stated to have had a span of about 100 feet.

A geological discovery as interesting as that of the State Geologist of Iowa, who lately found the fossil tooth of a hippopotamus in that State, has been made in a clay deposit at Filey, Yorkshire, England, where the remains of a large crocodile have been unearthed, including several large vertebrae and some large scales.

The difficulty so long found in bonding together new and old concrete has been obviated by a recent patent. This bond consists of an extract of coal tar, used instead of water as the mixing agent for neat Portland cement. The mixture is laid in one-eighth inch to one-quarter inch layers on the old concrete surface, and immediately followed by new concrete or mortar. The inventor says that the compound is entirely insoluble, and forms a complete and monolithic bond between the old and new work.

The aurora borealis is attributed to cathode rays by both Prof. Birkeland, a Norwegian, and M. Villard, a French physicist. In some experiments by the former, the earth has been represented by a spherical electro-magnet wrapped in copper foil spread with barium platino-cyanide. The barium salt became luminescent on exposure to a pencil of cathode rays, and on exciting the magnet the light seemed to concentrate round the poles and throw out auroral streamers. The difference between the two theories is that one supposes the cathode rays to come from the sun, while the other assigns to them a terrestrial origin.

Fee and Foe.

In a suit recently tried in a Virginia town a young lawyer of limited experience was addressing the jury on a point of law, when, good-naturedly, he turned to opposing counsel, a man of much more experience than himself, and asked:

"That right, I believe, Colonel Hopkins?"

Whereupon, Hopkins, with a smile of conscious superiority, replied:

"Sir, I have an office in Richmond wherein I shall be delighted to enlighten you on any point of law for a consideration."

The youthful attorney, not in the least abashed, took from his pocket a half-dollar piece, which he offered Colonel Hopkins with this remark:

"No time like the present. Take this, sir, tell us what you know, and give me the change."—Harper's Weekly.

Caught in a Folding Bed.

While two patrolmen were passing the residence of Charles Hunter this morning they heard, faintly, sounds of distress inside the house. An investigation revealed Mr. and Mrs. Hunter almost strangled and crushed and lacerated within a collapsed folding bed.

The bed had closed like a pair of shears, doubling up the occupants, half suffocating them and stifling their cries. They were in great agony, and were with difficulty extricated from the clutches of the bed where they had been held almost all night.—Hamilton, Ohio, Dispatch to the New York World.

British Joke.

Modern honorable gentlemen who wish to show their reading display it in the invention of such sesquipedalities as "Terminological inexactitude." The outsider fails to grasp the humor of it; it reminds him only of Chrononhotonthologos "immersed in cogibundity of cogitation."—London Saturday Review.

The Innocent Joys of Youth.

"Gracious, Fanny!" exclaimed a mother to her little daughter, "why are you shouting like that? Why can't you be quiet like your brother?"

"He's got to be quiet," replied Fanny. "He's playing papa coming home late."

"And who are you playing?"

"Oh, I'm playing you."—Harper's Weekly.

Danger in Giving Up Business.

The man who wishes to live out his allotted span of life, with ten or twenty years to spare, should never retire from business. That is the opinion of Dr. Saubiel, an eminent physician of London. He says there is a great danger in any sudden change of environment after a certain age.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JUNE 30, BY THE REV. L. W. MUNHALL.

Subject: Temperance Lessons. ... Co...
10:23-33—Golden Text: ...
14:21—Memory Verses, 31-...
Commentary on Day's Lesson.

The Golden Text says: "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth." And this is the key note of the lesson. If ... Christian principle. It is the law ... life which makes us enquire not what are our rights, but what are our ... sion. Everything in this life that God has created is for the use and the culture of the Christian when it is kept in its proper place. But in the providence of God it is necessary for us to give up our preferences in order that some brother may be saved from the abuse of that which in itself is harmless. We are admonished by the scripture and by all the evidence of worthy experience as Christian men and women that we act wisest when we renounce our rights in order that men may be kept from sin.

The only safe rule for the individual in America with its rush and its hurry and its tendency to go to extremes, is total abstinence for the individual and total abolition of the legalized saloon. For under present conditions the danger too easily is that men shall be led out of godliness drinking into immoderation. As our social system is constituted to-day we cannot gainsay the fact that the liquor business in this country is a positive danger to the commonwealth. Granted for the sake of argument that liquor has its proper place in the world and we must still admit that it has proven itself to be a treacherous enemy of the man who is most careful and painstaking in its use. Granted that it is a business that has a proper place in the economic system of this ordinary ... day and we are bound to admit ... we are careful thinkers that as it is run to-day it is a real menace to the character of multitudes of men and the source of individual and social wickednesses that are as unspeakable in many of their phases as they are multifarious.

The curse of strong drink must be uprooted by modern civilization or it will itself undo the mighty and glorious progress of this age. No civilization that is not sober can long exist. No individual that is sodden with strong drink can maintain his integrity and his value to the society of which he is a part. No nation can forget its responsibility to safeguard the welfare of its citizens and long retain a place among the powers. Righteousness exalteth both nations and individuals. But drunkenness means the death of individual and national honor and prosperity.

The only way in which we can hope to battle successfully against the drink habit and the saloon is by educating our youth. Many agencies are at work in the effort to consummate this meritorious achievement. Perhaps there is none other that is so well fitted to accomplish this worthy thing as is the Youth's Temperance Alliance of America, an institution of the conservative National Temperance Society, under the guidance of the Rev. Alexander Alison, D. D., which the writer became interested in the other day. It is peculiarly happy in its name, its leader and its plan of operation. It is distinctly a work for the Sunday Schools. As such it may be of interest to the Sunday School reader.

The labors of this institution are to be confined entirely to the education of boys and girls before the age of twenty-one. An article in the Christian Work recently published by Dr. Alison has this in part to say: "If we are to solve this liquor problem and secure total abstinence for the individual as well as in the state we must do it by votes. There is only one way of getting these votes and that way is God's way. In the great moral field of temperance activity the ways of the politician will not avail. You cannot secure by purchase the votes that are the outcome of conscience. The motion toward the voting booth which is born of the sense of 'ought' and 'ought not' is the motion, that, in its action, is decided and permanent, because it is born of principle. It is built upon the solid rock of character. To secure conscientious exercise of the franchise we must begin with the child. The boy must be trained. The culture must not be spasmodic; it must be steady and must be persistent. We must start the youth at every step until he becomes an American citizen."

Space will not permit to describe in full the modus operandi. A perusal of the article in the issue of Christian Work for April 6, page ... might be valuable. It is strictly in line with the lesson for to-day as it is eminently the method of the church.

The high ground of the Christian church must always be, on every thing else as well as on the subject of temperance, that it will refuse to lend its sanction in any way or to anything that is destructive of the morals and minds of humanity or that tends to defraud men of their birthrights as the sons of God. The church cannot afford to put a stumbling block in the way of any man. And it must teach its youth that this is the will of God for private as well as for organized life. Further is it that we should deny ourselves than that any man should perish through our unworthiness.

If religion is not for all of a man it is not for aught in man.

Hard Times Prediction Disproved.

Frank A. Vanderlip, addressing Virginia State bankers at the Jamestown Exposition, predicted an era of hard times, but most bankers interviewed for the New York Times in the various centres of the United States saw nothing ahead but continued prosperity.

Progress in Haywood, Ga.

Judge Wood, at Rome, Ga., refused the motion of the defendant to instruct the jury to acquit Hoyt. The State rested its case.

TAX SALE.

On account of a mistake in the advertisement published in the "official organ of Chilton county" (The Union) printed at Birmingham, the sale of land for delinquent taxes is postponed to Monday, July 22nd, 1907.

A heavy thunderstorm with torrents of rain passed over Clanton Wednesday afternoon.

409 teachers of a total enrollment of 581 in the Jacksonville Normal School is the excellent showing made by the catalog of last session. 55 counties of Alabama and five states were represented. President C. W. Daugette reports that many were denied admission on account of lack of room, but that a new building will enable the school to accomodate all who apply next session. He expects fully 500 for the opening in the fall.

The "Editor" of the Union takes exception to the statement in our last issue that he has no more control over what is printed in the Union than a yellow dog. He states that he goes to Birmingham every Wednesday and reads proof. We accept the statement, and are glad he exonerates the Birmingham printers for what would appear to be gross carelessness, and places the blame upon himself, where it properly belongs. He may go to Birmingham and he may read proof, but a proof reader who cannot detect serious mistakes in his proof is worse than no proof reader at all.

He compliments THE BANNER on the accuracy of the notice of the Tax Sale we have been printing, gratuitously. On being informed that the notice in THE BANNER was set in Chilton county, by Chilton county hands, he said "It shows it," undoubtedly referring to the fact that the notice in THE BANNER was correct, while the notice in the Union, printed at Birmingham, proof of which he had read for four weeks, was wrong and necessitates the publication of the advertisement over again and the consequent delay of the Tax Collector in his final settlement.

We have kept the notice in THE BANNER for four weeks, but have withdrawn it this week to make room for correspondence.

MADISON BEAN KILLED.

On Thursday, June 20, Madison Bean was working with a telephone crew on a local line running east from Thorsby. He was up a pole about twelve feet from the ground, when in some manner he became entangled with the wire upon which the crew was hauling and fell heavily to the ground, suffering severe injuries and dying shortly afterwards. He was carried home and carefully attended to, but died from his injuries. He was buried Saturday at Salem graveyard. Rev. S. M. Adams performed the ceremony. Great sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS.

The next State examination for teachers of Chilton county will be held in the court house at Clanton, on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd days of July, 1907. Remember the examination opens at 10 o'clock a.m. Any applicant not present at that time will be barred from taking the examination.

Greasy Ridge.

As I haven't seen anything from Greasy Ridge, I will drop the people a few lines just to let them know that people are hustling. We had an all-day dinner and singing on the ground the third Sunday. 200 or 300 people were present and I think all got a plenty, and the best of all we had good order.

Crops are growing fine now, though about three weeks late.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Penton of Montgomery visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Penton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Penton are visiting their son, John T. Penton, of Sylacauga. If this escapes the waste basket, I may come again. With best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

CLODKNOCKER.

ON THE BATTLEFIELDS OF VIRGINIA.

Norfolk, Va., June 16, 1907

Editor Banner—After a two week's sojourn in the cities of Richmond, Washington and old Norfolk, on last Thursday morning I embarked upon the steamer "Pocahontas" for the city of Richmond and intervening points along the historic old James river, including the old town of James Island, seventy-five miles up from here. It cost 25¢ extra to go upon this historic spot and it was well worth it. Upon it is the oldest church in America, dedicated this day three hundred years. Near this church in the last few years has been unearthed since 1900 several marble or stone slabs which once marked the burial place of those unknown to the present generation. They have been removed to the grounds of this old church and mounted on stone or brick so as to fully preserve them in future. It was upon this old island that the first government building in our country was erected. This property has recentbeen given to the ladies of the American Revolution Society and they are now erecting a monument to American independence. The boats always stop here 30 minutes for those on board to go ashore and view the place giving birth to our independence.

On Friday I went out east and north of Richmond on the battlefields where Lee, Jackson, Hill, Stewart and others of fame and history fought, bled and with exception of Lee all died upon the field of battle for our Southland. Thence to Petersburg, where I walked the old breastworks and saw the old marks of destruction by Grant's army of '64 and '65 while he was confronted by Lee, Gracey and Mahone. Constantly I had in mind Thad Wright, Dick Goss, the McGrady boys, Jim Hull Lewis Killgore, Dick, Babe and Jim Allison, the Estes and Flournoy boys—all my old friends. Who could forget these old fellows? A Southern man who is not truly a Southerner at heart should come visit these grounds in the grandest State of the grandest people on the earth. I am for Alabama and Alabamians, but I am also for Virginia and Virginians. May write more later. F. A. GULLEDGE.

P. S. I have just returned from services at old St. Paul church, built here in 1735, in the walls of which is a cannon ball of Revolutionary fame, put there by a British cannon Jan. 1, 1776.

Baseball Players and Foot Racers!

Louis J. Kruger, ex-champion, long distant foot racer of Germany and Holland, writes, Oct. 27, 1901: "During my training of eight weeks' foot races at Salt Lake City, in April last, I used Ballard's Snow Liniment to my greatest satisfaction. Therefore, I highly recommend Snow Liniment to all who are troubled with sprains, bruises or rheumatism." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Sardis.

Rev. T. J. Deason filled his regular appointment at this place Saturday and Sunday ann preached two excellent sermons. Our Sunday school is moving along nicely. District No. 5 will hold a convention at this place next Sunday, June 30th. Everybody is invited to attend the convention. We are glad to say that Mrs. McCary who has been in ill health for several months is improving; we were glad to see her out at church Sunday. Mr. Poole and family of Shiloh made a business trip to Sardis Saturday. Well we have been signing our names, Brown eyes, Black eyes and Blue eyes, but since we have the dispensary we have some red eyes.

CHILDRENS' DAY.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to announce that we will have a Childrens' day at New Prospect church, July 4th 1907. We hope to have a nice time. The people of the community are making preparations for dinner, and extend invitation to all. Come and bring a basket full. Besides exercises by children, we will have talks by several good speakers, as follows:

Why do we have Childrens' day? by W. M. Deloach.

What will the work of to-day accomplish? by Dr. Caffey and J. L Long. We will have good speeches by all the children of our Sabbath school. Everybody come and enjoy it with us. May we all become more and more interested in the work of the Master, and may He bless every effort for good and give us more faith, more grace, more charity, more laborers and more success, is my prayer.

Remarkable Rescue

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Peoper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrnages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed for coughs and colds 50c. and $1.00, at Upchurch Drug co. Every Man His Own Doctor.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must for necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had when suitable medicines are kept at hand. Chamberlain's Remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm (an antiseptic liniment) for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, swellings, lame back and rheumatic pains.

Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin.

One bottle of each of these five preparations costs but $1.25. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Turpin Feminized.

At about the end of winter, I had to make a trip from the neighborhood of Jim Low's—as the next station south of Salinas Crossing at Soledad is called—to San Luis Obispo, to draw $1500 from the bank. I rode into Jim Low's, and leaving my horse there, boarded the southbound stage for San Luis.

The rivers were running pretty high that spring. However, we got to the Pleito ranch all right, where we changed horses, took dinner, and again started. There was, however, one more river to cross, the Nacimiento, lying between the Pleito and San Miguel. I happened to be the only passenger in the stage that trip, and while the driver and myself were discussing risking the passage, a rancher who lived close by the river advised us not to try it, as his own wagon had been nearly carried down the stream that morning. He added that if we liked, we could put up at his place all night. As there was every probability that the freshet would go down before morning, we decided to do so.

"We shall have to pay, though," said the driver to me with a wink as he turned his leaders from the bank, "and pretty roundly, too—mind that. Old Williams is a hard one. I've got stalled here once or twice before. It's just nuts for the old man to ketch the stage in a tight place."

Old Williams's parsimony was the talk of the country side, although rumor had it that he was worth many thousand dollars in cash besides herds of cattle.

When supper was called we were received by our host's wife, a woman of about 40, who had been doing the cooking. The meal was really a good one. Mrs. Williams's conversation and demeanor, too, were courteous and pleasant, though one could see she was a woman of determined character.

After supper we weer shown the sleeping apartment, on the second story. At each side of the room were spread six camp beds, 12 in all, for Old Williams's ranch had been the supper stopping place of the up stage some years before. I had not slept long before I was awakened. Some persons were talking on the other side of the partition wall.

"Marthy," said the voice of old man Williams, "I tell you I kain't afford it. You'll ruin me with your extravagances. What with your house bills, an' your dress bills, an' your gallivantin' about, an' your trips to town, I'm s'prised you should dream of such a thing. Five hundred dollars for a trip to Frisco! Why, you must be crazy!"

"It's you that's crazy, you old hunks," replied the female voice in scornful tones: "It's six years since I've been to anywheres but San Luis. Do you think I'm agoin' to toil and slave to make money for you all my life, an' get no good out of it? I'm goin' to 'Frisco to spend a month with my sister, an' I'm not agoin' to be laughed at when I get there, you can just bet. Five hundred dollars an' not a cent less. Why, I hain't got a rag fit to be seen in—hain't had these six years, an' I don't propose to stand it no longer."

"I see it all, Marthy," rejoined the old man Williams; "it's all beca'se I've got to go to the bay that you want to go too. But mine's bizness, an' you know it. Now look a-here, Marthy, there's $400, as you know, nes'ry to meet that little bill of Baxter's for that las' bit of land. My stagin' back an' forrud, $25 each way—that's fifty. Two days in town, $2—kain't do it a cent less 'cept Baxter treats—them cities is orful 'xpensive. Now there's $452 got to be paid. An' you want five hundred more for nothin at all!'" Here the old man groaned.

"Nothin' or no nothin'," replied Mrs. Williams decisively, "I'm goin' to hev it. Don't you forget that."

"Well, well, Marthy," said the old man, after a pause, in what was evidently meant for a soothing and mollifying key, "you was allus a good gal. I'll see what kin be done. Them banks in San Luis is orful close, though. You mustn't 'spect too much."

"Don't give me none o' your games," rejoined his better-half sternly; "you tried that once afore, an' if you go for to try it again, you'll try it once too often. Mind what I'm a-tellin' ye."

After this the voices ceased, and I managed to fall asleep.

Next morning we found the river had gone down, and after paying our bills—which were certainly pretty steep—we resumed our journey at daybreak with another passenger in the person of old man Williams.

"No foolin' now, Str," shouted his dame, as we drove out of the yard; "five hundred or nothin'."

Well, we got into San Luis without further mishap short noon. In order not to delay the passengers who had arrived from Santa Barbara and southern points the night before, it was decided that as we had lost half a day, the same stage would start on its return trip in an hour. As the only business I had to do was to draw money, I was ready. While in the bank getting my coin, old Williams came in and also made out a draft. I was a little curious as to the amount, and noticed that the clerk counted out just four hundred and fifty-two dollars.

At 1 o'clock we left San Luis, taking extra horses to see us over the hill. There were now four passengers, old Williams, a well known landowner in Santa Barbara, a whisky drummer and myself. As the weather was cold, we all got inside the coach. By the time we got to San Miguel it was quite dark, and as we approached the Nacimiento river, about an hour afterward, I noticed that old Williams' trepidation, which had been noticeable for some time past, became more apparent than ever. As the horses plashed out of the stream on the farther bank, I remarked that the old man had retired into the farthest corner of the coach, had muffled his head in a traveling rug and was snoring heavily.

As soon as we gained firm ground the driver whipped up and the stage bowled past the approach to old Williams' house at a lively pace. Not, however, before a female figure, in whom by the coach lantern I recognized Mrs. Williams, had looked into the stage and detected her recreant spouse, muffled as he was, in the corner.

"I saw ye, Si," she shouted after us, as we bowled along; "ye can't fool me. I thought ye'd try to play me, you old whelp, but wait a bit—" the rest of her speech was lost in the distance.

From the Nacimiento Crossing to the Pleito Ranch is some ten miles, and here the northbound stage in these days always stopped to change horses and let the passengers eat supper.

Half an hour afterward we resumed our journey. We began to get livelier under the influence of good cheer. The colonel from Santa Barbara was particularly entertaining. The drummer's best samples circulated freely, and even old Williams joined in the general exhilaration, when, all of a sudden, the coach drew up with a jerk which nearly threw us out of our seats, and the familiar muzzle of a double barreled shot gun was thrust in at the window.

"Never mind throwin' down the box, Jim," shouted a voice which I fancied I had heard before; "that ain't what I am after. Come, pile out on the road, you galoots inside, an' be quick about it. Wake up, old man," continued the voice, ironically, evidently addressing old Williams, who had shrunk back into his corner dead with terror.

We obeyed the injunction with alacrity. People always do under such circumstances. But who shall depict our astonishment when we saw that this daring road agent who had stopped us was a woman, and still more to my surprise I saw it was neither more nor less than Mrs. Williams.

"Hold up yer hands, gents," said our captor, quietly: "tain't you I'm after; it's you, ye good for nothin' nincompoop," as she covered him with the shotgun. "Jest shell out that money ye got today at the bank—all—every cent of it."

With trembling hand old Williams drew from his breast an old leather pocketbook, and handed it to his spouse who opened it and glanced at the contents, still keeping the gun leveled in our direction.

"Four hundred and fifty-two," she said slowly, after a careful scrutiny: "I thought so! ye're forty-eight dollars short. Hain't ye got no more?"

"Not a cent, Marthy," returned the terror stricken man, "as God's my witness."

"Well, ye kin borrow it off some of them gents. They know ye're good for it," returned his obdurate spouse.

The whole situation was so ludicrous that we other three passengers and the driver burst into a roar of laugher. I immediately reached for my purse, but the colonel was before me, and with a low bow and benignant smile, tendered his. The woman accepted it with the utmost gravity, and took from it two twenties, a five, and three dollars in silver.

"This," she said solemnly, as she returned the purse, "is a loan to the old man. Never fear. He'll pay. I'll make him. Now, Si," she continued, turning to her husband, "you'll find my hoss tethered over thar. Git on his back an' go to San Luis for more money. I'm going to Frisco in this yer stage, if them gents has no objections. I'll meet you up thar."

We, gallantly, simultaneously, and unanimously, assured her we had none. Two minutes afterwards we were bowling along merrily again as if nothing had happened. Mrs. Williams was the lion, or rather the lioness of the trip. She had, of course, mounted on horseback after the stage passed the ranch, with the intention of overtaking us while we were taking supper at the Pleito, which she did, with the above result.

None of us, I think, ever gave the business away, not even the colonel, though he relished the joke hugely. Few people care to confess that they have been stood up by a woman.—San Francisco Argonaut.

No Striped Trousers for Him.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who has recently given such an effective proof of his detective skill, has seldom been tempted to exercise his talent outside the covers of his books.

"If," he once modestly stated, "I undertook to unravel the entanglements of other people I believe I should fail. On one occasion, however, I solved what might have been a puzzle to some. I was in a tailor's shop while a rather unattractive man was selecting a pair of trousers. He flatly objected to striped material, and I got the idea that he was an ex-convict. To certify myself I visited a number of prisons, and, sure enough, I found the man's picture in the rogues' gallery. Doubtless he had had enough of striped wearing apparel."—Reynolds' Newspaper.

THE DEATH OF A MAN EATER.

HUNTER'S STORY OF THE KILLING OF A DREADED TIGER.

Following the Trail of the Brute Through an India Jungle in Company With a Native Whose Wife It Had Carried Off and Who Had Gone Insane From Grief.

It was in India. I came out to breakfast one morning and found a chap hunkering on the veranda—queer sort of nigger; never saw anything like him before or since—good deal of Hell in him, I think, writes Francis Campbell in the Westminster Gazette. Anyhow, he came to ask me if I'd go and shoot a man eater that had afflicted his village for two months and carried off twenty persons, the last two being his own wife and his sister. He was the headsman of the village. He had come himself to make quite sure of the sahib's hearing all about it. It was a great tiger—very great and powerful—not old or mangy, he would answer for it. He had seen the tiger when it carried off his wife.

And all the while he talked he kept folding the ends of a piece of muslin he wore across his body like a scarf—a frayed, torn piece of stuff, just the color of a wallflower, brownish red. "Fifteen little ones and five women hath this tiger killed out of my people," he said. "Will my lord come and slay it?" Well, I said, I'd have a try, making up my mind, for all he said, that it was both ancient and mangy. Tigers don't take to man eating till they've lost their teeth. However, this particular beast seemed to come it rather strong, and I thought I'd like to pot him. I got leave and we went off together, the man showing me the way.

I soon spotted the fact that he was mad—mad as a hatter. If the tiger had taken his wife it had also taken his brains; he was a bit creepy as a traveling companion, and the oddest part of his lunacy was to be forever caressing that torn muslin thing he wore—kissing it and stroking it and talking to it as if the thing understood—and all about "My Lord the Tiger" and the sudden destruction that was coming on him. When we got to the village I didn't wonder he was dotty.

He had been married only a week and the wife was, according to the village, a speckless beauty. They had been promised to each other from childhood and it had taken him nearly all his life to save enough to buy her—pretty hard luck. The tiger came on them as they were drawing water—came out of the jungle behind them and took the woman. The lunatic had pursued it till brought forcibly back by the villagers. How is that for pluck—a naked, unarmed man against a tiger? I began to respect my lunatic, and since he couldn't fire a gun I gave him an Afghan knife and showed him how to use it. The first night we had no luck.

The second night the brute drank a mile below its usual place. But early on the dawn of the third day they came racing to tell us that the tiger had carried away a man from the well and had taken to the jungle. The lunatic got out his knife and wiped it. "Today, Sahib," he said quietly, "we shall kill him. I will lead the way." How he picked up the track through the jungle I don't know; but he did. Then we lost it, but found it again in the river bed and followed it upward for about a mile, the stream growing thinner and the bed narrowed, till at last it disappeared and we had to burst our way through vines and bamboo grass over a ladder of red hot stones.

The lunatic was dripping from every pore and panting like a motor; but he never ceased to taunt the invisible tiger, as if it were already dead—harking back to its remote ancestry and mocking at the virtues of tigresses dead a thousand years ago, and all the time fingering that end of brown muslin. Suddenly we came into a little level where the now dried up stream poured over a ledge of rock, hollowed out beneath into a narrow cave, cool and shadowy. And there, crouched to spring—my Lord the Tiger. I felt him coming and had just time to fling myself aside. Blest if I didn't go rolling down over the water smoothed stones into the cave and arrived with my right hand clutching the gun outflung beside me. Why it didn't go off is a mystery.

I just had time to aim when my Lord crashed back, his spring having landed him among the bamboos. The lunatic was making such a fiendish row with two flat stones, shrieking and bellowing simultaneously, that the brute in the strong sunlight was dazed—and furious, of course—and made for his lair, open mouthed and snarling. I was standing right in the entrance when he came at me. I put the charge down his throat. He came on at me, but I expected him to drop. He didn't. He mauled my arm pretty badly before then.

When I came to I was propped up against the bank, dripping wet. The lunatic must have flown, for the water was a good bit behind us, and the tiger was still twitching. He was sitting before it among the stones, calling it every name in his language that was bad. I can curse a bit myself when it is necessary, but that chap was a genius in this particular line; he didn't leave that tiger a shred of reputation to stand on. When he paused to take breath I got up and investigated. He was a young tiger, and in splendid condition, but one eye had been shot away, and all the teeth on one side of his jaw. I suppose that was why he had taken to man eating. I mentioned to the lunatic that I would like him skinned immediately, and that wrought a curious change in him.

"Oh, Sahib, no," he protested, "this is my wife—my sisters." He threw his arms around the bleeding brute and began calling it by every endearing name he could think of, caressing it, embracing it. Then all at once he took off the piece of brown muslin and kneeling in front of the dead tiger he spread it out, as one might spread something precious before a woman or a child.

"Oh, pearl of the world—my beloved!" he cried. "See I have brought thee thy veil."

Suddenly he dipped it in the gushing blood and spread it out again. "As I promised thee, beloved," he added softly, "I have not slept, nor eaten, nor rested till I have wetted it with the blood of thy slayer, even as he wetted it with thine."

I can stand a good deal, but somehow that finished me. I left him there with the dead animal, and got back, pretty sick with my arm to the village, thinking all the time of that chap's endurance and patience. It gave me cold creeps to think that I had run him mercilessly for nearly a week and all that time as I had not the slightest doubt he had not tasted food or drink or closed his eyes—just subsisted on the certainty of vengeance.

The villagers went out to fetch him in. He was lying with his arms around the tiger's neck—dead.

I didn't take the skin.

ANTIQUES MADE TO ORDER.

European Dealers Awaiting the Coming of American Tourists.

With watering mouths and eager eyes the European antique dealers in "ancient" creations are awaiting the annual invasion of American tourists, according to the United States Consul J. C. McNally at Liege. In expectation of a good season the manufacturers of antiques in continental countries have been kept busy. The aging season is now on, Consul McNally writes, and when the time comes for placing articles on sale the ancient appearance will be perfect. The Consul continues:

"During the winter the dealers from the various countries of Europe have worked through the numerous curio shops here and have bought up at most reasonable prices articles which they knew will appeal to the curio seeker. An English dealer has sent off several hundred kilograms of pewter of modern make to be put out as of ancient brand. Many old pieces of furniture of the various epochs—Renaissance, Louis Quartorze, Quinze, Seize, Empire, etc., fallen to decay, with but a square feet of the whole in a fair state of preservation—are rebuilt along old lines and sold for the genuine old piece. To accuse a dealer of a false representation would elicit the reply that the restoration made the piece more valuable than ever before, and the fact that some part of the piece remained intact seems to ease the conscience of the vender. The fact is that a great majority of the dealers in antiques have in stock a supply of cheap imitations and counterfeit representations to be unloaded on the ignorant visitor who wishes to carry home a souvenir of the Old World.

"A visit to the workshops of antique dealers will show them pounding modern brass to represent the old time article. Worm-eaten and decayed furniture is made over into pieces representing the old Flemish type that would deceive the ordinary collector. The dealers carrying the greatest assortment of valuable articles and well housed on a principal street should be as carefully investigated before buying as the small dealer in a back street. Even these small dealers are supplied by the larger ones with articles that will catch the eye. It is from just such shops that comes the report of some valuable original article purchased for a song, etc. Small cigar shops, cafes and other unpretentious business places are usually provided with an old painting (made to order), a copy of some well known work, which will at once excite the curiosity of the customer, who is particularly influenced by the surroundings. A good price is paid and the buyer writes his friends that he picked up a 'great find,' etc."

The Englishman's Mistake.

The difference between English and American methods of pronunciation often produces misunderstanding. The other day an Englishman who had just arrived went to the Waldorf-Astoria. He was a bit lost for a minute just where to find the register book, the Waldorf office being divided into several departments, one for the "information bureau," another for "letters," and so on. The Englishman finally stopped at one of the departments and inquired whether it was the desk of the hotel "clark." "No," was the reply, "this is the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel." Through saying "clark" instead of "clerk," the young man at the desk had taken the Englishman to mean Hotel Clark.—New York Correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch.

AXLE GREASE TOOTHSOME.

Malabar Coast Natives Eat It Like We Do Ice Cream.

It was a weird story that was told today on the dock of the British freight steamer Swanley by one Jake Braun, the boatsun of the freighter, as to the origin of the tons of curios that were being taken off the steamer at the Bush Stores in South Brooklyn. Besides the curios there were so many queer things on the Swanley that she had the appearance of an ancient treasure ship instead of a modern freighter plying between Brooklyn and the Far East.

Jake Braun told the story of how many of these curios came to be on board and who secured them. They were all traded for and the trade that was made was almost beyond comprehension. Local ice cream dealers and manufacturers of delicacies may as well go out of business if they depend upon the shipments of their wares to the Far East for the native of the Malabar coast and other outlandish places has openly declared himself against sweets and caramels and solely in favor of—axle grease!

"Yessir," began Jake Braun today as he spinned the yarn of the curio swapping in the Far East. "Yessir, ye needn't take no fancy things to China or to Singapore with you if you want a good trade. On a previous voyage me an' the other fellows aboard the ship took with us all the pretty things that we could think of. These were such things as pin cushions, roller skates, safety pins, hair ornaments, buckles, phonygraphs and such an' we hoped for a lively exchange with the natives an' to get enough in trade to sell here an' retire on. About six o' us went to the coast one day with our things and tried to swap with those fellows all day long without getting so much as a cocoanut. We even offered them money but they only grinned and held on to what they had. In the stock that we had taken ashore was a can of axle grease that had come ashore with us against our permission. One of the natives stuck his fingers in the can and eats the axle grease an' the next minute we were offered every sort of inducement to leave the axle grease with them. They even offered us the inducement of a massacre an' were only restrained by the sight of our pistols, for which the natives of the Malabar coast, the most bloodthirsty chaps that ever were, have a wholesome regard. Finally we 'lowed the axle grease to stay with the natives, but we took all the curios and ornaments they had and netted a pretty penny on them at Colombo. So, when we comes here again, I thought I'd put in my spare money in axle grease. I got some of the others on board to do the same an' when we again struck the coast and went ashore each of us had nothing except axle grease to trade. There was a cellybration among the cannibals an' they took all we had an' we took all they had which was no small matter. Much of what they had came on the steamer wid us here an' we hope to realize a good profit on the same. Those natives like that axle grease better than we do ice cream. They eats it an' then, when they can't get any more down their stomach, they paints their faces and necks with it. They look upon an axle grease party on the Malabar coast with a great deal of pride just now and I won't be surprised if they're waitin' for the Swanley to get back in theeir neighborhood again with another assortment of grease, for the native supply must now be exhausted."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Idaho Poisons Coyotes.

State Game Warden Stevens received yesterday a large amount of strychnine from Philadelphia, which will be used by the department for the poisoning of coyotes and other predatory animals.

The expenditure for this poison is the first to take place under the new law which placed the sum of $5,000 in the hands of the game warden for use in the destruction of wild animals.

So far as known, this is the first time in the history of the United States when a state started in along this line to protect its game and stock interests. While there have been company hunters here in Idaho, hired by local stock associations, there has been no official recognition of the hunting of wild animals as a state function. The outcome of the experiment is to be watched with a good deal of interest, for the bounty system is admittedly a failure, in that it stops short of extermination, both because of destroying a profitable industry—that of growing wolf scalps—and then the hunters cannot make enough out of the business to keep at it when the numbers of the noxious animals begin to decrease.—Idaho Statesman.

Between Friends.

The ambassador looked coldly as upon one about to make a touch.

"I do not know you," he said.

"Not know me!" was the response. "Why, I am your old associate, the Constitution."

"The Constitution! All scarred and battered and frayed! Forgive me for not having recognized you. But what have you been up against?"

"Hist!" replied the Constitution, "I inadvertently got between friends."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Ingredients of Known Composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulæ are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the Wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases whereever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

All Right.

William Archer, the English critic, was advocating spelling reform at a dinner in New York.

"I believe," he said, "that reformed spelling would be unanimously adopted if the public would but weigh the matter with an open, unprejudiced mind."

He paused and smiled.

"But no," he said, "the public's attitude is such that it brings vividly before me an episode that I once heard related in London by Mr. Justice Darling.

"The justice, as the trial of a certain case was about to begin, started and said suddenly:

"But there are only eleven jurymen in the box. Where is the twelfth?"

"The foreman rose and held up his hand with a soothing gesture.

"'It's all right, your Honor,' he said respectfully. 'The twelfth juryman had to go away on business, but he has left his verdict with me.'"—Washington Star.

"As the one in which I had my berth was rolling down an embankment and I was in the midst of blankets, pillows, grips, etc., the terrible thought flashed across my mind: 'What shall I tell Molly? Here I am traveling at night!'"—Columbus Dispatch.

Words and Stones.

Some years ago George Meredith had a house built for himself which was rather small, although extremely comfortable. One day a lady visited him, and with great pride he showed her over the place. After their tour of inspection the visitor turned to her host, and with a disappointed expression said: "In your books you describe huge castles and baronial halls, but when you come to build you put up a little house like this. Why is it?" "Well," replied the author, with a twinkle in his eye, "the reason is because words are cheaper than stones."—London Exchange.

DOCTORS GETTING TOGETHER.

Dr. Sisca Says the Homeopaths and the Allopaths Are Converging.

Dr. N. Sisca, an allopathic physician of Queensland, in discussing homeopathy, says in the Medical Brief that "the most striking evidence of the progress homeopathy is making is the vast amount of material it has accumulated in its materia medica during the last thirty years or so.

"Time was, and not very long ago either, when all the materia medica which it was thought indispensable for a homeopathic practitioner to know was enclosed within the 262 pages of a small book entitled 'The Principal Uses of the Sixteen Most Important and Fourteen Supplementary Homeopathic Medicines.'

Now a mere glance at the three ponderous volumes of the "Dictionary of the Homeopathic Materia Medica" or at the four still more ponderous volumes of "The Cyclopædia of Drug Pathogenesy" is quite enough to be wilder any would be student of homeopathy. For the matter of that, the homeopaths themselves are beginning to groan under the weight of their own wealth."

Dr. Sisca goes on to say that "while homeopathy on one side has for over a century stood with its feet on the immovable ground of its fundamental principle, allopathy has been slowly but surely turning around until today a very important part of what homeopathy has always contended for is in substance, if not in as many words, plainly and fully recognized by allopathic lecturers and authors."

Largest Leather Belt.

In the equipment of the Dempsey Lumber Company's new sawmill at Tacoma, Wash., is the largest single leather belt in the world. It is 84 inches in width, three-ply in thickness and weighs just 2300 pounds.

The belt is 114 feet long. It took the centres of the hides of 225 steers to make it and each piece of this leather was separately stretched before being placed in the belt. In putting the belt together no pegs, rivets or fastenings of any kind were used except cement of the best quality, and the plies were cemented together under a hydraulic pressure of 250 tons.—Woodcraft.

The One Difficulty.

Harold's mother was a devout follower of mental science. The two were crossing a field while in the country, and when the lad saw a goat in the distance he shielded himself instinctively behind his parent's skirt.

'Harold, I'm ashamed of you," she told him. "Don't you know there is no such thing as pain, and that the goat can't hurt you?"

"Y-yes," he admitted timidly. "I know it and you know it, but the goat don't know it."—Chicago Tribune.

DECADENT FRANCE.

Her People Have Even Forgotten How to Dance.

People do not dance now with any vim. The mammoth is no more. The buffalo is nearly extinct. We are after the mosquito and consumption. Perhaps even the fool will one day be abolished. But shall we tamely sit by while dancing and the very household fly are menaced? Rise, sturdy citizens of this soulless age, and hurl back these impending outrages of an improvement-mad new time. Will ye meekly stand still and suffer this privilege of your manhood to be wrested from your grasp?" M. Desrats, dean of the Paris Academy of Choreography—for such is his imposing title—hear his lamentations on the disappearance of all grace from mankind—along with the evanishment of his bread and butter.

"One dances no more," sadly says M. Desrats, who, though getting on to seventy-seven, still, like young Sir Willoughby Patterne, "has a leg," and one of which many a junior might be justifiably proud.

Dancing, which he has practised and taught for fifty-seven years, has kept his limbs lithe, his cheeks rosy and his mind fresh. His enthusiasm for his art is as warm as it was when he was 20, and when, after a liberal education, he gave up thoughts of the legal or medical profession and preferred "to consecrate himself to the cult of Terpsichore"—in his own language, which is as flowery as his manner. Though he has always had and still has plenty of pupils, he has come to the tragic conclusion that dancing is dying out.

"Oh, monsieur!" says he; "under the Empire how beautifully the women danced, and what beautiful women they were!" In a year 122 official balls were given—that is, one every three nights. He dates the downfall of dancing from the introduction into France of the "Boston," which he assumes to have come from America. What a calamity was there, for the slipshod two-step has killed the waltz, while out-of-door sports have buried it. "The aristocracy dances no more. Only the small bourgeois now and then sacrifices to Terpsichore." When the cakewalk, the matchiche, the kraquette and the liguette were mentioned to M. Desrats he swooned, and had to be revived with scented salts, such as early Victorian ladies inhaled when emotions overcame them.—Boston Evening Transcript.

No Hayseed.

President Alberger of the Transportation Club, who is traffic manager of Borax Smith's new railroad into Nevada, had a sagebrusher for his guest the other day, and as an incident to the entertainment of this prospective shipper took him up to the rooms of the club in the James Flood building.

"Next thing I want ter seen them chutes you was telling me about," remarked the stranger, drawing forth a big watch and consulting it.

Jay Adams, of the Nickel Plate road, one of the directors of the club, happened to be standing close by.

"How yuh, Jay? How's the Nickel Plate?"

"Don't you try no cracks like that on me, young feller. I raise alfalfey, but I ain't the greenest thing ever struck this town. An' let me tell yuh this here watch is solid silver."—San Francisco Chronicle.

THOUGHT CHILD WOULD DIE.

Whole Body Covered With Cuban Itch—Cuticura Remedies Cure at Cost of 75c.

"My little boy, when only an infant of three months, caught the Cuban Itch. Sores broke out from his head to the bottom of his feet. He would itch and claw himself and cry all the time. He could not sleep day or night, and a light dress is all he could wear. I called one of our best doctors to treat him, and his treatment did not do any good, but he seemed to get worse. He suffered so terribly that my husband said he believed he would have to die. I had almost given up hope when a lady friend told me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used the Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment and he at once fell into a sleep, and he slept with ease for the first time for two months. After these applications the sores began to dry up, and in just two weeks from the day I commenced to use the Cuticura Remedies my baby was entirely well. The treatment only cost me 75c., and I would have gladly paid $100 if I could not have got it any cheaper. I feel safe in saying that the Cuticura Remedies saved his life. He is now a boy of five years. Mrs. Zana Miller, Union City, R. F. D., No. 1, Branch Co., Mich., May 17, 1906."

Wholly.

"But," protested Hamm, who had made his debut in vaudeville the night before, "the audience wasn't justified in treating me as they did. My act wasn't half bad."

"Well," replied Crittick, "neither were the eggs they passed up to you."—Philadelphia Press.

NATURE PROVIDES FOR SICK WOMEN

a more potent remedy in the roots and herbs of the field than was ever produced from drugs.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines and Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in her study of roots and herbs and their power over disease discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value.

During its record of more than thirty years, its long list of actual cures of those serious ills peculiar to women, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person and every thinking woman.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful functions, weakness, displacements, ulceration or inflammation, backache, flatulency, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

No other remedy in the country has such a record of cures of female ills, and thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound and what it has done for them.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. For twenty-five years she has been advising sick women free of charge. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and as her assistant for years before her decease advised under her immediate direction. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Mulberry.

Editor Banner—Here comes Pea Vines again, though he hasn't any news worth writing.

The health of this community is very good at present.

Farmers are hilling grass to beat the band since the rainy weather has stopped. I'm afraid we will wish for rain before we get any more. Crops are looking some better, tho' nothing like I have seen them at this time of the year.

The Sunday school was fine Last Sunday. Almost everyone took active part.

A nice crowd went from this place to Mt. Nebo, Sunday.

Oh! let me tell you something: There will be a petition to the Legislature, July session, to repeal the Dispensary Act, and won't we be glad. I noticed that one writer in the Banner said "if the dispensary was removed, the blind tiger would then fall back on his same job." Now, let us fight, not only the blind tiger, but whiskey, in any way, form or fashion. We can kill the blind tiger or moonshiner if we will only try, so be quick, strike while the iron's red. Remember, a stitch in time saves nine.

Almost everybody has a blind eye, I mean to say, they can see other people's faults and not their own. We should try to see our faults and build up a high and noble chbracter before trying to see the faults of the world.

"Judge not, that ye be not judged, for with what judgement ye judge, ye shall be judged, and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again."

"And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye."

"And how wilt thou say to thy brother, let me pull out the mote out of thine eye, and behold a beam is in thine own eye?"

"Thou hypocrite, first cast the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye." Mat. 7: 1-5. Read 7-12.

Say, Pet, why don't you come again? We like to hear from that place often, and you are the only one to depend upon.

I close with many wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

Having been accused of writing many articles to our weekly "visitor," I ask to be permitted to send in a few happenings from this section to sooth the eager watch of that accuser.

Summer has at last shown up, and we are pursuing our various duties, in the balmy breezes of a happy southern clime.

The young people of our vicinity are exercising great interest in church work now, and we are inclined to entertain a hope of organizing a B. Y. P. U. in the near future.

A solid vote by the Sunday school was cast Sunday, favoring a Childrens' day to be in July. Program will appear in our democratic paper later on.

Mrs. Amanda Bledsoe of South Alabama is visiting her son, Mr. T. F. Bledsoe, for awhile.

From the echoes of guns and unnatural voices Sunday night, it seemed that the ebb of morality in these parts was rippling very low indeed. Hope it wil occur no more.

Our hearts are filled with gratitude to know that our new secretary (though he banished in exile Sunday) escaped being shot in the fracas.

Little VonCeil Smith will celebrate her 7th birthday July 6th. to the delight of her friends.

Our Editor will receive a broad invitation to our childrens' day in July, as he has never honored this rural nook with a visit.

A fond hope comes to us that we may see more signatures and fewer bow-legs assigned to articles hereafter. I will desist.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we use now using it in order for baby."

I wish to say a few words through the columns of our Banner to the road overseers of Chilton county, and especially to Beat 6. Now, Mr. overseers, it is required of you to do your duty as road overseers; if you don't do it you are subject to prosecution. Now it may be that you do not know your duty. If you do not, read the instructions furnished you by our judge of Probate Mr. overseers, those instructions tell us that our roads shall be 15 feet wide, clear of all obstruction, and all roots and stumps shall be cut entirely out. (Overseer, you have not taken an oath to do your duty as the apportioners have, though it becomes us as good citizens to do our duty anyway.

Now, overseers, look after your roads and see that your hands do their duty. Now, overseers, hands and apportioners, let us all pull together and make good roads all over our county. If we will, we can do it at a little cost and only a little time; we can meet to work and do good honest work Overseer, it is not your duty to permit your hands to stand around on your road and argue with you as to the height of stumps and width of roads. We will ask our neighbors to please not throw any obstruction in our roads around their farms or elsewhere. Well, I think I have said enough. We all like good roads, let all of us who are subject to road duty help to make them, thereby improving ourselves and our county. So I will close with best wishes to the Banner and its readers.

On June 13, 1907, the death angel visited the home of Mr. C. H. Lowery and took his beloved wife, Mrs. Janie Lowery. It is hard to give her up and see her consigned to the tomb, but we know our loss is heaven's great gain. She has gone to join the angels and her loved ones who have welcomed her to the angel band. She leaves a husband and seven children and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her death. The bereaved family have our heartfelt sympathy.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Home again! What a pleasure it is after a long absence to be home again amongst kindly relatives and cheery friends, and how gladly they greet you, and the wanderer enquires after the missing ones, perhaps half forgotten by those who remained, but tenderly remembered by him who has been amongst strangers in a strange land.

We were all proud to see Eugene Stewart again, after an absence of over three years, which he has spent in service for Uncle Sam, sailing over the ocean in the "Kentucky," from the cold regions of Newfoundland to the torrid zone of South America. Eugene left us a boy, he comes back a man, and noticed with pride the advance made by his native town during his absence. His leave is short, but we will hope it may be extended, or if not he may soon be at home once more.

"Home again, home again, from a foreign shore,
But, oh! it fills my heart with joy
To be with friends once more."

A thing of beauty is a joy forever, and the new soda fountain just put in by the Upchurch Drug Company is certainly a thing of beauty, and makes you want to drink Coca-Cola all day long—of course, that you can about see your reflection in the magnificent mirror, or dreaming you dwell in marble halls, but merely to relieve your thirst. Did I hear you say "Take one with me?"

The train schedule on the L. & N. R. R. has been changed somewhat. The northbound accomodation (No. 10) now reaches Clanton at 5 p.m., and the southbound (No. 9) at 8:31 a.m. The other trains remain the same.

DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Clanton, Ala., July 2, 1907

A meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton County is hereby called to convene at Clanton, Ala., on Saturday, 6th day of July, 1907, at eleven o'clock a. m. for the purpose of taking such action as the Committee may deem proper with reference to the appointment of a Sheriff, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the Committee.

W. J. Traywick has declined to be a candidate, and each member of the Committee is urgently requested to be present at the meeting.

All Democrats throughout the county are invited to be present at said meeting, and to aid with their counsel and advice. Members of the Committee are requested to give all possible publicity to this call in their respective Beats.

FRANK CRICHTON,
Chm. of Democratic Committee.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Revival services will begin at the Methodist church, Clanton, Monday night, July the 8th. Rev. W. T. Johnson of first church, Selma, will be on hand and will do the preaching, beginning with the 11 o'clock service, Tuesday, the 9th.

While this meeting will be held in the Methodist church, it will be conducted in the inteerest of the entire town generally. All Christian people are, therefore, urged to work and pray for success in the meeting. Attend every service possible. I invite everybody to come, and let us labor together that God may save souls in our midst and revive his work in our midst.

I trust that the men of Clanton will have interest enough in the future good of our community to close their places of business one entire day in order to attend the meeting and let those in their employ attend. Now, brethren, can't you make this small sacrifice for the good of our town?

I am yours sincerely,
W. U. TURNIPSEED, Pastor.

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because OUR RECORD IS CLEAN, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then our POLICY is as liberal as is consistent with security; we are accommodating but prudent.

We ask your consideration.

Mulberry.

Dear Editor—I've a longing for a chat with the readers of the dear old Banner, and if you will allow me a small space in its columns, I will be as brief as possible and not write often.

Farmers have been hustling trying to catch up with their work and have sure had some fine weather for killing grass here of late.

Health in our community is good at present, we are glad to say.

We are glad to say Miss Hattie Jones has arrived home and hope she will stay a long time.

Mr. B. L. Jones will remove his family to Maplesville in the near future; we are sorry to see them leave our community, but wish for them much success and good luck in their new home.

The ice cream supper at Mr. Lee Hayes' Saturday night was a decided success. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves and hope to attend another one soon.

We have a very good Sabbath school at Mulberry now, and I tell you, people should take more interest in the Sabbath school than they do. There is no time to delay then haste to the rescue, for many are drifting into eternity. Life is too short to waste a moment. My! my! how time does fly. Nearly six months of the year passed and I wonder how many readers of the Banner can say with a clear conscience that they have done their duty in the past six months. Ah, I fear many will be conscience smitten. Let every one who bears the honored name of parent give their little ones an opportunity of attending Sabbath school, and then they are safe from Idleness. I think the young men and ladies should take more interest in the Sunday school work but some young men will go on and drink, not realizing how near they are perdition, also they break the commandments laid down for us to obey. I think we should study this more seriously and more of us up and about the Master's business.

I guess the Editor is tired of such a sorry letter so I will not detain him longer with it; many good wishes to each reader and the Editor I am a FRIEND TO ALL.

DEATH OF SHERIFF F. J. FITTS

On Saturday afternoon occurred the death of Sheriff Felix J. Fitts after an illness of about three months. He suffered at first from pneumonia, this was succeeded by slow fever which gradually sapped his strength and he finally succombed to it. He was a strong, well-built man who apparently was good for many years to come. He was always even tempered, pleasant and polite and his numerous friends regret his untimely death.

The funeral took place at Macedonia churchyard on Saturday, Rev. F. M. Woods performing the last sad rites, and a large number of friends being present. A widow and one son about five years of age survive him, who have the sympathy of the entire community in their loss.

Soldiers Home.

Editor Banner—As the singing at Soldiers Home has been advertised in your paper, please allow me space in the Banner as secretary of the day to make this my report.

The house was called to order at 10 a.m. by the chairman, but alas, there could be no order obtained.

There was a committee appointed for the day, as follows: R. T. Grant, Lee Robinson, S. E. Parrish. Bro. J. S. Jones opened the singing with "All hail the power of Jesus' name."

First lesson. S. E. Parrish 20 minutes, organist Lee Robinson; S. J. Hatchet 20 minutes, organist R. M. Ross; T. L. Robinson 20 minutes, organist Miss Fannie Belle Robinson.

Second lesson. G. C. Powell 20 minutes, organist C. H. Robinson. Dismiss until 1:30 p.m.

1:30 p.m. Opened by R. T. Grant 5 minutes, organist Miss Fannie Belle Robinson; N. J. Jones 20 minutes, organist Lee Robinson; T. L. Robinson 20 minutes, organist Miss L. A. Dupree. The singing closed early on account of it being impossible to obtain order. We had a short speech at the close by Bro. Culpepper in defense of the people around Mt. Creek and the Home, concerning disorder. The disorder was talking and laughing and some were drinking. I think that some had found blind tigers, dispensaries and tigers that could see. There was one man that lay in the hot sun drunk till someone had to get a doctor to help him to save life. I say that such characters as that ought to stay at home. I reckon that I am too hard on such people, but I can't help it. God pity anyone that will go away from home and misbehave like they did there.

NOTICE.

The public will take notice that a bill will be introduced in the Legislature of the State of Alabama, during the adjourned session thereof which recenvenes in July, 1907, to amend an act entitled "An Act to establish a dispensary in and for The Town of Clanton, in the County of Chilton, State of Alabama, and to provide for the conduct and regulation of the same," approved March the 2nd, 1907, and to provide for closing and discontinuing the dispensary operated under said Act.

This the 13th day of June, 1907.

The Doctor Away from Home when Most Needed.

People are often very much disappointed to find that their family physician is away from home when they most need his services. Diseases like cramp colic and cholera mobus require prompt treatment, and have in many instances proven fatal before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. The right way is to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. No physician can prescribe a better medicine for these diseases. By having it in the house you escape much pain and suffering and all risk. Buy it now; it may save life. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Trust not a woman's tears; it is her nature to weep when she wants her way.

WANTED—Two wide-awake energetic young men to canvass for enlargement of pictures at 99c and $1 98. Can make from $40.00 to $80.00 per month. A good opportunity for boys just out of college to make some good cash during vacation. Sarary or commission. See or write at once.

Original Providence.

The Sunday school is progressing nicely under the management of Mr. W. A. Sims.

Some of the charming girls and boys of these parts attended the ice cream supper at Mr. Alvin Lowery's Saturday night and report a nice time.

Mr. J. H. Martin and family visited Mr. J. R. Busby's family Sunday.

Mr. J. A. Lowery and wife spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gibson.

Mrs. Nora Smith of Pratville is visiting relatives at this place.

With best wishes to the Banner I will close for this time.

THE BELLE.

Take the Postmaster's Word for It.

Mr. F. M. Hamilton, postmaster at Cherryvale, Ind., keeps also a stock of general merchandise and patent medicines. He says: "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is standard here in its line. It never fails to give satisfaction and we could hardly afford to be without it. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Vida.

We are very much in need of rain in this section.

Miss Elizabeth Cruise of this place has returned home after spending two weeks with relatives at Centerville.

Mr. Wiley Mieslidine made a trip to Vida the fourth Sunday.

Misses Annie Mae and Zelma, Messrs. Henry, Edgar and Odie Gaines, attended an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bartley Billingsley on the night of June 22nd.

Mrs. Ira Campbelle visited Mrs. Wade Richardson Tuesday.

Misses Ethel and Annie Richardson will leave for Spigener the first Sunday in July.

We regret that the pastor of our church, Rev. W. J. Simmons, is unable to fill his appointment here, but Bro. Mills will gladly serve and we hope him much success.

We have a progressive Sunday school at this place.

GLANTON, ALABAMA.

Love makes the heaviest load seem light.

Ohio has lost no time in establishing itself in its old position as the storm centre of national politics, notes the Baltimore News.

Sir Hugh Bell believes that in a century ships will be propelled by wireless and that Niagara will then generate power to drive vessels to Europe. Why put it off a century? queries the New York American. In that time men may be traveling through the air, themselves propelled by wireless.

Says the Boston Transcript: "It is safe to presume that as many of the problems that have barred the way to man's flight are solved and the remainder are being eagerly attacked by an army of investigators and experimenters, the steerable balloons, the gliding machines, the aeroplanes with power, will contribute at last to some compilation of inventions that will, after all, be no more inconceivable as an addition to man's practical means of locomotion than the present automobiles were fifteen or twenty years ago."

An alarmist, who signs himself "Bachelor," writes as follows to a New York paper: "With signs and portents of danger on every hand the supine male continues his attention to politics and the other routine avocations of daily life, blind in his silly egotism to the rising tide of female insurrection. In London a feminine mob storms the houses of Parliament, Jersey passes a law prohibiting whiskers, an Iowa community at least pretends to legislate making marriage compulsory, Finland elects nineteen congresswomen. Similar news comes in from nearly every portion of the civilized world. This city is one of the hotbeds of the revolutionists. Why don't some of the newspapers wake up to the imminency of the danger and start a crusade to put women back where they belong and keep them there, gently but firmly?"

The "poor-rail" charges against the Steel Corporation made by Vice-President Kruttschnitt, of the Union Pacific road, and indorsed by Mr. Harriman, have stirred up a pretty controversy between the railroads and the railmakers. Mr. Kruttschnitt reported that in February last 449 rails broke, 179 of which were ninety-pounders laid within the previous five or six months. Vice-President Wilgus, of the New York Central, also deplores the "steel-rail peril," which he charges to trust greed and the lack of competition in railmaking. Judge Gary, of the United States Steel Corporation, meets the railroad men's accusations with charges that the roads are putting down rails too light for the strain of their traffic. Then appears "a leading civil engineer" who calls Mr. Gary's contention absurd. It is the heavier rails that break, says this anonymous expert, and the trouble is in the workmanship. The steel is hurried along, he says, and is neither rolled enough nor given time to "assume a state of internal equilibrium."

The New York Sun is partial to mules. It says: "The mule does not lend itself to showy prancings in the park, to gaudy pageantry on educated Eastern roads or prowess in the polo field. Neither is it to be depended on for charging full into the cannon's belching mouth or any other suicidal nonsense. But if one has some hundreds of miles to go as a continuous performance and would get there safely, surely, with a maximum of physical and mental comfort and a minimum of risk of accident, the genuine saddle mule, gaited, trained and duly accustomed to his task, stands in our philosophy as the ideal vehicle. You are good for seven or eight miles an hour. To all intents and purposes you do it in an easy chair. There need be no fear that your steed will step into a hole, breaking a leg and incidentally your neck. The mule sees dangers many yards ahead and avoids them with unerring skill. Stick to your mule and you need fear no species of catastrophe. You move easily and swiftly, and you need never apprehend that worst of all fatigues the equestrian is subject to, the racking exhaustion of a worn-out horse. Your mule will take good care of that!"

WINE TRUST AGAINST FRENCH PEASANTS

Business has Been Suspended in 2,500 Towns

FIGHT FOR STATE'S RIGHTS

Situation in Grape District is Likened to That in South in This Country in 1860—Another Revolution is Feared. In Factit is Almost a Certainty.

Mont Peilier, France, via frontier.—A copyrighted dispatch from the Publishers' Press staff correspondent, Francis Warrington Dawson, says: Southern France is in the throes of a political convulsion strikingly analogous to that in the South in the United States in 1860. Following is a summary of Dawson's messages:

The government is trying to conceal the fact that the wine growers' movement has not collapsed, but is brewing. A war time press censorship exists. The causes are the insistence of the wine growers on the principles of state rights and the attempt of the French wine trust to defraud the public, and to ruin wine growers by a process of adulteration. The universal use of sugar in adulteration is not applicable to all France on account of soil and climate. These are factors that make a states' right doctrine issue. The affected districts desire to manage their own affairs, returning to pre-revolutionary partial autonomy.

The greed of the wine trust is very largely responsible for the present condition. If the demands of the wine growers regarding adulteration are granted the trust will lose millions. The struggle is a fight between the Paris trust and the Midi peasants. No official business is transacted in over two thousand towns. Fear of another revolution is felt.

PROHIBITION WINS.

Lowndes Goes Dry by an Overwhelming Majority.

Valdosta, Ga.—One of the most spectacular fights on whiskey in the state for many years has resulted in a sweeping victory for the prohibitionists in Lowndes county. The prohibitionists began the day with prayer meetings in all the churches at 4 o'clock in the morning. From that time men, women and children worked without ceasing. The women and children stayed about the polling places, praying and singing, soliciting votes, while the men did such canvassing as has never before been seen here.

The official figures of the vote in the county are a total of 1,783; for prohibition, 1,296, against prohibition, 487. It is understood that the saloons will be given one month in which to close out their stocks.

CONVICTED OF TRYING TO BRIBE

Richardson Attempted to Corrupt the Pittsburg Councilmen.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Charles S. Richardson was convicted in the criminal court Wednesday of conspiring to bribe councilmen to pass the Pittsburg and Tube City roadbed franchise ordinance. It was charged that Richardson furnished C. S. Cameron, president of the Pittsburg and Tube City railroad, with $70,000 with which to do the alleged bribing of councilmen. The money later disappeared, resulting in charges being made against Councilmen W. A. Martin, who was recently convicted; Engineer J. H. Millholland, of the railroad; Joseph Flaherty, President Cameron and others. The case of President Cameron will be tried tomorrow.

WITH NECK BROKEN,

Remains Conscious, Though Paralyzed From Neck Down.

Savannah, Ga.—Reports from the bedside of young Jack Apple, whose spinal column was fractured by a dive at Tybee on Sunday, are that he is a shade improved. Two pieces of vertebrae were removed from the spinal column near the neck. He remains conscious, though paralyzed from the neck down.

His physicians say he has a fighting chance for life.

TEN BOMBS THROWN.

Terrific Explosion Results in Death of Many.

Tiflis, Trans-Caucasia, Russia.—Ten bombs were thrown Wednesday into Ervan Square, in the center of the town, which was thronged with people. The missiles exploded with terrific force. Many persons were killed or injured, and windows and doors were shattered over a large area.

The police are preventing all approach to the scene of the outrage.

Obaldia Acts for Matador.

Panama.—General Obaldia, the minister of Panama to the United States, was sworn Monday as acting president before the national assembly. The members of the diplomatic corps, consular officers, Commissioner Joseph C. F Blackburn and many of the most prominent citizens were present. President Amador, who is on a six months' leave of absence, will leave here Tuesday morning.

QUARTER OF A MILLION LOSS.

Block of Buildings Burned Just Outside of Exposition Grounds.

Norfolk, Va.—Fire early Wednesday at Pine Beach, a resort filled with hotels of varying sizes, restaurants, stores and places of amusement, just outside of the Jamestown exposition grounds, destroyed frame structures covering a large area in the territory between Virginia and Maryland avenues and 102d and 103d streets, including Exposition avenue. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss is placed at between $200,000 and $250,000, with about 20 per cent insurance, the high rates having been almost prohibitive for taking of large risks on the frame structures. It is reported that two lives were lost, but this has not been confirmed.

The Arcade, Royal Pine, Hampton Roads, Washington House, Outside Inn, Powhattan, Carolina and Berkeley hotels were among the largest buildings destroyed. About the only buildings saved within the affected area are the Tourists' hotel, the Greystone Inn and California Frank's buffet, all on 102d street.

Between forty and fifty structures were consumed, and probably one thousand people are homeless.

The blaze originated in the Berkeley hotel, on 102d street. The destroyed buildings were of temporary construction, the Arcade hotel, with 280 rooms, being the largest.

Plumbers Meet.

Louisville, Ky.—Delegates to the number of 1,800, from every state in the Union, were present in the Masonic theater Tuesday, when the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Master Plumbers' Association was called to order by President R. B. Moodie, of Dayton, O. It was said to be the first time in the history of the association that every state answered to the roll call at the opening of the national convention. There are parties from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Galveston, Bangor, Me., and Key West.

Died Watching Ball Game.

Abbeville, S. C.—L. W. Perrin died suddenly here Wednesday afternoon of apoplexy. He was sitting in a buggy watching a game of baseball between Abbeville and Greenville, in which two of his sons were playing, when he suddenly fell over on the shoulder of his friend in the buggy and died at once. He was the oldest member of the Abbeville bar.

Want More for Rails.

New York.—The Herald says that the Lackawanna Steel Company has made demands upon the Pennsylvania railroad for a higher price than $28 for the steel rails ordered for delivery next year. The steel companies say rails cannot be built profitably for $28 a ton.

Bryan Lost Night Shirt.

Parsons, Kan.—William J. Bryan lost his night shirt on a train at this place, and how it fell into the hands of Jefferson Davis, the conductor of the train, was reported by trainmen to the general offices of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas. Mr. Bryan's shirt was returned to him by an agent named William McKinley.

Shelby Takes His Life.

Danville, Ky.—A telegram from Jeanerette, La., was received here Monday announcing the sudden death of J. Warren Shelby by taking carbolic acid with suicidal intent. The deceased was a son of Major Isaac Shelby, of this county, and a great great grandson of the first governor of Kentucky.

Blow to Money Sharks.

Charleston, S. C.—Judge Gary administered a knock-out blow to the money lenders of the city Friday afternoon by dissolving the injunction recently secured to prevent the city collecting a license of $1,000 on each shop. Judge Gary characterized the short loan men as "money sharks of the very worst type."

Old-Fashioned Hold-Up.

Fresno, Cal.—An unknown masked man Monday halted two stages on the road between Summit and Grub gulch, and compelled the passengers, about twenty in number, to hand over whatever of money and jewelry they carried. One of the passengers was forced by the robber to pass the hat among his companions.

SHORT DISPATCHES.

Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., son of the former president of the Illinois Central railroad, has been located. He is in Muscogee, I. T., and has started in the railroad business. He has been there a week, but his identity has only been recently learned.

John T. Usher, a young man of Lumpkin, Ga., was drowned while bathing in Wimberly's mill pond. He is a good swimmer, but it is thought he had a sudden attack of heart trouble that caused him to sink.

Government Buys Bonds.

Washington.—The treasury department Tuesday completed the purchase of $35,000,000 in 4 per cent. bonds maturing July 1, 1907, under the order of the secretary of the treasury issued early last April. No more 4 per cent. bonds will be purchased, but those bonds remaining until redeemed will be taken up, offered and paid for on and after July 26 next.

ALABAMA EVENTS FROM OVER THE STATE.

Interesting Items to Dwellers in the Commonwealth

A BRIEF WEEKLY SUMMARY

One Man, Who Has Only Been in the State Two Years, is Making the People of Limestone County Open Their Eyes as to Truck Farming.

Lewis Collier, of Athens, who came to this country two years ago for his health, has opened the eyes of the people of that community as to what can be done on a small farm. He bought a few acres of poor land one mile west of town, and has been improving and preparing it for fruit and vegetables the past year or so, and this spring has sold from less than an eighth of an acre two tons and a half of as fine cabbage as were ever grown, for which he found ready sale, and at 3 cents per pound, and from less than half the same space he sold two tons of cabbage lettuce, a beautiful table vegetable, and more than a ton of radishes from a very small space. He has already sold from less than half an acre more vegetables than five acres of cotton of an average crop would have brought, and yet half has hardly been taken off the ground. He sold and delivered perhaps 1,000 pounds of beets, beans, onions, etc. Mr. Gooch, a German farmer, off less than a tenth of an acre has sold over $200 worth of strawberries, and is still selling them. These thrifty foreigners make the old residents ashamed of their want of hustle and industry. They will make this country rich by their innovations.

Severe Storm at Stevenson.

Sunday afternoon Stevenson was visited by the severest wind and rain storm that has occurred in the knowledge of the oldest inhabitants. It was a veritable "gully washer." At this writing it is impossible to learn the extent of damage, as the telephone lines are all down or crossed, bu tthe local damage to the growing crops will be considerable. There was such a downpour that Burges' creek, near town, rose over four feet in less than one hour. Between Stevenson and Bridgeport the crops on the hillsides are badly washed and much of the low grounds is under water.

ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS STOLEN

On June 1 the City National Bank of Selma, sent to the Fayuedale National ank a package containing $1,000 in currency. Four days afterwards the money not having been received, the Fayuedale institution called up the bank in Selma and found that it had been sent by express on the day named. An investigation disclosed the fact that the agent for the express company who had been checked out on June 1, after having served only four or five days, had receipted for the package at the depot, but instead of turning in a way bill, he tore it up and kept the money, the auditor who was doing the checking, therefore, not having any record of the receipt of the package.

Last Saturday detectives of the express company located the man in Richmond, Va., and arrested him. Two hundred and sixty-one dollars of the stolen money was found in his possession. Officials from this division who knew the man went to Richmond and last Tuesday identified him. As soon as requisition papers can be secured he will be brought to Alabama, thence to the jail at Linden, where he will remain until his trial comes up.

A New Cotton Mill.

A cotton mill will be built at Langdale, Ala., involving with its equipment, etc., an expenditure of about $800,000. The building will be three stories high and about 800 feet long. It has been decided that the equipment will cinclude 35,000 spindles, a large number of twister spindles and the complementary apparatus for the production of heavy cotton duck, 22-inch to 120-inch. This mill will be operated by electricity, the motors being distributed throughout the plant, and the power will be transmitted from the company's power station on the Chattahoochee river, for which contract has already been let.

SPRINGFIELD PUTS LID ON.

Cuts Off Smokes and May Tackle Ice and Buggy Riding.

Springfield, Tenn.—Springfield has followed the example of several other towns in regard to putting the lid on tight on Sunday. It has always been the custom here for the drug stores to remain open on Sunday mornings and accommodate their cigar customers, but, acting upon the complaint of several citizens, Chief of Police Neal Burnett served notice last Saturday evening that no cigars would be bought or sold the next day or the violators would be prosecuted. There was a great howl Sunday morning, as but few of the citizens were aware of the situation and had not purchased their supply the night before. Some of the dealers are very much wrought up over the matter, and it is rumored that an attempt will be made next Sunday to prohibit the ice wagons from doing business and also the livery stables.

BRIDE RODE ON CHILD'S TICKET.

Mighty Youthful Couple Wedded at Fayetteville.

Fayetteville, Tenn.—The sheriff of Franklin county was here looking for Thomas Cook and Miss Caroline Moore, who were married here previously. The sheriff said that the girl was not 12 years old. The couple came from Huntsville, Ala., where it is said they were unable to secure license. They spent Wednesday night in Fayetteville, and bought tickets the next morning for Winchester, the groom buying a half-ticket for his bride.

Turn Down for Japanese.

San Francisco, Cal.—The board of police commissioners has denied the application of five Japanese for the privilege of renewing their permits to keep intelligence offices in this city, and refused two Japanese applicants who desired to obtain new permits for the same business on the ground that the applicants were not citizens of the United States. It was explained that the policy of the board had been always to give the preference in these privileges to citizens over those who are not and cannot become citizens.

A Dentist Suicides.

Vincennes, Ind.—Dr. Henry S. Lathaw, a well-known dentist, killed himself here by firing a bullet into his brain. Grief over the death of his wife and daughter and financial troubles are said to be the causes. The body was found in the doctor's office. He had shaved and carefully dressed himself, left notes to relatives, and then placed a wet towel against his cheek to prevent powder burns

Italian Farmers Quit.

Ferrara, Italy.—Troops have been summoned to preserve order among the agriculturist strikers here, who are causing serious disturbances throughout the province. A number of arrests already have been made among the ring leaders, but the situation is steadily growing worse. Fully 16,000 peasants are now on strike.

Millions in Cars.

New York.—The Harriman, Gould and other large railroad systems have placed car contracts within the last few days calling for an expenditure of upwards of $15,000,000, and orders pending for cars to the value of fully $10,000,000 more. Heavy contracts are also about to be given for locomotives for use on eastern lines.

Two Girls Drown.

Taylorsville, Miss.—Ruby Carr, 16 years of age, and Mattie Dennis, aged 18 years, were drowned in Fisher's creek. The young women were among a party of Sunday school picnickers, and while bathing got beyond their depth.

Trade of $10,000,00.

Washington, D. C.—Trade of the United States with Latin-American neighbors aggregated $610,000,000 in the fiscal year ending the present week, against but little over $230,000,000 last year.

Big Loan Offered.

Rio Janeiro.—The Journal de Commercio announces that the Rothschilds have offered $15,000,000, the amount of the loan granted by congress to the state of Sao Paulo, in connection with the coffee valorization plan.

Loving Acquitted.

Houston, Va.—After being out for thirty-five minutes the jury Saturday evening returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of former Judge ager of the Virginia estate of Thomas F. Ryan, who was placed on trial here Monday for the killing of Theodore Estes, son of Sheriff M. K. Estes, of Nelson county.

Steubenville, O.—"Billy" Moore, the town marshal of Richmond, this county, disappeared mysteriously. Moore appeared in Richmond three years ago, joined the United Presbyterian church, was elected town marshal and married a widow of Steubenville, W. Va. Thursday Henry Lamb, a traveling salesman, met Moore in the street and accosted him. "I don't know you," said Moore. "You have eaten at my house and you married my niece at Clinton, W. V. You are Billy Britt,"

A road law for this county will be before the adjourned session of the legislature, and there will most likely go to the representatives a petition that will show quite a strong opposition to it, and if the law ever goes through it will more than likely be very greatly modified.

Boys Suspected of Robbery.

The stores of Johnson & Hughes and Troxell Bros., of Bridgeport, were broken into and goods were stolen. Bloodhounds from Chattanooga were put on the trail and tracked to Charles Nichols' house, but he and Carl Walace, who is also suspected of being one of the robbers, had skipped out.

Dannelly's Successor.

The Alabama Methodist Woman's College Mission has ratified the appointment by Bishop Morrison of Rev. James M. Dannelly as financial agent, and by special request of the First Methodist church of Opelika, of which Mr. Dannelly has been pastor, Bishop Morrison has named Rev. A. P. McFerrin, of Clarksville, Tenn., as Mr. Dannelly's successor here.

Five Died in a Few Months.

Joel Thacker, the eighteen-year-old son of George Thacker, of Alabama City, died at the Guice & Faucett hospital in this city Monday night at 8 o'clock after several weeks' illness of measles. This is the fifth death in the same family in the past few months. Within that time Mr. Thacker has lost a wife and four children, and his remaining four are down with a malignant form of measles.

Facts About the State Normal School.

Four hundred and nine teachers of a total enrollment of 581 in the Jacksonville Normal School is the excellent showing made. Fifty-five counties of Alabama and other states were represented. President C. W. Daggette reports that many were denied admission on account of lack of room, but that a new building will enable the school to accommodate all who apply next session. He expects fully 500 for the opening in the fall.

The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. W. HENDERSON

Subject: Profanity.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, Hamburg avenue and Weirfield street, on the theme "Profanity," the Rev. Ira W. Wemmel Henderson, pastor, took as his text Exodus 20:7, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain." He said:

If there is anything that is disgusting it is unbridled profanity. And the prevalence of useless, pointless, unjustified swearing merits the attention not alone of the Church but also of the civil authorities whose duty it is to keep the moral atmosphere of this and every other community free of verbal pollution. The command ought to be obeyed and the civil law on the point ought to be enforced. The silly fool who spreads the germs of diphtheria or typhoid or smallpox broadcast throughout the community will soon feel the iron hand of the law laid heavy on his shoulders and he ought very properly be put under lock and key until sanity has returned; but any man without a sense of moral respectability or even elementary decency may saturate the moral atmosphere, in which we have to live and to rear our youth, with all manner of verbal disease and the average policeman will but smile or perhaps add to the sum total of uncleanness. The man who has such poverty of language and such an absolute lack of common sense that profanity is to him the one way to dignify and emphasize the expression of ideas, should be jailed with that other man who endangers our physical health. The third commandment has, we know from experience, a very practical and forcible application to this day. Nowhere may we escape the man of unwholesome speech. Men with gray locks and boys just out of kilts, men who should know better and boys who must learn the disgrace of profligate language if they are ever to amount to much in life, both and all are guilty of the most shameful depravities of speech. As things stand to-day, no man can rear a child with a pure mind. We walk our streets and curses everywhere fill the air and fall upon our ears. Does a horse balk the Almighty is invoked to move him. Is the drayman delayed a moment he curses the fellow just ahead. It is impossible to sit by an open window on any prominent thoroughfare without being morally poisoned. Does the boss in the shop wish to hurry up the men the vilest of language is the means he uses to set speed to hand and mind. Not once but hundreds of times I have seen foul mouthed inspectors, overseers and gang bosses invoke the maledictions of heaven and hell upon poor dumb driven brutes made in the image of the Maker, lest forsooth they straighten weary toil bent backs to seize a moment's rest.

Of course these very men will tell you that they have no desire to dishonor God nor to offend our moral sensibilities. They lay it to habit, thoughtlessness and a hundred other causes. I am convinced myself that much of the swearing of the day is due to thoughtlessness rather than to wilful sin. And yet I have seen the same men take more liberties with the name of Almighty God than I would allow them to take or they would dare to take with my name—either thoughtlessly or wilfully.

Thoughtlessness is no excuse. God gave us brains and tongues, and it is our duty to exercise our wills and to use our tongues for the expression of worthy thought alone. Of course men don't think, that is to say, the most of them do not, for if they did swearing would go by the board to a short and sure death. To plead thoughtlessness in extenuation of sin is to play the baby-act. Men should think and cut the cursing out.

The third commandment has solid sense behind it, as have all of God's commands. The misuse of the name of God, or of the name of our Lord, profanity, swearing, cursing, all should be abhorred for several good and sufficient reasons.

Profanity is unnecessary, unmanly, indecent, immoral, ungodly. There are five good reasons why it should be put aside.

Profanity is unnecessary. A curse never prove a point. It rather demonstrated the paucity of thought of the swearer. Oaths never convince a person of the validity or strength of an argument, but they do show up the poverty of language of the man who uses them. Curses never made any workman do better work; they have, however, been the excuse for many a murder. Sense and no swear words will unravel many a perplexing problem. The name of God is to be hallowed not hooted on the streets. The name of Jesus is worthy of reverence and adoration; its misuse damns not the man who is maligned but the curser. There is no problem in life that can not be solved without curses. Sense, industry, wise reasoning and good judgment will settle any difficulty. Profanity is useless, unnecessary and wholly unprofitable.

Then, too, profanity is unmanly. Many boys seem to have the idea that the one sure sign of manliness is to be able to swear with vigor, proficiency and volume. There never was a greater mistake in the world. Instead of being a sign of manliness it is a sure mark of moral instability and bad manners. It reflects small credit either upon the youth himself or upon the family whom he represents. For an educated youth it is a denial of the value of education and mental growth. In any man, educated or ignorant, it is degrading and altogether unmanly. Manliness is purity, efficiency, power, forcefulness. The curse is impure, inefficient either for expression or proof, powerless to do productive work, forceful in no way. By these tests it is unmanly.

Profanity is indecent. That which is decent is befitting, becoming, honorable. I will leave it to the judgment of the citizens of this or any city to decide how much swearing [illegible] a normal, rational human being. Creatures of reason as we are, we find that the curse dies in the face of sober thought. Used as we are to logical processes we find the curse devoid of logic. Profanity reeks with sulphur and reeks Satan to our hearts. It is utterly unbefitting and unbecoming.

To say that it is dishonorable is just to begin the damning count against profanity. The curse is without honor for it is used only to spread dishonor. It looks never toward God but rather uses His name to invoke the aid of the powers of hell. It is dishonorable from start to finish and indecency marks it as her own.

But one of the two worst things about profanity is that it is immoral, root, branch, tree and fruit. Catering as it does to all that is low in man, hand and bond servant as it is to all the hosts of sin, profanity disintegrates the unity of individual personality. No man can be profane without dishonoring God and damaging himself. We cannot give vent in word to the evil that is in us without spreading contamination not only through our own lives but also through the lives of men and women all about us. Profanity is unclean, it strikes at the foundations of morality. It undermines the sense of honor and destroys the faculty of cool, deliberate judgment; under no circumstances is it susceptible of justification and its immorality is unquestionably a fact.

But the last and the worst charge that may be upheld against profanity is that it is ungodly. "Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart and mind and soul," says our Father. The curse is heartless and it destroys our finer faculties do we give it time. Under its blighting influence the power of mental appreciation of the glories of God will be lost. It is soulless to the last extreme. How can a man be godly while cursing the children of God in the name of the Father who has given them life? How can a man be godly when the springs of sin are rushing from his mouth? Ah, no! Profanity is ungodly. It shames God and disgraces man. It reviles the Father and degrades His sons. God is good but profanity is evil. God is kind but the curse is verbal murder. God is truth but the curse cares not for truth.

Unnecessary, unmanly, indecent, immoral and ungodly profanity is the most frequent as the most insidious of the sins of the tongue. And yet bad as it is when used by men, it is most abhorrent when coming from the lips of a woman. Not that it is morally any worse, but that it sounds worse. If you really want to become positively assured of the horridness of profanity you need but hear a woman curse.

We need to-day a strict insistence upon cleanliness of language. No man can be a friend of Jesus who is ungodly in his talk. Christ proved divinely the possibility of forceful speaking without the use of profanity. And to-day men are most forceful, most manly, most convincing when they do not swear.

Pull Your Boat Up Stream.

To drift with the current or to pull against it—this is the problem which is born anew with each new day. Some of our daily duties are easy to perform. We turn to them as easily and naturally as water seeks a level. There is no conscious expenditure of will-power. There is no resistance in our nature that must be overcome. But these are the duties of the day in whose performance there is found the least merit.

Fortunately for us we cannot, or at least dare not, always drift. Each day has its tasks which test the will and try the heart. Their performance requires stern determination. They afford the best discipline and develop the latent powers of the soul. Inclination is not always—in fact, not often—a true test of the thing we ought to do first.

Sometimes it has been a source of wonder to find a preacher very ready in the use of language, and yet making no headway in his chosen profession. In more than one case the explanation has been found in a dislike of study and reading on his part. To talk has been with him as easy as to drift. To study—well, he has been unwilling to pull against the current, and he has failed.

To pull against the current develops muscle, lung and nerve. It increases the power of resistance and endurance. To do the thing we dislike because we ought to do it, is to give the will the place it deserves to occupy. It is to make conscience a master, and make us conscious of our own power.

The hills of God are up stream, not down. The mount of victory is never reached by drifting. The way of success lies in the "pull;" not the vulgar "pull" of the financier and politician, but the pull against the current.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

Helped by Our Company.

There are some men and some women in whose company we are always at our best. While with them we cannot think mean thoughts or speak ungenerous words. Their mere presence is elevation, purification, sanctity. All the best stops in our nature are drawn out by their intercourse, and we find a music in our soul that was never there before. If to live with men diluted to the millionth degree with the virtue of the Highest can exalt and purify the nature, what bounds can be set to the influence of Christ?—Professor Drummond.

Care of Human Prodigals.

Whatever retribution God has for men on the other side of the grave means love, not hate; it means reform, discipline, redemption, not damnation. God is a shepherd. No sheep will wander from His fold in any world that He will not seek, and sooner or later find and bring back. God is a Father. We may trust Him forever, sure that He will watch and wait with deathless love, until the last prodigal among His human children comes home.—J. T. Sunderland.

Heights of Prosperity.

Believer, remember, heights of prosperity are safe, if only God be with you, and the vale of adversity is healthful to the soul, if God takes you down into it.—Gordon Hall.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JULY 7 BY THE REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: God Feeds Israel in Egypt. Ex. 16:1-15—Golden Text, John 6:32—Memory Verse, 4—Commentary.

The charm of the history of the people of Israel as it is portrayed in the Scriptures lies largely in its humanness. Israel is continually doing that which we are expectant men would do, under like circumstances, everywhere and in all time. Israel is human in her righteousness and in her sinning, in her wisdom and in her folly. The lesson for to-day shows her humanness in no unmistakable fashion. Out in the wilderness, tried and troubled with their disappointments and sufferings, the children of Israel are an example to us all and a photograph of us all. It was only yesterday, so to say, that they had praised God for His deliverance and favor. Now they look with yearning upon the fleshpots of Egypt. They were eager for liberty, but not so eager to pay the price. They were glad to have the help of Jehovah. They were not so happy to have the proving of Jehovah applied to their manhood. They show us what we ought not to do in like circumstances. They show us also what we quite generally do when we are face to face with analogous problems, disappointments and trials.

Israel was overjoyed when, in the providence of Jehovah, she was delivered out of the hand of Pharaoh and divinely led toward the land of Jehovah's promise. But when the hosts of Pharaoh threatened in the rear, Israel doubted the providence and ability of God and the wisdom of His appointed leaders. When Israel saw the hosts of Pharaoh strewn dead upon the seashore sands, Israel was glad and sang praises unto the Most High. But when water failed to come just when Israel wanted it to come, when fodder and food failed just when Israel wanted it to abound, then Israel cursed her leaders, questioned the leading of God, looked back upon the leeks and garlic and onions of Egypt, sighed for slavery with plenty. Then Israel was haunted with the fear of starvation. And this was human. It was typical of humanity.

The lesson shows us also what is the wonderful providence of God for His people even when things seem blackest to them. It must have appeared quite discouraging to Israel since they were in such a state of mind that they desired Egypt with its many hardships in preference to the wilderness with its hope of liberty. They must have been pretty hungry and hope must have all but fled. And it doesn't take hope long to flee in the presence of an empty stomach. But when the prospect was darkest so far as they were able to see then was God at hand, ready to help them and inspire them. To be sure God did not help them out of their difficulty just in the way that they desired or expected to be helped. The help was no less effective, however. The manna was an unknown quantity to them. But it was satisfying.

Israel is not the only people that has had to go through a wilderness and through hardship and through suffering to achieve liberty. And it is not only the nation that has to travel the same long road. Many an individual has had an analgous experience. The way out of national suffering and hardship, the way out of individual and national sin and distress, is a road that has its trials, its sorrows, its disappointments, its provings, all of which are as thoroughgoing and as real as were the trials that beset and tested Israel. But wherever the nation or the individual has trusted God and been amenable to His will and followed His commands there the providence and the leading of God has been marvelously manifest. God led Israel ahead in comfort and security all the time that Israel obeyed Him and thoroughly trusted Him. Their sorrows came when they doubted and disobeyed God. And so it is with every nation and with every individual. Just so long as we obey God and trust Him we move ahead.

This lesson has a profound spiritual significance. The trials of the sinner as he moves up out of the land of spiritual bondage through the wilderness of evil and temptation toward the promised land of the new Jerusalem are in their own way as real as were the trials of Israel in the desert. While he trusts in God and does God's will his way is made plain, the evidences of God's shepherding are visible to his spiritual faculties. When he shuts his eyes to the leading of God he is afraid. When he is more obsessed with the contemplation of the difficulties that confront and assail him than with the vision of Him who guards his soul he is a troubled man. But when he trusts God and never loses sight of Him even in his hours of sorest trial then is he always sure, then is he always hopeful. For he knows that God will always provide that spiritual manna which is meat and drink and strength and courage to his soul.

We are all human after the manner of the chosen people of God. The danger is that we shall forget God when His providences seem to us to fail. The danger is that we shall look back as did Lot's wife and the children of Israel upon lands that we have left behind us. That danger we cannot too well avoid. We cannot minimize its effect. Let us guard against it. Let us always hope in God, who is the health of our countenance and our God.

After his wife had refused to come back and live with him because of his drinking habits, George Kramer, a quarryman, went to the barn at the rear of his wife's house at Monroe, Mich., and lay down on the floor and blew himself to pieces with a stick of dynamite. All that was found of him after the explosion were his legs.

TAX SALE.

On account of a mistake in the advertisement published in the "official organ of Chilton county" (The Union) printed at Birmingham, the sale of land for delinquent taxes is postponed to Monday, July 22nd, 1907.

We hope to see a good meeting of Democrats at Clanton next Saturday when the appointment of a Sheriff for Chilton county will be an important feature of the meeting. Let every Democrat be present and make known his choice.

A fair sized crowd was in Clanton on the Fourth to attend the meeting of the Farmers' Union, the court house being well filled, many ladies gracing the occasion by their presence Mr. Abbott was the principal speaker.

TO THE DEMOCRATS OF CHILTON COUNTY.

Inasmuch as many of my friends have suggested that I apply for appointment as Sheriff of Chilton county, and as it has come to my knowledge that some, who have thought of applying for the appointment, have refrained from doing so until my position should be made known, I deem it proper to make a statement.

After fully considering the matter, in connection with the fact that I have made a change in my personal affairs and have entered into contracts which will not terminate in several months, and which, if performed, will require my absence from the county, I have decided not to apply for the appointment.

I shall always feel grateful to my friends for their very kind offer of support, and hope to have the opportunity, in some measure at least, return their kindness.

T. J. TRAYWICK.

Greasy Ridge.

Greasy Ridge is simply Greasy Ridge, and only needs a stock law or a lot of land turned out, or a lot of fencing done, or it will be forever just over on the ridge. People that want peace and same harmony, won't stop to make the harmony, when they can go a little further on and get good land and a good fence around it, or none, and the stock fenced off, and your crop is safe and your neighbors won't grit their teeth and shake their heads in passing you in place of speaking. Now, brother farmers, let us be honest with each other, bad fences make bad stock and that makes bad neighbors, for no man wants his stock crippled. It will cost less to build a good fence than it will to have a law suit, and a good friendly hand shake from a neighbor is worth more than a sore ear is to a hog, or a horn knocked off to a cow. So I will say to all renters let us lookout for such places as we can protect what we make and what little stock we have. Hoping this will cause some people to do one or two or three things—work for stock law, or build good fences, or move, or get rid of their dogs and let the people that's trying to farm do so in peace. It won't do to stop the farmer, but if he can't have protection he will move on in self-defense.

CLODHOCKER.

Best Medicine in the World for Colic and Diarrhoea.

"I find Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to be the best remedy in the world," says Mr. C. L. Carter of Skirum, Ala. "I am subject to colic and diarrhoea. Last spring it seemed as though I would die, and I think I would if I hadn't taken Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I haven't been troubled with it since until this week, when I had a very severe attack and took half a bottle of the twenty-five cent size Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and this morning I feel like a new man." Verbena, July 2, 1907

Editor Banner—It appears I can't write or speak on any subject without "Just a Voter" takes it up and undertakes, by misstating the facts, to influence the minds of those with whom I have always been allied. In his letter to the Union of three or four weeks ago, he made a big bugaboo about what I had said about the people of Clanton or Chilton county not being as good as my cats, which he know at his writing was a perversion of facts. I trust I shall not see my name referred to by "Just a Voter" any more. If so, I trust he may state the unvarnished and unreserved truth. If so, all well, but if not I shall reply in a way that will probably not be pleasant to the eye nor ear of some, and especially to "Just a Voter." I don't offer this as a dare or bluff, but trusting I may escape that unpleasant ordeal.

When I meet my fellowman I am always glad to greet him boldly, but on the most friendly terms. There is not a man, woman or child in Chilton county whom I would do or say any harm, and I trust such conditions may always exist.

I don't want any office, nor do I ever expect to ask the voters of Chilton or any other county in Alabama again for their votes. Yet, to those who supported me last year by their vote or sympathy, I tender again my heartfelt thanks. To those who supported my opponent, I did then and do yet, concede to them that right, what "Just a Voter" said then and has since said to the contrary notwithstanding.

About the dispensary or whiskey question, I stand today where I have always stood, in favor of absolute prohibition, the kind that prohibits, or open saloons in none other than incorporated towns or cities and under high priced license in towns and cities which will encourage strict enforcement of law and order and not wink at "Blind tiger" or other violation of law, and had I gone to the Legislature from Chilton county, I should have given my time largely to the following questions, all subject to the sanction of all the voters of my county, viz.: Road law, whiskey sale of, county convicts, carrying concealed weapons, vagrancy.

I think the coming adjourned term of the Legislature should take action to specially prevent people of all classes emptying terraces and ditches into the public roads, a thing I am fully persuaded is now a violation if properly adhered to, and which is doing our roads more harm than all the use to which they are put otherwise.

Let us hear from some one else on these subjects, and please sign your name that each reader may know you. F. A. GULLEDGE.

COTTON CROP REPORT.

The crop reporting board of the bureau of statistics of the Department of Agriculture, finds from the reports of the correspondents and agents of the bureau, that average condition of cotton on June 25, was 72.0 as compared with 70.5 on May 25, 1907, 83.3 on June 25, 1906, 77.0 at the corresponding date in 1905 and a ten year average of 83.2.

Nearly all old-fashioned Cough Syrups are constipating, especially those that contain opiates They don't act just right. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup contains no opiates. It drives the cold out of the system by gently moving the bowels. Contains Honey and Tar and tastes nearly as good as maple syrup. Children like it. Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

Sardis.

We are glad to say that our Sunday school is moving on nicely under the management of J. D. Deason, and Mr. A. A. Poole makes an excellent secretary; while he is quite young, but we all put a great deal of confidence in him.

Health of this community is rather good at present except Mrs. P. E. McCary.

Mrs. Belle Campbelle of Summerfield is visiting her parents this week.

The union dinner at Sardis, the 20th, was enjoyed by all who attended.

We are glad to say that our school will start some time in the near future, Miss Annie Catchings is our teacher.

The school at Mt. Nebo will start next Monday.

Cotton crop is very sorry, while some are expecting blooms by the 4th of July, but I think they'll miss it.

Mr. L. A. Popwell was a welcome visitor at J. D. Deason's Sunday last.

The wedding bells are expected to be heard down the road some time in the near future; hope we'll all be invited.

The singing at W. W. Kinner's was enjoyed by all who attend.

Saw mills are all the go nowadays, but they are a lot of help in such a place as this.

Well, I will clos wishing the Banner much success.

APPLICATIONS FOR NEW SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

At the regular May meeting of the Chilton School Board the following applications were made and accepted, and notice of final hearing was set for Saturday, July 6, 1907.

For the new district of parts of Stanton No. 4, and Adams No. 6; to be known as Parnell District No.—

For new district composed of parts of Districts Nos. 40, 42 and 65

Done by order of the Board in session this 18th day of May, 1907.

R. A. RASCO, President.
G. L. SPEER, Secretary.

THE SMILE that won't come off, appears on baby's face after one bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge, the great worm medicine. Why not keep that smile on baby's face. If you keep this medicine on hand you will never see anything else but smiles on his face. Mrs. S—, Blackwel, Okla., writes:

"My baby was peevish and fretful. Would not eat and I feared he would die. I used a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and he has not had a sick day since. Sold by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Cooper.

There will be a joint picnic between the Masons and Odd Fellows at Cooper, July 17, 1907. Both sides will be represented by prominent speakers. The Masons will publicly install officers. There will be music together with other amusements that will be well worth your while. Everybody invited to come and bring a basket full of something good to eat

Editor Banner—

As I have been a subscriber to your paper for several years and have only written you a few times, I will make mine short and ask for a small space, if you are not crowded with something that is of more importance to the public, than my remarks.

I want to confine my remarks mainly to the condition of the crops in this part of the country. The people have had some fine weather for farm work since June, and they have made good use of it. Crops are generally cleaned out, but they are very small for the time of year; my opinion is that there won't be more than 40 per cent of a crop in this part. I have been told by good men that the crops are better in this section than anywhere from Decatur to Birmingham. I am sorry for the rest, for there are cotton fields here that I honestly believe will not make enough to pay for the guano, while there is a few that I believe will make half crop. Corn is tolerably good, though we are needing some rain now and I think it is coming in the near future for it is thundering now.

Well, as for myself, I would be glad for the correspondents to tell more about their crops and less visiting, though that may suit some better than crop reports, but I think if we would adopt a plan of crop reports, our paper would be of more interest, for we, as farmers, would always be glad to hear from our brother farmer and the conditions of the crops in his neighborhood.

For fear my letter will be too long I will close for this time. Success to the Banner and its readers.

IMMIGRANTS HAVE RESTRICTIONS ON THEM

Placed by New Laws Which Went in Effect July 1.

HEAD TAX RAISED TO $4.00

Companies Are Subject to Fine for Bringing the Undesirable Ones—Women of Immoral Character to be Deported.

Washington.—The new immigration laws placing numerous restrictions upon the incoming of undesirable foreigners went into effect July 1. The most important change brought about by these acts, which congress passed in February, is the increase of the head tax from $2 to $4, with the provision that all over $2,000,000 of the revenue so derived will revert to the United States treasury, instead of being entirely devoted to the uses of the immibration bureau. In so much as the immigration for the past two years has been over 1,000,000 annually, the income to the government from this source will be considerable.

Another change makes the steamship companies subject to a fine of $100 for transporting physically or mentally defective immigrants, or those afflicted with loathsome or contagious diseases.

The law further provides for deportation of women found to be leading immoral lives within three years after their arrival. The immigration officials are also empowered to arrest those who harbor women of this character, and fixes a fine of $500 and imprisonment for five years in the event of conviction for such offenses.

Kentuckians to Have Gas.

Glasgow, Ky.—From present indications Hardin county, or a part of it at least, will soon enjoy the luxury of natural gas. While sinking a well for water on the Hedden farm, about six miles east of Elizabethtown, J. R. Grinstead struck gas at a depth of about 100 feet after going most of the North Boone, has sold his wife and two children for $12.50. Hammerstein left home two months ago, going to Fort Deming. On returning last week he found that in his absence his wife had gone to live with Burt Hanes, taking her two children with her. Hammerstein sued Hanes for $5,000 ,but the two agreed that Hanes should pay Hammerstein $12.50 and keep the woman and her family. This was satisfactory to Mrs. Hammerstein, and the transfer was drawn up, signed and properly executed.

Public Service Law in Effect.

Albany, N. Y.—The new state public service commissioners have formally assumed the duties of their offices and organized. The first district, or New York, commission, met in New York City, and the up-state committee in Albany. The public service law went into effect July 1. It abolishes the state board of railroad commissioners, the state commission of gas and electricity, the state inspector of gas meters and the New York City board of Rapid Transit railroad commissioners.

Mississippi Exposition.

Jackson, Miss.—Manager McKay, of the Mississippi exposition, states that the fair here this fall is going to surpass anything in that line that was ever attempted in the state, and that he is in daily receipt of applications for space. Work will begin in a few days on the big exposition building that is to be erected and used in place of using the old capitol, which has become so dilapidated that the crowds are afraid to go there in large numbers.

Women Save a Reservoir.

Laramie, Wyo.—The destruction of Wheatland reservoir, the largest body of official water in the state, has been prevented by Mrs. M. J. Reed and three young women, who worked all night, from breaking. They used 11 wagonloads of hay, and shoveled much dirt into the crevasse, preventing a break until men arrived in the morning and completed the work of repairing the dam.

Worked Over Eight Hours.

Dallas, Tex.—Federal officials have arrested Contractor D. C. McCord, who is building Trinity river lock and dam, on the charge of working his men more than eight hours a day. It is charged that the contractor worked the men nine hours during the month of February, contrary to the federal statutes. The defendant gave bond, and will fight the case.

Francis Murphy Dead.

Los Angeles.—Francis Murphy, the temperance lecturer, died, following a long illness and general collapse.

Strike Breakers Again.

San Francisco.—The first installment of strike-breakers to take the places of the telegraph operators now on strike in this city reached San Francisco, and will be put to work in the main offices.

$764,000 Gold on Steamer.

New York.—The steamer La Touraine, which arrived from Havre, has brought $764,000 in gold.

UNIONS HELD FOR DAMAGE DONE

Printer Expelled From Seattle Organization Recovers.

Seattle, Wash.—Though not incorporated, labor unions may be held responsible for damages inflicted as organizations, according to the ruling in the federal district court here Saturday. The question was raised in the suit of D. E. Johnson, a printer, who was awarded $3,500 damages against Seattle Typographical Union No. 22.

Johnson was expelled from the Seattle union for an infraction of the rules. By reason of his status he was forced to surrender a good position, and was unable to obtain work in Seattle. As a result, he went to Los Angeles and obtained work in a non-union office. Johnson considered himself humiliated and damaged to such a degree that he sued the union for $3,500 damages.

The suit was resisted on the sole ground that the union was not incorporated. The defendants also demurred to individual suits on the ground that an organization was the offender.

COUNT NIGRA DEAD.

Dean of the Italian Diplomatic Service Passes Away.

Rome.—Count Constantine Nigra, dean of the Italian diplomats, is dead. He was born in 1828, served as a volunteer in the war against Austria in 1848, and was secretary of Count Cavour at the congress of Paris in 1856.

Subsequently he was appointed minister to Sardenia, and later of Italy at Paris, and September 4, 1870, he was one of the small number of friends of the court who gathered at the Tuilleries for the protection of Empress Eugenie, whom he did not leave until she was safe out of Paris.

In 1876 Count Nifira was appointed ambassador at St. Petersburg, in 1882 he represented Italy at the court of St. James, and in 1887 he was appointed ambassador to Austria, which post he held until 1903. Recently the count had been suffering from pneumonia; and the ex-empress of France, recalling the count's devotion to her in 1870, made inquiries regarding him.

SWEPT BY BOILING WATER.

Fourteen Bodies Found Among the Steaming Debris.

Valparaiso, Chile.—A volcano which has appeared in La Union district of the province of Valdevia stopped the course of the Papasuin river with an immense stone dam. An extensive lake soon formed, the waters of which filled the valley up to the crater. Soon after the water began to boil, and as it continued to rise its pressure swept the dam away, inundating the neighboring country. Everything living was killed. Fourteen corpses have been found among the steaming debris.

Died on Time.

Wooster, O.—Benjamin F. Zercher, aged 80, the wealthiest land owner and farmer in Wayne county, died on Sunday night. Zercher six months ago, although in excellent health, told his family he was going to die within six months, and as he did not want his heirs to have trouble over certain property, gave each of the four children living and two grandchildren lands and cash to the value of $20,000 each.

Nine New Furnaces.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Perhaps the most controlling feature in the American iron and steel situation will prove to be that during the first half of this year absolutely new blast furnaces have been blown in to the number of nine, with an annual output of 1,260,000 tons, equal to just 5 per cent. of last year's output, while new furnaces are stil lbeing built with a capacity of nearly 4,000,000 tons.

Noted Sculptress Dead.

Austin, Tex.—Miss Elizabeth Ney, the famous sculptress, known throughout Europe and the United States, and at one time most prominent among the ladies of the royal families of Germany, died here of heart failure. She has been living here quietly for the past ten or twelve years. The remains will be interred in the family burying grounds near Hempstead.

Seeks Missing Link.

Batavia, Java.—Another expedition to discover the long sought "missing link" between mankind and the monkey will start from here soon. Dr. Max Moskewski, the distinguished German scientist, will head the expedition. The expedition is financed by the Dutch government. Moskewski will begin excavations in the valley of the Selo river, and will continue his search for a year.

All Records Broken.

Superior, Wis.—The Missabe ore docks at West Duluth last month broke all former records for shipping iron ore, their total being 2,154,968 tons.

Boycott French Elections.

Besiers, France.—The committees appointed to investigate the recent rebellion of the troops, and of the wine-growers, have both resigned.

GOOD FELLOWS ALL, AND EQUALS, AT ONE COLLEGE

Princeton University to Adopt a Radical Plan of Social Democracy, Doing Away With the Individual Clubs--Live and Eat Together at Residential Quads--Present Club Life, Says President Wilson, is Demoralizing and Unwholesome.

Princeton, N. J.—President Woodrow Wilson has just instituted a most radical and complete reorganization of social life at Princeton University—one that marks a departure from the other big universities and which will be studied with deep interest as to its working out.

In brief, it aims to absorb the various college clubs into what are termed "Residential Quads," where there shall be good fellowship and closer intimacy between faculty, upper class men and "freshies."

The system will establish a real democracy, with each "Quad" occupying dormitories, dining rooms and rooms for social enjoyment in common. Instead of the rivalry and bitter feeling engendered by club elections and rejections, there will be unity and a desire for the common good—true loyalty to the university.

President Wilson in one phrase summarizes the plan: "To associate the four classes in a generally organic manner and make of the university a real social body, to the exclusion of cliques and separate class social organizations to give to the university the kind of common consciousness which apparently comes from the closer sort of social contact, to be had only outside the classroom, and most easily to be got about a common table, and in the contacts of a common life."

The Board of Trustees of the university have adopted the main parts embodied in the plan and it will probably be put into effect shortly.

Club life, as it exists to-day at the university, is demoralizing, says President Wilson, "not because there is in the clubs any cynical indifference to study, but because the social activities into which their members are naturally and inevitably drawn are very many and very delightful and very engrossing, and study has to take its chance in competition with them.

"These influences," he continued, "are splitting classes into factions and endangering that class spirit upon which we depend for our self-government and for the transmission of most of the loyal impulses of the university. The 'politics' of candidacy for membership in the upper class club not only produce a constant and very demoralizing distraction from university duties in freshman and sophomore years, and inforce all sorts of questionable customs, but they cut deeper even than that.

"Group rivalries break the solidarity of the classes. The younger classes are at no point made conscious of the interests of the university; their whole thought is concentrated upon individual ambitions, upon means of preference, upon combinations to obtain selfish individual ends. They strive against this when they become juniors and seniors, but they do not strive against it successfully, and when they are freshmen and sophomores they do not strive against it at all.

"The present system of our life is artificial and unwholesome."

COLLEGE SWEETHEARTS TELL WHY THEY LOVE

Dr. Hall Finds Eyes, Hair, Size, and Even Feet, Are Chief Among Attractions--Race Suicide Because College Woman Fail to Marry.

Boston, Mass.—Precisely what it is—what attribute or physical characteristic—in the youth or maiden, the man or woman, that most attracts one of the opposite sex, is a problem of which Dr. G. Stanley Hall, professor of psychology in and president of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., has set out to find the solution. To this end he has taken a census of young lovers, with a view to learning what in each case has most endeared to him or her the particular object of their affection.

It was Dr. Hall who recently declared fifty per cent. of college women failed to marry, thus contributing to race suicide. The complete result of this census of lovers Dr. Hall has not yet given to the public, but he has made known an abstract of what he has learned. With hundreds of lovers heard from Dr. Hall states that the characteristics specified by them are, in the order of their frequency, as follows:

Eyes, hair, size or stature, feet, brows, complexion, cheeks, form of head, throat, ears, chin, hands, neck, nose, finger nails and contour of face.

Which is to say that more of those lovers interrogated have found the loved one's eyes or hair the chief attraction than anything else.

The women replying to Dr. Hall's questions have also specified these charms in the men they loved best:

Regular teeth, broad shoulders and white teeth, and most popular among the men have been long lashes and arched brows.

According to some of those replying, a retrousse nose, freckles and a long neck have been the chief charms.

The voice cuts an important figure among the charms. With some it is a high voice; with others, a low voice. Even a lisp has been stated as a charm. Laughter, carriage, gait, gesture, movements of the eye, pose of head and shoulders have also been specified in the replies.

COLLEGE GIRLS AGREE NOT TO WED POOR MEN

Indiana Maidens Organize to Insist on Husbands Having at Least $4000 --Swains Must Furnish Documentary Proof.

Columbia, Ind. — Young college women in Columbia, Jasonville and Hymera have formed what they call the "Young Ladies' Protective Societies," and plan to establish branches all over the States.

The members will insist on knowing how prospective husbands are fixed financially, and will refuse to be courted by young men who cannot furnish a satisfactory rating.

The young man who would woo a member of the society must furnish documentary proof that he has goods and chattels to the value of $2000, and carries a life insurance policy for at least $2000. With $2000 in available assets and $2000 in futures, the Y. L. P. S. girls will pay attention to proposals.

Indians Delight in Inflicting Self Torture

Shoshones Did Not Give Up the Sun Dance and Its Cruelties Government Interfered—Ceremony Lasts For Three Days and Participants Go Without Food or Sleep During the Entire Period.

The National Government has put a stop to the sun dances by the Shoshone Indians, writes the Lander (Wyoming) correspondent of the New York World. With the giving up of this cruel, barbarous, grotesque ceremony, which the savages regarded as religious, the Shoshones have taken another unwilling step in their enforced march toward civilization. They would retrace it if they could. The terrible physical tortures the sun dance involved were as nothing to them compared with the spiritual delights afforded them.

An Indian cannot live without something in the nature of a religious ceremony which is alike grotesque and disquieting. The Winnebagoes over in Nebraska, surrounded with churches, schools and all the other things that go to make up civilization, have formed a society which imposes upon its members the drinking of mescal, a drug far more hurtful in its effects than morphine, as a religious duty. The Shoshones may not introduce a mescal as a substitute for the sun dance, yet there is no telling what they may do in the name of religion.

The Indians believed firmly that by dancing this dance they worshiped and propitiated the Great Spirit, procured through the favor of that spirit an abundance of rain and bountiful crops, and won the rare privilege of seeing and communing with the spirits of relatives and friends who had gone to the happy hunting grounds. It was by this means, too, that bucks were converted into warriors, and that other objects dear to the heart of an Indian were achieved.

Endurance of Indians.

No one but a fanatical savage could dance the sun dance, for no sane, civilized human being could muster the physical strength begotten of religious frenzy to go through it. Think of dancing three days and three nights without food or drink! Think of running long strips of tanned deer hide under the big pectoral muscles covering the front of your chest, tying the ends of them to a big pole and then throwing your body back with such force as to tear them out through those muscles! That is wnat the sun-dancer did.

A sun dance takes place in a round inclosure about thirty feet in diameter, with a big pole in the centre of it. On the top of this pole is fastened the head of a dead buffalo. It is to this buffalo head that the dancers look and pray for strength to go through the three days' ordeal involved in the dance. The Indians dance around the pole for three days and three nights if their strength holds out that long.

The dance goes forward to the monotonous beating of a tom-tom. Each dancer has a little whistle, which he blows constantly for some inscrutable purpose while he is dancing. The savages dance back and forth between the outer edge of the inclosure and the pole in the centre of it. Whenever one of them get so weak that he can stand no longer without support he lays hold upon the pole and, looking up beseechingly to the buffalo head, prays fervently to it for renewed strength.

He stands there in his paint and feathers clinging to the pole for support and praying to the buffalo head for renewed strength until he is able to go on with the dance again. He has a firm and unalterable faith that the buffalo head possesses power to answer his prayer, and he makes his supplication to the poor inanimate thing with all the earnestness and eloquence of which he is capable.

Before the dance begins those assigned to take part in it, who are not already warriors—the young bucks who have not yet won their spurs—run the strips of tanned deer hide under the muscles covering the front of their chests and, by throwing their bodies back, tear those strips out through those muscles.

The young buck who inflicts this punishment upon himself becomes thereby a full-fledged warrior and is recognized and honored as such from that time forward.

The sun dancers pray to the buffalo head not only for strength for themselves, but for rain and bountiful crops, as well as for all blessings in whatever kind. Among other things they pray that they may be granted the inestimable privilege of seeing

EATING IN PUBLIC.

The Varied Sorrows of the Critical Man Who Dines Out.

What chance has the diner out of being completely happy? The mere actions of eating and drinking are neither pretty nor conducive to showing people at their best. It is really a most uncouth sight to see a man or a woman stoking food. The necessity of being polite at the same time makes it uncomfortable as well. No sooner have you got into conversation with a pleasant woman than the soup in your mustache stops all inspiration. She despises you for your play with your napkin, and your mustache is out of shape. And who can feel that the evening is going to be what he hoped for when he realizes that his shirt front is smirched with some relic of the meal?

Indeed, dinner parties are really a struggle between eating and talking, a struggle which does not always end, as do most things, in the survival of the fittest. Occasionally an Indian has the strength to carry him through three days' and three nights' dance without food or drink, but in most instances the savages are unable to stay on their feet and keep up the dance to the end of the religious ceremony.

When the dance is ended those who have gone through it in all their weak and shockingly emaciated state are taken to their tepees or into the log shanties on the reservation, are nursed back to strength and life. Some of them never get well, and deaths from consumption and a hundred diseases have resulted in this dance.

On the whole the Shoshones, who for years have lived on the reservation in Wyoming, a territory which was recently ceded to the government, has just been thrown open to settlement, are a quiet, peaceful and fairly moral and intelligent race of Indians. There has been no outbreak among them of late years. They are on friendly terms with their white neighbors, and they get on without serious trouble with the Arapahoes who occupy the diminished reservation with them.

In the matter of thrift they are Indians through and through, and the present indications ever will be that they have been allotted farms which they are supposed to work them, but they are too lazy to do so. In this respect the Arapahoes are little if any better than they are.

Rev. Coolidge an Arapaho.

The most interesting character on the Shoshone reservation is the Rev. Sherman Coolidge, the full-blood Arapahoe, who a number of years ago took to wife Miss Grace Willard of New York.

Coolidge has set a good example to the other Indians by pursuing the arts of peace, assuming the habits and customs of the whites, working his little farm when not working in the vineyard of the Lord, and living a sober, godly and righteous life. For years he has conducted the Episcopal mission on the reservation, his work of administering to the spiritual needs of those of his people who have embraced the Episcopal faith and of seeking to convert others to that faith, he has been zealous and efficiently assisted by his estimable wife.

Coolidge is looked upon by the whites as a rather heavy, unimaginative and not over-ambitious fellow, who has done not a little to uplift his people morally and spiritually, and to improve their condition physically and mentally.

Coolidge was adopted in babyhood by a Captain Coolidge, of the regular army, who educated him at Seabury Theological School at Faribault, Minn., and sent him down to do missionary work among the benighted people. He fell in love with the woman who is now his wife the first time he saw her, and she fell in love with him at the same time.

They first met at the home of an Indian trader here, and some time after presented themselves at the home of the Rev. Mr. Roberts, where for a quarter of a century he conducted an Episcopal mission among the Shoshone reservation, and persuaded him to make them husband and wife. Her parents were known to be bitterly opposed to the match, and on various objections to the marriage the missionary refused to perform the marriage ceremony, but he soon changed his mind and united them.

Ever since they have lived happily together among the Indians on the reservation, the husband continuing his Episcopal mission and working his little farm, and his wife assisting him diligently and faithfully in his labors. While he has the dark complexion and the features of an Indian he dresses, talks and lives like the white folk do. Mrs. Coolidge has the pride or taste in dress, and her apparel is a composite of that worn by white woman and an Indian squaw, and to see her on the reservation a stranger would never suspect that she had been reared and educated in New York, and was the daughter of a prominent hotel manager there.

4,258,830 WOMEN WORK.

They Have Invaded All But Nine Occupations.

Women at work in the United States is the subject of a report issued by the Census Bureau based on the returns in 1900. In that year in continental United States the total number of women 16 years of age and over was 22,485,559, while those at work numbered 4,832,630. Most of the women at work were young, 63.4 per cent. being under 25 years of age; 44.2 per cent. under 22, and 25.6 per cent. had not reached the age of 21; 15.9 per cent. were married, 17.7 per cent. were widows, and 1.3 per cent. were divorced.

The number of divorced women returned by the census, the report says, is probably deficient, because the fact of divorce is not always admitted. Of the number reported divorced, 55.3 per cent. were supporting themselves wholly or in part. The total number of women at work included 1,771,966 native white women, whose parents also were natives; 1,099,744 native white women, one or both of whose parents were immigrants; 840,011 white women, who were themselves immigrants; 1,119,621 negro women, and 11,238 Indian and Mongolian women.

The number of women at work more than doubled in the twenty years from 1880 to 1900, and there was a noticeable increase of bread winners among married women in 1900 as compared with 1890. Women were represented in all but nine of the 309 occupations in which bread winners of the country were engaged.

The returns showed, among other things, that five females were employed as pilots; on steam railroads 10 were employed as baggagemen, 31 as brakemen, 7 as conductors, 45 as engineers and firemen, and 26 as switchmen, yardmen and flagmen; 43 were carriage and hack drivers, 6 ship carpenters, 2 roofers and slaters, 185 blacksmiths, 508 machinists, 8 boilermakers, 31 charcoal, coke and limeburners and 11 were borers. Two women were reported as "motormen."

Almost one-fourth of the total number of women at work were servants, 456,405 were farm laborers, 96.8 per cent. of whom were from the Southern States, and 361,804 were negroes. There were 338,144 dressmakers, 327,206 teachers, 328,933 laundresses, 307,706 farmers, 231,458 textile mill operatives and 146,929 housekeepers and stewardesses.

Collectors Learn Geography.

The average person who, through ignorance, is disposed to regard with compassion the harmless and, to him, useless hobby of the stamp collector, will no doubt be surprised to discover how much of interest and instruction there is in the pursuit of stamp collecting. You will invariably find that the schoolboy who is also a "stamp fiend" knows more of the geography of the various countries, their rulers and distinguished citizens, than any other pupil in the class.—St. Nicholas.

Surgeons Provided New Eyelids.

The operation proved successful, and after being unable to close his eyes for several months, he is now able to do so. Zimmerman has no eyelashes for the surgeons couldn't supply them.—Kansas City Times.

To Europe in Three Days.

At the last meeting of the Select Committee of the House of Commons a unanimous decision was reached in regard to the Collooney, Ballina and Belmullet Railway and Piers bill. The bill is important in respect that it is a small part of the scheme promoted at an estimated cost of about £5,000,000 for running a new fast transatlantic service from Blacksod Bay to Halifax. The promoters contemplate putting on three fast turbine steamers, each estimated to cost £90,000, and by adopting this route it is claimed that the journey to Halifax would be reduced to three and a half days, with a proportional reduction to either places in Canada, and by means of the Canadian Pacific Railway a shorter route would also be provided to China, Japan and Australia.

FORTUNES OF THE FUTURE.

Will Be Gained by Harnessing Water, Wind and Sunshine.

"It is not gold, silver nor copper—no, nor diamonds, either—that will make the great fortunes of the future. It is the hidden power in the air, the water and the sunshine, which will build up the wealth of the next few centuries."

This statement was made not long ago by a mining engineer of world-wide reputation. The value of water power, wind power and sun power as commercial factors is indeed just beginning to be realized. It is estimated that throughout the world about 2,000,000 electrical horse-power is generated today from waterfalls and streams. More than one-quarter of this great horse-power is generated in the United States, with Canada second and Switzerland third.

At the lowest estimate it would require some 25,000,000 tons of coal to generate 2,000,000 horse-power continuously by the ordinary steam engine, and allowing $5 a ton for the cost of coal, this would represent a saving of $125,000,000. There are thousands of streams capable of producing from 100 to 50,000 or more horse-power; a few others, like Niagara, the Victoria Falls in South Africa and innumerable falls of the Mississippi, the Colorado and the Missouri, with powers in this direction that seem unlimited. If every part of the mighty torrent of Niagara was harnessed it would easily generate sufficient electrical power to do all the work of this country. But Niagara is no greater than Victoria Falls, in the heart of Africa—some say, not so great in its unmeasured possibilities.

The value of a stream for power purposes depends upon the amount of water flowing and also upon its head—that is, the height of its fall, whether in a sudden cataract, or in rushing down a slope; and so the small mountain stream which tumbles noisily down steep slopes and gullies is often worth more than the broad, sluggish river that flows through low, level stretches of country. One cubic foot of water a second day equal in energy the total stored energy of many tons of coal. What is even more wonderful, a stream can be made to operate an electrical pump which in turn will pump the stream itself to levels where ordinary irrigation ditches could not conduct it. In other words, the water could be used twice, first for generating electric power, and second for irrigating our farms. Electricity could be made to light and heat the homes of the city and country population and run the threshing machines and reapers of the farmer, as well as turn the wheels of the cars and factories.

The use of wind power for mechanical purposes is older than that of any other. But a windmill for electrical generation is one of the most recent of accomplishments. The first windmill electric plant ever installed in this or any other country was built privately by Dr. Charles F. Brush, the inventor of the arc lamp, in 1889 at his home in Cleveland for the purpose of lighting his house and laboratory. In Europe commercial windmill electrical plants have been built. One such plant, established at Wittkell, in Schleswig, lights the town, and another windmill plant at Hamburg has been successfully used in running a factory. A windmill electric plant at Boyle Hall, Ardsley, in England, has a capacity for running 110 lights in winter.—St. Nicholas.

The Indian Chief's Name.

Former Judge Fred L. Taft, while on a Southern trip from which he returned the other day, went down to a little six-year-old town in Indian Territory to attend the dedication of a $200,000 Masonic Temple.

He found that a number of the thirty-second degree Masons were Indians—real Indians. One of these, a prominent officer of the lodge, is the chief of the Chickasaw Indians.

The Cleveland jurist was introduced to the great chief, but didn't catch his name. Later, when he found opportunity, he asked the chief his name, begging his pardon for not catching it the first time. He expected to hear it was Standing Cow, Dust in the face, or some such cognomen, but it wasn't.

"My name is Johnson," said the big chief."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Fourth Dimension.

The report that T. B. Murdock will sell his paper and leave Eldorado is not true. He says in the Eldorado Republican:

"It is announced that I am to leave Eldorado and engage in the newspaper business in a wider field. This is the first I have heard of it. Eldorado is long enough, wide enough, broad enough, and thick enough for me, and when I leave the town it will be for the boneyard.

Birds' Wages.

In the garden there are a thousand small offenders that he who tills the soil for pleasure would willingly forgive. If it be granted that the thrush and the blackbird steal a certain amount of fruit, still their presence is so beautiful and their song so sweet that what they take may gladly be accorded as wages.—Country Life.

Art of Conversation.

Conversation, as a fine art, is more difficult only in the sense in which life is more difficult, and proportionately more worth having. Its supreme success demands nowadays in the proficient a wider view of things, a more delicate sense of proportion, greater social genius, sympathy, and self-restraint than ever.—Guardian.

Servants' Paradise.

If domestic servants had every night out and two half-holidays in the week, domestic service might come to be the most popular, as it is probably the best paid of any form of women's work.—Review of Reviews.

Probably no man in Maine has held a town office longer than J. Q. A. Butts, of Canaan, who died recently, after fifty-two years' continuous service as town clerk.

An Accommodating Peg.

One of the disadvantages of modern shipbuilding machinery is that the peg won't fit itself into the hole. Time was, according to Mayor H. F. Brown, of Marlboro, when it was much more accommodating.

"One day," he recently informed the Boat and Blow Club, "my father, a pioneer in the business, hit the peg and it flew up. What happened? Probably you won't believe me, but it's a fact all the same. The peg hit the ceiling, came down exactly into the hole and was driven in. But, you know," added Mayor Brown, with a smile, "we don't peg shoes that way nowadays."—Boston Herald.

The Manatee.

A few years ago the manatee was thought to be near extinction, now it is often seen and is increasing. I am personally acquainted with about fifty specimens, a fair proportion of which are calves. Their shyness protects them from the rifle of the tourist. A heavy penalty for the wanton destruction of the manatee deters some, and just a germ of public sentiment on the coast restrains others from seeking to kill them.—Century.

Pure White Lead is the Natural Paint Pigment

Numerous compounds are being offered to take the place of white lead as a paint, but no real substitute for it has yet been found. Pure White Lead has a peculiar property of amalgamating with the wood upon which it is used—added to this it has an elasticity which permits the paint to follow the natural expansion and contraction of the wood. Pure White Lead (with its full natural tenacity and elasticity, unimpaired by adulterants), alone fulfills all the requirements of the ideal paint. Every keg which bears the Dutch Boy trade mark is positively guaranteed to be absolutely Pure White Lead made by the Old Dutch Process.

SCHOOL LIFE.

It is generally supposed that the school age is the happiest period of one's life. Take the rosy-faced school boys and girls. Don't they seem the very picture of happiness and content? They grow in knowledge as they grow in years, and when they near the age that brings their school days to a close, they look forward to the coming with sadness and regret, but then, when school days are over, we look back to them as the happiest of life.

It is pleasant to be in each other's society while in school, and to tell each other our pretty little troubles. Not only is it a pleasure to the children to be in school, but it is also a pleasure to the parents to think they are giving their children something that no one can take away from them

We should always strive to win each other's love and confidence, and after we have them won, we should live so as to keep them, for it is in school as it is anywhere else. We feel happier and more able to cope with our most difficult lessons when we are all on lovable terms.

There are many pleasures of school life. The pleasure of being in one another's company is an agreeable one. We have an opportunity of gaining an insight into one another's lives. Some of the best and firmest friendships that have ever been known have been formed during school days. We should try at all times to live a straight, honest, christian life before each other in schooll. The little ones always try to imitate the actions of the larger scholars, then how important it is that we should exert our influence for good while in school, and at all other times as well, for it is much easier for a teacher to control a school if the scholors will all live to make one another happy, and not always be in a quarrel. We can make our school life one of pleasure and success, or we can make it a complete failure.

I will ring off wishing the Banner success. BONNIE ROSE.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Dr. P. I. Hopkins, who returned from the Jamestown Exposition a few days ago, says the Exposition is well worth a visit, and that everything is complete. The ocean looks remarkably well after a trip and makes one think a sea journey would be delightful.

Shoults.

Well, Mr. Editor, as one of our correspondents wanted to hear more about the crops and not so much about visiting, I will say that in this section are looking fine compared with what they did a few weeks ago; cotton is late and small; some corn is looking fine, some not so. C. T. Walker was first to report having cotton chopped by the Fourth of this section.

I am told that there is talk of Maplesville having a dispensary. God forbid that Maplesville or any other town should have a dispensary. Some of the leading men of the country claim that dispensary will build up a town. God forbid that my boys should be raised up in a town that has a dispensary. Why," says Mr. A, "I thought you drank whiskey." So I may, but does Mr. A suppose I want my boys to live a bad life because I have lived a bad life? If the good people of Maplesville want to build up their town, if they will keep out the dispensary and take out the whiskey that is already there, and let God would have them live, Maplesville will build up itself. If the men in Maplesville who are daily breaking the laws of our country, but breaking the laws of Whiskey is the cause of it. The good women of Maplesville have toted a sad and heavy load and whiskey was the cause of it. Ah," says Mr. A, "we are going to have a dispensary so as to get away with the blind tiger." Well, Mr. A, if I have got to have one of the two, dispensary or tiger, I choose the tiger; my boy is not afraid of the tiger, but the tiger is afraid of the boy. Maplesville can get rid of the tigers if they want to, and the town or country is just what the people make it. Poverty Ridge is a tiger, we are going to get rid of him as soon as we can find a man that has got backbone enough to throw the lasso. BIG IKE.

Cow came up one night without milk. As soon as my wife missed that someone was milking her in the woods, said I to her, I am going to catch that scoundrel and see that is milking that cow, so I went on this way for two or three nights until this happened the third night so I was getting powerful mad at someone, I didn't know who. The next day being Sunday, some people set aside to attend little business instead of going to Sunday school, I put off at home and said to myself, I will see who milks you to-day. So I watched the cow until late in the evening I thought of my grandmother telling me when I was a little boy about a large snake taking milk from his neighbor's cow, in Georgia. (You see all such things happen in Georgia.) I followed after the cow, looking for large snake to come an milk her. When we got home, the cow went up near the cow pen, and I saw a stuck its head out through a crack in the fence. I said to myself, I'll see what's up to. The cow didnot stay long before she sidled up to the fence, and bless me, Mr. Editor, if I had not been there, that calf would have got every drop of milk the cow had in this. On Monday morning I heard over that large crack have not been wrongfully with my neighbor from that time. BIG IKE.

(You see all such things happen in Georgia.) I followed after the cow, looking for a large snake to come an milk her. When we got home, the cow was up near the cow pen, and I could stuck its head out through a small crack in the fence. I said to myself, I'll see what's going up to. The cow didnot stand there long before she sidled up close to the fence, and bless your soul, Mr. Editor, if I had not been right there, that calf would have taken every drop of milk the cow had. On Monday morning I put a board over that large crack and have not been wrongfully accused of my neighbor from that day till this. BIG IKE.

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because OUR RECORD IS CLEAN, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then OUR POLICY is as liberal as is consistent with security; we are accommodating but prudent.

We ask your consideration.

Billingsley.

The Masonic dinner here Saturday was a success. Everything passed off quietly and seemed to be enjoyed by all. The most important event of the day was the public installation of officers for the ensuing year.

Misses Ruby and Elayne Parker returned Saturday from a lengthy visit to friends and relatives at Wetumpka.

Miss Alice Broadhead of Stanton is visiting relatives here.

Miss Josie Mae Marlar returned Wednesday from Livingston where she has been attending the Alabama Normal College.

Prof. and Mrs. W. P. Patillo and Mrs. H. A. Askins attended the Moody-Patillo wedding at Panther last week. They returned Monday, accompanied by the bride and groom; Mr. and Mrs. Cato Patillo, who will spend a few days here.

Mrs. J. E. Felton spent last week in Montgomery.

Dr. A. J. Marlar made a business trip to Prattville last week.

Mr. Z. Houlditch spent a few days with his family here this week.

W. A. Gaudy went to Prattville on business this week.

The Sunday schools and prayer meetings are progressing nicely.

The protracted meeting begins at the Methodist church, the fourth Sunday.

There will be preaching at the Baptist church next Sunday and Sunday night.

With best wishes I bid you all "adiose." A SUBSCRIBER.

Health of community is very good at present.

The people are progressing nicely with their crops. I guess we will be delayed fishing on account of the big rain.

I see the dispensary is still running. I have just been thinking that the dispensary man would sympathize with the broken hearted mothers and fathers and refuse to be open another day, but he's still selling just the same. I suppose he's only after more money.

"For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows. 1 Tim. 6:10. Clanton is the only progressive little city in our county and are we going to let the drunkards and paupers and luggards take the place? Now, if the dispensary act is repealed in the coming session of the legislature, are we going to let Mr. Blind Tiger regain his seat on the throne? I say no. We must drive him out and bury him in the swamps.

This week brought a few more people in town than common. Twenty-six of us took the teacher's examination. I earnestly hope all have succeeded in getting license, for all have worked true and faithful.

I close with best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

The people in this community are having a nice time finishing their crops; the crops in general look very well; cotton is growing and looking better, but no stand.

The health of the people is very good, only a few cases of measles and more expecting to take them.

Ice cream is being served very often among the people.

Our Sunday school is going on very nice; we think Mr. McAfee one of the best superintendents.

Mr. Ed Ellis and sister, Miss Rosie, spent Sunday evening at Mr. Williams'.

Misses Lena and Willie Walker spent Sunday at Mr. Eugene McGees'; also Misses Bessie and Eva Hall.

Misses Ruzella and Stella Broadhead attended the singing at Friendship, Sunday.

Mr. J. O. Mize, wife and stepmother spent the Fourth at Mr. Jeffersons' and report a nice time.

Long Live The King!

is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the cry of the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery, King of Throat and Lung Remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Ryder Paine, Turo, Mass., says: "It never fails to give immediate relief and to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throats after all other remedies have failed; and for coughs and colds it's the proven remedy. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co. 50c and $1.00. The Doctor Away from Home when Most Needed.

People are often very much disappointed to find that their family physician is away from home when they most need his services. Diseases like cramp colic and cholera morbus require prompt treatment, and have in many instances proven fatal before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. The right way is to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. No physician can prescribe a better medicine for these diseases. By having it in the house you escape much pain and suffering and all risk. Buy it now; it may save life. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALABAMA.

"An old subscriber writes us to know what a married couple can live comfortably on," said the stenographer. "Tell her a thousand a year more than they have," added the correspondence editor wisely. Thus Life jokes about so serious a subject.

The chief reason for rotation of crops is that land may recuperate, but one serious objection to planting the same ground year after year to the same crop is that the insects and diseases affecting the crop attack it each succeeding year with increased force.

There is a cry in all callings throughout this country for diligence and skill. It has been said that there is plenty of room at the top. Professor James C. Monahan has enlarged the opportunity suggested in that thought by his epigrammatic amendment: There is no top.

A swindler has been arrested in Germany on the strength of the description that he looked like a certain cartoon in a comic weekly which was widely distributed by the police. A man who would look like a German cartoon deserves no better fate, avers the unsympathetic New York Tribune.

So thoroughly recognized are the higher attributes of life in this country that it is becoming a reproach to be merely a financial success, declares the New York American. A millionaire must do something in addition to multiplying his millions if he cares to stand well in the estimation of the people.

Remarks the Pittsburg Leader: The greatest drain that is upon the purse of the people to-day, the greatest economic loss that the country suffers, comes from tuberculosis. True economy in government would be found in the liberal expenditure of money for stamping out the plague, and the day is coming when this fact will be recognized.

Here is a wail from the London Rural World that sounds very American in its tone: "The old skilled race of agricultural laborers is fast disappearing from the country, and there are no young men coming on to take the place of the elders when they are gone." A remedy suggested by our contemporary is organized instruction in thatching, hedging, ditching, etc., but this is regarded as only a makeshift, and ownership of the soil is pointed out as the only permanent cure.

Like anything new in any line, automobiles have been blamed for a great many things for which they were really in no way to blame, but while an optician of Toledo has charged automobiling with being directly responsible for a certain kind of trouble, he adds that the pursuit of the sport will bring a cure for the trouble. He has asserted that the air pressure against the eyeballs of motorists is extremely irritating, and unless the eyes of drivers and passengers in open body cars are protected by goggles they are liable to be injured. He says, however, that nature will come to its own rescue as automobiling grows in universal approval and that it will provide tougher and harder eyeball muscles than have existed in the past.

Says Harper's Weekly: We Americans are very callous about our annual list of the dead and wounded travelers and railroad employes. The minor casualties make little impression on the public mind, though they count up in the annual total. The big accidents are more effective in jolting our sensibilities, and of these there have been so many of late that travelers' nerves are unusually sensitive. The railroads have the strongest possible motives for avoiding accidents. Shifts that result in dead passengers and wrecked machinery save neither time nor money. How our railroad mortality is to be reduced is a question for our railroad experts to solve. And it must be solved. Not only in the case of the railroads, but in a hundred other fields of our activities we Americans are disreputably careless and wasteful of human life. It is not compatible with our claim to be a highly civilized people that we should put up with so much industrial killing as we do.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER'S PASTOR SAYS WORKERS NEED A SUMMER VACATION

The Only Medicine That Will Rest the Body and Clear the Brain Is to Be Found in the Quiet Places of the Country.

CITIES TOO BUSY AND TOO CROWDED FOR RIGHT LIVING AND RIGHT THINKING

New York City.—The Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, the high salaried pastor brought from England by John D. Rockefeller, preached his last sermon for the summer at the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, and advised the members of his congregation to get out of town, rest, forget troubles, debts, newspapers, telephones and business. City life of today, especially in such cities as New York, is almost enough to drive men crazy, said Dr. Aked, and the only medicine that will rest the body and clear the brain is to be found in the quiet places of the country.

"There has been no day in the history of the world when such counsel was more needed than to-day," he said. "There are no people on the face of the whole earth who have more cause to heed it and profit by it than we. Our cities are too vast and too crowded.

"Man, like the other animals, was meant for the fresh air and the open fields, for the storms, the snows and the sunshine. But he claps a stone box down over his head, sets it in the midst of a hundred thousand other stone boxes as ugly as his own, stretching away in bewildering squares and parallelograms, shutting out God's air and light, until he is ready to faint on a warm day and freeze on a cold one, and die of pneumonia—or terror—if the east wind blows upon him.

"This crowded, rushing, pushing, crushing city life gets on our nerves. We live too fast. We live faster than men ever lived before. We live more than twenty-four hours in the day and more than seven days in the week. We burn the candle at both ends, and then, for fear that our neighbor will get ahead of us, we light it in the middle, too. We are consumed by the fever of living. We exhaust our vital energies in unending stress and strain.

"We have no time to think. It is as much as we can be expected to do if we earn bread and cheese and lay by a pound or two against a rainy day. The great majority of us are just as capable of flying as we are of thinking. Leisure for quiet contemplation of the world which we live in is denied us. There is no grass beneath our feet, no blue sky over our head. The world of trees and flowers and singing birds is not for us. Art and poetry and gentle culture exist only in a world of dreams. While if we once gave ourselves pause to meditate upon the deep things of God and the soul, on time and its meaning, life and its mysteries, heaven and the glories which we thrust away, why—we might miss the next car!

"The injunction which insults me every time I travel in the subway is: 'Step lively, now! Hurry up, there!' Hurry by all means, for we could not live if we did not kill ourselves to get somewhere else."

Dr. Aked repeated Lewis Morris' "Evensong," and said: "There is one consideration which we cannot escape. What of the myriads of our brethren pent up in mean streets, prisoners of the counting house and the shops, slaves of the mill and the mine, of the poor and heavy laden of every nameless class, to whom these words are bitter mockery, for whom no changing seasons bring cessation from toil and weariness. What of them in these days of summer sunshine and joy?

"There should be none such, except the vicious. And Christianity cannot rest while such mortals live, disfranchised of their right to rest and happiness. The unaccomplished mission of our faith is the redress of every economic inequality. There is no gospel which is not a gospel of social service. We live to bring all mankind into the family of God. But meanwhile, while such poverty remains, while such evil conditions sadden and appall us, what right have we to our holidays, to our happiness? Can we sit at our feast blindfold, or dare we open our eyes? What right have we to any feast while our brothers starve in the midst of plenty? None, if our lives are wrong. If we are living for ourselves, thinking, planning, accumulating for ourselves, none. But if all life to us is a sacred trust, if happiness is only so much stored up energy to be expended in divine redemptive toil, then go, keep the feast, charge your blood and brain with health and flood your soul with joy.

"For the present go away and forget! It is a counsel of perfection and you would not follow it, else I should say to you, go where you can have no letters, no newspapers, no telegrams, where the ring of the telephone bell is never heard, and where even the Marconi cannot come. But at least do your best to forget. Forget your business. Forget your debts. Forget your debtors. Forget that in this world there is suffering, sickness or sin. Only remember that the sun shines for you, the moonlight and the starbeams are for you, the tides ebb and flow for you, the gorse upon the hillside, the purple heather and the fields dressed in living green are for you."

Dr. Aked said he had no patience with the attitude which makes a sad and doleful thing out of the practice and forms of Christian worship.

"Let us have done with these solemn hypocrisies of conventional worship," he said. "Let us frankly claim our heritage of happiness in a world whose maker and builder is God. One day Paxton Hood had to preach in a Yorkshire church. It was a glorious summer morning. A good brother gave out:

'My thoughts on awful subjects roll,
Damnation and the dead——'

"But Paxton Hood leaped to his feet and said, 'Oh, no, they don't! My thoughts do not roll on anything so dreadful. Let us sing:

'Come let us join our cheerful songs,
With angels round the throne.'

"We pray God to forgive our sins, we ought to pray to be forgiven our sadness. There is no virtue in misery. The melancholy person is not necessarily a superior person; and if he were the superior person is generally detestable. A face as long as a fiddle and a voice like a crow's will not be imputed to us for righteousness. We shall not go to heaven for our tears or to hell for our smiles. Humor is a gift of God as well as pathos."

The best way to spend Sunday or any other holiday, said Dr. Aked, was to follow Christ's advice to His disciples: "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest awhile."

JAP ADMIRAL RIDICULES YANKEE NAVAL OFFICERS

He Does Not Think We Are Close Enough to Them

SO TALKS AS HE PLEASES

Says Brilliant Figures at Balls, but Poor Sailors—Admiral Sakomoto Trinks Americans Crews Would Desert as Soon as War Was Declared.

Tokio.—The Hochi prints an interview with Admiral Sakomoto, in which the admiral is quoted as follows:

"Should hostilities break out between Japan and America the results would be indecisive, owing to a want of proper bases of operations. Such bases as exist are too distant for practical purposes. Even the nearest bases, namely, the Pescadores, Calte and Manila, are at a distance of 600 miles from one another. Even if the Washington government should decide on war, it is doubtful if the Americans serving in the navy are sufficiently patriotic to fight. American naval officers are brilliant fighters at balls and social gatherings, but they are very deficient in professional training and practice. It is too much to expect a burning patriotism in the American naval service in case of war with Japan. It is very likely that most of the crews would desert and leave the ships."

Ties of Steel Abandoned.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Experiments with steel ties, which were believed to be the solution of the railroad wreck question to a large extent, have been abandoned by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The commission of engineers which was conducting the experiment has made a report in which they say that there is too much rigid surface to the locomotive in use to allow the steel ties to be used; that there is not a particle of "give" to the locomotive wheels, save at the axles, or centre; that something must give away when an engine is passing around a curve, and that the engine cannot be built to create this resistency, hence the track and ties have to yield to offset other rigidity.

Dublin Castle Robbed.

Dublin.—A portion of the state regalia, valued at $250,000, has been stolen from Dublin castle. The safe in which the regalia was kept was forced. The jewels stolen were those used in the ceremony of investure in the Order of St. Patrick, the processional cross studded with diamonds and the jeweled sword which is borne in procession at the investure of the knights. Lord Castletown, Knight of St. Patrick, was to have been chief of the state ceremony on the visit of King Edward to Dublin, but it is officially announced that the ceremony will be postponed. Sensational developments are expected.

Deaths From Heat.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Two persons are dead and many are in a serious condition as a result of the heat wave here Sunday. The temperature was 85 degrees.

St. Louis.—Three deaths and ten prostrations due to the extreme heat were reported here Sunday.

Augusta, Ga.—Sunday was the hottest recorded this year by the local weather bureau. The temperature in the shade registered 104 degrees. Up to 6 o'clock Sunday three prostrations from heat had been reported.

Buildings Collapse.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Two brick buildings, three stories high, located near the northwest corner of Meridian and Maryland streets, in the center of the wholesale district, collapsed from some unknown cause, causing a loss of $220,000. A subsequent fire in the debris entailed a considerable portion of the loss. Had the collapse occurred during business hours, a large loss of life would certainly have occurred. As the buildings were among the oldest in the city, it is thought this was the main reason for the collapse.

Dreyfus to Retire.

Paris.—Reports that Major Dreyfus will retire from the army to which he was reinstated after imprisonment on Devil's Island, are creating the greatest sensation. When interviewed, Major Dreyfus would only say, "I am unable to say anything yet." This non-committal answer only strengthens the belief that Dreyfus contemplates retiring.

Schmitz Sentenced.

San Francisco.—Mayor E. E. Schmitz has been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary by Judge Dunn, following his recent conviction for extortion.

Teachers in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Train loads of teachers, university professors, instruction superintendents and college presidents have arrived in Los Angeles within the last few days to attend the fiftieth annual convention of the National Association. Monday evening 1,500 of them had reached here and had registered at headquarters in the auditorium, and the number of visitors is estimated at 30,000.

FOUGHT MADMAN.

Rendered Insane by the Heat, One Man Attacks Another.

New York.—Temporarily maddened by heat, Milton Alvin, a plasterer on the Trust Company of America's new Wall street building, attacked his fellow workmen with a hatchet, cutting three down before a fourth knocked him unconscious. Two of the victims will die and the third is badly injured, though he may recover.

Patrick Sullivan, skull fractured, will die; Michael Reilley, skull fractured, dying; Milton Alvin, scalp badly cut, are the casualties. Alvin and his fellow workmen were at work on a narrow scaffold where it was impossible to escape.

Rev. Father Dregan, who was making administered the last rites on Reilley while awaiting the ambulance.

JIM CROW CARS PERMISSIBLE

But Equal Accommodations Must be Furnished.

Washington.—A decision reaffirming the right of interstate railways to operate Jim Crow cars, but declaring that the accommodations for negroes must equal those provided for the white passengers, was handed down by the interstate commerce commission Monday. The decision was in the case of Georgia Edwards, colored, against the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad.

Celebrates Seventy-first Birthday.

Birmingham, England. — Joseph Chamberlain celebrated his 71st birthday with his family at Highbury, his estate near Birmingham. A constant stream of telegraphic and postal congratulations poured in on him from all parts of the country. The health of the veteran statesman is slowly improving. He has been well enough lately to receive some of his political friends.

Race Riot in Washington.

Washington.—A race riot occurred at Chesapeake Junction, a small resort near this city, and two negroes were seriously injured and several other persons received slight injuries. Police reserves sent to the junction restored order after making several arrests of both white persons and negroes.

Riot in New York.

New York.—A pail of water thrown from an upper window upon the heads of a group of Italian boys, who had disturbed a negro woman, incited a riot on "San Juan Hill," that landed five men, one dying, in the hospitals, made sveral men prisoners and terrified the peaceably-inclined among the 10,000 persons of all nationalities who reside in that neighborhood.

Situation Most Grave.

Rome.—Dispatches received here from the Island of Sardinia relate an outbreak of grave disorders in the province of Cagliari as a result of famine among the peasants, who have begun marching through the country under the lead of socialists. The government has sent a regiment from Genoa to Cagliari to put an end to the trouble.

Car Jumps Track.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—Heavily laden with passengers who were enjoying an outing, an open trolley car jumped the track just outside the city limits and crashed over an embankment, instantly killing two, fatally injuring one and seriously injuring nine others.

Bishop Turner Wants Census.

New York.—Bishop H. M. Turner who is presiding over the Zion conference, criticised the United States census department for its failure to report correctly the negro population. "Instead of there being 10,000,000 negroes in America, there are 18,000,000," he said. "There are counties in Georgia, my state, in which no census of the negroes has been taken."

Largest Ever Known.

Washington.—The monthly statement of the Comptroller of the Currency shows that at the close of business June 29, 1907, the total circulation of national bank notes was $603,788,609, which is the largest amount of circulation outstanding in the history of the government. The gain for the month was $1,848,140, and for the year $42,676,330.

Children Get Married.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—A special to the Times from Knoxville says: Willie Richards and Ella Brock, 14 years of age, respectively, have been married here. The groom had on his first pair of long pants. The attendants were playmates of the bridal couple, and wore their usual short clothes. This is said to be the youngest couple ever married in Tennessee.

Glasgow, Ky.—F. M. Harvey, who lives near the head waters of Big Bonax creek, in Cumberland county, has killed the largest rattlesnake ever seen in this section. The reptile was more than six feet long, and measured fourteen inches around the body. Its tail contained twenty-three rattles and a button. According to the tradition vouched for by zoologists that each rattle represented a year in age.

Washington.—Commanding the pick of the fleet of the most formidable fighting ships ever assembled, Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, famous early in life as "Fighting Bob," will sail from the port of New York for the Pacific coast.

He will have command of sixteen first class battleships and cruisers, which would give a good account themselves in an encounter with the most powerful naval force afloat.

When Admiral Evans reaches the Pacific coast he will have under his command nineteen battleships of the first class, all of which are now fighting, powerful armored cruisers, fully capable of taking care of themselves in a fight with the best battleships of the world, four protected cruisers and one repair boat.

Admiral Evans will have with his fleet 1,813 officers and 29,974 enlisted men, who are recognized as the best trained fighting men in the world. To the ostensible mission of this great fleet of monster fighting machines is a peaceful one. Its real errand is to show to Japan the great strength of the American navy. This will completely overshadow the entire fighting force of the Japanese empire, and it is but a part of the American navy.

President Roosevelt, Admiral Dewey, Secretary Metcalf and the members of the general board believe that the best way to preserve peace is to be prepared for war.

They believe that the appearance of a powerful fleet of American warships on the Pacific coast will have a startling effect on the Japanese, and that the presence of these fighting machines will be an assurance of peace.

The sending of the fleet is not looked on as a threat of war against Japan, but at the same time the opinion prevails that if it is known that the United States has a powerful navy there will be less danger of Japan or any other nation picking a quarrel with us. The fleet which will assemble in the harbor of New York late in the fall will consist of sixteen magnificent battleships and two cruisers.

Navy Demoralized.

London, Eng.—England's navy is demoralized. Skeletonized crews are handling huge vessels to their inefficiently trained men and officers, book learned only, are assigned. The Spectator describes the British fleet as "utterly inadequate concourse of naval atoms," declaring that the naval position today is such that if there should be a sudden declaration of war against England the situation would be one of great peril.

SIXTEEN BIG BATTLESHIPS

"Fighting Bob" Evans Will Have 1,653 Officers and 28,978 Men, Which Will Give the Yellow Boys a Chance to Examine Our Navy.

Two hundred and seventy-seven Japanese landed at Salina Cruz on Monday.

DEATHS FOR THE FOURTH.

Figures Show Eight More Killed This Year Than Ever Before.

Chicago, Ill.—With the grim returns still coming in, the number of Fourth of July casualties for 1907 already eclipses all records made by the Tribune in the last nine years. The total number of dead at this time is fifty-nine. This figure was eight more than a year ago at the same time, and was only equaled twice before in the nine years—in 1900 and 1905. The total number of injured at midnight Thursday stood at 3,807. This total eclipses all records in the nine years, the highest number heretofore reported at 3 a. m., July 7, being 3,683, in 1903. As usual, fireworks claimed the largest number of victims, 1,724. The victims of cannon, gunpowder, fireworks and toy pistols are in relative proportion.

The death roll promises to mount up higher as the days go by. Already tetanus is beginning its deadly work, the death of one victim from lockjaw being reported. New York, which on Thursday headed the death roster, added another victim to its total Thursday, bringing the number up to eleven. But even with the increase Pittsburg passed the big metropolis in the grim roll, reporting twelve deaths up to 3 o'clock Friday morning.

TO HELP THE FARMERS.

All Stores Close Up in Order to Help Harvesters.

Topeka, Kan.—Dodge City, in Ford county, is going to be almost depopulated the next week or so if the present plans of business men pan out. Nearly all the business men in that town are said to have signed a petition agreeing to practically close up their stores and let all their men clerks go to the harvest fields until the wheat is in the shock or stacked.

The situation in that county is said to be critical, and the farmers are meeting every train and offering all sorts of inducements to every man on the train to stop and help harvest. A proposition to the division superintendent of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe has been made to have all the shop men, track walkers and train crews laid off except those absolutely necessary to operate the trains with safety, and let these men go into the harvest fields.

Several business houses have ordered signs to be posted reading:

"Closed during harvest."

HUMMEL DYING IN PRISON CELL.

Convicted Lawyer at Blackwell's Island Awaits the Reaper.

New York.—"Abe Hummel is dying. He cannot live out his term. I doubt if he lives out the year 1907. Removal to a warmer, more balmy climate might prolong his life. I have not told him what his illness is. He is depressed enough as it is. He does not know that he is a dying man."

This statement as to the condition of the former lawyer, bon vivant and friend and confidant of society women, actresses, adventuresses, prominent men and crooks, now prisoner No. 925 in the Blackwell's Island penitentiary, was made by one of the highest medical authorities in charge of the prison hospital.

Professional ethics prevented the physician from disclosing the nature of Hummel's illness.

Big Oil Plant Burned.

Jackson, Miss.—The central supply branch of the Standard Oil Company, in the southern part of this city, was destroyed by fire and 250,000 gallons of oil destroyed. The blaze was caused by a gasoline engine. Heroic work of the fire department saved adjoining structures. For a while the electric power and street railway plant was in great danger. An explosion was averted by opening tanks and running the oil to the river. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

Miami Bank Closed.

Washington, D. C.—The Fort Dallas National Bank, of Miami, Fla., was closed Friday by direction of the comptroller of the currency upon information from Bank Examiner McDonald that the bank was insolvent. McDonald was appointed received. The bank's resources and liabilities at the close of business May 20 last were $308,466.08 each.

Railroads Need 6,000 Operators.

Chicago.—Several men who are willing to prepare themselves can have an opportunity during the next few months of entering the railway service in a branch that has produced the greatest number of higher officials, says a local paper. The railroads of the country are face to face with the task of securing at least six thousand telegraph operators, and possibly double that number during the next nine months.

Forgot the Baby.

New York.—Henrik von Steck, of Poll, Iowa, and his wife, Alma, started for Europe on the steamship New Amsterdam without their baby. They had forgotten the infant, leaving it at the hotel where they had stopped overnight. The officers of the ship agreed to delay sailing ten minutes, and the couple hastily returned to the hotel and brought the sleeping infant aboard.

REMARKABLE CURE EFFECTED.

Man's Spinal Cord Is Reunited After Being Severed.

New York.—Alexander Adrehl, who had his spinal cord severed by a bullet four years ago, will soon be discharged from the city hospital on Blackwell's island, entirely well. This case has attracted the attention of the medical fraternity owing to the remarkable success of the operation, which was performed by the late Dr. George Ryerson on May 9, 1903. The ends of the severed cord were drawn together. Adrehl was shot in the back during a street fight in Brooklyn. When he was taken to the hospital the lower part of the body was completely paralyzed.

Less than a month after the operation the patient was able to move his toes and the following November he was able to sit up. After a while he was rigged up in a cage chair, something like that used by babies when learning to walk. During the winter of 1905 he began to feel sensations in his body below the wound. Twenty-six months after the injury he was able to stand by resting his hands on a chair. He can now walk up and down stairs without the use of crutches or braces. This is said to be the only operation of its kind to have resulted successfully.

Will Investigate Labor Conditions.

Inquiry into the needs of the various states and territories for immigrant labor have been instituted by T. V. Mr. Powerly has directed letters to the governors of states and territories, requesting them to furnish him information to aid in distribution of immigration.

Mail Carriers Strike.

Butte, Mont.—The mail carriers of this city have gone out on strike, declaring that they could not live in Butte on the present scale of wages paid by the government, despite the increase which became effective July 1. The men have been recoving $600 for the first year and $850 for succeeding years.

100,000 Moderate Drinkers.

London.—Lord and Lady Methuen held a reception on Thursday for members of the Semi-Teetotal Pledge Association, which has more than 100,000 members. The society directs its attention against "nipping," "secret tippling" and the custom of "standing drinks" and insists on its members having intoxicating liquors only at their midday and evening meals.

Increases Value of Land.

Dallas, Tex.—By the annihilation of the prairie dogs of Western Texas the owners of land in that part of the state have increased the value of their holdings many thousands of dollars, according to the opinion of prominent farmers and ranchmen. Five years ago there were millions of prairie dogs in Texas. Today one may ride for a half day and not see more than four or five.

Reviews Troops in Cuba.

Havana.—Theh Fourth of July was celebrated here by a grand review by General Barry of the two thousand troops stationed at Camp Columbia. Following the review the Declaration of Independence was read by Major Millard F. WWaltz, chief of staff, and the troops sang the national anthem.

Rome.—Advices here Saturday tell of heavy earthquake shocks at Monteleon, Calabria, Messina and Catania. The damage has not been very heavy so far as present reports indicate.

500 Chinese Burn to Death.

Victoria, B. C.—A holocaust is reported in mail advices from Hong King, in which 500 Chinese of the audience of a Chinese theatre and ten of the actors were burned to death when the native theatre was destroyed by fire. The flames spread rapidly and the building collapsed, blocking the entrance with burning debris. The origin of the fire is said to have been due to the igniting of explosives under the floor of the theatre.

To Comply With New Bed Sheet Law.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Although the Griggs law providing for bed sheets of certain length in Texas hotels and lodging houses does not go into effect until July 12, hotels of this city are making preparations to comply with the law. The law was passed by the legislature in response to a demand from the Travelers' Protective Association as a safeguard against the spread of tuberculosis.

The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON

Subject: The Claims of Authority.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, Hamburg avenue and Weirfield street, on the above theme, the pastor, Rev. Ira Wemmell Henderson, took as his text Ex. 20:12, "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother." He said:

The recognition by society and the individual of the authority of parentage is at the centre of all the theory of social government. The agreement of society that parents may and should control the youth of their offspring is the foundation upon which our system of social authority is reared. The individual recognition of the ruling right of parents is expressed in a larger sense in this Republic in the submission of the minority to the decree of the majority. The command speaks the truth when it enjoins honor to parents as the sure means unto long life. Small success would we enjoy did we not pay some heed to the mandates of our elders. Little power would the law of city, State or Nation exert over our lives were the fundamental ideas of obedience eliminated from family life. The individual and that Nation which has a poor sense of the need for obedience is sure to meet an early death. The man who won't learn from the past will not live long to instruct his descendants. The State within whose boundaries the recognition of the rights of the law has fallen into disrepute will soon totter, fall and be dashed to pieces.

The text calls to our minds three things: First, that children should honor those who are over them by birth. Secondly, that parents should be worthy of honor from their children. Lastly, that, broadly speaking, the principle of obedience—that is to say, respect for law—must be manifested in all our civic life.

"Honor thy father and thy mother," says the commandment. In urging the need for honor it implies that obedience, respect and deference be yielded to those who are above us in birth.

The man who doesn't honor a good father and mother is not much of a man. The first law of family life is that we should give honor to those who have given us life and that meed of love which we enjoy at their hands. The man who works lovingly and long for the welfare of his children, the woman who strives with motherly affection to make her home the pleasant harbor of her children, both are entitled to and should receive the honor of their children.

Honor implies obedience. The youth who obeys the wise mandates of a good parent can never fail or fail. The parents who speak out of the fund of a true experience can teach any youth the way to the happiest life, and their words should be law.

Honor implies respect. It is not dignified to belittle the place and dignity of a good parent. The youth who essays to speak with dogmatic assurance upon the full range of human problems pronounces himself a fool at the start. The disrespectful youth who disdains wise counsel and claims to know it all will ere long find out that his ancestors can tell him at least one or two things of which he is ignorant.

Honor implies deference. A youth who is to be the true being that he all should be must learn first to yield primacy in all departments in life to ripe years full of wisdom and noble experience. The man who pushes his way into places where reserve should, very properly, be shown will sooner or later find that cheek doesn't pay checks, but rather rebuffs.

We must, in our youth, yield honor, respect, obedience and deference to those who lead us worthily in the home. He who would lead must learn to obey. He who would gain honor must grant honor. The man who wish the respect of other men must first of all be respectful. A little yielding of the point or place to age does no man any harm. Deference is delightful either in young or old.

It isn't at all necessary for me to point to our youth the wrecks upon the shores of life who are monuments to dishonorable actions in the home. The gutters and the jails are all too full of men and women who refused to honor, to obey, to respect—or to listen.

On the other hand, the commandment forces an ethical duty on the parent. Many times men become criminals because of parental mismanagement and lack of wise, sound and pure leadership in the home. Honor be to whom honor is due. The man or the woman who demands honor from a child must be honorable—that is to say, worthy of honor. Parents must be respectable before they shall merit or gain their children's respect.

Obedience is the due of that man who doesn't contravene the moral law or the laws of common sense—and the due of him alone. Age deserves deference not on the basis of years so much as on the basis of wisdom.

Parents are many times more responsible for the lack of honor that children show them than are the children themselves. Honor in many minds begins and stops with obedience. Many parents seem to think that the subjection of the individuality of a child to their whim and will is the sum and total of obedience. Obedience consists in becoming as much like themselves as possible—some parents seem to think. Children cannot be held down in that matter. Freedom must be allowed for the exercise of individuality and personal preference and bent. Obedience must be given and required only when a moral principle is at stake or the best interests of a child make it necessary that parental authority be enforced. But the unreasonable exercise of undue authority which many people exhibit in their home life is pitiful—and the more so because the consequences are quite sure. The whole of honor is not bound up in obedience. Obedience should not stifle individuality. Children have rights to wise leadership and unceasing parental love. Many times they receive silly government and no love—and whom shall we blame for the consequence?

The wise parent will realize that as we grow older our ideal changes and our perceptive powers strengthen. Guidance for a boy of four will hardly ever be the sort of advice the youth of fourteen will need. You may be the apotheosis of wisdom to your child of five and the finest parent ever to a child of six without the power of analytical comparison and keen perception—and most of us if we are not too unwise in handling our children are—but beware when your youth of sixteen has seen the habits of better and wiser men than you. Then must you watch out. For if you do not grow with and adjust yourself to the changing point of view and the increased vision of your child you soon will find you are fast losing his respect. Give a child wise guidance! Study not how to make him a replica, a reproduction of yourself; but to lead him to be a distinct personality, possessed of strong individuality, molding by his own actions his being into the stature of the Son of God!

Some one has said: "Who is to blame for the pitiable mite which children give in return for a parents' flood of love?" I do not know; but of this I am sure: If parents would cease to feel that they own their children in common with their horses, their estates and their cattle; if they would not, as many do in varying degrees, treat their children as their property, the return of love would be far more adequate than it is."

We know how true that is. And yet I fear that many of us do not know how to handle our own children. A good child asks not for more pocket money, or newer clothes, or a more sumptuous supply at the table—but for a richer love. It is useless to try to hold children with gifts. Children should be taught to yield honor through parental love. A man who attempts to bind his children to him with material possessions must surely fail. But the father and the mother—be they ever so unlearned and be they ever so poor—who give their wisest experience and richest love to the cultivation of the personalities of their children will find that a bond that neither time nor eternity can sever holds their children to their sides. And if that won't—nothing else will. Love is the touchstone of life, the law and the measure of values. Love is the force that draws soul to soul. The home that is ruled by love will be the seat of honor. For it is the abode of everything that is honorable, respectable, worthy of obedience and deference.

But to carry the principle into its broadest application we must glance for a moment at the duty of honor and obedience to law, civil and moral. Here, as with the individual, the law must be worthy of honor. The civil law to-day is not so highly respected as it should be. From all parts of our country we read of lynchings, riots and miniature civil wars all due to disrespect for law. And yet the laws are largely at fault—and the enforcers of the law with them. When a murderer, guilty before men and God of heinous sin, may use the law to cheat the law, and prevent the execution of justice; when one man may buy off the law that sends another citizen to jail; when those who are sworn to enforce the law neglect their duty; we cannot say that individuals are entirely to blame for lack of deference to the law. The laws should be wise, sane, quick to act, equal in meting justice to all offenders. Thus only can it retain the respect of the governed. And we on our part are not to turn to "wild justice" when the laws are not to our taste, but rather to the ballot box, there to see to it that good laws and the right men are set up over us to rule.

But all honor for law is bound up with our early ideas and teachings, and in the home should be found the source of respect for law.

Forgetfulness and Forgiveness.

An old man lay on his dying bed. Beside him were three of his sons. The father had taken each of his boys by the hand, and had spoken his last words of loving advice and farewell. When he had finished, one of the boys leaned over the dying man and, with much emotion, asked forgiveness for any harsh words spoken in the past. With a look of unutterable love, the father replied: "Oh, my boy, I forgot it all long ago!" When the prodigal (you and I) returns and confesses his sin, he finds that his Father has forgotten it all long ago. While the confession is still on the penitent's lips, he is restored to sonship.

A Little at a Time.

How often do we sigh for opportunities of doing good, whilst we neglect the openings of providence in little things, which would frequently lead to the accomplishment of most important usefulness!

Dr. Johnson used to say, "He who waits to do a great deal of good at once will never do any." Good is done by degrees. However small in proportion the benefits which follow individual attempts to do good, a great deal may thus be accomplished by perseverance, even in the midst of discouragements and disappointments. —Crabb.

The Invisible Force.

God hates the sin but loves the sinner—loves him that is, as a man, not in his character of a sinner. God loves humanity in spite of, not because of its wrongdoing. He would, if possible, love the wrongdoer out of his sin, love him into decency, sanity, righteousness. The love of God is not a mere empty sentiment, but is an invisible force which makes for holiness, and ultimately for happiness.—Ram's Horn.

In the Inner Sanctuary.

None but a wholly consecrated soul can come into the most holy place of communion with God in the inner sanctuary.—Hannah Whitall Smith.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JULY 14 BY THE REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: The Ten Commandments—Duties Toward God, Ex. 20:1-21—Golden Text: Deut. 6:5—Memory Verses, 1-11.

This lesson and its successor deal with the ten commandments. Of all Old Testament writings these are perhaps the best known. There are no words in all the Old Testament more important than these. They should be written large upon the walls of every building in the land. Especially large and lasting upon the walls of the public buildings. They should be the guide for the guidance of the life of humanity in so far as they meet the moral necessities of the times. For the ten commandments are eternal. They are not only the word of God but the testimony of the ripest and best human experience of the ages. They are valuable because they are God's law, because they are simple, because they have been found efficient in the past and particularly applicable and necessary in our own day and age.

The first commandment is to be found in verses 1-3. It is a call of God to undivided loyalty. There cannot be right relationship between man and God unless man stands ready to yield fealty to God to the exclusion of every other fact and force in life. Originally and specifically it was a call to the undivided loyalty of the Israelite to the one true Jehovah as opposed to the multitude of deities that infested the ecclesiastical and theological world of that age. But in its wider significance it is a call to the service of the one true God over against the seductions of the pleasures and the sins and the engrossing cares of the life temporal. For many a man makes money a God, or position, or power, or intellect, or pleasure.

The second command is included in verses 4-6. Given in the midst of an idolatrous age this command was especially appropriate. For idolatry had destroyed the finer spiritual faculties of the nations that practiced it, lowered their conceptions of the majesty and spirituality of Jehovah and debased their religious life. The principle underlying this command is valid to-day. There is great danger in any attempt to portray the invisible and omnipotent God. In the very nature of the case it is an impossibility adequately to convey, however skillful we may be, any really comprehensive idea of the glory and personality of God. For God is divine. Humanity and the works of humanity are finite and partial. And any attempt to convey to the mind and heart and soul, by means of purely finite and temporal agencies, a true conception of the infinite and eternal is hopeless and quite dangerous. Its hopelessness is inherent in its very impossibility. Its danger lies in the human proclivity to elevate the visible to a place of prime importance.

The third commandment is in verse 7. And it is a good command. It is as timely to-day as it was when first [illegible] into the mouth of Jehovah. The language of the times is in many ways a gross violation of this command. The vocabulary of the streets is so positively indecent that one cannot walk the thoroughfares of any village or city in this land without having one's finer sensibilities shocked. The amount of godless talk that is prevalent in this country is positively awful. And it is not only unrighteous to use the name of God in vain, but it is also unmanly, indecent and disgusting. Every small boy and growing youth should early learn this truth if none other that bad language is simply a confession of a fundamental inability to talk the language of civilized and decent men. The idea that it is manly and is evidence of maturity to curse and swear and be generally profane is totally erroneous. A man's culture and refinement are shown not by the amount of bad language that he uses, but by the amount he doesn't use. There is no excuse for bad language. It is simply a dirty habit.

The fourth commandment may be read in verses 9-11. It is a plea and demand for the dedication of one-seventh of one's time to the particular purpose of religious and physical refreshment. The writer personally has no preference for any particular day as a rest day. For he conceives that the important thing to-day is to so remedy conditions in this country that men shall be able to have one day a week for spiritual and physical refreshment. He is perfectly willing to allow individual liberty of preference and conscience full sway when it comes to the consideration of what day in the week shall be used as the rest day. He is, however, puritanically narrow on the proposition that we must so adjust present industrial conditions in America that men may be able, one and all, to secure one day a week for the special culture of their souls and the best refreshment of their bodies.

The fourth commandment contains another adjuration that might well be pondered by some of the lazy loafers of young men who waste their time hanging around hotel and saloon corners instead of doing something for the betterment of the world and themselves. It says "six days shalt thou labor." And no man is really entitled to any consideration at the hands of society unless he has in some fashion measured up to this command. No man really appreciates the rest day who has not labored ever against it. And no man has any business to live on society without rendering some sort of return for the living.

TAX SALE.

On account of a mistake in the advertisement published in the "official organ of Chilton county" (The Union) printed at Birmingham, the sale of land for delinquent taxes is postponed to Monday, July 22nd, 1907.

Coosa county is to go dry. The election last week resulted in a good majority for the prohibitionists.

The Legislature of Alabama met on Tuesday in adjourned session, and has constitutionally, thirteen days before it in which to accomplish more than a month's work. Possibly the Governor may order an extra session.

Secretary of State Frank Julian has drawn up a bill, which has been presented in both Houses, providing that all local laws shall be published in some weekly paper in the various counties to which the law applies. The bill is a good one and should become law.

Representative Middleton introduced a bill to prohibit the selling of wine at Thorsby except by the gallon.

The features of the reassembled legislature were the evident desire to repeal unpopular laws of the first part of the session, among them being the tax commission law and that levying a tax on foreign loans in the State.

At a mass meeting of the Democratic party of Chilton county, held persuant to a call of the Executive Committee of said party, at the court house in Clanton, the following proceedings were had, to wit:

William A. Collier was called to the chair and Frank Crichton was made secretary.

On motion of T. U. Crumpton it was ordered that the person receiving a majority of all the votes cast in said meeting should receive the recommendation of the meeting for appointment by the Governor of the office of Sheriff of Chilton county.

Thereupon the following persons were put in nomination, to wit: Ed Smitherman, J. F. Catts, A. W. Powell, W. M. Oden, F. M. Connell and W. H. Killingsworth, and upon the 5th ballot F. M. Connell having recieved a majority of all the votes cast was declared the choice of the meeting for appointment as sheriff.

Thereupon the motion of T. U. Crumpton, the choice of F. M. Connell for said appointment was made unanimous, and William A. Collier, as chairman of the meeting was instructed to cause to be presented to the Democratic Executive Committee of the county the action of this meeting and also to, in person, inform the Governor of the same, and, as chairman of said meeting and acting for it to urge the Governor to appoint F. M. Connell Sheriff of Chilton county.

Thereupon the meeting adjourned sine die.

WM. A. COLLIER, Chairman,
FRANK CRICHTON, Secretary.

On Tuesday the Republicans held a meeting at the court house at Clanton and nominated R. J. Williams for sheriff. The nomination was forwarded to Gov. Comer.

Best Medicine in the World for Colic and Diarrhoea.

"I find Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to be the best remedy in the world," says Mr. C. L. Carter of Skirum, Ala. "I am subject to colic and diarrhoea. Last spring it seemed as though I would die, and I think I would if I hadn't taken Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I haven't been troubled with it since until this week, when I had a very severe attack and took half a bottle of the twenty-five cent size Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and this morning I feel like a new man." Concord.

Health is good at present; crops are looking fine now considering everything. People are laying by their crops here.

Well, we enjoyed the Fourth of July. We came together at J. J. Maddox's home near Concord church and had a fine dinner and all the lemonade that we could drink all day long and ice cream, all we could eat, and at 6:30 p.m. we had supper spread and we all enjoyed ourselves. Those present were J. J. Maddox, J. A. Thompson, J. D. Wyatt, W. D. Driver, J. A. Clackler and all their families, which made about 42 in all.

In the afternoon W. C. B. Wyand daughter, Glennie, gave us a visit from near Providence church, and R. F. Wyatt, J. W. Maddox and W. A. Edwards gave us a flying visit from near Clanton.

I am sorry to say that Mrs. J. A. Clackler is sick with fever.

District S.S. Convention.

The Sunday School Convention of district No. 6, met at Sardis Baptist church, June 30th, 1907.

The convention was called to order by the president. Devotional exercises conducted by J. D. Deason.

The first subject on the program, Sunday school a christian builder, was taken up and very eloquently handled by F. M. Barnes, after which the second subject, Necessity of parents to encourage children to attend Sunday school, which was ably discussed by Rev David Bryan and Wm Walker. Then was a song by the choir.

The convention was then divided into two classes, the Advanced, heard by the president and the Primary, by the secretary. When the lesson was over we adjourned for dinner. After an hour was pleasantly spent, was again called to the house by the president.

First, was song service, which was enjoyed by all present. Then, the reports from the different schools in the district were called for. Out of the thirteen schools in the district, eleven reported an ever green school. The other two have no school at present.

Then was the election of officers. The following named were elected:

Rev. Frank Johnson, President, N. L. Broadhead, Vice President, J. T. Jones Jr., Secretary.

Then the last subject on the program was taken up and admirably discussed by T. J. Deramus and V. J. Ruddick. This finished the work of the day.

The convention adjourned after a vote of thanks to to the good people of Sardis church, and community for their hospitality toward the convention. The next convention is to be held at Pilgrims Rest. The time to be fixed by the officers.

T. G. MILLING, Pres
MISS. OLLIE REYNOLDS, Sec.

Most of our farmers are done laying by their corn. Corn looks very well; some grass in our cotton yet, but if the sun shines hot many days, we will get that out.

Health of our community is very good.

We see a piece from Mr Eiland in regard to our school. I don't see how we can have any more schools at Enterprise unless all of us will come together and confess our faults and blot out the past and say we are going to have a school, and have it. I don't believe it will do any good to divide the district. Mr. Eiland says he will go with the other two trustees to see every patron and try to agree with them.

Now, people, let us all do unto others as we would have them do unto us.

Let us get our own eye clear so we can see clear to forgive that we may get forgiveness.

If we will all clean around our door first our troubles will be over.

You Trustees go to see every patron and go together and try to reconcile them. A. M.

MESSAGE OF GOV. COMER TO THE LEGISLATURE

He Has Something to Say About all Laws Passed

FOR THE CHILD LABOR LAW

He Wants Compulsory Education and a High School in Every County of the State—Sunday Should be a Day of Rest.

Governor Comer sent the following message to the legislature Tuesday, of which we give our readers a synopsis:

Education.

You have laid the broadest foundations for far-reaching educational improvement; you have put in process the accomplishment of facilities which will enable the youth of the land to measure up in educational requirements with any of our sister states and if carried to the completeness that your provisions will authorize, will make Alabama the peer of any Tax Equalization.

You have created a state tax commission, and by this means made possible the equalization of tax values throughout the state.

Intangible Franchise Tax.

Your intangible franchise tax law, in which public service corporations are required to pay taxes to the value of the franchise, a property which earns interest and which is to every intent as much property as anything else, and as much subject to taxation, as much so as a cow a horse, an acre of land or a stock of goods; in fact, more so, because it is a gift from the people. This value, intangible, and yet a value, you have made taxable.

Protection of Game and Fish.

You have made a law for the protection of game and fish, so that the extermination of this great property of the state should cease.

Dealing in Futures.

You have made laws regulating and prohibiting dealing in futures; protecting, so far as you can, the state from this seductive and dangerous mode of gambling.

Local Option.

You have enacted far-reaching local option laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, and with your general election and dispensary bill have brought nearer to the control of the people the sale of liquors.

Inspection of Jails.

You have established the office of inspector of jails, cotton mills and almshouses, and thus having these institutions under state supervision, prevent abuses along this line.

Anti-Fertilizer Trust.

You have appointed a committee to frame anti-fertilizer trust laws, and laws to prevent the use of worthless fillers and ingredients in the manufacture of fertilizer.

Enlargement of Courts.

You have enlarged the number of your courts and provided for speedy trials, thereby preventing in a large measure the old method of filling the jails and keeping them full, and by this means either giving the prisoners their liberty or putting them to work for the state or county, and thus escaping for them a speedier return to their homes and freeing the state of the expense of their keep.

Military.

You have increased the efficiency of the military, and while at times it would seem that it was money unwisely spent, yet in time of need nothing could be more necessary for the safety of the state.

Old Soldiers.

You have increased the appropriation for the old soldiers to where it will amount to more than $800,000 per year. I think this the largest appropriation per capita of any state in the south, and it will be a great satisfaction to the state to have made such a largely increased provision for their care; a sum inadequate at best, but will prevent many an old fellow countryman from suffering. It must be very satisfactory to you when you consider that you have provided nearly $3,000,000 for the care of the public schools and the care of the old soldiers.

Immigration.

You have passed an immigration law authorizing the governor to appoint an immigration agent and provided the means for his compensation and his duties.

Corporations in Politics.

You have made a law preventing the unlawful use of money by corporations for political purposes, and when you consider how debauching this has been in the past, and how public service corporations have used money taxed from the people to control the electorate, and how many of our citizens were brought by the use of these funds under their debauching influence, you can appreciate the importance of this law.

Franchise Tax.

You have an annual franchise tax from foreign corporations; you have provided a method to secure equalized values from railroads, telegraph and telephone companies, making it so that they shall pay taxes on their property in the same proportion of value that the farmer and business men pay on theirs. You have passed a law establishing a measure of damages for loss and injury to freight and other property, and a remedy for collecting same. Every shipper coming in contact with railroads or express companies will recognize at once the importance of this law.

Anti-Pass Law.

You have made an anti-pass law requiring that our public carriers should charge everybody alike, and destroying the bad influence of the pass system, abolishing the practice of making one class of citizens pay not only their own way, but the way of the man with the pass.

Railroad Commission Bill.

The intent of this bill is for the railroad commission to equalize and limit the charges of our public service corporations, and to so arrange freight charges on the productions of the state, between the different parts of the state, to at least secure for the manufacturers and consumers in the state an equal per mile rate for like distances to other sections; and if secured, a most important and valuable right.

Maximum Rate Bill.

You have passed a maximum rate bill; that is, you have made the freight rates of the state, as made and charged by the railroads themselves the 1st of January, 1907, the maximum rate, not to be increased without process of court or special statute.

Demurrage Bill.

You have passed a demurrage bill. This bill requires that the railroad companies should pay cost for inadequate service, at the same time making the shipper responsible for detention of the property of the railroad.

2 1-2 Cent Passenger Rate.

You have passed a 2 1-2 cent passenger rate. This law, taken in connection with the fact that you forbade the railroads to again contribute money for the purpose of controlling elections, and also forbade the issuance of passes, making everybody pay like wise, was very fair.

Classification of Freight.

You have passed an act placing 110 articles of freight of common production, consumption and use in the same classification and the same rate for the same articles are carried by the railroads of Georgia, and have been carried by the railroads in Georgia at this same rate for a term of years. Not only this, but the Georgia railroads have carried practically every other item and class of freight at a much lower rate than prevails in Alabama. Experimental stages have passed. The discrimination against Alabama has been proven, and it is a great hardship for Alabama to be forced to go through court processes on a case already pioneered and worked out and demonstrated.

Alabama has more tonnage per railroad mile and pays a higher freight rate, and it does not cost more to operate.

Violation of Sabbath.

In addition to this, we allow them to use in the regular transaction of their business, the seventh day, the Sunday of every civilized people. It is not allowed by Georgia and North Carolina. Still the rights and demands of the state, when it comes to such an equalization of freight charges that the local shippers of the state be protected, that the freight on raw material produced in the state should be so arranged as to give the business interests of the state an equal opportunity to manufacture the products of the state within the state, and also enable the producers of the state to ship the products of the state to the consumers within the state.

These rights are of advantage and are unnecessarily and absolutely ignored, and the freight tax as made by the public service corporations on the business interests of the state by a combination to prevent competition amounts to a virtual control of the transportation of the state, and to secure this condition for all time they, by their own admission, have cast around our laws and the legal processes of the state environments forged for their interests and practically defy our laws and refuse to give attention to our reasonable demands; refuse our laws even a fair trial and fair execution.

Court Proceedings.

The prospects are that the court proceedings will consume years, and the vibrations in the air word the expectations of the railroads that these great measures of yours which carry out the just demands of the people and the just expectations of the state, and which should be used to unbuild the state, will be tied up for years. Every phase of the case long continued, thoroughly understood, merited and should have had, as laid down by Justice Brewer, through all equity, a fair trial.

Watered Securities.

The railroads are now paying interest on millions of watered securities, much of which has recently been added to their interest-bearing charges.

State Depositories.

You have passed a state depository bill, taking the large amount of money, more than $2,000,000, which our state treasury had locked up, and placed at work with our banks, taking security for same in our state bonds.

Biennial Sessions.

I would suggest that you provide to have the people vote at the next election for an amendment to our constitution which will provide for biennial sessions of the legislature. Four years is a long time between the people and the law-makers. It seems to me entirely too long to properly care for their safety and interests.

Compulsory Education.

You have made generous provision for the public schools. You should put in process a propaganda to secure attendance. This expenditure is for an organization of the forces of the state for the great civic and commercial struggles of the future. If there is any parent so unnatural as not to give his child or children the advantages of the great liberality of the state, then the state itself, for the benefit and the welfare of the child, and the welfare of the state, should conscribe enlistment and attendance.

High Schools.

I would recommend that you make provision for the establishment of high schools in those counties of the state which at present have no state school, leaving the execution of same in abeyance until it is demonstrated that the funds of the state will fulfill the expense.

Child Labor.

It is just and right that you should provide an effective method for enforcing the child labor law. This could easily be done by empowering the inspector of cotton mills to discharge any boy or girl from the mill who, in his judgment, is under age, or not in fit condition to work, at the same time providing a penalty for the punishment of the mill owner and the parent for re-employing or rehiring such parties so discharged without first getting the permission of your inspector.

Will caution you that by an extreme provision of the law you can easily hurt the parties that we are trying to help. We have the poor with us always, and it is as much incumbent upon the business of the state to provide methods of work, and perhaps would be more beneficial to this class of our citizens, than to provide ways how they should not work; and we should be exceedingly careful along this line.

Lobby Bill.

At your present session you failed to complete your anti-lobby bill. You have no bill on the calendar more protective of the interests of the people than this. If you will but consider that whenever you touch any large interest for taxes or otherwise, your halls swarm with lobbyists, many of them in the guise of patriots, yet most of them paid agents.

Revenue Bill.

Your revenue bill was ambiguous as regards the tax on money lenders, and created some friction through the state, because many construed it to mean that any person who lends money, regardless of his business, had to pay a license. The code committee, as I understand, has restored this feature to read formerly, limiting the tax to the property whose principal business it was to lend money, and who had an office for that purpose.

The revenue bill improperly comprehended a special tax on any party in towns or cities who sells tobacco and cigars. This has been changed so as to embrace only, as I am sure your intent was, the stand dealers in tobacco and cigars.

Foreign Money Tax.

There has been quite a bit of agitation on the franchise tax on foreign corporations, including foreign money lenders. I think this law has been grossly misrepresented and misunderstood. The tax itself is exceedingly fair and liberal to the foreign lenders, and directly along the line of the constitution, and it is mandatory on you to impose it. This law, by misstatement, has been distorted into such shape that it has the appearance of being dangerous and ill-advised. I am sure that if this act was fully comprehended by the parties interested it would prove in no sense of the word a deterrent to business, and the tax (about one-tenth to one-sixteenth of the amount charged on other business of a similar nature) would not be onerous on any one.

On your continued labors we pray the blessings of God the Father, and may His blessings abide with you and your work.

The first state in the Union to charter an institution for the higher education of young women was Mississippi. The Elizabeth Female Academy, at the town of Washington was chartered by an act approved February 17, 1819.

The Wesleyan Female College at Macon, Ga., was the institution in the world chartered to give diplomas to women graduates.

First patent for bellows for blowing fires was issued to James Rumsey, of Berkeley county, Va. Rumsey was also the first to build and operate a steamboat in this country.

Mississippi was the first state in the Union to apply the principle of popular government to the judiciary. The constitution of 1832 provided for the election by the people of all judicial officers of the state.

The Savannah, the first steamship to cross the Atlantic, was owned in and started from Savannah, Ga. It was 100 feet long and 320 tons burden. It was 25 days in the month of May, 1819, in reaching Liverpool.

The first railroad in Alabama was the Tuscumbia, Cortland and Decatur, 44 miles long; was chartered January 13, 1832. Its projector was David Hubbard, a member of congress.

AUSTRALIAN SAPPHIRES.

BY JOHN PLUMMER.

Sapphires are found in all the Australian States, but chiefly at Anakie, in Queensland, where they are obtained in considerable quantities. The sapphire bearing area, according to Mr. B. Dunstan, assistant Queensland geologist, is of considerable extent, about fifty square miles, extending north and south of Sapphire Town, as the Anakie settlement is designated. The deposits are mostly confined to the granite country, although rarely met with in existing stream. Generally, they are found high above the beds of the creeks. The sapphires do not travel very far, and if the deposits containing them are washed away, the stones will be found just below any remaining portions, or perhaps only a short distance away. Associated with the sapphire deposits is a quartzite rock, locally known as "billy," which is general in all the eastern portions of the field in which the gems are found, and, when met with in unprospected localities, is regarded as an indication of the probable existence of sapphires in the vicinity. There are, however, localities in which the sapphires are found, although no traces of the "billy" are to be discovered, hence it is assumed that while the rock may have been plentiful in the sapphire bearing country, it is not that from which the gems originally came.—Scientific American.

Newest Tool Handle.

Carpenters and mechanics have found the tool sets comprising numerous tools and only one handle very valuable. The weight of their tool chest has been reduced more than half, and it requires but a minute to take one tool out of the handle and insert another. Like all other good things, these interchangeable handles have faults that need correction and improvement. The worst fault is the liability of the clamp which grips the tool in the handle becoming worn, the tool thus slipping out. The mechanic is thus unable to use any of the tools. The handle shown here seems to overcome this fault. The end of the tool is inserted in the apertures at each end, holes in the shank of the tool registering with holes in the handle. Pins are inserted in the openings, holding the tool firmly in the handle and preventing it slipping out.—Washington Star.

Tool Cannot Slip.

Wire Holder For Kitchen Utensils.

A handy article for household use has recently been patented by a New Jersey man, an illustration of which is shown below. Its object is mainly to assist in preserving the old rule of "A place for everything, and everything in its place." The busy housewife always gladly welcomes those contrivances which tend to cleanliness and tidiness. Very often she is greatly perplexed to know just where to put all the small necessary odds and ends where they can be conveniently reached. A holder like the one shown here helps to solve the question. This wire holder is small and can be readily secured in convenient position. It provides a place for the broom, a cup or two, a brush and numerous other small kitchen utensils.—Washington Star.

Practicing by Ear.

When Grover Cleveland was practicing law at Buffalo, among his associates was a young lawyer who, though a bright fellow, was rather inclined to laziness. He was forever bothering Cleveland about points of law rather than look them up himself.

At last Cleveland became tired of it, and the next time the young man sauntered in, Cleveland knew what he wanted, and, getting up, pointed to his bookcase and said: "There are my books. You are welcome to them; you can read up your own case."

The fellow was caught, but he rose to the occasion. "See here, Grover Cleveland," he said, "I want you to understand I don't read law. I practice entirely by ear, and you and your books can go to thunder!"—New England Grocer.

The vineyard area of France in 1906 was 4,195,500 acres, yielding a wine production of 1,275,774,921 gallons. Production has steadily decreased since 1906, when it was 1,779,267,368 gallons.

SOUTH TURNING RAW COTTON TO ACCOUNT

227,736 Spindles Which Mean an Investment

OF SIX MILLION DOLLARS

The Wonderful Increase in the Number of Spindles Pointed Out by the Manufacturers' Record—Alabama in the Front Rank.

Baltimore, Md.—In reviewing plans for additions to the textile equipment of the South during the past three months, aggregating nearly 230,000 spindles, the Manufacturers' Record says:

"New companies are being organized and established corporations are adding to their equipments of machinery, and the additions announced for established plants are about 125 per cent more than those reported for the new companies. There is probably no more emphatic recognition of southern advantages for cotton manufacturing than the continued movement of the southern manufacturers to increase their spindleage from year to year.

"It is evident that southern cotton mill managers anticipate no difficulty in retaining their present position and eventually dominating the world's markets. This record of the second quarter of 1907 shows a considerable increase over that of the first quarter, when but 122,468 spindles were announced. The total for the second quarter is 227,736 spindles, which means the investment of about $6,000,000. The established mills will install 157,876 spindles, an investment of about $4,000,000, and the new companies will install 69,860 spindles, an investment of about $2,000,000.

"The figures by states are: Alabama, 37,726; Georgia, 39,540; North Carolina, 109,460; South Carolina, 28,000, and Texas, 13,000 spindles. These figures are for spindles authoritatively announced as to be put in position, but not necessarily already added. Thousands of these spindles, however, have already been put in operation, other thousands are being installed at the present time and thousands more will be placed in the mills within the next few months."

INDIA'S NATIVES DISCONTENTED.

In Many Provinces They Are Even Being Trained to Fight.

London.—Dispatches from India report that the disaffection among the natives is rapidly increasing. According to a correspondent who has made several tours of Bengal, revolt is being preached in many provinces, and the natives are being trained to fight. Formerly the discontent was confined to a few agitators, but now it has spread among the aristocracy and landholders as well. National volunteers have branches in nearly every town and village, and tales of lawlessness and oppression by these volunteers come from every district. The rural police are weak.

Secretary Root's Story.

A newspaper man having asked Elihu Root how long he thought the American occupation of Cuba would last got the following story in reply. A kindergarten teacher asked a class of boys:

"Have you a warm coat?"

"Yes," was the reply.

"Can you take off your warm coat?"

"Yes."

"Has a bear a warm coat?"

"Yes."

"Can a bear take off his warm coat?"

"No."

"Why cannot the bear take off his warm coat?"

This puzzled the youngsters a moment, and then one cub on the back row yelled:

FIFTEEN YEARS OF ECZEMA.

Terrible Itching Prevented Sleep—Hands, Arms, and Legs Affected—Cured in 6 Days by Cuticura.

"I had eczema nearly fifteen years. The affected parts were my hands, arms and legs. They were the worst in the winter time and were always itchy, and I could not keep from scratching them. I had to keep both hands bandaged all the time, and at night I would have to scratch through the bandages as the itching was so severe, and at times I would have to tear everything off my hands to scratch the skin. I could not rest or sleep. I had several physicians treat me, but they could not give me a permanent cure, nor even could they stop the itching. After using the Cuticura Soap, one box Cuticura Ointment and two bottles Cuticura Resolvent for about six days the itching had ceased, and now the sores have disappeared, and I never felt better in my life than I do now. Edward Worell, Band 30th, U. S. Infantry, Fort Crook, Nebraska."

Catching Cold.

A baldheaded physician as he brushed a few flies from the white and polished dome of his skull, said: "I used to be dreadfully subject to colds even in the summer. I had to wear a black skull cap all the time The minute I took it off I began to sneeze and wheeze. But now for a year I have not once worn a skull cap and I have not once had a cold. Why, I could go and stand bareheaded in a snowstorm without any ill effect. My immunity to colds comes from this: Every morning I put my head under the cold water spigot and let the cold water run for a minute on my bald crown. This is a refreshing thing, and since I began to do it I have never had a cold."—Milwaukee Journal.

In 1611 the Jamestown settlement had thirty acres of corn under cultivation. Ten years later the Massachusetts colony had twenty acres. This was the beginning of the field cultivation of corn in this country. Now it is our most universal crop, one which in 1905 reached the enormous figures of 2,700,000,000 bushels, valued at $1,100,000,000.

Diet of the Oldest Parisienne.

This is the daily diet of Mme. Robinson, aged 107, the oldest inhabitant of Paris: Early in the morning she takes a cup of chocolate and a biscuit. At noon she eats some eggs, mashed potatoes or peas and fruit, and in the evening at 6 o'clock, about an hour before she goes to bed, she takes a bowl of soup. She drinks only water sweetened with a little sugar, and colored with a drop of wine. For years she has scarcely tasted any meat, and only once in a while she takes a little breast of chicken. On this diet she expects to live happily still many years.—New York World.

EMIGRATION DEPOPULATES ITALY.

Districts Depopulated by Frantic Rush to America.

The White Star liner Cretic, Capt. Kelk, in from Mediterranean ports and the Azores, brought nearly 1500 passengers, of whom 1117 were in the steerage.

The Rev. William R. Farrill, of the Church of Our Lady of Loretto, Hempstead, L. I., and several others of the Cretic's passengers had been traveling through Southern Italy, where most of the Italian immigrants who have come to America recently had their homes. The stories told by several of the returning voyagers of the desolation of Southern Italy would make a companion piece to Oliver Goldsmith's "The Deserted Village."

Until about three months ago the immigration from Southern Italy was just about normal. Then, as one of the passengers expressed it, "the scream of the eagle on the American dollar was heard in the land" and whole families began disposing of their household effects and soon after set sail for America. Stories of great wealth that shortly could be acquired in the United States were circulated, and soon what was at first a small procession became an army marching to the sea.

Those who were left took advantage of their opportunity and bought farms for almost nothing, so eager were the owners to reach the land of plenty, where they were told "silver dollars rolled around the streets." Soon afterward the recent purchasers of these farms felt the "gold fever," and they in turn sold out. Soon there were more farms than those who remained could manage. Village after village became depopulated in this way.

About a month ago still more wonderful stories of the great prosperity of America were spread. With this dream of wealth before them those who were left hastened to board the first ship for New York. This rush soon became a stampede. It was like that in which children followed the Piper of Hamelin, most of these people did not even try to sell their farms, for there was no one left to buy. Even when they arrived at the large cities they made no attempts to dispose of their property, fearing it would entail loss of time.

Now that part of Southern Italy, which is described as a magnificent country with soil of the richest kind, whose farms yielded crops in abundance, with prosperous, well filled villages every few miles, is a scene of desolation. In some of the villages there was not a living soul. Houses, with their doors and windows left open, were deserted as though their tenants had fled from a pestilence. In some of them the tables had not been even cleared of the remains of the last meal. In nearly all the household furniture had been left. In some of the homes stray dogs prowled.

On many of the farms ploughs had been left in the furrows, with here and there a coat or an old hat hanging on the handles, as though the owner had been suddenly called away and had had no time to return. Crops were left ripening in the fields, no hand being left to harvest them. In several places horses were seen grazing in the meadows, their owners probably 2000 miles away.

This great emigration has become a matter of serious concern to many prominent Italians, who ask, "Who will take the places of those who are gone?"—New York World.

Indian's Fondness for Dancing.

Like all the rest of his red skinned brethren, the Crow Indian dearly loves the dance. An Indian will drop his haying in the face of a thunderstorm to go to a dance, and a squaw will forget all her hifalutin college education at the prospect of keeping step to the magic beating of those tomtoms.

The music of the dance represents the summons of the ages—it is the call of the wild which the Indian cannot resist. The best and most industrious succumb to its wiles.

The Government is trying to stop Indian dancing on all the reservations, for the reason that an Indian will do nothing but dance when he is given free rein. Crops and blooded stock and all the higher ideals of civilization would soon go to smash on the reservation if the Indians were allowed to dance when and where they pleased. So, beyond a few dances, given at stated intervals, and a big "dance fest" at the time of the annual fair, the Crows have very little of their favorite enjoyment, unless one counts the dances that are held on the sly.—Denver Republican.

Mississippi was the first state in the Union to solve the problem of white supremacy in the South by lawful means. The constitution of 1890 disfranchises the ignorant and vicious of both races, and places the control of the state in the hands of its virtuous, intelligent citizens.

TIRED AND SICK YET MUST WORK

MRS. AUG. LYON

"Man may work from sun to sun but woman's work is never done."

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo and often suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, comes as a blessing. When the spirits are depressed, the head and back ache, there are dragging-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and reluctance to go anywhere, these are only symptoms which unless heeded, are soon followed by the worst forms of Female Complaints.

keeps the feminine organism in a strong and healthy condition. Inflammation, Ulceration, displacements, and organic troubles. In preparing for child-birth and to carry women safely through the Change of Life it is most efficient.

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes:— Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"For a long time I suffered from female troubles and had all kinds of aches and pains in the lower part of back and sides. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following the advice which you gave me I feel like a new woman and I cannot praise your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

J. S. Catts was on Friday last appointed by Gov. Comer, Sheriff of Chilton county to succeed Sheriff Pitts deceased.

Mr. Catts is a gentleman held in high estimation by his fellow citizens of Verbena, where he has resided for the last eighteen years. Clear minded and of strong physique, he will doubtless make a record as sheriff not excelled by any of his predecessors. We congratulate Chilton county upon his appointment.

Some of the finest cabbage is being raised in Chilton county, equal in every way to the best shipped here. Mr. W. M Oden of Calberry brought one into the Banner office firm and solid, weighing 9½ pounds. It was a credit to the raiser as well as the county.

The Clanton Odd Fellows gave a picnic last Friday at Dake's pond, about fifty invited guests being present. There was feasting a plenty and all thoroughly enjoyed the outing, in spite of the occasional showers which somewhat marred the occasion. But the Odd Fellows are a jolly set and enjoy themselves, and make others do likewise, under any and all circumstances.

Lee Hayes has been appointed deputy Sheriff by Sheriff Catts. He brings to the office experience and energy, and will go for 'em anytime and anywhere, and he generally gets 'em, too.

Great preparations have been made for the Masonic Conferrence which is being held to-day (Thursday.) Masons from our sister counties of Coosa and Elmore will be well entertained and afford pleasure to the entertainers by their presence.

The revival services at the Methodist church have continued with unabated enthusiasm all the week, large congregations attending each service, listening with delighted attention to the Rev. Henry T. Johnson of Eufaula. Our merchants have closed their stores one hour every morning, and much good was done. Forty-nine accessions to the church occurred is a splendid showing. The meeting was brought to a conclusion Tuesday night.

Perhaps, some day, this Circuit Court muddle will get straightened out, but at present it is badly mixed. What with "Pony" circuits, Lusts' bill and what not, poor Chilton seems to have got it where the chicken got the axe.

The Alabama Press Association meets to-day (Thursday) at Montgomery, and after a two days session will go on an excursion down the river to Mobile, a delightful outing about which I will have the pleasure of telling you upon my return.

A correspondent, T. R. T., writing from Unity last week gave the wrong information in regard to the reputed marriage between Mr. Thompson and Miss Minnie Traywick. Mr. W. M. Traywick, father of the young lady, says there is not a word of truth in the statement. We are very sorry this should have appeared in The Banner and if T. R. T. sends any more such information we shall know what to do with it.

On Sunday morning as the two accomodation trains met at Clanton Mr. T. A. Curry was relieved of his watch by a light-fingered gentleman, supposed to have been on the train. Pickpockets, fortunately, are rare in Clanton, and it is to be hoped will remain so.

The little Jenny Wren is a homely bird that adapts itself to circumstances and makes itself at home almost anywhere. One of these, a pair rather, have made their home in a tea cup that was placed on a shelf on the back porch of the home of S. E. Bruce, one and a half miles north of Clanton. Four little ones are in the nest and soon the home of wee Jenny Wrens will be empty. Their gratitude to Mr. Bruce's family for their hospitality.

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because OUR RECORD IS CLEAN, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then OUR POLICY is as liberal as is consistent with security; we are accommodating but prudent.

We ask your consideration.

THE CLANTON BANK

CORRESPONDENCE.

A cleansing, clean, cooling, soothing, healing household remedy is DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve. For burns, cuts, scratches, bruises, insect bites, and sore feet it is unequaled. Good for piles. Beware of imitations. Get DeWitt's. It is the best. Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

Cooper.

As I never see anything from this place, and as I have never attempted to write to the Banner, I decided to butt in.

The health of this commuuity is very good at present. I think that the small pox has just about died down. I hope it has.

The crops around here are looking very well; most of the farmers have laid their corn by; cotton is blooming a little.

Mrs. Tommi Hill is visiting her sister, Mrs Jennie Cox.

Misses Keturah and Linnie Cox went to Bethel last Saturday.

I don't think that the Sunday school at Chestnut is doing much. It was doing nicely untill the small pox got in around Cooper.

Mrs. Lavinsky is very low. She is not expected to live long.

We are all expecting to have a grand time at the picnic next Wednesday.

Well, as this is my first attempt, I will ring off.

Best wishes to the Banner and its many readers. COOPERITE.

Union Point.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely, with singing every Sunday morning. Rev. F. A. Ellison preached an excellent sermon here Sunday to a very large crowd.

Corn crops are very good in this community; cotton crops are sorry and late. We have been having plenty of rain down here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harp Mims spent the Fourth with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Franklin.

How was the Fourth, boys? Most of we people celebrated the Fourth in the grass patch.

Our school commenced Monday, the 8th; our teacher is Prof. W. Z. Dennis. I think he is a good teacher. People who do not send their children will miss a golden opportunity. The young people don't have no more past time down here than they have in Coosa.

The Charming Woman

is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires: neatness, clear eyes, clean smooth skin and that sprightliness of step and action that accompany good health: A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eys, smooth, velvety skin beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at Upchurch Drug co. 50c.

Billingsley.

Crops are improving, but are about 40 days late.

The Autauga county Farmers' Union will be held at Billingsley, August 8-9. The Union will give a barbecue on the 8th, and refreshments of all kinds will be served. Everybody invited except the boy or man with a pistol and a bottle. If any of the above kind happen to come please go away back and sit down. Everybody bring a well-filled basket. There will be some of the best speakers of the State on hand. Also there will be a band of music. Everybody come and enjoy one day with the boney hand farmers. We would like for you, Mr. Editor, to be with us on that day. If you will go to Krump on the Korner and get you a suit of Schloss clothes and wear them to Billingsley, you will have no trouble in getting off.

THE MILLER.

DEATH OF Mr. Z. T. CARWILE.

Mr. Zackary T. Carwile died at his home in Birmingham last Saturday morning, after several days illness with stomach trouble, aged 58 years. The remains were brought to Coopers Sunday morning and interred in the old family burying grounds.

SHOES BY THE CAR LOAD!

On account of this IMMENSE PURCHASE of SHOES we are compelled to close our present line out at a SACRIFICE to make room for the Fall line. Our Shoes are all absolutely new, not one pair of old stock in the house. We would like to have more money for them of course, but we are compelled to make a price that will move them out at once.

We are making the same REDUCTION on Clothing and Straw Hats.

Our buyers will leave for New York in a few days to buy goods for our six different stores, and for this, too, we will need a little money to pay train fare. Come in and see—no harm if you don't buy.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALABAMA.

Some people live and die without learning what the world's opinion of them may be, observes the Chicago Record-Herald.

Once in a while, opines the Washington Herald, the common people get in a large-size grin. It has been ruled that railroad officials cannot accept express franks under the new rate law.

Secrecy in the transmission of telegraph dispatches in China is to be insured in the future by a provision for the decapitation of all offenders revealing the contents of important messages in transit, announces the New York Tribune. In the case of ordinary messages of commerce thus revealed the penalty is to be ten years in prison. Five years imprisonment is provided for persons who know of the revelation of such secrets and neglect to report the matter to the proper authorities.

The government is now paying especial attention to the designing, placing and erection of its necessary buildings. It is working out park improvement schemes of appropriate magnitude. It is appreciating as never before the practical advantage of an equipment that appeals to the senses and stimulates the imagination of visitors from afar. We have as a people, boasts the Washington Star, attained the point in our national culture when the former non-essentials have become necessities.

The election of 19 women members of the Diet of Finland comes as a balm to soothe the wounds which woman suffrage has recently suffered on this side of the world. It is indeed an epochal event, pleads the Boston Post. Never before have women been elected representatives in a national legislature. It does not matter that the Finnish Diet has very little to do with government; that matter is attended to at St. Petersburg. But the prestige is the same. It is in contrast with the arrest and jailing of the suffrage advocates who tried to break into the British parliament.

Many young men fear to marry because they believe the girls demand a more expensive way of living than the prospective grooms can give. But, urges the New Orleans Picayune, while some foolish women may demand wealth and show, any good girl is willing to share with an industrious and worthy husband whatever fate or fortune may fall to him. But all loafers and spendthrifts should be avoided by the girls, as such fellows expect to live on the bride's parents or on somebody else. Many a young man does not know how to take care of money until he gets a good wife to help him, and such a wife has made the foundations of many a great man or big fortune. A most radical reformation is needed in every community as to the matrimonial relations of the people, and if it could be accomplished by law it would be well to apply the remedy broadcast.

The favorite nesting place of the colon bacillus is ice cream, and where you find the colon bacillus you may rest assured that his cousin, the typhoid bacillus, is not far off, is the warning of the New York Press. And the lovely jellies of all the hues of the rainbow—what, oh, what, are they? Scrapings off hides in the dirtiest factories in the world quite often. Gelatin made in this manner becomes gelatin because its components are unfit to be made into glue. There is good and wholesome gelatin, of course, but it is made out of proper material in clean factories. Dr. Wiley asks congress to give his inspectors the power to raid factories where the product is turned out loaded with the germs of lockjaw, which are introduced into the very capsules that enclose our drugs. It is manifest that before the fine art of poisoning food is adequately dealt with the Pure Food law will need some stiffening.

ALABAMA EVENTS FROM OVER THE STATE.

Interesting Items to Dwellers in the Commonwealth

A BRIEF WEEKLY SUMMARY

Electricity Plant in the Birmingham Jail—Town Creek Opposed to Race Suicide—Site for an Agricultural School at Gainesville.

Big Heading Mill for Oneonta.

Arrangements have been about completed for the erection of a $7,000 heading mill in Oneonta. M. R. Horton, of Calera, is at the head of the enterprise, and says he will have the mill in operation within the next sixty days. The purpose of the mill is to manufacture barrel and keg heads. Mr. Horton says he will employ about twenty-five or thirty hands and his monthly pay roll will amount to about $2,500. This mill will utilize a class of timber that has heretofore been considered almost useless. All kinds of timber four inches and over in diameter can be used. The entire output of the mill for twelve months has already been contracted for. The mill will be located on the east side of First avenue.

Wiring in the County Jail.

In Birmingham work upon the switchboard controlling the recently installed electric lights in the county jail has been completed, and it was possible Thursday for the first time to throw every portion of the old prison into bright light at one time. There are some thirty switches on the board in all, including those for the control of the ventilating fans, which have been liberally interspersed through the jail. These fans, although making it far from pleasnt, still relieve somewhat the oppressive heat of the prison interior. Big cut-off switches are so placed on the feed wires for the interior wiring that the whole can be cut off in the event of fire, etc. All the wires are in iron pipes for a double purpose.

Town Creek Opposes Race Suicide.

Twins have just been born to Mr. and Mrs. N. E. King at Town Creek, in Lawrence county, twenty-six miles west of Decatur, on the Southern railroad. This makes ten babies which have been born to four mothers at Town Creek within the past month or six weeks. A few weeks a go triplets were born to Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Jeffreys, triplets were also born to Mr. and Mrs. J. Clint Bracken and twins to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Terry. Town Creek is a small town of only about 800 inhabitants, but it is quite doubtful of there is another town in the entire state that can show a like record for triplets and twins during a like period of time.

Shark Captured.

Jackson Phillips, a watchman at the Tombigbee bridge near Demopolis, captured a shark weighing about 300 pounds and about eight feet eight inches in length. For some time this monster has been seen, causing much excitement in that vicinity. Until Saturday all attempts at his capture had been futile.

First Cotton Bloom.

J. T. Reader, the well-known steamboat man, whose home is in Smithsonia, reports the first cotton bloom for Lauderdale county. The bloom was large and healthy looking, and seemingly unaware of the fact that this has been the worst year ever for King Cotton. The bloom opened July 8.

Glass Manufacturing.

The Huntsville Business Club has received a proposition for the location in or near that city of a glass factory, to cost about $100,000. This proposition was submitted by two Chattanooga capitalists, who came here to look over the avilble factory sites. The matter is in the hands of the executive committee of the club.

Catts Is Sheriff.

J. S. Catts, of Verbena, Chilton county, was appointed sheriff of Chilton county, succeeding the late Sheriff Fitts.

McLester Hotel Has a Fire.

The McLester Hotel, of Tuscaloosa, was discovered to be on fire, and for a time the most intense excitement prevailed. The quick response of the fire department prevented what might have been a disastrous fire. The fire was caused by the spontaneous combustion of a dustless broom that is used in the hotel. When used this broom is dipped in a solution of kerosene and turpentine.

Electric Haulge in Mines.

The Brilliant Coal Company will commence this month to pay its employes twice a month. Engineers are now at work making surveys and estimates for the installing of electric haulage at No. 1 mine, which the company has decided to adopt there. Carpenters have also been engaged to build twenty new houses at the No. 2 mine. It is expected these improvements will greatly increase the output of coal at Brilliant.

Trouble With Sewers.

Athens is now having serious trouble a part of its sewerage. Thousands of dollars were spent on sewers and a man was employed to superintend the building of the system who came with proper recommendations, but who did not discharge his duty, and as a result a large part of the most expensive work is to be dug up and relaid to get the proper fall. This is being done now, and the condition of the city is very dangerous. The sewers are not carrying off the refuse, and as a result where ditches are being opened to reach the sewers water is rising in some places two and three feet deep. People living in the neighborhoods where this work is going on are afraid that serious results to health will follow.

The Result of the War.

For some time the right arm of J. Frank Parsons, of Bessemer, has given him considerable trouble, the forearm becoming inflamed, swollen and painful. He could secure no relief, and he went to the office of Dr. L. A. Spencer, where an operation was performed, and from the arm was taken a small piece of shell, which had been in the arm nearly forty-five years.

Patterns Destroyed.

Practically all of the patterns of the Hunsville Foundry and Machine Works were destroyed by a fire which originated in the roof of the pattern room from combustion. The loss is difficult to estimate, and it amounts to several thousand dollars. The loss is covered by insurance.

Assassinated While in the Field.

Wesley Burns, a highly respected citizen, living at the head of Choccolocco valley, near Anniston, was foully murdered by unknown assassins in the presence of several of his children, who were in the field at work with him. It is believed that the assassins were two white boys.

One Dead, Five Injured.

As the result of an explosion that occurred Thursday in the mines of the Palos Coal and Coke Company, about fifteen miles northwest of Birmingham, on the Frisco railway, C. T. Chadwick, a white miner, is dead, and five other miners more or less seriously injured.

Burned by Live Wire.

Eugene Donaho, a switchboard man employed by the Southern Bell Telephone Company at Huntsville, was knocked from a telephone pole by an electric current Monday evening and was seriously injured. He came in contact with a live wire and was badly burned.

Site for Agricultural School.

Government Expert Smith, of the soil surveying corps, is in Gainesville surveying 500 acres of land on the Trimble place, near that town, which has been given by John R. Rogers, of that place, for the site of an agricultural school. The government, state and county are expected to give $100,000 to the project.

Son Shoots Mother.

Mrs. H. W. Veitch, the wife of an employe at the Robertstown furnaces, at Bessemer, was probably fatally shot by the accidental discharge of a rifle in the hands of her little 8-year-old son Friday evening late.

To Open New Depot.

The Southern Railroad Company opened its new passenger station at Decatur last Sunday. The building stands near the old station and cost about $40,000. In connection with the station are two large train sheds.

Negro Crazed by the Sun.

Crazed from the effects of a sunstroke, Wash Saunders, colored, on Thursday morning fatally shot his wife and killed himself at his cabin just east of Florence. Saunders was the victim of a sunstroke about a week ago and had been acting crazy ever since. The couple had been married three months.

State Geologist Smith on Visit.

Dr. Eugene A. Smith, state geologist, of Tuscaloosa, arrived in Huntsville Thursday night to spend a few days there investigating the gas wells and prospects for oil in that section. He will be assisted in his investigation by a special committee appointed for the purpose by the Huntsville Business Men's League.

More Mines to Be Worked.

The brown ore mines at Champion, in Blount county, on the Birmingham Mineral railroad, between Birmingham and Oneonta, will be operated again, and a soon as extensive machinery can be installed a steady production will be pushed. The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company has acquired the property by lease, it is stated, and will immediately set about getting out the ore.

Annual Reunion.

The survivors of Capt. Frank B. Gurley's troop of Confederate cavalry held their annual reunion at the home of their former commander, near the town of Gurley. They were entertained royally by Captain Gurley. The troop had a stirring career in the civil war, and Captain Gurley entertains the survivors every year at this season. They come from all states for the affair.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. SUED BY UNITED STATES

Government Accuses It Of Being a Trust

AND INTEND TO PROVE IT

The American Company, Imperial Company, British-American Company, American Cigar Company, are the Ones.

New York.—Suit was begun in the district court for the southern district of New York for the dissolution of the American Tobacco Tobacco Company, known as the tobacco trust. The court is also asked to appoint a receiver for the concern.

The government's searching investigation for a year and a half reaches its climax in this suit. The petition avers that the trust has compassed he entire world, and says that through the acquirement of foreign interests and combinations, it will absolutely monopolize the tobacco business of the world unless relief is at once granted.

The recital of unfair trade methods, oppression, ferocious competition, deception, fraud and conspiracies by which it is charged that the trust has grown since 1890 from a capitilization of $25,000,000, to a corporation whose total assets now exceed $275,000,000, turns a new leaf in the history of American commercial vandalism.

Niles Grants Injunction.

Jackson, Miss.—Judge Niles, of the Federal court, has granted an injunction against the railroad commission restraining it from interfering with the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company in putting in effect the same rate at night that it charges in the day time for long-distance messages. The company alleges that the same service is furnished at night as in the day at the same cost. The injunction is returnable at the September term of court in Jackson.

To Cost a Million

Englewood, Kan.—A corps of engineers under Prof. C. S. Schlicler, government engineer of the reclamation department, established permanent offices here preparatory to the work of reclaiming by irrigation 20,000 acres of land in the Cimarron valley in Oklahoma. It will require more than a year to complete the pumping plant and ditches and the estimated cost is $1,000,000.

The main object for establishing the irrigation system is to encourage the cultivation of the sugar beet.

Two Veterans Dead.

New Orleans.—Two well known Confederate veterans died here. One was S. S. Prentiss, an attorney and son of Sargent S. Prentiss, the famous ante-bellum slavery orator who moved from Massachusetts to Mississippi. The other was Eugene F. Gorman, who up to a few years ago was widely known in the United States both as an actor and as a showman.

A Serious Situation

Brescia, Italy.—As the result of the arrest of a tramp for insulting the Italian flag during the military parade on Garibaldi Day, the labor exchange has voted a great strike which has been carried out. The town is without lights and troops have been forced to charge the manifestants, wounding many of them The situation is very serious.

Cold Weather in Europe.

Berlin.—Unseasonably cold weather prevails throughout middle Europe. Temperatures as low as 41 degrees have been recorded in Southern Bavaria, and it was reported from Strasburg that snow was falling in the Voseges mountains.

Collision at Hattiesburg.

Hattiesburg, Miss.—In a head-on collision between a Gulf and Ship Island work train and an incoming passenger train on the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad, one man was killed and nine others injured.

Red Men Starve.

Quebec.—A dispatch from Robervale reports the death from starvation of twenty-one Indians in the depths of the forest about Lake Mistassing. The Indians left Mistassing, 300 miles north of Lake St. John, about the end of March, intending to make the journey to Robervale on foot. Their provisions failed them and they succumbed one after another until only one of the party survived.

For Italy's Navy

Roma, Italy.—The Minister of Marine has ordered the construction of four battleships to be named Roma, Vittro Emanicle, Napoli, and Regina Helena.

A trolley line from Atlanta, Ga., to Augusta, Ga., has nearly been surveyed. The right of way through Atlanta was secured some time ago by the Atlanta and Carolina Construction Company.

VICE-PRESIDENT FAIRBANKS

Saves a Pretty Waiteress From Drowning in Yellowstone Park.

Yellowstone Park.—Vice President Fairbanks risked his life to save Miss Lena Waiers, a waitress at the Park hotel. While sitting on the hotel veranda, talking to J. I. Gibbs, proprietor of the hotel, the Vice President heard screams from the lake. Seeing a young woman struggling in the water, Vice-President Fairbanks ran toward the water, throwing off his coat as he sped toward the shore. He rushed past two men who stood on the pier with mouths gaped in alarm. The Vice-President leaped into the water and made for the girl; one of the men followed. The men dragged the unconscious girl to the shore after hard work. Mr Fairbanks at once so began to work the girl's arms and to chafe her hands in an effort to resusticate her. After some effort, she was revived.

WAR IT WILL BE

Says Congressman Hobson, and He Believes in Increasing the Navy.

Dallas, Texas.—Congressman Hobson, of Alabama, believes there will be war soon between the United States and Japan. In an interview here, Mr. Hobson said: "War between Japan and the United States is inevitable. Japan is only waiting for a pretext on which to base a declaration of war. That declaration may come at any moment. Our navy is inadequate to meet such an emergency.

"More battleships should be built at once. Even now it may be too late to avert a disastrous sea collision of the Japanese navy, because of a disparity of fighting strength in the Far East.

"Even now I hear that the action of the United States government in ordering the Atlantic fleet to Pacific waters will be taken advantage of by Japan as a pretext for precipitating a war with this country.

"This government should proceed at the opening of the next congress to provide for the building of the strongest navy of any nation on the earth."

KNIGHTS MARCH IN PARADE

Saratoga, N. Y.—A parade of 15,000 Knights Templar, accompanied by bands, through streets gay with bunting, reviewed by the governor of New York, the earl of Eustin, personal representative of King Edward of England, and by Grand Master George M. Moulton, of the grand commandery of the Knights, constituted the chief feature of the triennial conclave of the grand encampment of Knights at that gathering. Thousands of spectators were gathered along the line of march.

Governor Charles E. Hughes and his staff arrived from Albany shortly before the parade started, and were escorted to the Grand Union hotel, where, with the earl of Eustin and Grand Master Moulton, he reviewed the parade.

MORGAN IN TROUBLE

Wall Street Astonished at Allegation in the Probe.

New York.—Charges of conspiracy against J. Pierpont Morgan, involving a loss of $3,000,000, were heard before Irvin Belford, as special master.

Wall street heard with astonishment of the allegation connecting Morgan with the conspiracy charge. So quietly had the investigation gone work that little or nothing was done in the matter until Mr. Belford set to work today.

Hhe charge against Morgan is brought by the Ohio Savings Bank and Trust Company, of Toledo, Ohio. It is alleged that Morgan with stockholders and bondholders of the Toledo Railways and Terminal Company, conspired to sell out the property under foreclosure proceedings to the detriment of the general creditors.

McCormick Will Head Dixie.

New York.—Ira A. McCormick, assistant to the general manager of the New York Central railroad, has resigned. He will become president of the Randolph and Cumberland railroad, which runs from Cameron to Hillsons, N. C.

"Sherlock Holmes" Marries.

London.—Society is pleased and surprised over the announcement of the engagement of Sir Conan Doyle and Miss Jean Leckie. Until the news was made public, it was thought that the young woman and Sir Conan were merely friends, and that there was nothing serious in the author-batchelor's attention to the future Lady Doyle. He is forty-three years old.

Peonage Fines.

Charleston, W. Va.—In the federal court here the Ritter Lumber Company, of Mebes, Wyoming county, pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to hold employes in peonage. The indictment contained twenty counts, the minimum fine on each count being $1,000.

The party of army officers who have been following the trail which Sherman too arrived in Atlanta Sunday.

ORE DUST NUISANCE.

Judge's Decision Threatens to Close Furnaces.

Pittsburg, Pa.—A decision of far-reaching interest to property owners in the hill districts was handed down by Judge James S. Young in the common pleas court in the suit instituted by the residents of Oakland, this city, against the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company to have the company stop the emission of ore dust from its blast furnaces.

The court held all the officers and directors of the company to be in contempt for failing to comply with the order to stop the alleged nuisance and fined B. F. Jones, president of the company, $5,000; Superintendent Messner, of the Eliza furnace, $100, and all the other officers of the company each $100. Judge Young further stated in his decision that unless the company can get a device to do away with the ore dust it must shut down the furnaces. An appeal was taken.

Revolting Conditions.

Brussels.—Maj. Lemair, who served eighteen years in the Congo, and who resigned when he was satisfied that he would be prosecuted for cruelty towards native soldiers, retaliated by publishing a sensational exposure of the revolting conditions prevailing in the native army. He declares the soldiers are merely brigands, who raid the populace, assault the women and burn villages. The major adds that when he attempted to protect the natives by inflicting severe punishments on the troops the disciplinary measures were overruled by his superiors. He insists that the real object of the Congo administration in preferring the charges was to get rid of him.

Want Universal Quarantine.

New Orleans, La.—Dispatches from Galveston, Tex., say that a movement to make United States maritime quarantine universal on the gulf coast has been started by the Galveston chamber of commerce. Texas alone, of all the gulf states, maintains state maritime quarantine, the other states having turned their quarantines over to the federal government. The Galveston chamber has sent a request to Washington that, for the sake of the welfare of the port, Galveston be given a quarantine station and regulations the same as those of other gulf seaports.

Stabs Herself With a Hat Pin.

Evansville, Ind.—Mrs. Gertrude Eccles, who a month ago became the bride of E. O. Eccles, a fresco painter of Nashville, while pursued by her father, James Martin, near St. Wendel, a few miles from here, pulled a hat pin from her hat and stabbed herself in the region of the heart. She is dying. Martin is said to have threatened to kill his daughter several times because she married Eccles. Martin made his escape, but officers are searcing for him, and if caught he will undobtedly be roughly handled, as feeling is strong against him.

Fish for Mexico.

Guadalajara, Mex.—George W. Baylor, of this city, who for two years has been working to secure a supply of game fish for Lake Chapala, has just received a letter from Congressman John N. Garner, of Texas, in reference to the matter. Congressman Garner states that he has asked the bureau of fisheries of the United States to make an exception in favor of Mexico, and forward 2,000 bass to El Paso. The expense of transporting the fish frof El Paso to Lake Chapala will have to be borne by the Jalisco government. Up to this time the American bureau of fisheries has not supplied fish to a foreign country.

Lost Mine Found.

Glasgow, Ky.—A report circulated at Campton, Wolfe county, to the effect that the long lost Swift silver mine had been found is causing a great deal of excitement. It has been claimed for many years that the mine was in Wolfe county, and Pittsburg parties who have been for some time carefully investigating in that section yesterday struck a vein of some kind of ore on the Lena McLing farm, near Campton, and since have been making fabulous offers for property in that section. They gave out a statement to the effect that they had found lead, but this is not credited, the opinion prevailing that the ore found was silver, and that they had found the long sought for Swift mine.

Father Loses Two Sons.

New York.—The oldest and the youngest sons of the Rev. Emil Dahlman, pastor of Zion Reformed Evangelical church of Buffalo, were drowned in Lake Erie, off Angola, and another who was sailing with them had a narrow escape. Their sailboat was capsized owing to the heavy sea and the strong wind.

Odd Sunday School.

Glasgow, Ky.—A unique Sunday school has recently been organized at Vine Grove, in Hardin county. The teacher, Jack Moorman, is 82 years of age, while all of his pupils are past 75 years. The class is said to be a perfect model, as every member, notwithstanding his threescore and ten years, is always punctual and never misses a lesson. Mr. Moorman says he has no difficulty in keeping order, either.

SOLDIER TRIES TO KILL THE FRENCH PRESIDENT

He Fires Two Shots at Close Range but Misses

ATTEMPT TO LYNCH HIM

Shots Were Fired as President Was Returning From Review—The Escape of Fallieres Was Almost Miraculous.

Paris.—The national fete Sunday was marred by a dastardly attempt on the life of President Fallieres by Leon Maille, a naval reservist, of Havre, who, it is believed, is suffering from the mania of persecution. Maille fired two shots at the president, but did not hit him.

On account of the activity of the anti-militarists who tried to organize a demonstration against the army throughout France exceptional precautions were taken to safeguard President Fallieres.

The attempt on his life occurred on Avenue des Champs-Elysees while the president was returning to the palace from Long Champs, where he had reviewed the garrison of Paris in the presence of 250,000 enthusiastic people. Premier Clemenceau and M. Lafes, the president's secretary, were with the president in his landau, which was escorted by a squadron of cuirassiers.

The carriage had safely emerged from the Bois de Boulogne, where the anti-militarists had stationed themselves with the intention of hooting the soldiers and was descending the broad Champs-Elysees amid the acclamations of the crowds thronging the sidewalks, who were shouting "Vive Fallieres," "Vive L'Armee," when at the corner of Lezueur street Maitie from the curb fired two shots point blank at the president in quick succession. Miraculously no one was hurt.

President Fallieres was cool and collected when the cortege stopped. The diplomats who were following the president's landau alighted from their carriages and hurried to the side of M. Fallieres. Finding that nobody had been injured, by the president's orders the cortege moved on.

Meantime two policemen seized Maille, who made no resistance, but the police with difficulty prevented the irate crowds from lynching the prisoner until a cordon of reserves came up and conducted him to the station.

Killed by Southern.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Eastbound vestibule train No. 42, of the Southern railway, collided with a switch engine at Johnson City, Tenn., at 7:20 Sunday night, killing six persons and injuring twenty others. All the dead are negroes, and have not been identified. George Moore, white, a labor agent, who was conducting a party of negroes from Alabama to North Carolina, received injuries which may prove fatal. Engineer Sam Bush, of Knoxville, received serious injuries.

Later—Eight men are dead and thirteen wounded. The explosion of two barrels of powder in the turret caused the accident.

Seventeen Hurt on the Georgia.

On Board the Battleship Georgia, Provincetown Practice Grounds, Mass.—The explosion of an eight-inch shell on board this battleship at 12:12 Monday resulted in terrible injuries to 17 men, including Lieutenant Goodrich and Midshipmen Goldthwaite and Cruz. The ship has been ordered to proceed at once to Boston. The injured men are being treated by navy surgeons.

Japanese in Mexico.

Monterey, Mex.—Recent reports say that large numbers of the Japanese and Chinese emigrants that arrived at Port Salina Cruz have been locating in the state of Coahuila and Chipuahua. A prominent Mexican of this city seemed to think that they will likely displace the Mexican peons in that field of agricultural work in the Republic.

Houses Burned.

Moghilev, Russia.—Smolyany, a small town in this neighborhood, has suffered severely at the hands of incendiaries. One hundred and fourteen houses occupied by Jews and fifteen tenants by Christians, as well as seventy shops, have been burned. Several persons perished in the flames.

$100,000,000 on Deposit in Bank.

New York.—At the close of business Thursday the deposits in the Bowery Savings Bank reached a total of $100,000,000, a saving, it is said, unprecedented in the history of savings banks.

Again Goes for Kissing.

Cairo, Ill.—The Rev. D. L. Bass, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, whose recent sermon on the evils of kissing created a stir here, renewed his attack on the "kissing devil." "The kiss devil is doing more to all trades than the whiskey devil, the drug devil and the other devils, all told," said Dr. Bass. "God deliver us from the kissing devil." The Rev. Dr. Bass, though a southerner, has Puritan blood in his veins.

The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON

Subject: Jesus the Teacher.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, Hamburg avenue and Wierfield street, on the theme "Jesus the Teacher," the Rev. Ira Wemmell Henderson, pastor, took as his text Matt. 5:2, "And He opened His mouth and taught them." He said:

From the days of His youth when He put the wise men of the temple to shame to those last hours among His disciples Jesus was a teacher. The teacher is the one who shows us how to do things, how to achieve, how to attain. Mere theorists may tell us what we ought to do and be; convincing talkers may tell us what the end of true effort is; strong preachers may tell why we should be thus and so; but to the teacher alone is given the task and the power to show to us how we may become what theorists, talkers and preachers declare we ought to be.

Fundamentally no teacher is of good report save his teaching comes from experience. The man who is to teach us how to do and become must, first of all, have attained. We cannot impart to others what we do not know ourselves. Ignorance cannot enlighten. Jesus had this rich personal experience in spiritual things, and in the teaching of eternal principles of the spiritual life He is unsurpassed. This we will take for granted in our estimate of Jesus as a teacher.

Let us consider some of the minor qualities which inhered to the preaching of the Christ. Our Lord taught simply, searchingly, realistically, purposefully, authoritatively.

The teaching of Christ was simple. He did not try to mix matters or the mind of men with complex statements. Deepor than the sea, boundless in their extent and scope, the truths which Jesus taught were yet simply told, were couched in the language of childhood, and understandable to all. The simplicity of the teaching of Jesus is charming. The message of Christ does not become silly merely because it is simple. It is not a message for the weak-minded. Rather is it a stay for those of the finest and the broadest intellect. Strong and sensible in its simplicity the gospel of Christ reaches the hearts of all men.

The teaching of Christ was searching. How He burned through sham and cant and hyprocrisy, and bit at the very vitals of sin. How often He whipped the gates off at the whited sepulchres, and revealed the hidden iniquity within. No wolf under sheepskin was safe near Jesus. Jesus didn't take superficial glances; He probed deep and to the bottom to reveal the covered truth or error as the case might be. With the water from the well Christ leads us to discern the everlasting springs of eternal life. The good Samaritan is the example of mercy. The Pharisees and the scribes show us the folly of serving of the letter of the law for its own sake. The boy who grew faint, homesick, and went back into his father's arms, is the type of us all. What could search out truth more finally than that story of a misspent life? "Lord, lord," we hear men cry, and we know that the Christ life is not an affair of declaration so much as of doing.

Jesus taught realistically. He did not go into metaphysics to explain His points, but out into the world. He didn't pay much attention to philosophic language. He had little time for the impractical. But how realistic He made the truth. Sin is exemplified in the erring son. Selfishness is shown in the elder brother. The blowing wind is the illustration of the Spirit. The vine reveals the essential union of Christians with Christ. The two praying in the temple mark sharply the difference between self-satisfaction and religious self-sufficiency, and the soul humble in its sense of guilt. That fellow who heaped money in his coffers and grain in his barns has a lesson for every one. What difference does it make to you who and how many are the sinners forgiven, when once you grasp the import of the parable of the paying off of the men who labored in the vineyard? These are enough to show us how realistic was the teaching of Christ. He forced His points home in the language of the fields, the temple, the streets, the firesides. His illustrations dealt not with impossible situations but with daily occurrences which might easily be paralleled in the experience of each of His hearers. They knew how self-righteous the leaders of the people were. They had more than once seen a woman sweep her house in search of a coin. It was no new thing to learn that a shepherd would go out into the mountains leaving the flock behind to lend succor to some lost and lonely lamb. There were tares enough and sufficient mixed ground in Judea to enable the farming element to see the point of the parables of the tares and the sower. They knew as well as we know the pervading principle of yeast. These and a multitude of other realistic illustrations in the teaching of Jesus gave charm to His words and filled His messages with power. And the preaching of men will lose all its freshness and efficiency just so soon as the element of the realistic which holds personal interest is left out.

Then, too, Jesus taught with purpose, with an end in view. He didn't talk just to hear Himself talk. He did not engage in vocal gymnastics after the manner of so many speakers of this day and generation. He did not talk because there was "easy money" to be made that way, or in order that He might get notoriety. On the contrary, Jesus talked purposefully. It meant danger for Jesus to take the stand He did. He ran many and great risks in the speaking of the truth. But the Master had a purpose. He wanted men to see what sin is; how defiling it is; how disintegrating and disgusting its effects are. He wished humanity to see and to know that sin is inimical to God; that it stains and soils the souls of men; that it wrecks and destroys all that is best in man; how useless it is.

On the other hand, He wanted men to know what is the nature of God and His character; what is the Kingdom of Heaven, its entrance—conditions and the joys to be attained therein; what is the glory of a godly life. Christ wanted to assure men that God is love; He wished them to know that the Kingdom of Heaven is present, as well as future, a kingdom of the Spirit and over-ruling all material life. Jesus had a purpose. Therefore He pictured the new birth to men as the entrance requirement for the Heavenly Kingdom and the joys of eternal life with God. Jesus had a purpose to show men God, sin, redemption, the kingdom. Having a deep and fixed purpose, He taught convincingly from a convicted life.

In the last place, Jesus taught as one having authority. Mark tells us that at the synagogue at Capernaum the Jews were astonished at the teaching of Jesus—that is to say, they were almost struck dumb. Contrary to the scribes, Jesus talked with authority. Speaking from his own intimate, personal knowledge of the truth and power of His message Jesus asked the aid and witness of no man to prove His points. The scribes cited precedent as justification for their legalism. Jesus spoke truth under the influence of the Spirit of God. The scribes rested their case on external authorities; Jesus had the witness of the Spirit of His own life. The Pharisees made tradition the test; Christ made the Spirit. It is no wonder that they were astonished. The gulf is wide between the sanctions of tradition and the sanction of the Spirit. Traditions choke the truth; the Spirit giveth life. The hope and strength of worn-out theories is tradition and it is the chief enemy of the Spirit. No man of sense will, of course, break with the past merely through perverseness. On the other hand, no one should allow the fetiches of the past to deaden a higher life now. To the past all honor; for the present the things of to-day, the hopes and visions of to-morrow.

The application is easy. Our promulgation of the truth should be simple. The teachings of Jesus should be applied searchingly to all life in this day. Our method of presentation should be realistic, not abstruse, that men may feel and grasp and hold the truth. There ought to be no lack of purpose in our teaching of the way unto eternal life. We tell men, or we should, the Gospel story not to amuse them, but to save their immortal souls. And lastly, and most important of all, we must teach with authority—not dogmatically or narrowly—but with the sureness that comes from spiritual experience.

Calm the Imagination.

You will tell me that calmness of the imagination does not depend on ourselves. Pardon me, it depends very much on ourselves. When we cut off all the uneasy thoughts in which the will has a share, we greatly diminish those which are involuntary. God will watch over your imagination if you do not keep up the disturbance by your scrupulous reflections.

Abide in peace. Do not listen to your imagination, which is too lively and too full of fancies. This excessive activity consumes your body, and dries up your inward life. You are preying upon yourself uselessly. It is merely your restlessness which hinders peace and interior grace. How can you expect God to speak in that gentle and inward voice which melts the soul, when you are making so much voice with your rapid reflections. Be silent, and God will speak again.—Fenelon.

The Living Hope.

"The risen Christ is the hope of the believer—Christ, not in the heavens, but in the heart. And this hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil. There is saving power in this hope, for it is not a theory or dogma or experience, but a Divine Personality, even Jesus, the Forerunner, who has for us entered the upper sanctuary, and there ever liveth to make intercession for us, and hath begotten us unto a living hope by His resurrection from the dead."—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The Spiritual Magnet.

That great magnet, with its metal frame and its coil of wire, and that strange magnetic power, reaches out and takes hold of those little pieces of metal, between which and itself there is an affinity, and it gives them some of its power through the contact. Christ is the Great Spiritual Life Magnet. "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me," and faith in Him puts us in spiritual affinity with Himself, and through it He holds us to Himself and gives us power of His power, and purity of His purity, and character of His character, and life of His life.

Fulfilling the Plan.

The engineer of the Brooklyn bridge was confined to his bed when it was in process of construction. Day after day, looking from his window, he saw its piers rise and the spider's web of cables cunningly formed. It had all been planned and held in his mind's eye; and when it was finished, being asked how it looked, he said, "It is precisely what I expected it to be." Oh, would that Christ might be able to say the same of us; that our life and character are according to His plans and purposes!

We Belong to God.

We may throw ourselves away, but God will not throw us away. We belong to Him still, and He "gathereth up the fragments which remain, that nothing be lost." In order to become pure, we may need sharp suffering, and then God will not hesitate to inflict it. It is thus that God's love for the soul and its worth appear eminently, in that He will not let us destroy ourselves.—James Freeman Clarke.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JULY 21 BY THE REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: The Ten Commandments, Duties Toward Men, Ex. 20:12-17—Golden Text: Lev. 19:18—Memory Verses, 12-17.

The commandments that impress upon us our duties toward humanity are the corollaries of the commandments that tell us of our obligations toward God. We are ordered to have a lasting love and reverence for God not only because it is a good thing to love God for His own sake, but also because it is necessary that we shall be ready to learn from Him how He desires His children to be treated. This lesson deals with our relationships to men, individually and collectively, in the light of our allegiance to God.

The fifth command, which enjoins proper respect to our earthly parents, is the basis upon which all social life is reared. The sense of authority in the home and of obedience to parental control supplies the ground upon which all sane and sound civil governments rests. It rests, to be sure, on other principles. But it rests hard on this. And the willingness upon the part of the child to yield obedience to the authority of the parent implies that the parent shall be worthy of recognition and that the authority of the parent shall be wise and sensible and intelligent, a control fashioned after the sovereignty which God exercises in the world and over humanity. An obedient child presupposes a parent who is worthy to be obeyed. And many times parents lose sight of this utterly. A child cannot be expected to obey an unreasonable parent. We are under no obligation to have respect for parents who have no respect for themselves. God does not call upon a child to have love for a parent, in filial fashion, who renders no meed of love to the child that parent has brought into this world. A child is not called upon to stifle its own individuality and conform itself to the parental pattern in every minute detail of its life. And yet some people seem to think that their children are not honoring them simply because they refuse to be run into a prearranged family mold. Honoring one's parents does not consist in allowing them to order one to do wrong, or in allowing them to force one to do unreasonable things. Honor to one's parents consists in giving them due and careful obedience along every line that properly belongs to a parent's rights. And most of all it entails upon the part of the parent that he or she, as the case may be, shall be worthy of honor and wise and intelligent in the matter of commandment and control.

"Thou shalt not kill" enjoins the sixth commandment. And you must not only not kill your brother, but also you must not take your own life. It further means that the nations shall cease international murder and that civil government shall cease to execute human beings, no matter what their crimes may have been. It means also that it is murder to sell adulterated medicine, to sell whisky or any other poison, to work men and women and children to death, or to be a party to any form of murder, be it long or short in its action, be it refined or vicious.

The seventh commandment is especially in need of enforcement. No one who is at all solicitous about the welfare of this country can contemplate the marital infelicities that are so widespread and numerous in America without a feeling of, profound fear for the harvest that sooner or later we shall reap as a nation except we are able to put a stop to the criminality that is rampant in our midst. Humanity cannot long trifle with the highest and holiest relations of human life without reaping the whirlwind. The divorce record of America is America's disgrace. Her record of remarriages of men and women who, in the eyes of God and a decent society, are not entitled to remarriage is America's shame. And these twin evils are a menace to the health and perpetuity of the nation.

Some very eminent gentlemen—some of whom rent pews in high-toned churches and who are among the officiary of the organized church of Jesus Christ—are to-day under the condemnation of the eighth commandment. For stealing may be variously committed. It is not necessary to become a common pickpocket in order to win common thief. It is not necessary to lay one's self open to conviction under the provisions of the penal code in order to be a robber of the vilest type. The worst criminals in this land to-day are the ones who are out of jail.

The ninth word of God to Moses and Israel hits the liars. And the liars are among the meanest people in the world and among those who are denied entrance into the new Jerusalem of God. The liar is one of the hardest problems with which humanity is called upon to deal. You may count on an honest man, but a liar is an unknown quantity. And lying is a habit. Rather I should say it tends to become a habit. One lie invites another. And the worst of the lie is that sooner or later it so destroys the integrity of the liar that he doesn't know what he honestly thinks or what the truth really is composed of.

The people who are indicated by the tenth commandment are among the world's unfortunates very often. They merit our pity. Jealousy is an unmitigated curse to the man who falls into its grasp. God help the people who are smitten with the venom of jealousy. They are indeed cursed.

Remarks the Pittsburg Leader: The greatest drain that is upon the purse of the people to-day, the greatest economic loss that the country suffers, comes from tuberculosis. True economy in government would be found in the liberal expenditure of money for stamping out the plague, and the day is coming when this fact will be recognized.

TAX SALE.

On account of a mistake in the advertisement published in the "official organ of Chilton county" (The Union) printed at Birmingham, the sale of land for delinquent taxes is postponed to Monday, July 22nd, 1907.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Middleton last Friday to provide for closing and discontinuing the dispensary operated in the town of Clanton.

Alabama cotton ginners' reports are to be gatherd for the state bureau of cotton statistics by government employes without cost to the state and in just as careful and efficient way as they are assembled for the national government. This is the information transmitted to W. H. Seymour, director of the Alabama bureau, by census director, North, who is acting under the direct instructions of Secretay Struss of the bureau of commerce and labor.

NO CIRCUIT COURT.

There was no Circuit Court held at Clanton last Monday. Judge A. H. Alston was here, the Petit Jury was here, witnesses were here, lawyers were here, but no court was held.

Judge Alston presided because of the fact that Judge Pearson was incompetent to try some of the cases for the reason that he had been counsel in some of them.

As soon as court convened, Col. W. A. Collier addressed Judge Alston and said it was not proper to hold the court at this time. The bill creating the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit Court fixed a different time for holding the court. In the general act, known as the Lusk act, there is no repealing clause, and the court should be held at the time specified in the special act. He further said that Judge Pearson had committed an error in issuing an order summoning a jury, that order being made in vacation; that no jury had been drawn by the jury commission, that heretofore juries had been drawn for two terms instead of three, and that therefore no jury had been drawn for this term of court. One of the principal grounds for not holding this court was that in addition to providing for holding a circuit court, the act creating the Fifteenth Circuit gave to the judge chancery powers—powers not given to other court judges—in short, created a different court from the court named in the general act.

Mr. Tipton Mullins submitted to the court that the court should not be held for the further reason that even if it be true that the general act repealed the special act, the general act was unconstitutional as to the time of holding court in Chilton county and the 15th Circuit, because the title of the act did not embrace all the subjects of the act, the act fixing time by an amendment of the section, which section only related to one circuit, while the amendment related to several. Consequently the subject embraced by the act was not covered by the title nor germane thereto.

It was then represented to the court that in an important case that Judge Pearson was unable to try, the defendant was sick and could not be present at this time.

Judge Alston stated that he had not investigated the questions raised and while he thought there was a good deal of force in the position taken, the matter involved too much of importance to be decided without more thorough consideration and more investigation than he had given or was prepared to give to the matter. He thought that the better course would be to continue all the cases, in other words, not hold the court, and asked the opinion of each of the attorneys attending the court, each of whom stated they concurred in the view that this was not a proper time under the law to hold the court and that the course suggested by the Judge should be pursued. He suggested that some legislation correcting this conflict of time in the two existing acts should be perfected. The Judge therefore made an order continuing all the cases and the court adjourned sine die.

Gumpo.

To the boys of our grand old county of Chilton.

Boys, have you ever realized the responsibility of this life? Have you ever thought of who was to take the place of those who now have charge of our government, also our churches and Sunday schools? If not, it is time you were pondering these things in your mind, for the time in which we have to make the necessary preparations to meet the responsibilities of this life is limited and no time should be lost, for we can't begin too soon in making men of morals, principles and knowledge. This is what it takes to accomplish anything in this life. Now, why not resolve at once to make more of these qualities. I dare say, if we should, our mothers, sisters and aunts would not have to walk the streets of our villages and towns, carrying a petition to put down the liquor traffic, and other things that are detrimental to the youth of this day.

Saw mills cannot be successfully run without logs. Blind tigers, dispensarys and saloons cannot be successfully run without boys. Now, boys, do you see your possibilities? I do, you only need to join the army of tetotlers, then burn the bridges behind you and never retreat an inch.

One word to the girls. Girls, the boys require purity of you and, you, by all means, should require purity of the boy.

We were delighted to have our friend, Dr. J. P. Ellsberry, with us Sunday.

Mr. S. D. Smitherman went to Calera Monday.

Mr. C. M. Martin and my room mate are feasting in Stumps Hill this week. Best wishes to all.

The Doctor Away from Home when Most Needed.

People are often very much disappointed to find that their family physician is away from home when they most need his services. Diseases like cramp colic and cholera morbus require prompt treatment, and have in many instances proven fatal before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. The right way is to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. No physician can prescribe a better medicine for these diseases. By having it in the house you escape much pain and suffering and all risk. Buy it now; it may save life. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Saginaw.

The Odd Fellows picnic the 4th of July was attended by a large crowd.

Mrs. E. W. Gray went to Birmingham one day last week.

Mr. Dallas McArrell is in Birmingham at the present.

Messrs. Joe Nelson and Guy Westbrook returned from Birmingham to-day.

Miss Gussy Bruce returned to Birmingham Monday, after a few days visit to T. W. Dunlap's family.

Messrs. Rube Miller and Rudolph Motes of Clanton visited our town on the 4th, and some of the girls were all smiles.

Mrs. John Grant has returned to her home near Clanton after a long visit to her mother, Mrs. Fraser.

Little Ruth Dunlap is real sick with whooping cough at present.

There are several children in this town with whooping cough.

Died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Esman, their little baby, Clarisnce and was buried at Ellisville grave yard on Saturday.

We will close with best wishes to the Banner and its readers.

Maplesville.

Dear Banner—I write to let you and your readers know that I arrived in Maplesville this morning from Birmingham, after a nice weeks tour to Gurdo, Bessemer, Huntsville and Birmingham. My trip was very pleasant and interesting; my pleasures consisted in an automobile ride up on Monte Sano, the mountain I spoke of in my last letter to you. The mountain is only two miles away from Huntsville, but a winding road has to be gone along the distance of five or six miles in order to reach the top which is at least 1,000 feet above the city. I rode in that auto about twenty or thirty miles. After coming down from the mountain, where we could see all over the city of Huntsville and surrounding country, I and my son's family were whirled through all the principle streets out to Dallar cotton mills and away toward the Tennessee river on a fine macadamized road, as nice and firm as the streets of a well kept city. By the way, I believe I will stop right here to say that I am a firm advocate of better roads in our county (Chilton.) I find everywhere I have been the people are enthusiastic for improvement in many things. Young men and women are forging to the front, backed by inducements hardly ever offered before to any people, especially since reconstruction days. I know a young man of Birmingham, who quit his job last Saturday evening, whose pay was $2.75 a day, who had to lose only three hours Monday morning 'till he was in business again, all caused by thorough preparation.

Perhaps I am becoming a little uninteresting now, as I promised to write from Birmingham and failed to do so. I will say that Birmingham is striving to be larger and more important. Some of you perhaps don't know that she intends to be the greatest city in the South before very long by enlarging her boundry so as to take in all the suberban towns by which it is surrounded.

On the fourth of July I saw a great many interesting sights I went to North Birmingham park to a picnic. There were about 500 persons present. A Methodist church gave a barbecue for the benefit of their church. A great many communities had their special entertainments so it was entertaining to note them at dinner time assemble in little groups and with much mirth partake of the delicious repasts provided by the fathers and mothers who seemed to cast all care away and desport themselves as the remembrance of youth strove to make them feel young once more.

In the evening the Salvation army held services at the park. I was told that not less than 5,000 persons went to East Lake park. In the city after the middle of the evening one had in many places to separate the people to go anywhere on the streets.

Crops are very slim everywhere that I have been, though there are some fine oat crops in North Alabama.

The Southern R. R. goes now to northern side of Bessemer by Kosley to a new depot out seven blocks from the L. & N. depot where it used to stop. I never saw a depot so nicely arranged as the new one, though not so easy of access as one has to walk those seven blocks or take a R. R. Terminal from the center of town.

I shall remain here only a few days and be off again to Dallas, and after that I think I shall visit your town, perhaps in August.

Best wishes to the Banner and its readers.

R. J. MITCHELL.

The Circuit Court Matter

Clanton, July 17, 1907

Editor Banner—The impression has gone out over the county that on account of some defect in the Act of the Legislature creating our Circuit court, Judge Alston declined to hold court at the summer term which convened on last Monday. In order to dissipate this impression, I will state that the legality of the court was not passed upon by Judge Alston, but all cases on the docket were continued under a general order of continuance upon the suggestion of the members of the bar. In fact the majority of the members of the local bar agreed upon a continuance of all cases in which they were interested several days before the convening of the court and an effort was made to so notify Judge Alston and thereby relieve him of the trip to this county and also to relieve the county of the expense of juries, etc., but the Judge was out of the State and communication was not had with him. THE WABBLETY DOLL.

Oh, my Wabblety Doll
I love best of all,
More even than golden-haired Lou!
On her face there's a crack,
There's a tear in her back
Twas ages ago she was new!
Now her joints are all loose,
So she's not any use,
Excepting—just only to me!
Oh, she is such a dear
When I hold her near
A real child's no nicer than she.
For she cuddles so sweet
And her dear little feet
Hang dangling just over my arm,
And her poor little head
On my breast makes a bed
Where it's safe altogether from harm
And she loves me I know
For she clings to me so—
Just limp, and so weak!
Oh, the Wabbiety Doll
Loves me best of all
She'd say so if she could but speak!

CHINESE SHADOW PICTURES.

We will show you a simple way of making shadow pictures that appear in front of the spectators, while all preparations are made behind them (see illustration).

Place a light, preferably a candle, on the table and a sheet of white paper on the wall in the same height with the light. Place any non-transparent object, a large book, for instance, between the light and the sheet of paper. Stand a mirror on one side of the table in such a way that it throws a round or square light, according to the shape of the mirror, on the sheet of paper. Little figures cut out of paper are then placed between light and mirror and set in motion. Their shadows will appear on the sheet of paper, as shown in the illustration. — Washington Star.

The Clown on the Wall

PARSON WEEMS.

To the little hamlet of Dumfries, Virginia, belongs the credit of having sent out into the world one of the most curious characters in all our country's history.

It was in the above mentioned village, in the year 1760, that the subject of this sketch, Mason Locke Weems, first saw the light of this world.

By the advice of friends young Weems went to London to prepare himself for the ministry. Returning to his native Virginia he filled various pulpits, being finally called to the rectorate of the historic Pohick Church, near Mount Vernon, of which Washington was a vestryman.

Notwithstanding the fact that Parson Weems had in his congregation the "Father of His Country," and other social magnates of the Old Dominion, his salary was so small that he could not live upon it. Here was a "condition, not a theory," and the parson had to decide whether he would keep on along the old way or take up some new business that would give him a little more of the "needful."

He took the latter alternative and became a book agent, representing a well known Philadelphia publisher. Selling enough of his worldly goods to buy him a horse and saddle, he filled up his saddle bags with books, strapped his fiddle behind him and set out to dispose of his wares to the best possible advantage.

Riding through the Southland he stopped wherever he could find a crowd and began to tell stories and crack jokes, and when he had got his audience interested in his yarns he would spring upon them the main business of the occasion—the subject of his books. As a general thing he succeeded in exchanging them for the cash of which he was in such pressing need.

The parson was a fine fiddler as well as an accomplished story-teller, and when he could not sell his books by wagging his tongue he would set his fiddlestrings to vibrating, and as a rule the results were most gratifying. On one occasion, the story goes, Mr. Weems was playing with might and main at a young people's dancing party, when the screen behind which he was hiding fell down, revealing the fiddler in his sacred garb, "very much to the scandal of the beholders!"

About 1800 the book agent and fiddler turned to literature, meeting with such success as seldom comes to an author. Weems' "Life of Washington" is said to have been "one of the most popular books ever written by an American," going through some seventy editions.

"The Life of Washington" was followed by biographies of Marion, Franklin and William Penn, all of which were successes.

Parson Weems, while an intensely interesting writer, cared little for the trifles over which some people haggle. It made no difference to him whether a story was true or false, so long as it was attractive. The parson was probably all right at heart, but he dearly loved a "taking yarn."

That is why he published to the world "and the rest of mankind" the story of George Washington and the cherry tree. It was a [illegible] story, pretty enough to be [illegible] that settled it.

But whatever we may [illegible] Parson Weems' [illegible] tortian, no one can deny [illegible] tom. He was a patriot to the [illegible] Nobody, in his opinion, [illegible] than George Washington, [illegible] cause holier than [illegible] Washington made [illegible] —The Roy T. A Home-Loving Bird.

[illegible] perfect evidence of the return of the [illegible] individual bird of a migrating [illegible] ies to a particular spot season [illegible] season is not easily obtainable. [illegible] Mr. N. C. Beers believes that he [illegible] such evidence concerning a chipping sparrow at Lakewood, New Jersey. A few years ago he heard a [illegible] bird concealed in the top of a [illegible] uttering a peculiar song which [illegible] could not recognize. The next [illegible] time he heard the same peculiar [illegible] song in the tree but a few yards from [illegible] original point. This time he identified the bird, which seemed to have [illegible] song of its own. The third year [illegible] did not visit Lakewood at the proper season to meet his little friend, [illegible] the fourth year he heard and saw [illegible] again near the same spot. Cures for Blushing.

"A great many men blush," said a physician, "some so painfully that they come to me to be cured.

"The cure I recommend is an odd one. It is the abandonment of overwarm clothing, especially of woolen garments. Amazing it is how many males sufferers have a predilection for thick garments of wool.

"But some blushers wear light weight clothes. To them I can only recommend a nerve treatment. I advise them to make speeches at banquets, to be witnesses in murder trials, to go to teas and dances to develop. In short, the nerve as a matter of science develops his muscle.

"Blushing is a difficult disorder to cure. As a rule it passes away of itself when the victim reaches his 25th year."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A SMALL SECRET

Two men were discussing the various food products now being supplied in such variety and abundance. One, a grocer, said: "I frequently try a package or so of any certain article before offering it to my trade, and in that way sometimes form a different idea than my customers have.

"For instance, I thought I would try Postum Food Coffee, to see what reason there was for such a call for it. At breakfast I didn't like it and supper proved the same, so I naturally concluded that my taste was different from that of the customers who bought it right along.

"A day or two after I waited on a lady who was buying a 25c package and told her I couldn't understand how one could fancy the taste of Postum.

"'I know just what is the matter,' she said, 'you put the coffee boiler on the stove for just fifteen minutes, and ten minutes of that time it simmered, and perhaps five minutes it boiled, now if you will have it left to boil full fifteen minutes after it commences to boil, you will find a delicious Java-like beverage, rich in food value of gluten and phosphates, the choice that you will never abandon it, particularly when you see the great gain in health.' Well, I took another trial and sure enough I joined the Postum army for good, and life seems worth living since I have gotten rid of my old time stomach and kidney troubles."

Postum is no sort of medicine, but pure liquid food, and this, together with a relief from coffee worked the change. "There's a Reason."

MEN'S FAIR NAME SMIRCHED.

She Helped the Goose Hatch Five Chicks From Four Eggs.

The proudest goose on Long Island belongs to Alexander B. Soyars, of Riverhead. She has put the parable of the talents to the blush. She has got most get-rich-quick games to shame. She is running close second to the goose of golden egg fame. She is the best business proposition on Long Island.

For out of one egg this goose hatched five goslings.

Geese are not commonly supposed to perform prodigious feats. In fact there is a serious lack of initiative, common sense and executive ability has led to the application of their generic name to certain humans from Time Immemorial. But this goose of Soyars' is different from her tribe.

By way of fooling her master she first laid just four eggs. That's a very small showing for a healthy goose, and Soyars was downright mad. So he put the Queen Goose in a little nest box all by herself, boarding up the exit, threw in some feed and said: "There, eat now, darn your feathers," and went away.

But the Queen Goose refused to eat. So to speak, she had something under her wing, and upon the morning of the third day, when Soyars went back she modestly arose from the nest and departed.

By this time Soyars was mad clean through. To shame the recreant goose he got a hen and put it on the goose eggs. The hen was surprised, but obedient, and sat three weeks for all she was worth, while the Queen Goose languished in disgrace. At the end of the third week, when the eggs failed to produce, the hen quit in disgust. She didn't know that it takes an extra week to hatch a gosling.

Next day the Queen Goose sauntered back to the nest. Soyars found her calmly setting and was so enraged that he feared he'd wring her neck if he pulled her off the eggs.

He decided he would stay away from her altogether, and thus the goose got her chance to make the miracle.

Soyars and his family sat on their front stoop Sunday night drinking in the nectar of the belated spring. He was telling his wife that if all the geese were such geese as the Queen Goose they'd have to sell the hatchery and open a roadhouse or a cigar stand.

Then a parious quacking reached their ears, and around the corner of the house, head high and searching her soul for more exultant means of triumph, waddled the Queen Goose with five little goslings paddling in the rear.

"Quack, quack, quackety, quack, quack," she boasted stridently as she passed by the thunderstruck family and paraded round the corner with her progeny chasing ludicrously behind.

A second time the Queen mother passed the porch in her triumphal march. While they were out of sight she had taught her quintet to help in the cheering, and this time they helped her out with a chorus of "yap-yap-yaps" that made the disconcerted Soyars wonder if they weren't taking English and hurling opprobrium at him.

Soyars rushed from the piazza to the goose house. He thrust his hand into the nest of the Queen Goose and pulled out just four broken shells.

And as he turned in amazement the Queen Goose strutted up with a quacking laugh and the Miracle Gosling began ironically caressing its bill with its claw.—New York American.

Points About the Pulse.

The normal pulse has a wide range, but is always faster in females than males, and steadily declines from birth to death. Eminent physicians have thought it possible to tell a person's sex and age from the pulse alone.

The average rate at birth is 160 beats a minute in girls and 150 in boys; at the age of four or five, 110 and 100; in maidens and youth, 95 and 90; in maturer women and men, 60 and 50. In one recorded case the pulse of a healthy man of eighty-seven was only 30 a minute.

The pulse varies with stature, position of body, exercise and health, and in disease it has been known to fall to 14 a minute.—Chicago Journal.

The first patent for a sawmill was issued August 3, 1797, to Henry Dubuor, of South Carolina.

THE RED ROSE.

Her hair was black, the rose was red.
It made a striking contrast there,
At least, so all the women said.
But still the men did not aspire
To win her favor. Some strange dread
Induced them rather to retire—
Alas! her nose was also red!

A red, red rose! A red, red nose!
How different the concepts are!
With men the union seldom goes
For men are so particular!
And so the fair one languished there,
Despite the rose that crowned her head,
Despite the red rose in her hair—
Alas! the lady's nose was red!
Somerville Journal.

THE WONDERFUL CHINESE.

Big Osh, emperor of China and founder of the Bing dynasty, was famous for the number of things in which he anticipated our present civilization.

One day, after sitting awhile in deep thought, he called his equerry to him.

"Harness Niagara," he commanded briefly.

And it was done.

Of course, it is with no invidious wish to detract from the splendor of this achievement, incredible as it undoubtedly seems, that we add the further fact that Niagara was the emperor's old bay mare.—Puck.

INTELLIGENT BLIND HORSES

The way in which blind horses go about without getting into difficulties than they ordinarily very remarkable; says a contrary. They rarely, if ever hit heads against a fence or some They will sheer off when they near one. It appears from observation that it is neither nor shelter which warns them danger. On an absolutely and windless day their behavior the same. Their olfactory doubtless become very sensitive they will poke their heads in search of water fifty yards they come to a stream or roadway. It cannot be an mally developed sense of which leads them to do this, will act alike, though the water stagnant pool. Men who have blind' for any great length develop somewhat similar to blind horses.

A SMALL SECRET

Couldn't Understand the Taste of his Customers.

Two men were discussing the various food products now being supplied in such variety and abundance.

One a grocer, said "I frequently try a package or so of any certain article before offering it to my trade, and in that way sometimes form a different idea than my customers have.

For instance, I thought I would try Postum Food Coffee, to see what reason there was for such a call for it. At breakfast I didn't like it and supper proved the same, so I naturally concluded that my taste was different from that of the customers who bought it right along.

A day or two after, I waited on a lady who was buying a 25c package and told her I couldn't understand how one could fancy the taste of Postum.

"I know just what is the matter' she said, 'you put the coffee boiler on the stove for just fifteen minutes, and ten minutes of that time it simmered, and perhaps five minutes it boiled, now if you will have it left to boil full fifteen minutes after it commences to boil, you will find a delicious Java-like beverage, rich in food value of gluten and phosphates, an choice that you will never abandon it, particularly when you see the great gain in health.' Well, I took another trial and sure enough I joined the Postum army for good, and life seems worth living since I have gotten rid of my old time stomach and kidney troubles."

Postum is no sort of medicine, but pure liquid food, and this, together with a relief from coffee worked the change. "There's a Reason."

Sea of Oranges.

A sea covered with oranges is one of the unusual attractions near this city, at the mouth of the Santa Clara River. Thousands upon thousands of oranges floating on the ocean's surface, many of them strewing the beach, give an indescribably beautiful golden hue to the sea.

There was wonder for some time as to how the oranges got into the sea. The belief was general that they came from washed out orchards in the east end of the county, owing to the high storm waters in the river. This is not the case, however. The oranges were deliberately thrown into the Sespe Creek from the Sespe River twenty-five miles back from the coast. From the Sespe they found their way back into the Santa Clara River and thence into the sea.

The oranges are from the great packing houses in the Sespe country. They are known as culls, but most of them are good, or were when dumped off the bridge. It is claimed that only the best oranges can be shipped and sold.—Ventura correspondence Los Angeles Times.

Tone Up With Good Paint

It is good business to keep property "toned up."

A coat of Pure White Lead Paint not only makes things look better and gives them a higher selling value, but it makes things wear better and gives them a higher value for long wear.

Pure White Lead gives an opaque, durable coat that protects and preserves from the ravages of time and weather.

Prospective buyers of Pure White Lead have heretofore been subject to much attempted fraud in adulteration and substitution. You are now protected by the Dutch Boy trade mark which is found on the side of kegs containing only Pure White Lead, made by the Old Dutch Process.

Overheated Steel.

Microscopic study is adding much to our knowledge of the properties of steel. It has recently been shown for example, that there is an important difference between steels rolled or annealed below a temperature of about 750 degrees centigrade and those annealed at higher temperatures, which are thought to have been overheated. They do not endure "fatigue" so well as those annealed at the lower temperatures. The permanent and injurious microscopic strains are more minutely subdivided and more uniformly distributed in the less heated steels, and this fact is regarded as explaining their superior ability to endure "fatigue."—Youth's Companion.

Financial Suicide.

Dr. Austin Flint, the alienist, said at the Century club in New York, apropos of a will contest that had been tried last year:

"The plaintiff lost, and no wonder. His case was as difficult a one as that of the young man who appeared unduly depressed after the death of his rich aunt.

"Why are you so sad?" an acquaintance said to the young man. "You never appeared to care much for your aunt.'

"'I didn't,' said the youth, dolefully, 'but I was the means of keeping her in an insane asylum the last five years of her life, and now that she has left me all her money I've got to go to court and prove that she was of sound mind.'"—Washington Star.

A Vivid Description of the Most Insidious of Diseases.

Miss Emma Shirley, Killbuck, N. Y., writes: "Kidney disease mysteriously fastened itself upon me two years ago and brought awful headaches and dizzy spells. I was all unstrung, weak and nervous, could scarcely totter about. Pains in the side and back completely unnerved me. My food distressed me, I looked badly and the kidneys were noticeably deranged. I sank lower and lower until given up, and at this critical time began with Doan's Kidney Pills. Details are unnecessary. Twelve boxes cured me and I weigh six pounds more than ever before. They saved my life."

FURIOUS HUMOR ON CHILD.

Itching, Bleeding Sores Covered Body —Nothing Helped Her—Cuticura Cures Her in Five Days.

"After my granddaughter of about seven years had been cured of the measles, she was attacked about a fortnight later by a furious itching and painful eruption all over her body, especially the upper part of it, forming watery and bleeding sores, especially under the arms, of considerable size. She suffered a great deal and for three weeks we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. We tried the Cuticura Remedies and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable improvement, and, after using only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been entirely cured, and has been well for a long time. Mrs. F. Ruefenacht, R. F. D. 3, Bakersfield, Cal., June 25 and July 20, 1906."

The Modernity of Trousers.

It will assuredly seem more than strange that within the last hundred years the wearing of trousers has been regarded even as irreligious. The fact that in October, 1812, an order was made by St. John's and Trinity Colleges that every young man who appeared in hall or chapel in pantaloons or trousers should be considered as absent is startling enough; but it would appear that eight years later the founders of Bethel chapel at Sheffield inserted a clause in the trust deed ordaining the "under no circumstances whatever shall any preacher be allowed to occupy the pulpit who wears trousers." This is striking, but it is even more impressive to find that the Rev. Hugh Bourne, one of the two founders of the Primitive Methodist Connection, said of his co-founder, "That trousers-wearing, beer-drinking Clowes will never go to heaven." And it would need a student of "the Breeches Bible" to say precisely when this assumed connection between theology and trousers began and where the departure from it will end. —Notes and Queries.

Time waits when others sleep; Time has one long carriage; without rest and with even pace Time carries over all creatures.

Man's life is measured by a hundred years; half of these are passed in sleep, half the remainder in childhood and old age, and what are left we fulfil amid disease, separations, pain and servitude. How can a man take pleasure in a life that resembles the bubble on a wave?

Washington's Nickname.

A paragraph has been going the rounds crediting William Makepeace Thackeray with naming Washington "The city of magnificent distances." This is incorrect. Thackeray may have used the phrase, but it originated with John A. Corwine, of Belle fontaine, Logan Count, O., who was a very famous personage in the forties and fifties. Once on a visit to the national capital he wound up a period of exhilirating experiences in the visitors' gallery of the House of Representatives, and as that august body came to order Mr. Corwine felt impelled to rise in his place and make a few remarks. He began: "I have been visiting this city of magnificent distances." There was a lot more but this sentence lived.

$5 Given Away to the Boy or Girl sending in the best letter of 100 words or less on Huston Biscuit Company's Seal Brand Stick Candy, and $1 each for the five next best letters. Every boy and girl in Alabama will be interested to know that the Huston Biscuit Company announce in their large ad. to-day that they will give each week to the boy or girl sending in the best short letter of 100 words about the Seal Brand Stick Candy a $5 bill, and $1 for the five next best letters. Here is an opportunity for some bright youngster to easily earn five dollars, and at the same time acquire a lot of useful information about candy.

Pure candy is a food much needed to supply the demand for building material in fast growing boys and girls. Candy has often been given to children indiscriminately between meals as a luxury. Pure sugar is a very important food with a definite food value. The important thing is to have pure sugar. Seal Brand Candy is made of absolutely pure sugar, daintily packed in cartons, sealed with a trade mark, the big seal of Alabama.

Seals will be found on all packages of Seal Brand Candy. Enclose a seal with every letter. Every child can try for these prizes. Write your name and address plainly, giving age and school you attend.

Birmingham has long been proud of the big factories of the Huston Biscuit Company and has always consumed a large quantity of their products. It is useless for us to attempt to tell you how good they are, as you have eaten them often enough. It is a great advantage to be able to get them right from the factory. We believe that enough has not been said about the food value of candy. Of course, everyone knows that sugar is the most essential food for man.

In Seal Brand Candy we get sugar in its most nutritious and easily assimilated form. There is practically no percentage of waste in sugar, and if more sugar were consumed there would be less work for the doctors. This is particularly true of young children, whose brains and bodies are rapidly developing. Seal Brand Candy is pure, clean and wholesome, food for all, and we hope that this contest will induce many people to get the candy habit.

Every child within the circulation of this paper is entitled to enter the contest, and we shall take great pleasure in publishing the name of the winner.

Catarrh of the Internal Organs.

Miss Theresa Bertles, White Church, Mo., writes:

"I suffered with catarrh of the stomach, bowels and internal organs. Everything I ate seemed to hurt me. I never had a passage of the bowels without taking medicine. "Now, after taking Peruna for six months, I am as well as I ever was. Peruna has worked wonders for me. I believe Peruna is the best medicine in the world, and I recommend it to my friends."

Long Live The King!

is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery, King of Throat and Lung Remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Ryder Paine, of Turo, Mass., says: "It never fails to give immediate relief and quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of the country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throats after all other remedies have failed; coughs and colds it's a sure remedy. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co. 50c and $1.00 bottle free

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because OUR RECORD IS CLEAN, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then OUR POLICY is as liberal as is consistent with security; we are accommodating but prudent.

We ask your consideration.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A cleansing, clean, cooling, soothing, healing household remedy is DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve. For burns, cuts, scratches, bruises, insect bites, and sore feet it is unequaled. Good for piles. Beware of imitations. Get DeWitt's. It is the best. Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

RICH HAUL BY BURGLARS.

On the night of July 15th, burglars broke into the store of W. C. Dyer, at Stanton, and took 27 watches and 26 chains, valued at $400. The cash drawer was not even entered and nothing else in the store was molested. Mr. Dyer offers a liberal reward for the recovery of the watches and the arrest of the thief or thieves.

PENTECOSTAL REVIVAL.

The sixth annual Pentecostal revival will begin at the holiness tabernacle, near the Dock Mims' place, three miles east of Clanton, Sunday, July 28th, at 10 o'clock and will continue ten days or more. The dear Lord has done great things for us in these meetings, and we are expecting greater things yet. The pastor, L. P. Adams, will be assisted by Rev. C. A. McKinney. All denominations are invited to attend. Let all of God's people pray much for a great outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the community and country around, and that there may be a mighty quickening among all of God's people, and saving of the lost.

We are having some very dry weather now. I hope it will rain in a few days.

Crops are very good, as good as could be expected, on account of late planting. In the spring it rained so much we could hardly do anything; now the rain has ceased and dry weather has begun.

"All things work together for good to those who love the Lord and are called according to his purpose."

I guess the Lord is doing the best and we needn't say a word.

I have almost forgotten what I promised to write, but will try and have more time to write next time.

I guess the Mulberry correspondent will tell you of the large crowd there last Sunday.

Notice of Application to Pardon J. Henry Johnson.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County

To all whom this may concern:

Take notice that the undersigned will, on or before the 31st day of July, 1907, make application to the Governor of Alabama, to pardon the said J. Henry Johnson for the offense of murder; of which offense the said J. Henry Johnson was convicted in the Circuit court of Chilton county at the spring term of 1905.

Constipation.

For constipation there is nothing quite so nice as Chamberlain' Stomach and Liver Tablets. They always produce a pleasant movement of the bowels without any disagreeable effect. Price, 25 cents. Samples free. Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Mountain Spring.

The following is a report of the singing held here Sundry, July 21. R. J. Langston was elected chairman and A. E. Teel, committeeman. Opening song by Bro. R. J. Langston; prayer by J. W. Lawley. R. J. Langston lead the class 25 minutes, followed by William Lambert, 25 minutes. Recess 10 minutes. J. H. Willoughby, 15 minutes. Preaching at 11 a.m. by Bro. N. A. Dobbs, who gave us some interesting Gospel teachings.

At 1:15 the class was called together by Rev. N. A. Dobbs, entertaining 20 minutes; A. A. Jackson, 20 minutes; A. E. Teel, 20 minutes; J. W. Lawley, 20 minutes. Recess 10 minutes. T. J. Jackson, 20 minutes; J. H. Willoughby, 20 minutes. Closed by R. J. Langston.

The Charming Woman

is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires: neatness, clear eyes, clean smooth skin and that sprightliness of step and action that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eys, smooth, velvety skin beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at Upchurch Drug co. 50c.

Among other attractive features will be the sale of fancy work, including many styles of embroidery and drawn work, wrought out in various designs from sun bonnets to center pieces.

Old Mother Bunch will be there with her pocket full of good things for the children. Ice cream, lemonade, cake and candy will be sold. Admission free. Everybody cordially invited.

Best Medicine in the World for Colic and Diarrhoea.

"I find Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to be the best remedy in the world," says Mr. C. L. Carter of Skirum, Ala. "I am subject to colic and diarrhoea. Last spring it seemed as though I would die, and I think I would if I hadn't taken Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I haven't been troubled with it since until this week, when I had a very severe attack and took half a bottle of the twenty-five cent size Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and this morning I feel like a new man." For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Mountain Creek.

Monday morning last, T. J. Henderson, came very near being killed by being struck by a north bound freight train near the station here. He was walking along by the side of the main line and heard the approaching train, but thinking it was coming on the side track he paid no attention to it, the beam of the pilot striking him and knocking him violently to the ground. He was picked up and carried home. We were unable to learn the extent of his injuries, but it is not thought that they are serious, as no bones were broken.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

There will be public speaking at Cane Creek at 2 p.m., Saturday, July 27, on Unionism by M. F. Lett. Everybody invited.

SHOES BY THE CAR LOAD!

On account of this IMMENSE PURCHASE of SHOES we are compelled to close our present line out at a SACRIFICE to make room for the Fall line. Our Shoes are all absolutely new, not one pair of old stock in the house. We would like to have more money for them of course, but we are compelled to make a price that will move them out at once.

We are making the same REDUCTION on Clothing and Straw Hats.

Our buyers will leave for New York in a few days to buy goods for our six different stores, and for this, too, we will need a little money to pay train fare. Come in and see—no harm if you don't buy.

During the year 1906 property in the United States to the value of more than half a billion dollars was destroyed by fire. Of course this enormous total, which is said never to have been equaled in any country, at any time, was due in large part to the San Francisco disaster. Nevertheless, according to the Youth's Companion, the executive officer of the International Society of Building Inspectors has declared that nine-tenths of the national fire loss is preventable.

From "A Discovery of England," edited by Sidney Low, we quote the following excerpt: Brilliant conversation is the last thing on which our English cousins set any store. As a rule they are rather suspicious of it, and are apt to stare at you in mild surprise if you emit a sentence of more than about ten consecutive words. To be fluent in speech, at least if you are under forty, is indeed considered slightly bad form. You ought to be elderly, or a Cabinet Minister, or something of that kind to venture on this indulgence.

The general underlying conditions at home continue sound, remarks Fisk & Robinson's Monthly Bulletin of Investments. Crop prospects appear favorable; political agitation is lessening; a better understanding between the public and the corporations is gradually developing; the railroads, while having to postpone the making of extensions, are crowded with current business and are earning well; thrift grows among the people, as evidenced by the increase in savings bank deposits, while from abroad there comes no pressure for money—our splendid merchandise credit protecting us against such a contingency.

This great prosperity on the farms means good times for the whole country, for upon the farm every other industry rests, exclaims the Richmond Times-Dispatch. It is the solid prop which supports the whole structure. Good crops with fair prices mean prosperity to the nation, while bad crops mean business depression and hard times. The intelligent efforts of the Government to improve agricultural conditions and to teach farmers how to produce larger crops and better crops, and how to market them to the best advantage and how to develop new lines of endeavor, should be recognized as wise and commendable by the people everywhere.

It is a common saying that "there is nothing new under the sun," and the police here assert that the ordinary criminal betrays an amazing lack of originality. In support of this they point out that when a criminal is arrested after doing one "stretch" the second charge made against him is generally for the same sort of crime. They explain this by saying that each failure or each loss shows the "crook" some point of which he had been ignorant, and it is easy for him to convince himself that next time he will avoid that mistake and be successful. When he fails and is arrested the law shows him just where he bungled, and the gambler's love of taking a chance urges him to try his luck at the old game once more. Then there is, also, always to be considered the unconscious and "gritty" determination to make a success of the thing, anyhow.

ALABAMA EVENTS FROM OVER THE STATE.

Interesting Items to Dwellers in the Commonwealth

A BRIEF WEEKLY SUMMARY

The Governor Signs John H. Bankhead's Commission as Senator, and Senator Bankhead Takes the Pen That Made Him Senator.

The governor has signed the commission of John H. Bankhead as United States senator to succeed Senator Morgan. His signature was affixed with a pen that was taken away by the new member of the upper house at Washington, which he will keep as a souvenir of the elevation to higher position which the people have so generously accorded him.

District Conference Adjourns.

The district conference of the Methodist church at Greensboro, after a three days' session, has adjourned. The meetings were well attended and abounded in interest. Delegates were elected to the annual conference as follows: L. J. Lawson, Thomas E. Knight, J. J. Terry, T. H. Deloach; alternates, T. W. Allen, Judge W. C. Christian and J. E. Ramey.

End of Louisiana State Lottery.

All that is left of the old Louisiana state lottery paraphernalia was sold in Mobile under the hammer at 261 St. Michael street. The whole outfit of the printing plant, which struck off monthly lists of drawing aggregating millions, brought $1,246. Its estimated value was $25,000. Four presses costing in the neighborhood of $4,000 each were sold for $250.

Colonel Crowe.

Major James R. Crowe, one of the most prominent citizens of Tuscumbia and an active member of the United Confederate Veterans, has received official notice of his appointment, with the rank of colonel, on the staff of Gen. Stephen D. Lee, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans.

Peculiar Death.

J. A. Sewell, aged 45 years, and a laborer in the Dwight cotton mills in Alabama City, died Thursday morning from a very peculiar cause. On last Saturday afternoon Sewell began to feel a slight pain in the knee. Soon it grew worse, and the pain was so severe that it caused death. Several physicians were called in, but the trouble baffled all of the medical men. It was nothing but agonizing pain from Saturday until Wednesday, when death relieved him.

The Alabama Cotton Crop.

Forty-one counties in Alabama reporting to President Seymour of the Alabama division of the Southern Cotton Association indicate that the cotton crop in this state is from two to four weeks backward; that with average conditions from now on from 65 to 70 per cent. of an average crop will be made, and that with ideal conditions 80 per cent. of a yield may be accomplished.

More Gins Are Added.

The LaFayette cotton oil mills have just installed a two hundred horsepower engine for their gin. They have also recently added two gin stands. This gives them eight 70-saw gins and they are now prepared to unload, gin and pack from 75 to 100 bales of cotton per day.

Died While at Work.

While working in the boiler shop at the Louisville and Nashville railroad shop in New Decatur, Walter Curtis dropped dead. His death was due to heart disease. His father is a minister of the Christian church and resides at Curtis Wells, five miles west of Decatur.

Gore Brought Back.

James B. Gore, alias John Gore, arrested in Virginia on a charge of having embezzled $1,000 from the Southern Express Company at Faunsdale, has been brought back to Alabama and lodged in jail at Linden.

Huntsville Schools Consolidated.

The state and city schools in the Huntsville school district, which have been operated separately during the past two years, will be merged at the opening of the next session. The school will be located in the magnificent new school building erected by the city, and will be maintained by the money of both the state and the city. The board of education held a meeting and elected Prof. S. R. Butler principal, and R. P. Wills assistant principal.

New Officers Are Elected.

At the morning session of the Alabama Press Association the following new officers were elected Friday: President, H. S. Doster, of the Prattville Progress; first vice-president, J. C. Lawrence, of the Bullock Breeze; third vice-president, C. G. Fennell, of the Guntersville Democrat; secretary, Jacob Pepperman, of the Alabama Odd Fellow; treasurer, F. Crichton, of the Clanton Banner; annual orator, C. F. Stripling.

Big Bill for Water.

The Huntsville city council has rejected the contract with the Dallas Manufacturing Company for free water, and will present that corporation with a bill for all water used since January 1, 1901. Estimated roughly, the bill will be for about $50,000. There will be a lively fight over the matter, and the dispute will get into the courts, it is believed. The cotton mill corporation claims that the contract which was made by the mayor and aldermen of a previous administration cannot be nullified according to law. The city contracted to give the mill free water for a term of years, and then to furnish water for an additional term of years at about the cost of pumping. Some of the members of the council favor a compromise, but a majority of them are in favor of trying to get the full amount claimed as due.

Both Killed by Lightning.

Friday afternoon Messrs. John W. Weaver and Thomas B. Bolding were in the woods together, near their homes in West Coffee, eight miles west of Piba, getting out shingles. A thunder storm came up, and each of them sought the shelter of trees. The exact manner of their death can never be known. They did not go to their homes that night, but the family of each man thought he had gone for shelter to some neighbor's house and was prevented from coming home by the bad weather, so no uneasiness was felt till the next (Saturday) morning, when search was made for them, and they were found dead, each beside a tree. The trees were about 20 feet apart, and each tree bore the mark of lightning stroke.

Overcome by Heat.

H. C. Hecker, editor of the Lindsey Reporter, published at Linden, Marengo county, was prostrated by heat while standing in the jewelry store of J. Hirschfield on Broad street, in Selma. He had just walked into the store and was looking at some jewelry when he sank to the floor. He was placed in a hack and carried to a drug store, where he received medical treatment, and was later sent to an infirmary, but later he had sufficiently recovered to leave for his home in Linden. Mr. Hecker came to Selma from Linden to attend to some business and to meet the members of the Alabama Press Association.

Wants the Next Editors' Meeting.

Editor James Hard, of Bessemer, invited the Alabama Press Association to meet in that city next year, and from all accounts there is a strong probability of that city securing the convention. Bessemer entertained the association about four years ago, and the editors all expressed much pleasure at their reception. Should the meeting be held at that place next year a cordial reception is assured. The board of trade telegraphed an invitation promised a hearty welcome to the body, and all are in hopes that that city will be the chosen place.

Nashville Firm Gets It.

The city council of Tuscumbia has awarded the contract for building 13,109 square yards of concrete or cement sidewalks to the Adamant Stone and Paving Company of Nashville, Tenn., at .1377 cents per square foot, or about $1.24 per yard. The contract represents about four miles of paving, and is to be laid on several of the city's principal business and residence streets, the cost to be borne by the property owners, who have a number of years in which to pay for it. On the completion of the present contract the city will award another for several more miles.

TRUST DIRECTORATE TIRES OF W. E. COREY

He Will be Asked to Resign as President

THINKS TOO MUCH OF WIFE

This Has Helped to Stir the Hostility. Mrs. Corey Will Be Offered a Part in "The Merry Widow" by Henry W. Savage.

New York.—Angered by his extended honeymoon and for his dereliction in the performance of his duties as president of the United States Steel Corporation, William Ellis Corey, who returned from Europe Saturday with his actress bride, will be asked to resign his $100,000 a year position at the next meeting of the directors.

Mr. Corey is credited with having made $10,000,000 in Wall street in the last few months, and with this fortune Mr. Corey may decide not to fight the action of the directorate. At this meeting he will be asked to explain his long absence from his desk.

The report that Mrs. Corey has induced her husband to build a theatre for her, where she may appear as a star when the whim prompts her, has helped to stir up hostility against her husband in the trust's directorate.

One story for example, which is still without an ending, is as follows:

Mrs. Corey was said to be dining at a cafe on the Champs Elysee a few nights before she left Paris on board the Savoie, when she heard that some of her friends had secured parts in "The Merry Widow."

"The only regret I have on leaving the stage," she is quoted as saying, "is that I shall be unable to play in that production."

On overhearing this remark, M. Feliner, the agent of Henry W. Savage, in Paris, cabled to New York with the result that a Savage agent met Mrs. Corey when she landed offered her a part in the cast.

GERMANY SOLVES THE AIR.

New War Balloon Will Revolutionize Things.

Berlin.—As a result of experiments with Germany's new war airship, it is announced that the country has solved successfully the problem of air navigation for war purposes. Army officers claim the new invention will completely revolutionize the methods of warfare and perhaps end wars on account of its possibilities of destruction. The new machine consists of a cigar-shaped balloon carrying an aluminum hull and motor. It carries six men and four rapid-fire guns, besides explosives for dropping into the enemies' strongholds. The ship responds readily to the helm, and, it is claimed, maintained a speed of thirty miles an hour against the wind in maneuvers. Experts declare the machine far superior to the French airship, Patrie.

Germany's control of the invention probably will make her practically the military master of the world.

THE DOORS AJAR.

The Sheriff Gone a Frolicking and the Jailer Out of Town.

Meridian, Miss.—The Lauderdale county jail is wide open and every door ajar to give the building a chance to air. The keys are lying in a drawer in the sheriff's desk. Jailer Wagner has gone to a picnic and the sheriff is og on a fishing jaunt. This is a state of affairs not known in this county before for thirty years. Before the regime of Judge Bolf Cochran there were generally from twelve to eighteen prisoners in the jail and most of the time some waiting trial for murder. Not only is the jail empty, but there is little litigation. There has been but one record in the chancery clerk's office in two weeks, this a guardianship filed.

Lovers Drowned.

Lima, O.—Boating on McCullough's Lake, J. L. Davis, a well-known young man, and Miss Docia Vebryke were drowned by the capsizing of their boat. The bodies were caught in the lake under weeds and the fire department worked all night dragging the lake, recovering the bodies at daylight. The two are said to have been engaged.

Twenty-five Clubbed to Death.

Thirty-seven Russian Jews started to cross the Austrian frontier at night without passports, their destination being America. They were waylaid by peasants in the village of Zwonitz for the purpose of robbery. Twenty-five, including women and children, were clubbed to death. The frontier guards reached the scene in time to prevent the robbery of the travelers and to arrest several of the murderers.

Brewer Defends Roads.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Justice Brewer, of the United States supreme court, in an address to the agents of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, of which company he is one of the trustees, declared against the crusade against the railroads. "The attempt to squeeze those who built up the railroads and through them the country is not right. The men who invested their money are entitled to a reasonable rate of interest," he said.

ALIENS STILL FLOCK BY DROVES TO AMERICA

Figures of the Entire Year Have Not Been Completed

5,962 WERE SHIPPED BACK.

Number of Immigrants During Last Fiscal Year 1,285,349, Which Broke the Record of Former Years by Over 200,000.

Washington, D. C.—All immigration records in the history of the country were broken by the aggregate returns for the fiscal year of 1907, which ended on June 30 last. The total number of alien immigrants landed in America during the year was 1,285,349, as against 1,100,735 landed during the fiscal year of 1906. The increase during the past year was about 6 per cent over the greatest number of immigrants that ever arrived in America heretofore in a single year.

The figures for the entire year have not been completed in detail, but it is known that the great majority of the immigrants reached this country during the last six months, the exact number for that period being 743,962, an increase of 10 per cent over the six months ended June 30, 1906. A total of 5,962 arriving immigrants were debarred from admission to the country during the last six months. Of the total arrivals during the last six months 132,185 came from Russia.

ENGLAND IS LEARNING.

English Newspapers Have to Pay One Quarter Million Dollars Damages.

Liverpool.—The attempt made in the fall of 1906 to organize a huge soap combine in the United Kingdom, which quickly came to an end under the pressure of adverse public opinion, had a sensational sequel in the assize court when William Hesketh Lever, liberal member of parliament for the Wyrrall division of Cheshire secured judgment for damages of $250,000 and costs against the Harmsworth newspapers, the Daily Mail and the Evening News, for alleged libels published by them during the course of the controversy that followed the attempt to bring about the combination.

After a hearing that lasted for two days the defendants suddenly withdrew their plea of justification and agreed to pay the amount demanded.

Mr. Lever, it is declared, took a leading part in the efforts to establish the soap combine.

Heiress to Marry a Turk.

New York.—Amazement and consternation have been caused by the announcement of the engagement of Miss Elsie Ellwood, daughter of W. L. Ellwood, and granddaughter of Isaac L. Ellwood, of Illinois, the steel wire millionaire and business associate of John W. Gates, to Said Ali Halck, who declares he is wealthy, of a fine old family and who was lately contractor to tourists making the tour of the Holy Land. The friends of Miss Ellwood are amazed that she should have agreed to marry a foreigner who accompanied her in an employed capacity at first and continued on with her as far as New York. The young folks arrived here last week and plan to marry at the Ellwood home in DeKalb, Ill., next Wednesday.

Two Thousand Bales Destroyed.

Little Rock, Ark.—The plant of the Gulf Compress Company at Argenta, Ark., owned by Memphis and Atlanta people, was destroyed by fire. Twenty-four hundred bales of cotton were burned, valued at $149,416. The buildings and machinery were valued at $85,000.

Deaths from Plague.

London.—Returns of death by plague in India show an appalling total of 1,060,067 for the six months ending June 30. The monthly total is at present decreasing, however, the death roll for June being 69,465. The total for the six months of 1907 already surpasses that for the entire twelve months of 1904, when 1,022,000 persons died. The total is the highest ever recorded previous to the present year.

Building Collapses in Canada.

London, Ont.—Crystall Hall, a three-story brick building on Dundas street, and one of the landmarks of London, collapsed and a score of persons were buried under the avalanche of brick, mortar and timbers. The falling walls from the hall fell upon Brewster's five and ten-cent store, completely burying it. The stores of Hamilton, Long & Co. and W. J. Reid & Co., on the first floor of the Crystall Hall, were filled with wreckage.

Hearst Wins Again.

New York.—Efforts of City Comptroller Metz and other city officials, acting in behalf of Mayor McClellan, to prevent a recount of the votes cast for mayor in the last city election, suffered a severe check when the appellate division of the supreme court denied their application for a writ of prohibition. Unless counsel for Mayor McClellan makes further appeal, this seems to leave the way clear to begin the recount.

DEATH FOR THE TOWN.

"Strongest Man" in Switzerland Dies at the Age of 70 Years.

Geneva.—Jacob Laderach, aged 70 years, known as the strongest man in Switzerland, has died at Meiringen, canton of Berne, leaving a fortune of nearly $50,000.

He was a peasant, a miner, a mountain leader, a woman-hater, a teetotaler, a non-smoker and a vegetarian. He was often fined for working on Sundays.

Laderach never allowed a doctor or any other person to enter his house, and had no friends and no relatives. On several occasions burglars entered his house, but found nothing of value to take away.

Before his death he burned all his papers, and his fortune is therefore inherited by the authorities of Meiringen.

HIT BY LIGHTNING BOLT.

One Man Killed While Congregation Was Stricken.

Racine, Wis.—One man killed, several injured, barns destroyed and other buildings damaged, was the result of a serious wind, rain and electrical storm which visited Racine county Sunday and Sunday night. At the village of Waterford the people were gathering for mass in St. Mary's church, when a bolt of lightning struck the steeple and Wenzel Nikasch, of Milwaukee, was killed. Several other people were knocked down and severely stunned. Great excitement prevailed, and persons ran from the building, but it did not catch fire.

Colonel Ayres Must Quit Army.

New York.—Lieutenant Colonel Ayres, of the Fourteenth Cavalry, is physically unfit for active service in the army, according to a report made by surgeons to a retiring board appointed to examine that officer. The surgeons said that Lieutenant-Colonel Ayres has a disease of the kidneys, which will cause his death if he continues in active service.

To provide that all Confederate soldiers, sailors and their widows, who are drawing a pension and who are over the age of 90 years, shall be entitled to and receive a pension of the first class.

To repeal an act to provide for the issuance of licenses for the sale of liquors to hotel owners, in Blount Springs, in the county of Blount.

Thursday.

The legislature will in all probability adjourn by August 1st. Such was the opinion of the leaders of the house and senate when they ascertained the sentiment among the lawmakers to take on faith the work of the committee which prepared the general state code and the municipal code.

A fight had been expected on these important bills. But on examination the members of both houses appeared to be satisfied with the work of the committees. There was no disposition apparent to make a fight on either the municipal code or the state code.

The capitol extension bill, in which the city of Montgomery is so much interested, was adversed in the senate committee on finance and taxation. The vote on the bill was a tie, 3 and 3, and Senator N. L. Miller, chairman of the committee, cast the deciding vote.

The bill, under the direction of Representative R. T. Goodwyn, had already passed the house. It called for an appropriation of $250,000. Under the bill, a general scheme of capitol improvement had been planned. Not only was a north wing, similar to the south wing, to be added to the capitol, but another entrance facing to the west on Union street was to have been built.

House—Friday.

To encourage the development of the various unused water powers by exemptions from taxation for ten years.

To encourage the manufacture of calcium cyanamid (lime nitrogen) by exemptions from taxation for ten years.

To allow all foreign corporations liable to a charter fee or annual franchise tax to deduct from their actual capital employed in this state that part of such capital consisting of money loaned secured by recorded mortgages.

To require each and every officer, official body, tribunal or court, whose duty it is to assess property for taxation, to assess the same for taxation at 40 per cent of its cash market value.

To relieve and exempt the Alabama State Fair and Exhibit Association and all persons who conduct business with said association on its fair grounds in Jefferson county from the payment of all taxes and licenses.

To impose a tax of one dollar each on all dogs in the state of Alabama over four months of age.

To amend section 1 of an act "to encourage technical education and providing for the erection of buildings at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute."

To provide for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the battle of Topeka or "Horseshoe Bend," in 1914.

To empower the governor to suspend the collection of such portion of the general tax as may not be needed.

To alter or rearrange the boundary lines of the city of Birmingham.

Tobacco Acreage Less.

Tobacco acreage is less than that of last year by about 44,000 acres, or 5.6 per cent. The average condition on July 1 was 81.3, against 86.7 on July 1, 1906, and 87.4 on July 1, 1905.

Farmers Hold Wheat.

The amount of wheat remaining in the hands of farmers on July 1 is estimated at about 54,852,000 bushels, equivalent to about 7.9 per cent of the crop of last year.

Senate—Friday.

To appropriate the sum of $3771 to pay the expenses of the Fertilizer and Cotton Seed Oil Investigating Committee.

To amend section 1 of an act "to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors by providing for elections in the various counties to determine whether the sale of such intoxicating liquors shall be as prohibited."

To establish a colony for epileptics in Alabama.

Saturday.

There will be no prohibition bill at the present session of the legislature. To prevent such a measure the liquor men have agreed not to fight the bills now on the route to passage.

The past few days have shown the governor to be yet very strong in the esteem of the solons, and if he sees fit to crack his whip it will be efficacious in large measure. The tip is now that the child labor bill as reported in the house will will be passed as it came from the committee. This bill makes the age limit 12 years for boys and 14 for girls, and provides an assistant for the jail inspector for inspection. This bill is not satisfactory to the cotton mill men, but it looks like they will be forced to accept it or take one very much less to their liking. It is understood that the governor is hands off, ready to endorse whatever the members put up to him.

What seems to be a loaded proposition is the bill of Senator John W. Overton to allow the railroad commission to establish a Sunday freight train law when the conditions that seem now out of line for it become propitious. In it is seen a possibility of a big stick to use on the railroads when they become troublesome. It is pointed out that such a law would be an effective menace to the railroads, ready to fall at any time the commission should think them ripe for discipline.

Day for Adjournment.

August 5th is the day set for adjournment. The plan is to run about this way: Session Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, then first four days of week following, with lay off to Monday for the final wind-up. During that time the most of the calendar should be cleared.

New Job for Stevens.

New Haven, Conn.—It has been announced by President Mellen, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, that John F. Stevens, former chief engineer of the Panama canal, has been appointed vice-president of the road. Mr. Stevens will have charge of all matters pertaining to operation, and will report to the president.

Negro Lynched by Negroes.

Olive Branch, Miss.—Andrew Trice, a negro accused of the murder of his mistress with an axe, was lynched here by thirty members of his own race. The negroes took the accused man away from officers who had arrested him. They killed Trice and threw his body into a river at the point where he had done the same with the woman.

Costly Dam Dynamited.

Crowley, La.—About 170 feet of Grand Chenier dam, valued at over $100,000, has been blown up with dynamite. The dam was erected to shut out salt water from overflowing rice lands; many persons believing it responsible for floods, and recently threats of destruction have been made.

Increased Prices For Labor.

Scarcity of farm laborers at this busy season is also reported from many sections, wages of $50 a month being offered without success in procuring help.

SMOKELESS POWDER.

How It's Made and What It's Like.

From Appleton's Magazine.

Working in a smokeless powder mill is like sitting on the lid of Vesuvius, only more dangerous.

The volcano grumbles and rumbles and quakes, giving ample warning before belching forth its torrents of fire and lava. But the powder mill is like a gigantic bomb filled with human creatures, loaded with tons upon tons of nitroglycerin and gun cotton, primed and ready to explode from a score of known and unknown reasons.

Sometimes when a danger house blows up, tearing men within to atoms, rendering the building into matchsticks and gouging a gaping hole 20 feet across into rocks and gravel, it is impossible to tell even what caused the crash comes it is the most inconceivable the accident.

Whatever the cause, when the ably frightful ordeal to which human nervous system can be subjected.

How human creatures can be induced to take the risks of working in such an earthly inferno, ready to burst on the instant in all its horror, may seem past understanding; still thousands upon thousands of men work in these mills scattered throughout the United States.

The gun cotton drying-house, where the washed nitrated cotton must be dried absolutely, shares with the nitroglycerin building the reputation of being the most hazardous on the face of the earth.

The gun cotton drying-house, containing as much as five tons of the frightful explosive, a half-teaspoonful of which would be enough to blow you into smithereens, stands isolated on pillars above a marsh, 400 yards from the nearest building.

Nothing except the portentous word "Danger," painted in big black letters over the entrance distinguishes this house from the other structures, yet as you gaze at its very isolation you approach with deep respect.

Only one person is permitted in this house, an Italian; a medium sized, chunky man he is, dark and swarthy, with black eyes and a blacker moustache. He is a man of years of experience, so trained to caution that it has become a habit exercised like second nature.

The man in charge will not permit you inside this house, no matter how favored a visitor you may be. The most he will do is to open the door of one of the drying-rooms to give you a peep within.

He is married and has five children. No he isn't afraid. If he were he would not work where he is working.

He knows, of course, that if he violates any of certain rules he and his house are going to leave together, he has no intention of violating precautions. He never had been blown up yet, and he does not intend to be. Even his family has ceased worrying about him.

You notice he is wearing rubber-soled tennis shoes, wherein he walks silent and ghostlike. As he opens the door of one of the drying-rooms, heated to a temperature of 110 degrees, a breath of hot air from within strikes you.

You see what appear to be chunks and slabs and wads of a dirty white blotting paper heaped in metal pans two or three feet and set in a series of spacious racks like so many big pigeon holes.

Even now there is nothing in the appearance of the stuff to prevent you from throwing it out of your way as if it were an old piece of paper, and you wonder afterward whether, after all, this seeming rubbish can be the dreaded explosive a mere fifty pounds of which would send an 18,000 ton Dreadnough to the bottom.

Yet the slightest sudden jar against even a pinch of this insignificant appearing substance and there would be a flash and a crash that would shake the earth for miles around, and nothing but a pall of smoke drifting skyward would remain of house or man. The slightest friction against dust invisible to the naked eye, or a mere spark, knocked perhaps from the head of a carpet tack, and the house and man would be annihilated.

A spark of static electricity of the sort with which you can light a gas jet by a spark leaping from the knuckle of a finger after sliding your feet across a carpet, and you would have vanished tracelessly, blown into atoms too small to find with a microscope.

Owing to this deadly sensitiveness, every precaution for safety is taken by the man in this building. The floors are covered with rubber sheets fastened by brassheaded tacks to prevent danger of sparks. Dust pans and utensils are of brass or copper.

When the panfuls of cotton are transported in or out of the place the floors are covered with sheets of canvas to be removed and shaken clear of possible dust outside the building. Twice a day the floors are scrupulously brushed. In short, every conceivable precaution is taken to prevent catastrophe.

What is this smokeless powder? It is the modern high explosive which has superseded the old style black powder, even as electricity has superseded gas, and which is used not only in the field for sporting purposes, but is used exclusively for the shoulder arms of the army and the navy as for the machine guns, the rapid fire guns and the huge rifles on the decks of our battleships and within the works of our fortifications.

Practically it is nothing but a mixture of gun cotton and alcohol and ether, or acetone, or else moistened with gun cotton and nitroglycerin (the two strongest explosives known—and blended into a new compound which is at least double as powerful as the common black powder, if not more without giving off smoke, fire, flame or unpleasant, but merely heat. The distinguishing characteristics of the dreaded ingredients, but to so dole that you might give a hatful of the powder intended for the 16-inch Dandy Hank ago to a baby to play with.

He might pound it with a hammer to his heart's content, or you yourself might place it on an anvil and bring a forty-pound sledge down on it. It would merely squash like so much soap or putty.

So concussion proof is this powder that you might drop a house on a heap of fifty tons of it and it would not explode. So proof is it against explosion by fire that you might place a stick of cannon powder on a saucer in your bedroom, light it with a match, and go to bed by a flickering, sizzling light, as burning fat.

In short, you simply cannot explode this powder unless you go to the trouble of confining it, and even then you can explode it only by using a fulminate of mercury detonator.

The quickest way to picture smokeless powder is to dismiss all ideas of the ordinary black gunpowder so familiar to every one. The color of the modern powder is not black, but the shade of dark amber.

In the sense of a powder being a finely divided solid, smokeless powder is no powder at all. It consists of a waxlike composition, the size of the grains varying according to the calibers of the guns for which they are designed.

For use in revolvers, rifles and sporting guns the grains resemble the tiny perforated glass beads of the sort used in oldtime needlework. For the machine guns, the rapid fire guns and the heavy rifles of battleships and forts, the grains are cylindrical in shape, varying in size from a third of an inch in diameter and half an inch in length to three-fourths of an inch in diameter, and about two inches in length—each grain, in order to increase the area exposed to ignition, being perforated equidistantly and longitudinally with from one to six holes, big as knitting needles, depending upon the size of the grain.

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

Francisco Jose is said to have been born in 1788 in Portugal and is still alive at Oporto. He can handle a rifle still and fought against Napoleon in 1810.

The corporation of Richmond, an important London suburb the other day raised the salary of its librarian to $3.75 a week and that of the porter to $6.25.

Elliaon Warren, son of John K. Warren, the New Mexico cattle king, is working as a bell boy in a Los Angeles hotel and studying bookkeeping in a night school, and returns checks from his parents, marking them "Declined with thanks."

One of the most curious clocks in the world is said to be that which tells the time to the inhabitants of a little American backwoods town. The machinery, which is nothing but a face, hands and lever, is connected with a geyser which shoots out an immense column of hot water every thirty-eight seconds. This spouting never varies to the tenth of a second. Every time the water spouts up it strikes the lever and moves the hands forward thirty-eight seconds.

Phonograph as a Witness.

The phonograph as a witness in the law courts was bound to come sooner or later and it did so the other day in Brussels. A lawyer of that city had been continually annoyed by the noises of hammering, etc., in an iron foundry in his near neighborhood. Finding that complaints were unavailing, he brought the matter into court. But before doing so he placed a phonograph in his library for one whole day. When the case came before the Fourth Chamber he produced the phonograph and set going the specially prepared cylinder. An uproar and din as from the forge of Vulcan was the result, and the ingenious lawyer won his case "hands down."—London Chronicle.

MANY THINGS.

The "many things" I bring to you this time are really not the things I had saved up for you, but have been influenced to change my mind by some things I have recently seen in the Banner. So if this is not as good as the other, just "blame it on" The Banner, as the little boy used to say.

First, permit me to say I appreciate all the kind letters I have received from friends in dear old Chilton since returning to Alabama. It is good to be an Alabamian and have so many loyal, loving friends. Our great and good Band of Mercy still grows in Chilton. Let us hope, yea, let us determine that it shall mean untold blessing to all of God's creatures, both human and dumb. Let us see to it that it means much for the help and encouragement of the young, toward a pure, noble, useful and successful life.

Am sorry to read Mr. Gulledge's announcement that he will never offer for any public office again. Fear we do not always appreciate such true, patriotic citizens as we should. We place too low an estimate on their value in a country. I have been watching his movements since I went to Chilton more than five years ago, and if my judgment is not faulty, he is always on the right track. When we come to consider such vital questions as Prohibition, Road-law, Murder, Vagrancy etc., we need wise level-headed men to lead us. Let us rejoice that Mr. Gulledge is still with us to aid with his wise counsel and to contribute much every way toward a better citizenship and a better country. And as he asks, let others be free to discuss such questions as pertain to our best interests. Yes, and by all means, for decency's sake, let us know who you are writing. Anonymous newspayer articles of any kind are disgusting and sickening to this writer.

This leads me to notice what "Big Ike" says about whiskey-drinking and a dispensary at Maplesville. I do not know who this "Big Ike" is, but he preaches wholesome doctrine. Many fathers up there would do well to listen at what he says. When he quits drinking himself (I mean whiskey) he will be an "anti" of the best sort. God bless his boys, and all the boys, and give them fathers who not only do not drink, but who will teach them to hate the hellish stuff with a perfect hatred.

That other "Big Ike" (I do not know him either, nor do I know where "Doodle Ridge" is), tells us a "cow tale," from which we can draw a helpful lesson if we will.

Just as I was ready to bring my few feeble remarks to a close, as the old time preachers used to say, the post-man handed me the July 18th, Banner. Of course I stopped my pen long enough to read it. Now I have some more things to comment on. That "Sawyer" (dont you think I am smart to stand on my head and read backwards?) up at Campo comes with a message of wisdom about boys, Blind Tigers, Dispensaries, Saloons, and such like. He gives us a fine vivid illustration, namely, saw-mills can't be run without logs. He's right. One boy out of every five will make a drunkard, will fill a drunkard's grave, if things go on as they are. Will it be your boy, oh, fond father? Will it be YOU, Oh! my boy? God forbid. Girls, did you hear what that saw mill man said to you? Do it. Require purity of the boys, every one of them, perfect purity. I believe in a single gold standard of purity, the same for the boy that we require for the girl. Of course. And let that standard be as high as heaven, but I mustn't preach.

Old brother R. J. Mitchell's letters in the Banner are read by this old (I am not old) pastor with keen interest. He, too, advocates good roads, no saloons and all the things that build up a people and a country. May we help God to raise up boys to take the places soon to be vacated by such noble, useful, Christain men.

ROBERT JONES.

Montgomery, Ala.

P. S. I am in love with Montgomery, with my people in West End and feel that God is going to use me to build up a great peoples' church here. Give me an humble place in your thoughts and prayers sometimes. R. J.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION AT MULBERRY.

The Annual Sunday School Convention held at Mulberry Baptist church, July 20 and 21, was one of the most successful in the history of Sunday school work in Chilton county.

Of 59 Sunday schools known to be "living, wide awake and at work," 35 were represented by 70 delegates from all parts of the county, showing that interest in the Association is wide spread. It is said that the crowd numbered six or seven hundred on Sunday.

The presidents of the six districts, Messrs. Shaw, Williams, Bice, Mullins, Robinson and Milling, were present with good reports of their year's work. Maplesville district has held three conventions since July, 1906, Thorsby two, Isabella, Jemison, Clanton and Verbena each have held one. Especial mention is made of Thorsby as our first banner district. It will be a little harder for the others to reach this much desired goal owing to larger bounds and numbers, but we are hoping that 1908 will see us a banner county, composed of banner districts.

The general statistics show 59 schools, 306 officers and teachers, 2,670 pupils. 4 home departments with 67 members, 3 cradle rolls with 35 members, 10 separate primary departments, 4 schools recently organized are not included in this report.

The schools show increased membership and are doing fine work, but with the entire enrollment, and allowing for a good many visitors, there are still 6,000 white people in Chilton county, not connected in any way with any Sunday school.

The Executive Committee did its best to arrange a good program and was present in full force to see their plans carried out. With a few exceptions, the order of the published program was followed.

Mr. J. Toy Williams made a forceful talk on "The power of memorized scripture," emphasizing with apt illustration that "As a man thinketh in his heart, so he is," if memory holds in keeping the word of truth the life will bear witness.

Very earnestly and practically, Mr. Milling talked of the Home Department, showing how much good it brings the community, and giving bits of his interesting experience as a superintendent of this work.

As Sunday school workers we are in one accord with Judge Reynolds as to our attitude toward whiskey and join with him in his strong denunciation of intemperance. The Sunday school stands always for a clean life, a clear brain and a pure heart.

Miss Kennedy's coming to us was a benediction. Hearing her speak with so much earnestness and truth of the qualification of a teacher, we felt the vital importance of knowing how to study in order to know how to teach. We will long remember the series of vivid word pictures pointing the journey of the Sunday school ships and the scenes at the World's Convention in Rome.

With pride and pleasure, we welcomed Gov. Comer to the Convention as Mr. Crumpton said feeling it meant a great deal for a state to have a Governor who would come forty miles by rail and drive twelve over a dusty road in the heat of a mid-summer day to show his hearty sympathy and interest in Sunday school work. His general manner, his earnestness and sincerety, his strong forceful speech made his presence an inspiration.

One hundred dollars was pledged for state and county associations. The liberality of the people attesting their interest in this work.

Dr. A. Horn of Thorsby was elected President and W. H. Shaw Vice President. Executive Committee: Jerome O. Williams, Chairman, C. M. Northcutt, L. A. Calloway, J. Wiley Mitchell and P. D Wilson.

The matter of printing minutes was referred to a committee to report at next Convention.

By rising vote the delegates and visitors expressed their gratitude to the people of Mulberry for their cordial hospitality.

Thoughtful consideration for comfort marked every place of the entertainment committee and its most efficient chairman, J. Toy Williams.

Thanks are due to the ladies for the bountiful dinner served both days, and the gentlemen who made ample provision for the visitors' teams.

We have heard that Mulberry had splendid singing and on this occasion under leadership of Mr. Clint Veazey, assisted by the organists, Misses Jones and Williams, the singers verified their reputation. The solos and quartets were especially enjoyed.

The Convention appreciated most sincerely the presence of Mr. Mitchell, the minister at Mulberry.

The invitation from Jemison Baptist church was accepted for 1908. SECRETARY.

FARMERS' SUMMER SCHOOL

to be held at Auburn, Ala., August 1–8, 1907.

In 1903 the attendance was 130; in 1904 it was 245; in 1905, we enrolled 337, and in 1906 there were 405. This year (1907), we confidently expect to pass the 500 mark. Additional prizes, new lecturers, and new demonstrations. Experts will talk, teach, and give laboratory instructions in class rooms and on the farm 10 to 12 hours every day. The instruction will interest and profit the fruit grower, the truck-er, the dairyman, the beef cattle man, the cotton farmer, the sugar cane grower and syrup maker, the mule man and the special and all around farmer.

Reduced rates on all railroads. Board $3.50 for 7 days or 75 cents to $1 per day. Auburn is high, well drained and liberally supplied with good water pure air and hospitable people. Come and bring your wife and boy or boys.

SPECIAL PRIZES.

(1) $15 for the first best 10 ears of corn; $10 for the second; $5 for the third.

(2) $15 for the best average in scoring live stock; $10 for the second; $5 for the third.

(3) $8 for the best average in scoring chickens; $4 for the second; $2 for the third.

August 8, there will be a combination sale of young Alabama-bred registered cattle This sale will be made for the benefit of Alabama breeders, and is inaugurated with the idea that it will be a regular annual feature in connection with Farmers' Summer School. It is also quite probable that we shall have a combination sale of young Alabama-bred registered hogs Catalogue of the cattle and hog sales will be issued in due time. ONE DAY AT MULBERRY.

Maplesville, Ala., July 22, 1907

Editor Banner—Will you please allow me space in the dear old Banner to tell you what I heard and saw at the County Sunday School Convention at Mulberry church on the 20 and 21 of July.

Well what I saw and heard was more than one man can tell. You are aware of the fact that we had some of the most distinguished men and women in the State with us. For instance we had the Hon. Gov. B. B. Comer with us, who gave us a lecture on "The Sunday school as an educational force," which was something grand as well as instructing to our young men. This should teach us lessons never to be forgotten. All good and great men come from the Sunday school. Thank God for Gov. Comer. We had others who stand high in the Sunday school ranks and are worthy of praise beyond our expression; we value them so highly we cannot place a fair estimate on them. There was Miss Minnie Kennedy and Miss Mary C. Gibson, who rendered valuable service to the meeting. Then there was Judge L. H. Reynolds, who displayed his eloquence for 40 minutes with good advice; enough in it to raise every boy and girl in Chilton county if properly heeded. Then there was all the delegates from the different schools to talk about the good and great things God is doing for them.

We have been seeing a great many letters in the Banner about the dispensary in Clanton; give the Sunday school people a chance and they will show the Devil that he can't run dispensaries over them. Some are ready to point at the blind tiger. Well, he cannot do the damage that one with two eyes and is backed by our dear Uncle Sam can do. Vote as you pray, if you do not pray do not vote. If we send a swell tub to the Legislature or to the Senate, we may look for a shower of whiskey. Pray for God-fearing men to fill the offices of the State and Nation, and then vote for them when you get a chance, and I think the Devil will have to take the dispensary and hump with it.

But we had almost forgotten the subject. We could not say too much in praise of the Sunday school Convention at Mulberry church, for surely the Lord was with us and we were in one of the best communities in the State, and everybody seemed to be glad they were there. With best wishes to the Sunday school workers everywhere. I am yours truly.

NOAH L. BROADHEAD.

A House Party.

Miss Ida Belle Donovan highly entertained a number of friends last week at a house party at her home, "Oak Grove Cottage," near Mountain Creek. Her guests were Misses Josie Mae Marlar of Billingsley, Mattie Lee Hughes, Naomi Dorman, Marbury; Lelia Jones, Danville, Ky.; Lillian Mills, Jones Switch; Maggie Strock, Verbena; Minnie Rollins and Mrs. B. W. Jernigan, Montgomery. Messrs. Watson Dickinson of Hope Hull; George Frazier, B. W. Jernigan, Montgomery; Willie Henderson, Mountain Creek; Cole Fetton, Billingsley; Joe Hughes, Geo. Miles, Edward Nesby and Geo Fellows of Marbury. A number of delightful affairs were in compliment to the party, but those seemed to be most enjoyed were driving, kodaking and serving of light refreshments.

The charming hostess will leave Saturday for Montgomery, where she will spend some time with friends. We wish her a pleasant visit. A FRIEND.

THE SMILE

that won't come off, appears on baby's face after one bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge, the great worm medicine. Why not keep that smile on baby's face. If you keep this medicine on hand you will never see anything else but smiles on his face. Mrs. S—. Blackwell, Okla., writes:

"My baby was peevish and fretful. Would not eat and I feared he would die. I used a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and he has not had a sick day since. Sold by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

For that Dandruff

There is one thing that will cure it—Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is a regular scalp-medicine. It quickly destroys the germs which cause this disease. The unhealthy scalp becomes healthy. The dandruff disappears, had to disappear. A healthy scalp means a great deal to you—healthy hair, no dandruff, no pimples, no eruptions.

The best kind of a testimonial—"Sold for over sixty years."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

[illegible] tells the same fruitful story.
[illegible] their fathers' dreams;
[illegible] their faces to glory
[illegible] watch the warm kisses of day!
[illegible] our fellows are treated as cattle
That are mauled when treading the corn,
And suffering sink down in life's battle
With a sigh for the day they were born.

Swing forward, O [illegible] of the future!
Swing outward, ye doors of the past,
For the soul of the people is moving
And rising from slumber at last;
The dark forms of night are retreating,
The white peaks have signaled the day,
And Freedom her long toil is beating,
And calling her sons to the fray.

Swing forward, O gates! till the morning
Shall paint the brown mountains in gold,
Till the life and the love of the New Time
Shall conquer the hate of the Old;
Let the face and the hand of the Master
No longer be hidden from view,
Nor the lands be prepared for the many
Be trampled and robbed by the few.

Mrs. Dinsmore's Emancipation.

By ELIZABETH PRICE.

"Come in, Harriet," called Mrs. Dinsmore, adding as her daughter-in-law entered, "I can always tell your rap—it is so decided."

The younger woman looked pleased. "I have often thought that a person's character was manifested in almost all their actions," she said, "and I believe I can say without conceit that I have decision of character."

"Yes, Harriet," was the demure reply.

"Mother, I shall have to be out all day. Marketing and other errands will occupy the morning and as I am chairman of the refreshment committee for our Woman's club tea this afternoon I will take lunch down town. I have instructed the children to go from school to sister Caroline's so as not to disturb you.

"The maids will attend to your lunch and anything else you want. Just ring for Jane if you need her. She will go out at 2 o'clock, but after that Bridget will answer your bell. Have you everything to make you comfortable for the day?" and Mrs. Harriet adjusted the cushions on the luxurious couch and drew down a shade to soften the light.

"Yes, thank you. But isn't there something I can do for you? Mending or darning or dusting?" The old lady's tones were wistful, but Mrs. Harriet smiled indulgently and shook her head. "No, indeed, Mother. Benjamin and I didn't bring you here to make a drudge of you. Your life work has been well done, and you deserve a complete respite for the time that is left you. You don't look very strong of late, and are losing your color. Benjamin must get you a tonic. Don't think of trying to work—just rest and read or knit and enjoy yourself. Good-bye."

"I've been a useful woman, and to be suddenly transplanted from a home where I did everything to one where I can do nothing is—torture. Callers are not encouraged lest they excite me. My grandchildren are kept out of my room though I have assured Harriet they wouldn't disturb me. But she only smiles and says I don't realize what noisy little creatures they are. As if I cared! When Bennie lived at home he was always needing something done for him, but if he does now I never hear of it. But then he's such a busy man I see very little of him—which of course is nobody's fault and I ought to be ashamed to mention it.

"I wonder if I couldn't find a little dirt to clean up. I'm going to take the whisk and try. Maybe Jane didn't sweep under things." But the quest was fruitless for Mrs. Harriet had herself superintended the cleaning. So Mrs. Dinsmore turned her attention to her own warbrobe, but not a button was missing—not a rent or a rip could be found. "I might have known it," she said with a patient little sigh. "My clothes were all spick-and-span new after I came here, and I've done nothing to hurt them. I don't exert myself enough to loosen a tape if it hung by a single thread; and I'm aching and tingling to work. I want a broom or a churn or a tableful of dishes to wash. They think I couldn't do it—how father would laugh at such an idea. He knew whether I had outlived my usefulness.

"I wonder if things look as they used to at home. The vines that shaded the back porch and the hollyhocks along the stone wall. It's nearly time for the day lilies to bloom now unless the tenant's chickens have scratched them up, which they probably have. Oh, how I hate this lace. I've knitted yards of it already and I don't suppose Harriet will ever use it. I'd rather have a piece of gingham and my old sewing machine than all the tonics ever brewed."

Mrs. Harriet would not have complained of a lack of color in her mother-in-law's cheeks had she seen her then. Her face was glowing and her step showed no feebleness as she paced back and forth and held rebellious communion with her thoughts. "I'm wicked—I am and I never thought I would be," she exclaimed aloud. "Father wouldn't know me for the wife he used to say he'd never seen out of patience. But I've held in so long I must speak out at last. And to think it's my own dear boy I'm raging about and his good wife, just because they try to be considerate of me. Truly the human heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked. That's me—deceitful and wicked after getting the credit of being a Christian for 40 years. It must be all for the best—no doubt I need this discipline, but I don't want it, no I don't. I've tried to make myself see how it would have been if I were left alone and penniless, but even that doesn't seem so awful as it ought to.

"There—I'll stop. I will not give up to bad thoughts any longer. I'll try to count my mercies and it will keep me busy for a long time to do that."

Half an hour later when Jane brought in a tray of lunch no trace of conflict was visible, except a little wrinkled place on the snowy counterpane where a troubled gray head had rested while its owner told her never-absent Friend the story of her trials.

Jane straightened the spread, then arranged the tempting viands before the quiet old lady, knitting with steady fingers on an interminable length of lace.

It was after 2 o'clock when Bridget burst into the room without ceremony, her round face pale and tear-stained: "Oh, mem, an' what shall I do? The mithress is gone, an' it's Jane's afternoon out, an' I stark alone mem, savin' your presence was fixin' to clane me kitchen as peaceful as a lamb mem, an' here comes a missinger bye to tell me me brother's after fallin' off a scaffoldin' an' hurted himself that bad it's afraid I am he'll be dead an' gone or ever I lay me eyes to him. Oh, mem, it's me only brother this side the old conthry, an' it's the light o' me eyes he is mem, a broth of a bye but 20 years past. Oh, mem, whatever shall I do?" Mrs. Dinsmore took the rough, trembling hands into her own. "Go to him at once, my dear," she said.

"Oh, mem, but it's all alone ye'd be. I darsn't be lavin' ye an' it against the misthress' command, an' me dinner to get. It's an evil day that's broke over the head of Bridget Malone."

"Hush, Bridget, I am quite able to be left alone. As for the dinner, I will see to that. Go to your brother as quickly as you can—I will tell your mistress that I bade you go, and I am sure she will not blame you. Don't cry, poor girl. He may not be so badly injured as you think. No, you needn't go back to the kitchen at all—get off as soon as possible."

"May the saints reward ye, mem. It's mesilf will niver ferget the kindness done a poor lone woman, an' I'd not be takin' advantage to lave ye, mem, but for poor Mike's sore need, it's thankin' ye I'll be till me head turns as white as your own, mem, axin' your pardon for mentionin' the same."

Bridget's red and green shawl was hardly out of sight before a slight figure in black crept up the attic stairs. "It's here, somewhere," said Mrs. Dinsmore. "If only it hasn't heavy things piled upon it. There it is and nothing in the way."

A little, old, old-fashioned hair trunk was dragged from its ignominous hiding place under the eaves, and speedily unlocked in spite of the trembling fingers that held the key. From its depths were drawn a neat print dress, an all-enveloping gingham apron, a white mull tie and a pair of prunella gaiters. With these in hand the old lady sped down stairs forgetting the infirmities that should have belonged to her age, even though they didn't.

Never did a school girl enjoy forbidden frolic more. "Three o'clock, and Harriet won't be home before half past six. All my own way for three and a half hours," she said joyfully.

Even Mrs. Dinsmore could not have asked a scene of greater confusion than met her eyes as she stood in the kitchen door. The tearing out process, preliminary to a weekly cleaning had been effectually accomplished, and just there operations had stopped. In a corner the broom stood guard over a heap of dirt and rubbish, while dustpan and brush lay helplessly by. The pot-closet stood open and empty, its customary contents piled about the floor, while a pail of foam suds proclaimed the good intentions of the departed Bridget. On the table a huge basket held the marketing recently delivered. Into this Mrs. Dinsmore peeped. "Chickens! Oh, I can make Bennie some chicken stew with the yellow gravy he used to love so well. And I'll cream some potatoes, and fricassee some sweet potatoes—and custard pie! How Bennie will enjoy that if only Harriet doesn't come till I get dinner ready. Oh, how happy I am." Dirt and disorder speedily vanished before the determined onslaught of the energetic worker.

"Of course, I shal scrub," she said to herself. "It won't hurt me a bit. Harriet will never find it out—nobody will know it but me unless Bridget should discover it, and I'll ask her to keep quiet. I'm going to do it so that's all there is to say," and Mrs. Dinsmore nodded defiance to her thoughts.

It so happened that Mrs. Harriet after arriving at the Woman's club, had stepped to the telephone and held a brief conversation with her husband. "Benjamin, can't you go home a little early? I shall be detained here till after six and there is no one in the house with your mother except Bridget. I fancied she looked a little pale and out of condition this morning."

So it came to pass that the busy men of affairs tarried at his mother's door a little later. Receiving no response he entered the apartment to find it empty, and no answer came to his call as he passed from room to room, thoroughly alarmed at last but finding no trace of her presence.

Maybe Bridget would know, so down the back stairs he plunged two steps at a time to stand transfixed at their foot. In a little sea of suds stood the culprit a wide stretch of white shining floor between herself and her discoverer, and a narrow strip of grimy boards behind her awaiting her attention. Her white hair waved about her pink face, her tidy skirts pinned up from the prunella gaiters, a mop-cloth in her hands and a snatch of song arrested on her lips.

"Mother!"

"Bennie!"

The exclamations were simultaneous, as the mop fell splashing to the floor!

"What does this mean?" asked Mr. Dinsmore, very gently, because visions of insanity floated through his frightened brain.

"Oh, Bennie, don't scold. I was so homesick for something to do, and Bridget had to go to her brother, and I wanted to, and I was going to surprise you with some of my stewed chicken and dumplings like I used to make you. I've enjoyed every minute of it, and, Bennie, I'm ten years younger for it. I've wanted it so—oh, more than I can tell—it makes me very unhappy to be idle and useless, darling."

The man sat limply down in the nearest chair. His mother homesick and unhappy in his house where he had meant she should be so happy! "Hasn't everybody been good to you?" he demanded fiercely.

"Oh, yes, dear, too good. I haven't a fault to find—Harriet is beyond reproach. It is only my own unreasonableness—but I can't make you understand." The happy light had died out of the sweet old face and Bennie strode straight into the sea of suds to clasp his arms about his mother, and say, "You needn't try to make me understand. You are to do what makes you happiest in this house, whether it's riding in airships or scrubbing floors. We wanted to do the best for you, and if we've made mistakes all you have to do is to teach us better. Don't cry, mother—the sweetest mother in all the world. Go on with your scrubbing, dear, or you won't get done in time to make my yellow gravy."

So Bennie peeled potatoes while his mother rolled pie crust and they lived over old times to their heart's content.

Mr. Dinsmore met his wife at the parlor door a little later and drew her into the parlor where a quiet conversation was held while Grandmother somewhat nervously dished up the dinner. And afterward Harriet found no fault—expressed no surprise—instead she praised everything in sight.

That dinner was an undeniable success and Bennie ate as he hadn't eaten in years. Afterward he and mother washed and wiped the dishes—Bennie with the big brown apron aled about his portly waist—while Harriet brushed the dining room and set the table for breakfast. Then they all played dominoes in the big pleasant sitting room and nobody once said, "Mother, hadn't you better retire?"

Bridget was back at her post with the early morning, overwhelmed with gratitude to Mrs. Dinsmore, and overjoyed to report Mike as "not so bad hurted after all, mem." But her absence had served it's purpose, and Mother Dinsmore has never returned to her enforced if luxurious imprisonment, and if Bennie has his way she never will."—New York Daily News.

A Unique Clock.

In the barber shop at the Ten Eyck hotel, in Albany, said a traveling man, at the Neil house, there is a clock which causes no end of amusement. It is so arranged that the hands mark time, and revolve in exactly the opposite direction and manner from a normal clock's. First-year legislators and others new to the place, when they enter the barber shop, invariably stand gazing at it with an air of complete mystification for some little time. Then they turn to some one and ask some such question as: "Is that twisted or am I?" The varying effect on different persons keeps the barber shop in an intermittent state of laughter and merriment. It is not until the customer mounts into one of the chairs and faces the mirror wall before him that he usually understands the reason for having the clock built on the reverse principle.—Colubus Dispatch.

The Long Wait.

Bill Nye, when a young man, once made an engagement with a lady friend of his to take her driving of a Sunday afternoon. The appointed day came but at the livery-stable all the horses were taken out save one old, shaky, exceedingly bony horse.

Mr. Nye hired the nag and drove to his friend's residence. The lady let him wait nearly an hour before she was ready, and then on viewing the disreputable outfit flatly refused to accompany Mr. Nye.

"Why," she exclaimed, sneeringly, "that horse may die of age any moment."

"Madam," Mr. Nye replied, "when I arrived that horse was a prancing young steed."—Harper's Weekly.

The Next Best Thing.

At the entrance examination for the Academy of Dramatic Art held last week nearly 50 percent of the candidates were rejected. It is thought that most of these will become dramatic critics.—Punch.

The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON

Subject: The First Commandment.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, Hamburg avenue and Weirfield street, on the theme, "The First Commandment," the pastor, Rev. Ira Wemmell Henderson, took as his text Ex. 20:3, "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me." He said:

Given to a people who lived amid polytheistic surroundings and hedged in by the worshipers of the many gods this commandment has as much force in this day as it had then. The call of Jehovah for undivided loyalty at the hands of His people is but the demand of reason. "No man can serve two masters," and he who would try so to do finds out, in whatsoever department of life he may elect the test, that this is a great truth. Granting God only the average of human intellectuality we must agree that the Almighty knew what He was about when He laid fast claim upon the unified service of His chosen people. The history of polytheism is the record of the deadening of the best religious instincts and capabilities in man, and the story of the strife of the deities to secure human patronage.

Grant, if you wish, that the first word is but the appreciation by Moses of the fundamental truths which God had put into the hearts of the best men of the Hebrew nation, rather than a specific, face-to-face, objective revelation of Jehovah's will to Moses alone, and the truth is not quenched. The particular doctrines you may hold as to just what are the means of divine self-revelation and inspiration do not in any way affect the facts. Moses got the truth. That is the point. It is of secondary importance what view you may hold as to how the truth sank into his heart. But this is a digression.

"Thou shalt have no other gods before Me," said Jehovah. And the darkest days of Israel were those when she served the no-gods of the heathens. In this day and generation many peoples are in the midst of the blackness of thick darkness because they serve too many and unworthy gods. The religious activities and spiritual sensibilities of any nation have more to do with its material success than shallow thinkers and cursory students of history are ready to admit. A high religious life has fruit in a fine morality. A deep moral consciousness finds expression in clean and benificent conduct. And good conduct concerns the health of all the departments of life wherein human energy is expended. A nation of many gods will, for reasons that are easily perceived, soon degenerate. When men may play the gods against each other for personal gain it is easy to compute how long it will be before all social life will become corrupt.

But much as we may be interested in the study of the effects of polytheistic religions upon the conduct of nations, and willing as we may be to contemplate the evil and disastrous consequences of such religions upon the entire life of a people, there is yet a more pointed application of the text that very properly may command our attention.

You remember the story of the rich young man! Well, the trouble with him was not that he was rich, but that money was his god. Riches are no sin—if they are righteously acquired. To be rich is to be tried—fearfully tried. Money as a means to the service of God is unmixed good. Money as Mammon is damnation to heart and mind and soul alike. Cash, considered as so much credit from the eternal storehouse of God's wealth, is capable of much good. Gold, as greed and the gainer of personal self-satisfaction alone, is a curse.

As the young man, who so touched the heart of Jesus, allowed his bank account to deter him from the service God demanded of him, so many of us serve money, ambition, social demands and social preferment, instead of Jehovah. The man who sacrifices all that is best within him upon the altar of money is a fool. The next panic may sweep him away and drag his wealth from him. The woman who works herself almost to death and makes a slave of her husband that they may have only clear water ahead of them in the social swim, will, when the end is come, find that it is all a farce and that a younger, better looking, richer woman, whose husband has more cash, now leads the social race. No man can serve ambition for ambition's sake and keep his peace with God. Ambition, selfish ambition, I mean, knows not God and respects no man. The rush for a place at the top, either in politics or society, is largely responsible for that deadening of the finer impulses and that stultification of conscience that, in many circles, we see to-day.

But lest we become too destructive, let us consider the constructive and positive aspects of the commandment.

To answer the query of those who tried Him in His exegesis of the ten words Jesus promulgated the clinching and summarizing commandment, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength." From the entirety of the heart and in its unity; with the central and soul life; intellectually and in the fulness of spiritual strength; in short, with the whole of his being man is to serve the one true God, the Father of our Lord and of us.

There are three reasons—to enumerate no more—why we should serve Jehovah. The first is that service is obligatory; the second is that it is necessary; the third is that it is satisfactory.

At the centre of all life stands God, the personal loving Father of every man, the Creator of the material world. Back of Him we cannot legitimately go, nor is there any necessity or valid reason to do so. As our Father, He is the source and giver of our lives. To serve Him is obligatory upon all men. His demand that He be given pre-eminence in every man's life is not unreasonable. If obedience be the duty of every child to a loving earthly parent, who shall question the right of God to make obedience to Himself alone the obligation of every soul? No man of perception will remove God from the world. No man can. The one great, obtrusive fact in life, that constantly forces itself upon our attention, is that God is. Harmony with His laws brings us happiness. Discord with the verities of God puts a man into hell. From the fact that God is the ruler and life of the universe we are bound to conclude that for the preservation of His own integrity and for our own best development it is obligatory that we serve the Lord our God and Him only.

Then, too, it is necessary that men shall give God the prime position in their lives. In order to the glory of the Father—which is the chief end of man—and in order to the cultivation of all that is noblest within them, men must ally themselves with those spiritual and godly elements and ideals in life that make for the highest and the best. No man is so well rounded a man as he who measures his life-work by spiritual and eternal standards. The opportunist has no chance in God's Kingdom. The career that is most a blessing to the individual and to mankind is the one that is grounded in godliness and whose works of righteousness are the result of the inward workings of a holy love. The effort of the rightly balanced man is to be most of use and to have the world mark and remember him as worth while. The man who is most of account and whose memory will be longest cherished is that man whose life is squared to the measure of godliness revealed in Jesus Christ. Goodness is necessary to a lasting success. The man who is the best man and whose achievement is permanent is the man who serves God in the unity of love.

In the last place, the fruits of such service are satisfactory. A man may till the soil and reap many harvests till his barns be full, but if he have no communion with God he will go hungry in the after life. What to you is your money when God calls you to the heavenly places? The amount of Christian character you possess, not the coins that crowd your purse, will be the measure of your value then and there. What are your clothes when death's shroud encloses you? What are you—you who have worshiped at the altar of your own wisdom—when God puts you in the balance? All these things are admittedly unsubstantial. But the wealth of God endures. The Christian who is clothed upon by Jesus Christ shall ever be prepared to stand within the presence of Almighty God. The wisdom of God is sufficient unto the saving of the soul and lasts forever. If we would but reverse things and make all the material elements and all our intellectual abilities subservient and subsidiary and subordinate to the prime work of the spiritual service of Jehovah life would be more satisfactory. He who serves God gets money enough and eternal life. The striver for eminence in godliness and uprightness will be well in the front of Heaven's society and will not want for recognition—among people whose approval is worth anything—here. The deepest knowledge and the hardest task the mind of man can attack is to be found in the appropriation of the eternal wisdom of our God. The fruits of God-serving are peace, joy, contentment, purity, eternal life. The prizes of the world are fleeting. The serving of God is satisfactory. To him who is faithful the reward is sure.

Thoroughness in Religion.

"How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God follow Him; but if Baal, then follow him," (1 Kings 18:21.) "Thorough," then, is the law here. Here is a call on the whole nature to serve God. To you Christ must be all; let Him be supreme.

Make the best of yourself, that you may be the better able to serve and glorify Him. Bring to Him your power of thought, your acuteness of reasoning, your wealth of imagination, your play of fancy, as well as all the fervor of your soul. Jesus is your Saviour and your God; then follow Him with your whole soul—always, in all things, at all cost. With both hands—that is, with all your might; earnestly—that is, with all your soul, serve Him who has given Himself for you. With the heart believe, and with the mouth confess, that Jesus is Saviour and Lord.—Dr. Guinness Rogers.

"At the Last."

It is right to seek the good-will of all men, and to desire that they speak well of us, but when we lie down to die it will be an empty pillow if this is all that we can rest on. When we are through with life and all its applause, and are awaiting the final call, we want something more substantial than a Chautauqua salute. When the faces we love grow dim to our vision, and we are lying in the twilight of two worlds, there are voices we would much rather hear than the plaudits and the acclaim of our countrymen, and one of them is, "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Spiritual Helps.

To him who walks in the Spirit all outward things are spiritual helps, and the spirit of God makes itself felt not only from within us, but also by things that border our paths, that meet us in our walks, that are with us in our homes, through words spoken by friends and through the ongoing of time as it enlightens and changes us.—Mountford.

Adorned With Holy Meditations.

Thou must keep thy memory clean and pure, as it were a wedlock chamber, from all strange thoughts, fancies and imaginations; and it must be trimmed and adorned with holy meditations and virtues of Christ's life and passion, that God may continually and ever rest therein.—Robert Leighton.

THE SUNDAY SCHO

INTERNATIONAL LESSON [illegible] MENTS FOR JULY 20 BY REV. I. W. HENDERSON

Subject: The Golden Calf. Ex. [illegible] 20-33—Golden Text, I John 21—Memory Verses, 24, Commentary.

Moses was up on the mount [illegible] ing with Jehovah for Israel and knew it. But in the [illegible] their hearts the people for whom plead and for whose welfare he so solicitous deliberately denied knowledge of his whereabouts was an altogether ignoble action we have seen its like since the of Moses and perhaps we shall ness it analogy again.

The lesson of the golden calf meaning and a warning for our eration. It has a particular for America.

If there is any one thing more another that has made [illegible] civilization and prosperity of it is the providence of God and willingness of America as a na erations that have passed away led, in some measure by Him root of righteousness that has been active and heard among people with reverence and at the bottom of our national Whatever success we may achieved as a free people may credited largely to the [illegible] that righteousness among us exalteth a nation. That is that America owes its success international preferment to guidance and the grace of God careful student of history conclude that the momentous ery of these western lands neously with the regeneration of man ideas and ideals in Europe simply a coincidence. It was dential. It was divinely planned divinely led. Likewise no student of American history can to another conclusion so valid as that the progress of these States is founded upon the God and the underlying purpose this people to keep close to His

But some very superficial ers of the trend of events seem to have it otherwise. To the industrial reports one would led to think that the industries the railroads and the balance of of this country are the fundamental bases upon which our prosperity built. If we believed the politi the central mainspring of all national prosperity is to be found in political systems. Some eminent [illegible] would evidently have us believe they are the real leaders of the ple on the march to greatness, and plenty.

A man coming from a foreign to New York for the first time be pardoned if he assumed gazed upon our temples of and of finance that we worship adulterated materialism instead the true and holy God. For many peoples the shrines and temples which they have dedicated the service of God are the ing feature of the town and side.

And too largely for her own America is erecting a golden And our calf is prosperity and rial success. These be the gods say that have made America. we perpetuate evils that pros may continue for a season. we postpone reforms and tion for fear that in effecting sary changes we may endanger prosperity for a time. There worse idol worship than this. is no idol worship more [illegible] dangerous than this. For it deification of money, of material cess, above theright. To worship calf of prosperity is to exalt tunism.

And this calf is not a dream with many men. It is not a academic conception. It is all ly a reality with many men. there is many a man who would ly reform the social order did fear that in the process of [illegible] however cautiously it might be ried on he would suffer in his ly estate. Many a man there is heartily disgusted with the things as they are who is not to lose a little himself that the cataclysm which is sure to come surely as we delay to mend our may be averted and the fortunes the coming generations more ciently conserved. And such a perhaps unconsciously, but many ten consciously, worships the calf of prosperity.

America needs to recognize God is at the centre of her being the motive of all her phenomenal cess. She needs to acknowledge sovereignty and her indebtedness Him. She needs to exalt Him proclaim her fealty to Him. needs to assert her allegiance to prophets and to ally herself with righteousness. For our prosperity not the gift of men but the gift God. We are entirely the stewards of our fortunes. We should not able to be the architects of them all were it not for the beneficence the living God. We do not exist from Him and we cannot be apart from Him. In Him we live move and have our being is a fact but it is one that we might wonder. For it states tersely the ultimate fact in life. May God grant never to forget it. May we exalt and serve Him and love Him more than life itself.

Flowers That Change Colors.

"This bed of flowers was blue this morning, and now it is pink. That one was white, and it is now rose. The one by the hedge was yellow yesterday, and to-day it is purple." The gardener chuckled delightedly.

"I call 'em my fairy flower beds, ma'am," he said. "You see, they change color. It's a grand idea, isn't it? It gives a garden such variety."

"But I didn't know that any flowers changed their color."

"Oh, yes. That bed you first mentioned is the mutable phlox. At sunrise it is blue, and in the afternoon it is pink.

"The one to the right is hibiscus—nature's mutabilis. It goes through three changes in the day, from white in the morning to rose at noon and to red at sunset.

"The bed by the hedge is the lantana. The lantana is yellow one day, orange the next and red the third. Its changes are slow.

"There are other flowers, too, that change. There's the chetranthus chameleo, that shifts from white to yellow and from yellow to red. There's the gladiolus versicolor, that's brown in the morning and blue in the evening. There's the coleus scandens, that moves slowly from greenish white to a deep violet.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

MEAT OR CEREALS

A Question of Interest to All Careful Persons.

Arguments on food are interesting. Many persons adopt a vegetarian diet on the ground that they do not like to feel that life has been taken to feed them, nor do they fancy the thought of eating dead meat.

On the other hand, too great consumption of partly cooked, starchy foods and wheat or white bread, pastry, etc., produces serious bowel troubles, because the bowel digestive organs, (where starch is digested), are overtaxed and the food ferments, producing gas, and microbes generate in the decayed food, frequently bringing on peritonaitis and appendicitis.

Starchy food is absolutely essential to the human body. Its best form is shown in the food "Grape-Nuts," where the starch is changed into a form of sugar during the process of its manufacture. In this way, the required food is presented to the system in a pre-digested form and is immediately made into blood and tissue, without taxing the digestive organs.

A remarkable result in nourishment is obtained; the person using Grape-Nuts gains quickly in physical and mental strength. Why is mental? Because the food contains delicate particles of Phosphate of Potash obtained from the grains, and this unites with the albumen of all food and the combination is what nature uses to rebuild worn out cells in the brain. This is a scientific fact that can be easily proven by ten days' use of Grape-Nuts. "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON ... MENTS FOR JULY 28 BY ... REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: The Golden Calf, Ex. ... 20-35—Golden Text, 1 John ... 21—Memory Verses, 24, 25. Commentary.

Moses was up on the mount ... ing with Jehovah for Israel and ... knew it. But in the perversity ... their hearts the people for whose ... plead and for whose welfare he ... so solicitous deliberately denied ... knowledge of his whereabouts ... was an altogether ignoble action. ... we have seen its like since the day ... of Moses and perhaps we shall ... ness it analogy again.

The lesson of the golden calf has ... meaning and a warning for our ... eration. It has a particular ... for America.

If there is any one thing more ... another that has made the Amer... civilization and prosperity of to... it is the providence of God and the ... willingness of Americans in the ... craft as that have passed away to ... led, in some measure, by Him. The ... root of righteousness that has always ... been active and heard among the ... people with reverence and respect, ... at the bottom of our national success. Whatever success we may have achieved as a free people may be ... credited largely to the potency of ... that righteousness among us which ... exalteth a nation. That is to say ... that America owes its success and its ... international preferment to the ... guidance and the grace of God. A ... careful student of history cannot ... conclude that the momentous discovery of these western lands simultaneously with the regeneration of human ideas and ideals in Europe was simply a coincidence. It was providential. It was divinely planned and divinely led. Likewise no careful student of American history can come to another conclusion so valid as this, that the progress of these United States is founded upon the grace of God and the underlying purpose of this people to keep close to His law.

But some very superficial observers of the trend of events would seem to have it otherwise. To read the industrial reports one would be led to think that the industries and the railroads and the balance of trade of this country are the fundamental bases upon which our prosperity is built. If we believed the politician the central mainspring of all national prosperity is to be found in political systems. Some eminent millionaires would evidently have us believe that they are the real leaders of the people on the march to greatness, power and plenty.

A man coming from a foreign shore to New York for the first time would be pardoned if he assumed as he gazed upon our temples of commerce and of finance that we worshiped an adulterated materialism instead of the true and holy God. For among many peoples the shrines and the temples which they have dedicated to the service of God are the dominating feature of the town and countryside.

And too largely for her own good America is erecting a golden calf. And our calf is prosperity and material success. These be the gods which say that have made America. And so we perpetuate evils that prosperity may continue for a season. And we postpone reforms and reformation for fear that in effecting necessary changes we may endanger our prosperity for a time. There is no worse idol worship than this. There is no idol worship more insidious or dangerous than this. For it is the deification of money, of material success, above the right. To worship the calf of prosperity is to exalt opportunism.

And this calf is not a dream or a myth, men. It is not a mere academic conception. It is all too really a reality with many men. For there is many a man who would gladly reform the social order did he not fear that in the process of revolution, however cautiously it might be carried on he would suffer in his worldly estate. Many a man there is who is heartily disgusted with the state of things as they are who is unwilling to lose a little himself that the larger cataclysm which is sure to come more surely as we delay to mend our ways may be averted and the fortunes of the coming generations more efficiently conserved. And such a man, perhaps unconsciously, but more often consciously, worships the golden calf of prosperity.

America needs to recognize that God is at the centre of her being as the motive of all her phenomenal success. She needs to acknowledge His sovereignty and her indebtedness to Him. She needs to exalt Him and proclaim her fealty to Him. She needs to assert her allegiance to His prophets and to ally herself with the righteousness. For our prosperity is not the gift of men but the gift of God. We are entirely the architects of our fortunes. We should not be able to be the architects of them at all were it not for the beneficence of the living God. We do not exist apart from Him and we cannot be separate apart from Him. In Him we live and move and have our being in a true sense, but it is one that we might well ponder. For it states tersely the ultimate fact in life. May God grant that we never to forget it. May we exalt Him and serve Him and love Him more than life itself.

MEAT OR CEREALS

A Question of Interest to All Careful Persons.

Arguments on food are interesting. Many persons adopt a vegetarian diet on the ground that they do not like to feel that life has been taken to feed them, nor do they fancy the thought of eating dead meat.

On the other hand, too great consumption of partly cooked, starchy oats and wheat or white bread, pastry, etc., produces serious bowel troubles, because the bowel digestive organs, (where starch is digested), are overtaxed and the food ferments, producing gas, and microbes generate in the decayed food, frequently bringing on peritonitis and appendicitis.

Court Trials of Animals.

The statutes of the Southwestern Police Court (London) Magistrate that a monkey may use the pavement if he causes no obstruction reminds us that down to a comparatively late period on the continent, the lower animals were considered amenable to the laws. Domestic animals were tried in the common criminal courts; wild animals fell under ecclesiastical jurisdiction. French antiquaries have discovered the records of ninety-two processes against animals, conducted with the strictest formalities, of justice, from 1120 to 1740, when the last trial and execution, that of a cow, took place. Thus there was a law suit that lasted from 1445 to 1457, between the inhabitants of St. Julien and a kind of beetle; and at Lavigny, in 1457, a sow and her six young ones were tried on a charge of having murdered and partly eaten a child. The sow was found guilty and condemned to death, but the little pigs were acquitted on account of their youth, the bad example of their mother and the absence of direct proof against them!—London Chronicle.

SLEEP BROKEN BY ITCHING.

Eczema Covered Whole Body For a Year — No Relief Until Cuticura Remedies Prove Perfect Success.

"For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief. I used one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura and two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills—which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. Mail for a Grave.

"I had a queer job yesterday," said a letter carrier, as he warmed his cold blue hands. "I delivered a wreath to a grave."

"It was a small wreath of immortelles in a pasteboard box. The address was Grave of James Love, Woodlawn Cemetery, First Lot to Right of Smith Monument."

"Thousands of times I had passed that cemetery on my rounds, but I never thought to make a delivery to one of the tombs.

"Going in, I found the Love grave easily, I brushed the snow off the mound with my bag, and taking the wreath from its box, I laid it on the bright green grass.

Sugar as Food.

Two scientists have recently reached very different conclusions in regard to the nourishing value of sugar. In recent years experts have shown an inclination to recommend with great warmth sugar as an article of food. Now, however, an entirely different view of the matter is taken by Dr. von Bunge, in an article published in the Journal for Biology, under the title "The Increasing Consumption of Sugar, and its Dangers."

The investigator concludes from the well-known fact that children who eat sugar are pale and have bad teeth, that sugar, owing to the fact that it does not contain iron and lime, and that it is substituted for other foods containing these materials, has an injurious effect, and its use should not be recommended. For this reason Dr. von Bunge advocates an increase of the German sugar tax.

Another important physiologist, Prof. Lepine, of Lyons, takes a diametrically opposite position, and shows from von Bunge's own tables that there is very little lime or iron in any of our food. His conclusion is that an increased consumption of sugar could not for the reasons advanced by von Bune have a deleterious effect. He, moreover, calls attention to the fact that in France, where, owing to its high price, sugar is really an article of luxury, and where accordingly only one-third as much per head of population is used as in Germany, the people do not seem to enjoy better health than the Germans.

The only bad result of the large consumption of sugar in Germany appears to be an increased demand for the services of dentists, but in this respect Germany's dental troubles are not greater than France's. Prof. Lepine declares that, from the standpoint of a hygienist, he would rejoice to see his fellow-countrymen increase their consumption of sugar fourfold and that he would not ... the slightest anxiety in regard to consequences. —Picayune.

WOMEN WHO CHAR...

Health Is the First Essential Toward Making a Woman Attractive.

MISS HULDA KUGHLER MISS ELIZABETH WYNN

There is a beauty and attractiveness in health which is far greater than mere regularity of feature.

A sickly, irritable, and complaining woman always carries a cloud of depression with her; she is not only unhappy herself but is a damper to all joy and happiness when with her family and friends.

It is the bright, healthy, vivacious woman who always charms and carries sunshine wherever she goes.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging and that everything tires her; if her feminine system fails to perform its allotted duties, there is nervousness, sleeplessness, faintness, backache, headache, bearing-down pains, and irregularities, causing constant misery and melancholia, she should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs will dispel all these troubles. By correcting the cause of the trouble it cures where other treatment may have failed.

Miss Elizabeth Wynn, of No. 203 8th Avenue, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For months I suffered with dreadful headaches, pain in the back and severe hemorrhages. I was weak and out of sorts all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me when all other medicine had failed. It seemed to be just what I needed and quickly restored my health."

Miss Hulda Kughler, of No. 31, West 124th Street, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For months I was ill with an internal trouble. I suffered terrible agony, was nervous, irritable, and sick all the time. I took different medicines without benefit. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and within six months I was completely restored to health and I want to recommend it to every suffering woman."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular functions, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacements, inflammation or ulceration, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

GET THE POLES READY.

Don't mean the polls for voting but the poles for fencing.

Any farmer who will, can bring a load or two loads of skinned sap pine posts to Maplesville some day in August (yet to be announced) six feet long and about five inches in diameter; can get them creosoted free and make them last 20 years. You can bring one in five of them split, if you prefer. Cut the but and square off and bevel the top end on two sides as if you wanted to make it shed off the rain.

Bring them (the poles) in now. Don't wait, as the government expert, Mr. Hill, wants to note the process of drying out and to weigh them every few days. This is a day of great things; this is one of them. Leave the posts at the sawmill of R. H. Martin, where they are to be creosoted. This is the work of our Commissioner of Agriculture, J. A. Wilkinson, assisted by a U. S. Government expert of Forestry. Bring the poles.

HANDLING A TIGER.

How a Turkoman Subdued a Snarling, Angry Man Eater.

"In a cage near the room in which I lived while in Khiva," says Langdon Warner in the Century Magazine, "was a tiger from the Oxus swamps. He had taken a dislike to me, and every time I passed his cage he got up and paced angrily toward me, snarling.

"Into the cage of this beast, at the command of the prince, a Turkoman stepped, armed with a short stick as big round as his wrist. With this stick he struck the tiger's nose as he made for him, and then, with palms out and eyes fixed, he walked slowly up to the shrinking beast and stroked his face and flank.

"The tiger snarled and took the man's hand in his open mouth. I held my breath and looked for the bleeding stump to fall away; but, keeping that hand perfectly still, with the other he tickled the tiger's jowl and scratched his ear till with a yawn and a pleased snarl the big cat rolled over on his back to have his belly scratched.

"The man then sank to his knees, always keeping his hands in motion over the glossy fur, and with his foot drew toward him a collar attached to a chain. This he snapped round the beast's neck and, rising to his feet, laid hold of the chain and dragged the tiger out.

"This was only the second time that the cage had been entered. As soon as the tiger was outside he espied the watching party and started for them, but came up short on the collar. If he had chosen to use his weight and strength no four of them could have held his tether, but as it was the Turkoman found little difficulty with him and held him, snarling, while a camera was snapped."

DRESSED SEALSKIN.

The Way This Beautiful Fur Is Brought to Perfection.

If a lady's sealskin jacket be compared with the coarse, hard or dry-salted sealskin as imported, or, still better, with the coat of the living fur seals, one is struck with the vast difference between them.

Passing our fingers among the hairs of the cat or dog, we may notice fine short hairs at the roots of the longer, coarser general covering of the animal. This is so called under fur. But in the greater number of these animals the short hairs are so few and often so fine as to be, comparatively speaking, lost sight of among what to our eyes constitutes the coat.

The operation which the skin undergoes to bring out, so to say, the fur, may be briefly described as follows:

The skin, after being washed to rid it of grease and so forth, is laid flat on the stretch, flesh side up. A flat knife is then passed across the flesh substance, thinning it to a very considerable extent. In doing this, the blade severs the roots of the long strong hairs, which penetrate the skin deeper than do the soft, delicate ones under the fur. The rough hairs are then got rid of while the fur retains its hold.

A variety of subsidiary manipulations, in which the pelt is softened and preserved, are next gone through, and then the fur undergoes a process of dyeing which produces that deep uniform tint so well known and admired.

The Doctor Away from Home when Most Needed.

People are often very much disappointed to find that their family physician is away from home when they most need his services. Diseases like cramp colic and cholera mobus require prompt treatment, and have in many instances proven fatal before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. The right way is to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. No physician can prescribe a better medicine for these diseases. By having it in the house you escape much pain and suffering and all risk. Buy it now; it may save life. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Stanton.

Here we come again, after an absence of a few weeks.

We are having some fine weather now and lots of barbecues.

Rev. Martin filled his regular appointment at the Methodist church Sunday, and the young people enjoyed a singing Sunday night.

Misses Ruby Williams and Letta Doyle have just returned from a visit to J. W. Cook's family, at Riderville.

Miss Amelia Perry and Mrs. Parker visited Plantersville last Thursday.

Master Leon Dyer entertained quite a number of his little friends on his birthday last Friday.

Mrs. J. F. Gregory is visiting friends in Stanton.

Mrs. Parker of Columbiana is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. O. Perry.

Best wishes to the dear old Banner and it many readers.

GUESS WHO.

Bad Burn Quickly Healed.

"I am so delighted with what the Chamberlain's Salve has done for me that I feel bound to write and tell you so," says Mrs Robert Mytton, 457 John St., Hamilton, Ontario. "My little daughter had a bad burn on her knee. I applied Chamberlain's Salve and it healed beautifully." This salve allays the pain of a burn almost instantly. It is for sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Saginaw.

The health of this community is not very good at present, as there are several cases of fever

Miss Gussie Bruce of Birmingham has been visiting Miss Amelia Dunlap.

Mr. Frank Davis and wife of Sumter have been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Westbrook.

Miss Alma Hale has returned home after a pleasant visit to her sister, Mr. Lula Davidson.

We are glad to say Miss Lula Frazier is improving after a long spell of fever.

Mrs. Byrd of East Lake and her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Devod, have been visiting Mrs. J. H. Aldridge.

The angel of death visited the home of Mrs. E. O. Essman and took away their sweet little babe.

Mr. Will Nelson is going to move to Blocton to make his future home.

We will ring off for this time, with best wishes to the Banner.

TWO FRIENDS.

Enterprise.

We had a visit from our esteemed County Superintendent of Education, Hon. J. W. Moore, who made us a stirring speech on education, the result of which with the help of others, we hope to have a nice school house soon. If any district needs a new school building, just get Prof. Moore to come down and open his vocabulary a few times and you will get a move on.

By the way, we have two very liberal Donors in H. B. Oliver and G. Silos, who gave $50.00 each.

Thanking the kind Editor for his trouble, we in it for good schools and nice houses.

L. N. HENDERSON.

DYSPEPSIA

Almost every other man and woman you meet is afflicted with this terrible disease in some stage until it acquires full strength and suddenly seizes them in the most violent form. Is your appetite fickle? Do you suffer with frequent headaches and dizziness, and dimmed eyes? Do you lack ambition and energy? Do you toss and tumble at night, unable to sleep?

These are all symptoms and forerunners of this disease. Act at once.

Commence the use of

Dr. Caldwell's
(Laxative)
Syrup Pepsin

which will instantly check the progress of the disease and ultimately eradicate all traces of it from your system.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN is the greatest preparation ever offered for dyspepsia.

It acts instantly, restoring every affected part to natural life and vigor.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN can be obtained in both dollar and half-dollar sizes at all druggists.

Your money will be refunded if it does not benefit you.

Your postal card request will bring by return mail "our new booklet, "DR. CALDWELL'S BOOK OF WONDERS" and free sample to those who have never tried this wonderful remedy. Do it now.

LETTER FROM TEXAS.

Pine Mills, Tex., July 9, 1907

As I haven't seen anything in your paper from Pine Mills in some time, I will come again.

It would be hard for me to describe the condition of the crops in Wood county, Texas, but I think it rather a gloomy prospect this time. Some corn crops look very well, while others are sorry. Cotton is very backward, but is growing very well now.

We had a very good rain yesterday and is raining some today.

There has been a great many people left east Texas and gone to west Texas and Oklahoma, where the lakes and creeks flow with milk and honey and the pancakes grow on vines and trees, but some have found that they were mistaken and have tucked their tails and came back.

I went to an old Harp convention the 5th Sunday and my mind ran back to my childhood days to hear those old songs and see those old gray headed men and women march up to the front. TEXAS FRIEND.

Highland School House.

Crops are looking fine, corn especially. Watermelons are scarce; some are beginning to sample their patches; I heard one of my friends say that some one had been sampling their patch.

Mr. A. J. Culp visited his father and mother last Sunday.

Miss Ida Nummy visited her grandmother last Sunday.

Editor Banner—Please give a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words. While reading the Banner week before last I read a piece from Unity telling that the Mr. Thompson would be married on Sunday the 14. I want to say to the people who read that piece, it is all a mistake about the wedding. I don't guess there had been such thoughts by anyone except R. T. and he had no right to say it. No, none whatever. I don't want to say to T. R. T. that it make any difference who you are, you have composed a story and had it advertised and no honorable person would have committed such a cowardly act. If you had only written your name in full I would not call you a coward and I will not don't write a piece in reply to it and write your name correctly. This will prove to everybody that your intention was to write a story and have it advertised. I heard that Mr. Thompson said he didn't care for himself for they didn't get his name right. My name didn't come exactly right, but I suppose it was a mistake in the printer. And as the people all knew who T. R. meant, and I do care about such things in regard to myself, especially when stories are composed and advertised about one, and I don't think there is anyone that can say they don't care unless they are the one who done the writing of that piece. I can't imagine what the people thought about Mr. Thompson, when they read the piece from Unity. Success to the Banner and its many readers.

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because OUR RECORD IS CLEAN, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then OUR POLICY is as liberal as is consistent with security; we are accommodating but prudent.

We ask your consideration.

PENTECOSTAL REVIVAL.

The sixth annual Pentecostal revival will begin at the holiness tabernacle, near the Dock Mims' place, three miles east of Clanton, Sunday, July 28th, at 10 o'clock and will continue ten days or more. The dear Lord has done great things for us in these meetings, and we are expecting greater things yet. The pastor, L. P. Adams, will be assisted by Rev. C. A. McKinney. All denominations are invited to attend. Let all of God's people pray much for a great outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the community and country around, and that there may be a mighty quickening among all of God's people, and saving of the lost.

Stanton

As we have not been heard from for some time we will give you the news of our town. Mr. Albert Dyer of Stanton is visiting friends in Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. George Osborn met with a sad accident while working at a trim saw, July 23. He was removed to Selma and operated on, but to avail, he passed away Sunday morning at two o'clock.

Mrs. W. C. Dyer is on the sick list at this writing.

It is reported there is to be a barbecue at Stanton on second Saturday in August. Everybody invited. The boys will play baseball morning and evening. They anticipate a good time.

Mr. Roy Fitts was awakened early last Monday morning. Some of the neighbors thought at first it might be fire, but it was only a big boy came to make their home more happier. With best wishes to the Banner I will close.

Ellen Terry says women are happier when they are younger than themselves. No doubt, it is the motherly instinct coming into play.

It is announced that the women of the future will select their own husbands. Undoubtedly, agrees the New York American. Women always have.

Judge Grosscup, of Chicago, told Brown University students that the welfare of the people is up wrapped up in corporations that the only thing to do is to see that they are conducted honestly.

Opponents of emigration from Italy claim that it is the young and vigorous who leave that land for this; that tradesmen and small farmers come as well as laborers; that only thirty-five per cent of the remaining adult males are strong and capable of work, the percentage being still lower south and east of Naples; that industry and agriculture suffer from the loss of labor.

The Israelites in Egypt struck because they were required to manufacture bricks without straw. From far away Saskatchewan, there comes to the Engineering News an inquiry for a machine to make bricks with straw and nothing else. In that wheat raising country there is literally straw to burn and nothing else to burn, and if the straw could be compressed into solid bricks, it would transform what is now a waste product into a valuable fuel.

Canada Beats Us.

The foreign trade of Canada, observes a writer in Harper's Weekly, has grown during the last ten years from $239,000,000 to $552,000,000, and is now two and a half times per head that of the great American Republic. The expansion of her home market is attested by the statistics of her economic prosperity. Last year her railroads, in which $1,289,000,000 are invested, carried 30,000,000 passengers and 102,000,000 tons of freight and earned $106,000,000 The paid-up capital of the banks in the Dominion is $83,000,000, and the sum of their assets is $767,000,000. In 1905 the revenue of the Dominion was $71,000,000 for 6,000,000 people; in 1855 the revenue of the United States was but $65,000,000 for 27,000,000 people. No better proof could be afforded of the immensely greater purchasing power of Canada to-day than was possessed by our republic half a century ago. In view of these facts, it is not strange that Canada should face the future with supreme confidence. It remains to add that the opening of the short route to Europe by way of Hudson Bay—a route which will be open for five months in the year, and will shorten the distance between Liverpool and the Western shippers of grain by about 2000 miles—is now definitely assured, no fewer than six railways to Port Churchill, the best of the Hudson Bay harbors, having been already chartered.

Petroleum in Italy.

Even the Italians, it is said, are not generally aware that important petroleum deposits have been discovered in their country, in the Apennines near Piacenza. The discovery was made about 1893, and four years ago a second syndicate of French capitalists was formed to develop the field. About ninety-five wells are now in operation, but seventy of them are already nearly exhausted, and new ones are being bored. The production in 1905 reached 18,200,000 pounds, and it is thought that for 1906 it will be about 22,000,000 pounds. The wells reach a maximum depth of 1300 feet, but engineers say that by deepening, those which have nearly ceased flowing may be made to yield again. An interesting feature in the working of these wells is the use of a central motor, which, by means of cables, pumps all the wells.

Concrete For Paving.

Concrete is now being employed for paving purposes. This material promises smoothness, cleanliness of surface and durability. A foundation of cinders to the depth of ten inches is first made and permitted to pack well for a week. Then the concrete curbing is made in the usual manner. Finally the concrete is mixed and thrown into place, considerably higher in the centre and sloping to either gutter. Immediately before the concrete hardens it is marked off with an instrument to resemble a pavement laid with brick. This method will insure a firm footing for draft horses in the winter.—Philadelphia Record.

Compunctions.

"Are you happier now that you own your own home?" asked the solicitous friend.

"Of course," answered Mr. Meekton, "there is a proud satisfaction in having my own place. But occasionally I can't help longing for the time when my wife kicked to the landlord for repairs instead of coming to me" —Washington Star

ALABAMA EVENTS FROM OVER THE STATE.

Interesting Items to Dwellers in the Commonwealth

A BRIEF WEEKLY SUMMARY

Baptist Convention Holds Forth at Dothan With a Good Attendance—To Meet at Roanoke Next Year—Reports on Schools Are Fine.

Reports from the denominational institutions made at the annual meeting of the State Baptist Convention have been very gratifying. Howard College, of Birmingham, reports an enrollment of 261 students, the raising of an endowment fund of $100,000, and sixty ministerial students. Judson Institute, the girls' school at Marion, reports an attendance of 212, with 100 excluded for want of room, and total value of property at $200,000. Fifty-six boys and a like number of girls are reported in the Orphans' Home at Summerfield. A new building has been erected. Good reports were had from the Healing Springs Institute and the Scottsboro school. The Newton school was taken over by the convention. The centennial committee reported favorably on the project of raising $100,000 next year. The Woman's Mission Board re-elected Mrs. L. F. Stratton, of Birmingham, president. It was decided to establish mission rooms in Birmingham, with a paid secretary. Mrs. D. M. Malone, of Birmingham, will be in charge. The weather has been hot, but the visitors have had a great time, nevertheless.

Odd Fellows at Cullman.

The trustees of the Odd Fellows' home met here Saturday and received deeds to the hundred an ten acres of land donated by Cullman to the home, and the guarantee of Parker & Co., bankers, that $5,000 cash will be paid to the treasurer of the board October 1. The site for the first building was selected, and the plans of Architect Shaw, of Meridian, Miss., were adopted. The first building will be a beautiful structure, costing in the neighborhood of $25,000. It is to be of pressed brick or reinforced concrete. Building Superintendent Woodrow, of the trustees, will be in to arrange for the preliminary excavations and foundation, preparatory to laying the cornerstone on Labor Day, September 2. It will be a great day for Cullman, and arrangements are already under way to give visitors the time of their lives. Thousands are expected to attend the beautiful and impressive ceremonies.

To be Discontinued.

It is officially announced in Tuscumbia that the Southern's branch passenger train operating between Tuscumbia, Sheffield and Florence, and known as the "Florence Branch," is to be abandoned or discontinued at an early date, the train having been operated at a financial loss ever since the electric line between the tri-cities was put into operation over three years ago. Following the discontinuance of the branch train by the Southern, the electric line will establish an all-night service between the three cities, providing a baggage car for the transportation of baggage, express and mail to and from Sheffield and Florence. The commercial clubs of Tuscumbia and Sheffield have adopted resolutions endorsing the contemplated new service, which have been forwarded to the general management of the Southern at Washington.

An Editor's Mother Falls.

Mrs. L. C. Bell, mother of Mrs. J. C. Lawrence, while walking across the floor Saturday afternoon, fell, dislocating her left shoulder and breaking her hip. A physician was hastily summoned, and all was done that could be, but she suffers intensely and her advanced age makes her friends feel apprehensive of the result. This happened at Union Springs.

St. Louis Men Buy Quinn Furnace.

Quinn furnace, at Gadsden, has been secured by prominent capitalists of St. Louis, who are preparing to immediately enlarge the capacity of the plant at Gadsden and make it the largest charcoal furnace in the south. It is believed that a 125-ton stack will replace the present one of fifty tons.

Don't Know What to Do With Them.

Jim Johnson, a youthful prisoner of 10, who was confined to the county jail Tuesday morning at Florence, is perplexing the authorities there, owing to the fact that the state makes no provision for such cases. A little negro at the same place broke into the store of R. N. Harris Sunday and stole a rifle, a box of cartridges and two pocket knives, selling the latter for ten cents each. The boy has been locked up for thieving.

Sand Mountain Full of Fever.

Reports from the towns on Sand Mountain state that the entire section has an epidemic of fever that is puzzling physicians and making heavy inroads on the citizens.

Thieves Busy at Huntsville.

The carnival of burglaries and petty thieving continues in Huntsville, in spite of the fact that several arrests of parties known to be implicated in some of the crimes have been made.

Big Returns.

Returning to the state from the convict department for the quarter ending [illegible] 30 a total of [illegible] was received, which was paid out as follows: For expenses, $[illegible]; for [illegible] farms of $[illegible]. For the three months last year the net returns were $[illegible] loss. The total number of convicts of all classes is 3,176. The state system the convicts in most cases by the piece, receiving, for instance, so much a ton for coal mined. The state cotton mill is also earning phenomenally. In spite of the heavy returns, the death rate is less than 3 per cent, and the convicts are kept better housed and fed than at any time in the history of the state.

Cook Inspects Cotton School.

State Secretary E. J. Cook, of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union, is in Auburn, inspecting, in company with members of the executive committee, the cotton grading school there. The committee will report the result of their visit to the state convention to be held at Andalusia on August 28, 29 and 30. The program for that meeting has not yet been arranged, but judging from the preliminary work of the executive committee, some interesting questions will be up for consideration.

Rifled Mail.

Postmaster Doud, of Sheffield, received a batch of letts addressed to various citizens of Sheffield, which had been broken into and ransacked by some one who expected to find money in them. The letters were a week old, and had apparently been left in the rain at some point on the Northern Alabama railroad. The mail was picked up by some one and forwarded to Sheffield. Postmaster Doud has reported the matter to the department at Washington, and a rigid investigation will probably be made.

High Italian Official Inspecting.

Count Gerolamo Morosini, commissioner of immigration, representing the royal Italian government, spent Friday in visiting various suburbs of Birmingham, investigating the conditions under which his countrymen live in this district. He went first to Ensley, where there are now about three thousand Italians, and later visited Thomas and other points in that vicinity. The Count was much gratified at the conditions found, and was especially pleased when numerous homes were pointed out to him as being owned by Italians.

Interurban System.

A movement is on foot for the formation of a company capitalized at $300,000 for the purpose of constructing an electric railway line from Mobile to Pascagoula, Miss. Martin Turnbull, of the Mississippi city, is the originator of the scheme, and he has succeeded in interesting Mobile capitalists in the project. From Frascati, to which place the car line from Mobile already extends, to Pascagoula is 38 miles.

Strawberry King of Alabama.

Casper Mages, of Cullman, can rightly be called the "Strawberry King" of Cullman county. On five acres of land Mr. Mages has raised and shipped over 600 crates of strawberries. The berries were sold from $1 to $1.25 per crate. His net proceeds were about $900 for his berry crop.

Alabama Coal.

The coal production of Alabama the present year ought to reach 15,000,000 tons, an increase of 2,000,000 tons over last year. The Tennessee and Pratt consolidated companies, the largest operators, have orders and use for every ton that can be mined and the Tennessee company has made contracts with smaller mines for their entire output. The mines are very busy, and the coke situation is good.

Bank Officers Are Elected.

At a meeting of the directors of the Bank of Sumter at Livingston, W. W. Patton was re-elected president for the ensuing year; H. L. Jones, cashier; John H. Pinson, of Preston Beat, was elected vice-president; he owns 15,000 acres of land in Sumter county. The bank is in a flourishing condition.

Disgrace Caused Suicide.

William Tate, of Birmingham, a young white man, who was charged with stealing a pistol and brooded over the disgrace, swallowed a bottle full of laudanum Wednesday night and died Friday morning.

Crushed to Death.

Edward B. Burkhalter, of Birmingham, a Frisco roundhouse engineer, was crushed between a wrecking car crane and a box car at Birmingham.

Killed In Leaping From an Auto.

Leaping from an automobile to escape a backing freight train on the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City track at Ann and Tennessee streets, Mobile, at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Dr. J. Buckner Killebrew, one of the most prominent physicians of Mobile, president of the Mobile Medical Society and professor in the medical college, was instantly killed, his body being ground to pieces beneath the wheels of the car.

TO INVESTIGATE THE POWDER TRUST.

Says it is in Violation of the Trust Law

TO BE TRIED IN SEPTEMBER

Claims That Twenty-four Corporations and Seventeen Individuals Are in League to Monopolize the Trade in Gunpowder.

Washington, D. C.—The government has filed in the United States circuit court for the district of Delaware at Wilmington, Del., a petition against E. I. Dupont De Nemours Powder Company (of New Jersey) and twenty-four other corporations and seventeen individuals connected with the twenty-six corporations which are made defendants in the petition.

The petition relates that all of the defendants are engaged in interstate trade and commerce in gunpowder and other high explosives and are violating the act of July 2, 1890, commonly known as the Sherman anti-trust law. It seeks to prevent and restrain the unlawful existing agreements, contracts, combinations and conspiracies in restraint of such trade and commerce, to prevent and restrain the attempts on the part of the defendants to monopolize such trade and commerce, and to dissolve the existing monopolies therein.

The court is asked to determine whether public interests will be better subserved by the appointment of receivers to take possession of the property of the alleged trust with a view of bringing about conditions in trade and commerce that will be in harmony with the law. The prayer in this respect is identical with that of the so-called tobacco trust petition.

RUN OUT OF TOWN.

Mine Union Organizer is Roughly Handled at Ely, Minn.

Ely, Minn.—Alfred Lundstrom, local organizer of the Western Federation of Miners, was run out of town by a number of local business men. Lundstrom has been making this city his headquarters for several days and had not been molested by the citizens, although they were not in sympathy with his work. Recently he went into a butcher shop and attempted to form an organization among the clerks. The proprietor thrashed him, and he was later arrested, but was allowed to leave town.

TORNADO AND CLOUDBURST.

Did Great Damage in Sections of Maury County.

Culleoka, Tenn.—The heavy electric storm of Tuesday night was accompanied by a tornado in the Scott community, where corn was laid low and 60 trees blown down or twisted off.

In the Silversvill section there was a real cloudburst. Corn was nearly destroyed and fields of newly-planted Irish potatoes wer washed away, leaving the farmers blue. A valuable mule was drowned in what is usually a small brook, the driver not thinking the water so high when he drove the team in. It was with difficulty that the other mule was saved.

WAR ON UNNECESSARY NOISES.

Society for Their Suppression Has Won Another Victory.

New York.—The recently organized Society for the Suppression of Unnecessary Noise has won another victory. Through Capt. Ira Harris, of the steamboat inspection service, it has secured a decision from the government regarding the whistling of steamers on the rivers and bay. Hereafter the whistling of tugs to attract the attention of the scow men in charge of tows which they expect to take up the blowing of private signals and the employment of siron others than fire boat is prohibited as unnecessary noises.

Another Giant Launched.

Portsmouth.—The battleship Bellerophon, another of the Dreadnought class, was launched by Princess Henry of Battenberg. The new warship has a tonnage of 18,900, which is 700 more than that of the Dreadnought.

Beer in Tablets.

London.—A Danish civil engineer says a consular report just issued here has succeeded in producing beer in the form of tablets. These are dissolved in hot water. When the beverage is cooled, it is a beer of excellent quality and flavor.

Purchase of Silver.

Washington, D. C.—The treasury department purchased 100,000 ounces of silver for delivery at New Orleans at 69.84 cents per fine ounce.

A Pet Kitten Caused Death.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Mrs. Etta George Mitchell, wife of a well-known Union county farmer living near Loyston, is dead from blood poison caused by a bite from a pet kitten.

Airship Fell in the Sea.

Madrid.—Captain Kindelan Y. Duant, a well-known Spanish aeronaut, made a balloon ascension. His airship was blown out to sea and fell in the water. He was rescued.

RAILROADS ISSUE PASSES.

Interstate Commerce Commission Will Take the Matter Up.

Washington, D. C.—Recently information was received by the interstate commerce commission that certain eastern and northwestern railroads were engaged in alleged violations of the rate law by issuing passes to persons not entitled to them under the law. In the case of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway system the information was specific, the allegation being that officials of that system were issuing passes to so-called "bondsmen."

An order, therefore, was promulgated by the commission requiring the officials of the system to answer the charges made and to state the ground on which such action is justified. On the receipt of the answer the commission will fix a time for a hearing, when the facts of the case may be developed.

HE WAS CRAZY.

Young Kentuckian Shoots Sisters and Brothers in France.

Versailles.—Grief and sorrow reign in the residence near Neptune Park of the stricken Huntington family, where Henry Huntington, son of Major Douglas St. George Huntington, shot down two sisters and two brothers at the moment the members of the family had gathered around the deathbed of their father. Major Huntington was breathing his last. The condition of Elizabeth and Alonzo is declared to be desperate, although not hopeless; the wounds inflicted upon Edith and Douglas Huntington are not grave. Mrs. Huntington, their mother, is completely prostrated from the shock and confined to her bed. A few blocks away Henry, who is regarded by his family and friends as demented, is in jail. He is dazed and confused and hardly realizes the terrible thing he has done.

France and Porto Rican Coffee.

Paris.—What has been characterized as the obstacle in the way of continuation of the negotiations between France and the United States in regard to the tariff has been removed for France has notified the United States that she has extended from August 1 to October 1, 1907, the decree providing for the collection of the minimum duty on coffee brought in by Porto Rico.

Armed Band Dispersed.

Havana.—General Rodriguez's command of the rural guards has reported to Governor Magoon that a detachment of the rural guards encountered an armed band near San Luis, in Santiago province, and exchanged shots. The band was dispersed and there were no casualties.

Train Wrecked; Victims Burn.

Benton Harbor, Mich.—A wreck on the Michigan branch of the Big Four railroad, near Eau Claire, 16 miles from this city, cost at least three lives and possibly more. The victims, whose bodies have been recovered from the wreckage, were burned to death before they could escape. They have not yet been identified.

Bathing in Alcohol, Burned.

Pasadena, Cal.—Mrs. Claude E. Marker, of this city, was burned to death in her home. She had taken an alcoholic bath before retiring and put a hot iron to her feet. The alcoholic fumes, accumulating under the bed clothes, became ignited, and the woman was dead before help reached her.

Aeronaut's Body Found.

St. Petersburg.—The body of one of the four officers who made an ascension in a military balloon from Tsarskoe-Selo last week, was found off How Land, in the Gulf of Finland, and 115 miles west of St. Petersburg. The fate of the remaining three officers is unknown, but it is believed they have perished.

Pig Iron Production.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The American Iron and Steel Association has received from the manufacturers complete statistics of the production of pig iron in the United States for the first half of the year of 1907. The production for the period mentioned was 13,478,044 tons, against 12,724,491 tons in the last half of 1906.

Imports From Germany.

SENATOR PETTUS HAS PASSED AWAY IN NORTH CAROLINA

After a Long Life, Full of Honors, Death Has Claimed Him

HE HAD JUST PASSED HIS 88TH MILESTONE

Few Thought That the End Was So Near When the Attack Came, But the End Came as a Shock to Friends and to Alabama, His Home.

Asheville, N. C.—United States Senator Edmond W. Pettus, of Alabama, died Saturday night at the home of Hot Springs, this state, from the effects of a stroke of apoplexy which he was seized in his bath. His entire body was paralyzed, but he never recovered consciousness.

Senator Pettus' daughter, Mrs. Fannie Pettus Jones, and his grandson, E. W. Pettus, Jr., were at Hot Springs an hour before the senator's death, but he did not recognize them. The attending physicians say that from the moment of the first paralytic stroke Senator Pettus was free from pain, and that he passed away peacefully.

Senator Pettus arrived at Hot Springs about a week ago from Selma, Tenn. Up to the time of the seizure he was apparently in the best of health. At the time, it is said, he was unusually cheerful, and when he was greeted by guests of the hotel thought that his merely a fainting spell. Physicians were summoned from Asheville for consultation with the local physicians, and it was seen that there was no hope for the senator's recovery.

Senator Pettus celebrated his 88th birthday at Tate Springs last summer, and on that occasion his address was the subject of comment.

The report of Senator Pettus' death follows quickly after the death of his colleague from Alabama, John T. Morgan. Both were notable figures in the old school of southern statesmen, much alike in temperament, appearance and political qualities.

Short Sketch of His Life.

Edmund Winston Pettus was born in Limestone county, Ala., July 6, 1821, being the youngest son of John Pettus and Alice T. Pettus, who was a daughter of Captain Joel Winston, a revolutionary soldier. Senator Pettus was educated in the common schools of Alabama and at Marion College, in Smith county, Miss. He studied law in the office of William Cooper, then the leading bar in North Alabama, and was admitted to the bar in 1843, commenced the practice of law at Danville as the partner of Hon. John Reavis. In 1844 he was elected solicitor for the Seventh circuit.

He served as a lieutenant in the Mexican war. In 1849 he resigned the office of solicitor and went with a party of his neighbors, on horseback, to California. He was elected judge of the Seventh circuit after his return to Alabama in 1855, but resigned the office in 1858 and went to Dallas county, where he resided at the time of his death. He resumed the practice of law as a member of the firm of Pettus, Pegues & Dawson.

After the war he returned to his home and to the practice of his profession, and since he became a voter he has been a member of the Democratic party. In November, 1896, he was nominated by his party and elected by the legislature of Alabama United States senator for the term commencing March 4, 1897. After his nomination there was no opposition to his election was merely nominal; he received the votes of his party and more.

He was unanimously re-elected to the United States senate in 1901, and again in 1907. His term of service would have expired in 1913.

Burial of Senator Pettus.

Washington.—According to present arrangements, the funeral of the late Senator Pettus of Alabama, who died at Hot Springs, N. C., will be held at Selma, Ala., Tuesday afternoon. The body will be taken aboard a special car on the Southern railway, leaving Hot Springs for Selma at noon Monday. The funeral party, consisting of representatives of both houses of congress and members of the senator's family, will arrive at Selma Tuesday morning, and the funeral services will occur at 3 o'clock the same afternoon.

Ptomaine Poisoning.

Mayfield, Ky.—Edward Parsons, B. C. and Merritt Rose, members of their families, 20 persons in all, are in a serious condition at Potterville, suffering from ptomaine poisoning as a result of ice cream containing the poison served at a dinner party at the home of Mrs. Seay Sunday. B. C. Rose, one of the persons ill, is one of the prominent attorneys of West Kentucky.

THE PULPIT.

A SUNDAY SERMON BY REV. [illegible]

The Measure of Duty.

[illegible], N. J.—Preaching at the Reformed Church, Jersey City, on the above theme, the Rev. [illegible] Masselon, pastor, took as his text: "We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which it was our duty to do," as his text. He said:

"The vocabulary of Christianity has one supreme word. Operating [illegible] becomes the supreme law. [illegible] it was supreme in the [illegible]. But outside the religion [illegible] duty is perhaps the controlling word. Upon duty the non-religious heart lays extreme emphasis. Duty, interpreted in terms [illegible] years ago could produce, [illegible] the ideal of life.

"In the very atmosphere is surcharged by an electric current, [illegible] importance of faithfulness to duty. That which is in the air of [illegible] made tangible continuously from the pulpit and from press, in [illegible] club and home. Ministers [illegible], leaders in business and [illegible], are pleading for the enforcement of duty in human hearts. [illegible] finding expression in [illegible] and investigations and laws, [illegible] and organized in the interest of [illegible] duty are being [illegible] at their true worth.

"Before the devotion to duty [illegible] rising nation of the East [illegible] characteristically found expression in the speech of the captain [illegible] Japanese battleship Asama, [illegible] to his men as they drank [illegible] from a cup of cold water, [illegible] each other a last good-bye: [illegible] you on the duty of block[illegible] harbor entrance of Port Arthur which affords you only [illegible] out of a thousand to return. I feel as if I were sending [illegible] sons. And if I had a hundred I would send them all on [illegible] hazardous adventure as this; and [illegible] only one son I should wish to [illegible] with him in performing [illegible] duty, if you happen to lose [illegible] hand, work with your right; [illegible] both hands, work with [illegible] if you lose both feet, work [illegible] head, and faithfully carry [illegible] orders of your commander. [illegible] all of you all is to do your [illegible] duties of your life. The cup [illegible] now offer you is not meant [illegible] you courage. It would be [illegible] if our most needed courage [illegible] the place of death. It is only [illegible] you representatives of the [illegible] the Asama. Submit your [illegible] will of Heaven, and calmly [illegible] your duty." That is the [illegible] of the spirit of the age, [illegible] in those nations that [illegible] the vanguard of progress. [illegible] emphasis upon duty.

"We realize what that spirit [illegible] if we had it beating in [illegible] blood of the Christian [illegible] would mean the purification [illegible] our ideals. It would mean [illegible] quickening of the Church of [illegible] work and worship. It would [illegible] the broadening of our vision [illegible] could see the brotherhood of [illegible] that loyalty to the duty of [illegible] which is characteristic of [illegible] citizens could be translated [illegible] terms of the moral and religious, [illegible] I mean that the message of [illegible], love, service and sacrifice, [illegible] find expression in every life. [illegible] result if Christians and the [illegible] church would do its bare [illegible]. But is it being done? Nominally this is a Christian country. [illegible] the deadly child labor in all [illegible] exists in this country. It [illegible] not exist if the united Christian [illegible] would say it shall not. Nominally a Christian country, and yet [illegible] of the stuff that kills men [illegible] physically, mentally and [illegible] that destroys domestic happiness and undermines the stability [illegible] nation, goes on. It could not [illegible] were it not sanctioned and protected by the sentiment and power of [illegible] people. But why the need [illegible] illustrations of that which [illegible] know? The conclusion, is [illegible] there are those who, though [illegible] true duty in home and in private life, when it comes to moral [illegible] affecting the welfare of humanity at large, are afflicted with [illegible] or indifference. Can it be [illegible] cup of cold water tasted by [illegible] pagan religion contains a [illegible] application to the performance [illegible] in the face of danger [illegible] from the sacred brotherhood [illegible] Christianity? They reached [illegible] to the cold water; then [illegible] unflinchingly, though it [illegible] hand, or foot, or life. So the [illegible] Christian from time to time [illegible] his lips to the wine of the [illegible] in pledge of his loyalty [illegible] and in memory of the [illegible] Master. So the majority [illegible] the inspiration that sets [illegible] unflinchingly toward duty [illegible] thought of what it may cost. [illegible] so many who flinch. These [illegible] solid phalanx of the Christ[illegible], and so put off the day of [illegible] over evil. Many to whom a [illegible] is dearer than a moral [illegible] more worth than a moral [illegible]. Many to whom their own [illegible] well-being counts for more [illegible] needy brother or sister. Many [illegible] gold is of greater value than [illegible] welfare of their fellowmen. [illegible] of the fact that so many [illegible] fail of doing their bare duty, [illegible] state the ideal of the Christian [illegible] nation, or will it be so lofty as [illegible] discourage us in our humble efforts? No! We will set before us [illegible] that which Jesus gave to life, [illegible] will be the means of inspiring [illegible] greater effort. Jesus asked [illegible] followers more than mere [illegible] as that is. If there had [illegible] been no Jesus, no Gospel, if Confucius, Socrates and Buddha were [illegible] content, their duty would have [illegible] the supreme word. But be[illegible] Jesus himself in His life took [illegible] final step beyond the point of [illegible] duty, it has become forever obligatory upon the followers of the man [illegible] Nazareth to take that final step in [illegible]. Jesus did it. He overstepped the bounds of naked duty. [illegible] a new standard. The story [illegible] precious life of love and sacrifice, the martyr's death upon the cruel Cross, for twenty centuries has touched the hidden depths of human hearts. Why? Because here took a step beyond duty.

"Jesus put His new standard of service in Christian life in the words of which our text is a part: Jesus causes the servants who had been faithful to every detail of their duty, to say: 'We are unprofitable servants, we have done that which was our duty to do.' Listen! Not profitable servants because they had done their whole duty, but unprofitable because they had done only their duty. What a transformation of values was that! No one ever heard such teaching before. The wise men of all ages and all races never said anything like that. They all taught that duty was the supreme thing. Nothing greater. A man was to be commended when he did his duty. But Jesus takes the final step into the realm beyond the point of duty, and bids us follow. We are unprofitable servants, for we have done only our duty. What does it mean? It means that a man is not a man unless he does his duty. It means that the very least a man can do and maintain his respect in the sight of God and his own conscience is to do his duty. That is, the least a person can do according to the teaching and life of Jesus: not the most, as the worldly pagan philosophers would have us believe—and some of the Christians also. For the fulfillment of the obligations of home and of life, of morality, of brotherhood, of religion and the church, no praise is deserved. These are duties. We are unprofitable servants if we have done only what we are compelled to do.

"Christian duty is not measured by demand, or opportunity, or even by ability. This is partially realized in the world of business. The young man who does only what is absolutely required of him, is not the one who succeeds and wins the employer's commendation. He who does more than his duty is the one who forges ahead. He never gets very far or becomes of great value to life who does only what passing opportunity permits him to do. But he who hustles to find opportunities, and if they are not forthcoming makes them, is the one who gives worth to life. It is even thus in religious life and work. We are unprofitable servants in the sight of God, if we have done only that which it was our duty to do, and have never tasted the depths of sacrifice. Sometimes we do not realize it; nevertheless it is true that not even ability limits duty. That seems strange. Is a man ever asked to do more than apparently he is able to do? Yes. Jesus did not limit duty by a poor mortal's ability. The power of the omnipotent God was the limit, and that power is illimitable. Does it seem impossible to break that habit, that sin, which has been undermining your moral constitution and throttling your spiritual life? You say you are not able to do it. The obligation to do it still exists. Does it seem impossible for the Christian church to conquer the evil in the world and bring the message of the Master to all mankind? Often we hear Christians say, 'It cannot be done.' But the obligation is still there.

"Christian duty is measured by human need. Wherever there is need of help; wherever there is need of reform; wherever in this harsh world there is need of sympathy and love; wherever strong hands are needed to lift sinning humanity from the depths; and brave hearts to carry the message of the Cross into darkness. There is the duty of the Christian church—at home or abroad, in public or in private life, it matters not.

"Fidelity to the Master means the taking of the step one point beyond the limit of the ordinary conception of duty—even to the point of sacrifice. William Carey took that step when he left his homeland and faced the terrors of India into which no white man had ever penetrated with the Gospel. According to no standard of conduct the world then recognized was it his duty thus to throw his life into jeopardy. Clara Barton took it, as she staunched the flowing blood upon the battle fields. John Paton took it, when he faced the cannibals of the South Sea Islands. According to what standard of conduct was it that hero's duty to remain among that beastly people after he had seen five of his fellow missionaries butchered and eaten; after he had, with his own hands, close by the corner of the house in the coral beds, dug the grave for his dear wife and little one, victims of the terrible fever, according to what standard of conduct was it his duty to stand alone among those heathen peoples? None that the world knew. Ah, but the noble man, so lately gone to his reward, was living by the standard of that one who bore the world's sin and sorrow, and whose loving heart was broken one gloomy night in Gethsemane—Jesus of Nazareth, who gave to life the new standard of conduct, the new conception of duty, rooted in love. Paton tells us in his wonderful auto-biography that it was God's strength alone made him sufficient for these things. In his own words, "But for Jesus and the fellowship He vouchsafed me there, I must have gone mad and died beside that lonely grave."

"Christian duty is made potent by the will of man, and by the power of God. The human will plus the Divine power makes it possible to take that step. Not, What I can, I will; but, What I will, I can. You remember when James and John were making their requests of the Master, Jesus inquired of them if they thought they could be baptized with the baptism of His life. They said, We can. Jesus said, Ye shall.

"Thus it is for Christians to say, when sin threatens in the personal life, when the work of the Master, for His church and for humanity, needs their help: Yea, Master, you can count on me. I will; I can.

"Face to face with the vision of the ideal of what we ought to be and do, if it is a noble person who says, I will, I can. To such a one shall be added the words of the Master, Ye shall. When we perceive what we ought to do, and make up our minds we will do it, the power for its accomplishment will come, even as it came to Israel by the Red Sea, and to the 5000 on Galilee's shore.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUG. 4 BY THE REV. J. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: The Tabernacle, Ex. 40:1-13, 34-38—Golden Text, Ex. 40:34—Memory Verses, 34-38—Commentary.

The tabernacle that Moses set up in the midst of the journeying people of Israel after the commands of Jehovah concretely and vividly expresses and exemplifies the conception of the relation between God and Israel that was dominant at the time. It may perhaps be difficult for many to become very acutely interested in the study of the fashion of the tent and its furnishings. But that will be largely because we fail to grasp the underlying and universal religious needs and experiences of which the structure in all its parts is an objective representation. The tabernacle represents in outward fashion the central and controlling religious fact of all the ages that God is in the midst of His people. It represents the outworking of subjective religious experiences into outward and material expressions. It symbolizes in its furnishings many lasting and precious spiritual truths. We shall be foolish if we do not learn spiritual lessons and perceive spiritual meanings and secure spiritual instruction and comfort as we study this Scripture. The ark, the vail, the incense, the burnt offering, the oil, the consecration of the priest, surely the mention of each should supply us with suggestive thought.

In verse 2 in the authorized version the Scripture is translated "tent of the congregation." The revised version properly translates these words "tent of the meeting." And the change is as suggestive as it is corrective. Here indeed in a word is given the reason for the tabernacle; here in a word is described the use to which it was to be put and was put by the chosen people of God. "Meeting." Here they met Jehovah in that peculiarly sacred manner that was a distinguishing feature of their religious expression. Here they met Jehovah in the holiest and most satisfying manner. Here they met God. It was indeed a place of meeting. A tent dedicated to meeting from time to time with God Himself. It was also the place where they gathered in the expression of their common religious longings and for the exercise in an especial manner of their spiritual inclinations.

Everything within and about the tabernacle was to be holy. All that went into the service of God was holy. And it was wise that such an emphasis should be laid. The Israelites had long been living in the midst of a people whose religion was not what it might have been. There was every danger as we have seen in previous lessons that they would get to have a shallow conception of religious truth and that they would place a light valuation upon those things that are religiously most essential to humanity. The tabernacle simply exemplified to them what should be the hallowedness of their own lives. It kept constantly before them the value and the beauty of holiness. It emphasized in no uncertain fashion that only that which was pure and undefiled was of highest use to God. It stood as a constant rebuke to personal or national uncleanness and unworthiness of mind or heart or soul. They met the hallowed altar of sacrifice as they approached the sacred precincts of the tabernacle. The sacrifice enforced the lesson of personal responsibility before God and the need for personal confession of sin as the primal requisite for entrance into the presence of God. As with the altar of sacrifice so with every other bit of material in and about the tabernacle. By a process of association all was exemplary.

We note also that the priest who was to officiate in the services of the temple was to be washed and anointed and sanctified. And that was a valuable regulation. The priesthood of the surrounding nations were not always men of the deepest spiritual experience or the most consecrated. Judging from the previous lessons Aaron needed the washing and the anointing and the sanctifying to make him properly appreciative of the high office to which in God's providence he had been called. A clean priesthood is as necessary to God as a clean people and a clean and holy temple.

It is also noticeable that as soon as God's commands were complied with Israel entered into a new experience of God. Verse 33 tells us that "Moses finished the work." Verse 34 relates that "then the cloud covered the tent of meeting and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle." Further comment is unnecessary.

All that the tabernacle was we ought to be ourselves. All that it symbolized we as living temples ought to exemplify. God should find in us the sacrifice of a clean heart and of a contrite spirit and should be able out of us to construct a temple holy to Himself. All that the tabernacle was Christ is to us. May God give us all the vision to see many precious and helpful truths in the lesson for the day. For in that which is usually considered pretty dry reading we may discover much that is helpful and instructive and suggestive. Under the guidance of the Spirit of God we may have unthought of beauties revealed to us.

Rest and Work.

While the Master says, "Come and rest," He is sure to also say, "Go and work."

West Point Course Extended.

The Board of Visitors to the Military Academy at West Point recommended the broadening and extension of the course, with post-graduate work, to make all-around educated men of army officers.

Greatest Treasury Surplus.

A Treasury surplus of nearly $87,000,000 in this fiscal year is the greatest Treasury surplus ever, and an increase of $63,000,000 in only one year.

A FINE TRADE WITH OUR ADOPTED ISLANDS

Porto Rica, Hawaii, Philippines and Alaska

ARE THE HUSTLING ONES

Total of $142,000,000 for Past Fiscal Year—Sugar, Gold, Coffee, Salmon, Tobacco and Hemp Are the Leading Imports.

Washington, D. C.—The commerce of the United States with its non-contiguous territories in the fiscal year 1907 amounted to $142,00,000, against less than $35,000,000 in 1897. The exports from the United States to those countries in 1907 amounted to $67,250,000, against $10,666,000 in 1897 and the imports from those territories practically $75,000,000, against $24,000,000 a decade earlier. These figures relate to merchandise only.

If to this total of $75,000,000 worth of imports from the non-contiguous territories were added to the gold produced in and brought from Alaska, amounting in 1907 to nearly $18,500,000, the total value of all products brought into the United States from its non-contiguous territories would aggregate $92,000,000.

Figures just completed by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor show that of the imports from Porto Rico, amounting to abut $22,000,000 in 1907, about $15,000,000 was the value of sugar, $5,000,000 tobacco, nearly $1,000,000 fruits and the remainder miscellaneous products, while in 1897 the value of sugar imported from Porto Rico was but $1,500,000.

From Hawaii the importations are almost exclusively sugar, which in 1907 amounted to nearly $28,000,000 out of the $29,000,000 worth of merchandise received into the United States from those islands, while in 1897 the value of sugar imported therefrom was $13,000,000.

From the Philippines the chief imports are hemp, which in 1907 amounted to about $11,000,000, and sugar which in 1907 amounted to less than a half million dollars, against $1,500,000 in 1896.

From Alaska the chief articles forming the $12,000,000 worth of merchandise received at ports of the United States are canned salmon, $8,500,000; other fish, $500,000, and furs a little more than a half million dollars, while of gold produced in Alaska the total receipts during the year just ended were over $18,000,000 value, or two and one-half times the cost of that territory.

Flames Terrify Coney Islanders.

New York.—Coney Island, the play ground of New York's millions, was visited by a disastrous fire and seven blocks in the amusement zone were completely destroyed. Tilyou's steeplechase park and and nearly a score of small hotels were wiped out, and for a time the flames threatened destruction of Luna Park and Dreamland. A shift o. the wind to the seaward aided the firemen and probably saved the whole area, but not until a million dollars' damage had been done. Three persons were injured, one of them, a fireman, probably fatally.

He is Able to Find Victims.

South McAlester, I. T.—J. J. McAlester, president of the American National Bank, of this city, was swindled into paying $10,000 cash for a worthless brick offered by a man representing himself to be a miner. It was taken to Muscogee, appraised at the government office and stated to contain 8 per cent of pure gold. When the deal was completed the McAlester bank was given the imitation, instead of the brick the appraiser had examined. The swindle was discovered a few hours after the transaction.

World's Wheat One-Third Short.

Washington, D. C.—That there will be little more than a two-thirds crop of wheat in the United States and that wheat will reach $1.25 per bushel this fall is the prediction of George C. Howe, of Duluth, Minn., one of the largest wheat growers of the great Northwest. Mr. Howe is in the east on business. He said: "In Minnesota the crop is probably two-thirds what it usually is, and the same conditions prevail in North and South Dakota. Kansas will this year make no more than 60,000,000 bushels."

Well Digger Killed.

Carrollton, Miss.—Manuel Stensbury, a laborer and well digger, was employed Thursday to clean a well. No sooner had he reached the bottom of the well than he was overcome by poisonous gases. He signaled to be drawn up, when, lifted only a few feet from the bottom became unconscious and fell from the rope.

The most confident wooer in New York was arraigned in Jefferson Market police court, New York. Charles Shley is charged with the larceny of a diamond ring from his sweetheart, Ethel Boyce, a cloak model.

Grief over the terrible death of Lieut. Casper R. Goodrich in the aft turret of the battleship Georgia is accepted as the cause of the suicide of Miss Laura D. Ronaldson, of New York, a talented and wealthy young woman.

$600,000 LOSS IN MEMPHIS.

Joseph Hilley, Fireman, Killed—Two of His Comrades Injured.

Memphis, Tenn.—In an early morning fire here Monday, originating on the eleventh floor of the Memphis Cold Storage Company's building which was in course of erection, one fireman lost his life and two others were seriously injured. The fire was gotten under control shortly before 5 o'clock Monday morning.

The Oliver Piano Grocery Company, seven stories in height; Behr-Cole Grocery Company, Memphis Paper Company and the Memphis Cold Storage Plant, all located on South Front street, were also destroyed.

Chism Bros., wholesale grocers, the Greentree House, a small hotel, and an unoccupied building were damaged by fire and water.

The total loss will approximate about $600,000, with an insurance of probably one-half or three-fourths of that amount.

A TENEMENT BURNED

And Eighteen People Dead and Thirty Are Seriously Hurt.

New York.—Eighteen bodies, most of them charred and mutilated beyond recognition, already have been carried from the ruins of the six-story tenement which burned in the early hours of Monday morning. It is feared that other bodies are in the ruins, and firemen are continuing their search. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

Scores of persons were burned and injured, thirty of them seriously, many of whom will die. Most of the dead, as well as the injured, were women, who, trapped in the furnace which the building quickly became, were panic stricken and rushed blindly about until the flames reached them.

NEW WAGE SCALE.

Railway Brotherhood Will Present Claims to Railroads.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The general chairman of the joint protective boards of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers held a meeting here for the purpose of considering a new wage scale and working hours for 64,000 men employed on all trunk lines east of Chicago.

By Wednesday the new scale will be formulated and presented to the railroads. Last April a similar schedule was presented to the thirty-one trunk lines west of Chicago and accepted.

COWARDICE AMONG THE MEN.

Their Wild Efforts to Save Themselves Impede Heroic Crew.

Auburn, N. Y.—The steamboat Frontenac was burned and beached opposite Farley's Point at Lake Cayuga Saturday, and nine lives were lost. The victims were all women and children passengers, and all were drowned. Several other passengers were severely burned before the boat could be backed. She now lies, burned and blackened, in seven feet of water.

The bodies of the drowned women and children have been recovered, and the injured are being cared for at the homes of persons near the scene of the wrecked steamer.

August Dividends About $75,000,000.

New York.—It is figured that the disbursements and interest payments to be made on and around August 1 will aggregate $75,000,000. The aggregated coppers dividend, calling for $3,077,760, is one of the largest items. Illinois Central dividend calls for $3,325,000, and the United States Steel Corpdration dividend to be paid out at the end of the month calls for $6,305,496.

Girls Defend Graves of Ancestors.

Kansas City, Mo.—Helena, Ida and Lida Conley, sisters, and Wyandotte Indians, began an armed guard over the graves of their ancestors in Huron cemetery, in Kansas City, Kan., recently ordered sold by the government, and threatened to shoot the first person who may attempt to remove the bodies.

Spectacular Fire at Long Beach.

New York.—Two persons severely injured, many thrilling escapes, 600 sleeping guests routed from their rooms, the Long Beach Hotel, two cottages, a church and railroad station, Casino and grand stand completely destroyed were the results Monday of a spectacular fire at Long Beach, L. [illegible].

Irish Spinners on Strike.

Belfast, Ireland.—Many spinning mills have been shut down, and 4,000 operatives were thrown out of work because of the strike of other craftsmen. It is impossible to obtain coal. The apathy of the police is the most serious feature of the strike.

The quick, fearless action of Philip Bennett, son of Representative Bennett, of Alabama, who captured the murderer if a young woman in a cafe on Unter den Linden, Berlin, may cause him a great deal of inconvenience. Unless the city authorities set aside the usual formalities Bennett will be compelled to stay longer in Berlin that he intended as he was a witness to the crime.

The Legislature

The senate at the morning session passed the bill appointing the [illegible] commission. This bill passed without any word of discussion. The public was of the mind. A [illegible] is regarding had been made, and it was accepted.

Adjourned until Friday.

House—Wednesday.

What is considered by many of the members of the House to be one of the best piece of legislation that has been introduced for their consideration was placed on its third reading and was introduced by Mr. Ingram. The provisions of the bill, it is believed, will do much to stop, if it doesn't altogether do away with the practice of carrying fire-arms. It is particularly aimed at disarming the negro. It makes it a misdemeanor to carry at any time and in any manner a pistol, gun or air rifle that is less than 24 inches long, and it provides as a penalty for violating the law a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $600, and an offender may be sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor.

A bill was passed that has for its object the prevention of gambling in any place, not excepting a man's home. The House also amended the bill that gave to corporations the right of eminent domain to the extent that it could tear down a man's house, the amendment eliminating this feature of the bill.

Mr. John offered an amendment which was a substitute, providing for the governor to appoint nine people who have studied educational methods, one from each congressional district, who, with himself and the superintendent of education, should constitute a text-book commission, to be appointed by March 1st next.

With but one change, the bill providing that saloons in the state shall be closed early in the evening went through the House, practically without opposition. It has already passed the senate, and now only awaits the governor's signature to become a law.

Adjourned until Friday.

Senate—Friday.

One of the most sensational debates of the 1907 session of the legislature, in which many personalities were indulged in and the Bible quoted frequently concerning passes, took place in the senate Friday night before the final test of strength was made and sheriffs and their deputies were allowed to ride upon railroad passes.

The senate then adjourned until Monday.

House—Friday.

The House passed a bill making it compulsory to have the local laws published in a daily or weekly paper once a week for three consecutive weeks. The rate is fixed in the bill at 1 1-2 cents per word for the first insertion and 1 cent a word for the two subsequent insertions. There was some misunderstanding about the bill, and Speaker Carmichael explained that it was prepared by the secretary of the state, and he thought it a good one.

The bill of Mr. Haley to appropriate $1,500 for the purpose of furnishing and equipping the office of mine inspectors of this state with necessary and suitable furniture, apparatus, machines and all other necessary instruments, was passed.

Mr. John offered an amendment which provided that sheriffs receiving $10,000 or over in fees should not have any ex-officio fees. This amendment was satisfactory to friends of the measure. The amendment does not affect the present sheriff of Jefferson county, but will take away the ex officio fees of the next sheriff if his fee is over $10,0[illegible].

The House adjourned until Monday.

Tuesday—Senate.

The capitol improvement bill was taken from the adverse calendar of the senate by a short and decisive parliamentary engagement. The bill, which was thought to be dead by some, is very much alive and has a flattering prospect of passage.

The new code passed swiftly through the senate. But three shots were fired at it—all of them in vain.

Tuesday—House.

While the house was adopting the municipal code and making more than about it, too, the senate was engaged in passing upon the state code. When it had been formally adopted each when the house finished its own afternoon job, the two biggest tasks of the July session had been accomplished with but slight trouble. The main work had been done and the lawmakers could see the beginning of the end.

The child labor bill passed the house in a substitute bill offered by Mr. [illegible] John—yeas 66, nays 2. The bill was then read the third time and passed—73 to 2, and was ordered engrossed.

Two weeks ago a man who gave his name as W. L. Turner came from a small town in Alabama and married a daughter of Cliff Turner, a prominent farmer on the Coosa river, 11 miles from Rome. Mrs. Turner discovered that her husband's real name is John C. Turner, and, believing that he has another wife living, swore out a warrant charging her husband with marrying her under an assumed name, which is a misdemeanor under the laws of Georgia.

DEATH OF SENATOR PETTUS.

The death of Senator Edmund Winston Pettus occurred at Ashville, N C. last Saturday night, from a stroke of apoplexy which seized him at the breakfast table. From his advanced age it was not altogether unexpected, though coming so soon after the demise of the late John T. Morgan it comes as a shock to the people of Alabama. He was buried at Selma, Tuesday, all the people mourning at his loss.

Gov. Joseph F. Johnston will be elected to fill the vacancy in the Senate.

Edmund Winston Pettus was born in Limestone county, Alabama July 6th, 1821; is the youngest child of John Pettus and Alice Taylor, daughter of Capt. Anthony Winston, of Virginia, a revolutionary soldier; was educated at common schools in Alabama and at Clinton college, in Smith county, Tennessee; studied law in the office of William Cooper, then the leader of the bar in North Alabama; was admitted to the bar in 1842 and commenced the practice of law at Gainsville, Ala., as the partner of Turner Reavis; in 1844 was elected solicitor for the seventh circuit; served as a Lieutenant in the Mexican war; and in 1849 resigned the office of solicitor and went with a party of his neighbors, on horseback to California; was elected Judge of the seventh circuit after his return to Alabama in 1855, but resigned the office in 1858 and removed to Dallas county, which was afterwards his home; resumed the practice of law as a member of the firm of Pettus, Pegues & Dawson; in 1861 went into the Confederate army as major of the 20th Alabama infantry, and soon afterwards was made lieutenant colonel of that regiment; was made a brigadier general of infantry, September 18, 1863, and served till the close of the war and was in many battles—Montgomery Advertiser.

The Spigener and Clanton ball teams played a game of ball Wednesday afternoon which resulted as a victory for the home team—18 to 3.

Mrs. Augusta Holt, wife of Mr. A. C. Holt, who for many years was a resident of Clanton, died at Muscadine, Ga., on Wednesday. Her remains were brought to Clanton for interment and will be buried here to-day (Thursday.)

Judge Reynolds, wife and family, and Miss Eva Williams went out to Higgins Ferry, Tuesday, on a fishing expedition, and will remain there until the end of the week.

Mr. Heath Jones has returned from a visit to his home at Mulberry.

Before R. O. Glover, Justice of the Peace for said County

Ordered by said Justice of the Peace, this the 26th day of July, 1907, on the plaintiff in the above entitled cause, and it appearing that due and proper diligence has been used to ascertain if the said defendants had been levied upon, to wit: ab at eleven thousand (11,000) feet of sawed lumber, to wit: 2x1 -12; 2x6-16; 2x8 -12, by virtue of an attachment issued from my office, returnable on the 26th day of August, 1907, which said property was levied upon by the Sheriff of said County and is now in possession of said Sheriff and it appearing that said defendants are non residents of this State it is, therefore ordered that the notice of said attachment and the return thereof be given to said defendants by publication in some newspaper for three consecutive weeks in The Banner, a newspaper published in said county, and a copy thereof be mailed to the said defendants at their place of residence.

Given under my hand this, the 26th day of July, 1907. R. O. GLOVER, Justice of the Peace.

Pleasant Grove.

It has been said that it is in the Bible that before the end of time you could not tell summer from winter only by the falling of the leaves. Now the writer has failed to find it. I think our grandfathers quoted such scriptures and it has been handed down to this generation. If any of the Bible readers know where such scriptures can be found let us know through the Banner. It don't make any difference with me when that day comes. I am only worrying over the shape I am going to be in when it comes.

I want to say to the good people of Pleasant Grove community, that the good book says that the graves shall give up their dead. Now, I think it would be a shame and a disgrace for the graves in our cemetery to give up their dead in the shape it is in. Now, if we allow our cemetery to grow up in briers and bushes, our children will do likewise. Now, Show how much respect you have got for the dead, by meeting Big Ike at Pleasant Grove on Friday before the second Sunday in August. Bring hoes and axes and a good will.

Recent events

at Richmond have centered attention on the surviving Confederate veterans. As the years go by, their ranks are thinning. According to the best available figures, the number of separate enlistments in the Confederate army was from 1,239,000 to 1,400,000. But many of these were reenlistments, and the terms of service were varied. Reduced to enlistments of a three-years' term of service, the estimated number is 1,082,119. There is a lack of data upon which to base any trustworthy estimate of the number of survivors.

The principal association of the surviving soldiers is the United Confederate Veterans, organized at New Orleans on June 10, 1889. This body is divided into the army of North Virginia Department, the Army of Tennessee Department and the Trans-Mississippi Department, each under a department commander. State organizations are authorized, and are called divisions. The number of separate camps is about 1,600, and the number of members about 75,000. There were 1,259 camps represented at the Richmond reunion. Permanent headquarters of the association are at New Orleans, La.—From "The South's Care for Her Confederate Vetrans," by William A. Glasson, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for July.

never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all babys who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. Clanton, Ala., July 29, 1907

I have refrained from expressing my political views from the public for several reasons, but as the saying is "There is a time to speak and a time to keep silent." I now believe that the time has come for the good people of Chilton county to more thoroughly understand each other, an allign themselves against principles that are contrary to our idea of right, as well as being opposed to the future prosperity of the people of this beautiful southland.

I notice a call in the Union for a mass meeting of all persons opposed to the democratic ring in Chilton county. This call was issued for the purpose of bringing the honest populists who have heretofore been reluctuant in alligning with the republicans because they knew the republican party was foreign to the principles of Jeffersonian democracy, and as the republicans fought the "Ring Rules" so bitterly they could not come into the democratic party because they believed unprincipled politicians. But during all this time they could see but little difference between what the republicans called (and which never existed) the skeleton in the closet of the democratic party and material things in the republican party.

My father stuck to the populist party until its leader went back on the principles that were so dear to those who to-day waver and halt between two opinions, as it were, and now the time has come for action.

Good people, will you go into a party whose principles are different from your own, or will you lay aside this petty difference that today lies between you and your principles, and help the good people that are in the democratic party to pusify politics.

You left the democratic party because you saw corruption in it, but the most prejudice among you to-day cannot help seeing that there are leaders in the party, who wish to banish wrong from it, and that they have, to a great extent, succeeded.

I entreat the populists of Chilton county to read the Editorial of Thos. E. Watson, the great leader of the populists, in which he says he is a democrat.

Now, just a few words about Mr. Middleton and his tour to the North. Why did Mr. Middleton go on his tour? Some say it was because he wanted to do just what the Post said he did, others think it was for what little office the President might see fit to give him, still others think it was to make himself more popular, but suffice it to say that would have made him much more popular and useful to have staid with the good people who elected him, and have gone among them making educational speeches, and using every means of raising these people, who the papers say he said were so base, and thus reap the gratitude of the people who once had implicit confidence in him. May God open our eyes, may we be allowed to see who are our enemys and who are our friends. Respectfully.

HOWARD ROPER

"We never repent of eating too little." was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to everyone without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temprature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol For Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

SPLENDID GIFT BY THOS. F. RYAN

Millionaire Aids Confederate Monument Fund

GIFT AMOUNTS TO $10,000

Through This Generosity the Building Committee Will Soon Begin Work Upon the Magnificent Tribute to Southern Heroes.

Washington.—Col. Hilary Herbert of Alabama, formerly secretary of the navy, has been notified by Thomas F. Ryan, the New York multi-millionaire, that he can put him down for a subscription of $10,000 towards the fund being raised for the erection of a monument to the Confederate dead in the National cemetery at Arlington. Colonel Herbert is the chairman of the sub-committee on finance of the Southern Memorial Association. Mr Ryan in his letter praises the monument idea.

Through Mr. Ryan's gift the fund has been augmented to large proportions, and the monument will probably be erected at an earlier date than was expected. If the plans of the committee are not changed by some unforeseen contingency, the shaft will be built before the end of the present year.

The monument, which will be built in the center of the plot set aside by congress for the burial of the Confederate soldiers who died during the civil war, will be costly and imposing. The design has not yet been approved, but the committee is deliberating over this phase of the project, and soon will make a selection. The fund of more than $50,000 previously collected is being gradually increased by subscriptions from persons in different parts of the United States. The monument movement has struck a responsive chord in the South, and the Confederate organizations will probably make large subscriptions.

VISIBLE AT SEA.

Volcanic Eruption on Island of Tongatabu.

Sydney, N. S.—Reports dated July 5th have been received from the Tonga Islands, saying that seven columns of volcanic eruption have been visible at sea for the past fortnight from the Island of Tongatabu, within an area of two miles. The eruption has been accompanied by a continuous roaring noise and frequent explosions. Black pumice stones in large quantities were thrown for a distance of thirty miles.

The Tonga Government Gazette states that land is forming around the scene of the eruption, and it is believed that a new island is in process of formation.

YOUNG WOMAN IN TROUBLE.

She Is Found in a Crazed Condition on a Street of Chicago.

Chicago.—The police found at the corner of State and Van Buren streets a young woman stylishly dressed, who appeared to be dazed and who could not answer any questions. She was taken to the county hospital, where she revived. She gave her name as Dolly Holt, and said that her home was in Memphis, Tenn. She declared that she had no recollection of coming to Chicago, and could remember nothing since last Wednesday night, when she was at her home in Memphis.

The young woman was unable to give her father's first name or his initials, but said that her home was in Memphis and at 1058 Murray avenue.

Japs to Disarm Korean Army.

Seoul.—More than 7,000 troops will arrive at Fusan to accomplish the disarming of the Korean army, as well as the separation of the ex-emperor from his advisers. Arrangements have been made with the railway authorities to transfer 4,000 blue jackets from the squadron at Chemulpo, which the admiralty has offered Marquis Ito.

Henry H. Rogers Ill,

New York.—It has leaked out that Henry H. Rogers was taken seriously ill at his desk on Monday, and has been since that time under the care of physicians at his country home in Fair Haven. He is reported to be improving.

Skull Crushed.

Memphis, Tenn.—Wallie G. H. Wilford, acting superior of the Illinois Central railroad, was standing on the rear platform of a fast train near Melrose, Tipton county, he lost his balance and fell to the ground, striking on his head. His skull was fractured, and he lay where he fell until discovered by the engineer of another train. He was taken to Covington, but died soon after reaching there. He was 40 years old and married.

Woman Falls Dead.

Columbus, Ga.—Julia Edwards, a negro woman aged 42, dropped dead in the recorder's court while making a statement in defense of the charge of disorderly conduct.

Elephant Frightened Woman to Death.

Bethel, Me.—Mrs. Fannie Mercier is dead as the result of heart disease brought on by sudden fright when the huge head of an elephant loomed up during a flash of lightning under a covered bridge.

HAYWOOD IS FREE MAN.

Boise, Idaho, July 28.—William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, today was made a free man. The jury in his case returned a verdict of not guilty at 9 o'clock this morning, after deliberating 21 hours. The jury stood deadlocked at 10 to 2 most of the night, and ballots were taken after the jury retired. One ballot was 5 for not guilty, 6 for murder and 1 undecided. Then the undecided man went over to the majority, making it 9 to 3. One by one the members of the minority were won over until just after daylight this morning the unanimous agreement was reached.

FINE ADDRESS BY BARRETT.

Delivered Before the South Carolina Farmers' Union.

Greenwood, S. C.—The state convention of the Farmers' Union of South Carolina was called to order at 10 o'clock Friday morning by O. P. Goodwin, state president.

Mayor Baker, of Greenwood, delivered the address of welcome. The morning session was occupied in routine work and the appointment of committees. The credentials committee completed its report, and the real business of the convention was taken up at once. Warehouses, fertilizers and the immigration question have received due consideration. The principal feature of the afternoon session was the magnificent address of Chas. S. Barrett, of Georgia, national president of the union. The address was well received and frequently interrupted by applause. G. M. Davis, of Georgia, made a brief speech this night.

BOY IS STONED TO DEATH.

A Horrible Tragedy Results From Quarreling.

Harlan, Ky.—Stoned to death, as if punished by the mode of execution hundreds of years ago is the horrible fate that befell Joseph Turner, aged 11 years, son of Justice Samuel Turner, of Williams Creek, this county.

The lad, with a number of his companions, was swimming in Cumberland river, and they began throwing sand at one another. They became angry, and changed from sand to stones. A crowd of boys, led by Thomas Simpson, aged 13, picked out young Turner and began stoning him, until he was mashed almost literally to pieces. He was carried home barely breathing, and died. Most intense excitement followed. It is understood that a number of men witnessed the condition of the lad, but failed to stop the fight. Arrests and lynchings are likely to follow.

Wife Pushed Him Off.

Chicago.—Frank S. Webb, a contractor, 63 years of age, died in the hospital from injuries received in falling off the porch at his home at 1828 Indiana avenue. His wife told the police that during a dispute between them Webb struck her over the head with an umbrella, and was trying to strike her a second time when he lost his balance and fell. At the inquest William Lorie, a contractor living opposite the Webb residence, testified that he saw Mrs. Webb push her husband over the railing of the porch. Other witnesses made the same statement.

Execution of Woman Assassin.

Moscow, Russia.—With the observance of the greatest privacy, Madame Fromkina, who in March last attempted to assassinate General Kleinbot, the ex-prefect of police, and who in May made an attempt to murder the inspector of the political prison here, wounding him with a pistol which had been mysteriously smuggled into her cell, was hanged in this city. The authorities made every effort during the last fortnight to persuade the woman to plead for the mercy of the emperor, but she absolutely refused to do.

Girl Set Clothes Afire.

Meriden, Conn.—Annie Stefanek, aged 13, is accused of deliberately setting fire to the clothes of Stanislaws Bolosky, aged 3 years, because she was weary of taking care of the child, as was her duty. The baby, after suffering agony from burns, died in the hospital at New Britain. Annie is in jail there.

Bengal Peasants to Revolt.

London.—The concern felt in official and commercial circles over the critical situation in the disaffected districts of Bengal is reflected by increasing uneasiness in mercantile circles. Assaults upon Europeans in many districts of Bengal are growing more frequent. Recently 15 assaults occurred on the Assam-Bengal railway. One guard had his skull fractured, and another had his eyes destroyed.

At Harrodsburg, Ky., Lafe Phillips shot and killed his wife, Sallie, mortally wounded his sister-in-law, Mrs. Powell Watkins, and slightly wounded Thomas Sallee.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE TO MOLLIFY THE SOUTH

Grade Revisions Proposed Five Times a Year.

SOUTHERN ADVICE WANTED

New York Exchange Proposes Before Revising Grades to Obtain Quotations on the Various Grades From Southern Cotton Exchanges.

New York.—A proposition to have the revisions of grades of cotton made five times a year instead of twice as is done at present, and to consult the cotton exchanges throughout the south each time, was circulated by members of the New York cotton exchange. This move is undertaken with a view of satisfying some of the critics of the exchanges in the south who have complained about the manner of revising the grades of cotton of the New York exchange.

It is proposed that during the week preceding each of the five annual sessions of the committee it shall obtain quotations on the various grades of cotton from the superintendents of the cotton exchanges in Galveston, New Orleans, Savannah, Norfolk, Memphis, Houston, Little Rock, Waco, Montgomery, Augusta and Shreveport. It is also proposed that the committee shall receive a report on spot quotations and suggestions from any members of the exchange as to the revision of them. The report of the committee is to be made public on the day following the adoption by the revision committee.

To Kill Mosquitoes.

Naples.—Mosquito-killing fish were brought here by the steamer Kleist, just arrived from Sydney, N. S. W., and will be used to wipe out the pest. Count Morner, Swiss consul at Sydney, is the discoverer of a method of exterminating mosquitoes said to be sure. After a long search he found that the fish known as Pseudomugie or Blunye surpasses any other species in the destruction of mosquito larvae. The fish feed greedily on the larvae. The Italian government hearing of the discovery sent a representative to Sydney and several million fish were congested. These will be placed in the marshes.

Elephants Through the Roof.

Muskegon, Mich.—The first section of the Hagenbeck & Wallace circus met with an accident at Twin Lake, twelve miles west of here, on the Pere Marquette railroad. Circus men say that the elephant cars were top heavy and in rounding a curve they toppled over and left the track, piling up six cars. The elephants went through the roof of the cars and trumpeting wildly rushed for the woods. Two camels and four valuable horses were killed and several horses injured. Keepers have captured the elephants.

Maged Six Children.

Copenhagen.—Grief stricken by a notification that her services would not be required after the end of this month, Mrs. Nielsen, a housekeeper for a land owner named Ulikjaer, of Jutland, hanged three of her employer's children, as well as three of her own, and then killed herself by hanging.

Bond Sale a Fiasco.

London.—The South Manchurian railway loan of 4,000,000 pounds issue price 87, interest 5 per cent bonds, payable in twenty-five years in gold by the Japanese government, has proved a fiasco. It is officially admitted that the underwriters are saddled with about one-half of the total of the loan.

Mark Twain Back Home.

New York.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) arrived from London on the steamer Minnetonka. He presided at a concert on board ship, at which resolutions were adopted congratulating Captain Leyland for his handling of the steamer so as to minimize a collision with a bark soon after beginning the voyage.

It Was in North Dakota.

Williston, N. D.—A terrific wind hail and rain storm injured twenty-five persons, two of them probably fatally, and destroyed fifteen dwelling houses. Mrs. Collington and her baby boy were blown out of their house for a distance of about 100 yards, landing against a wire fence. Their house was entirely destroyed.

Injured in Collapsed Building.

New York.—A brick building, one of a row of six-story structures that are being torn down, collapsed, burying twenty workmen. Two men were seriously injured, the others escaping with cuts and bruises.

The Engineer Forgot.

Petersburg, Va.—A head-on collision occurred a short distance north of Stony Creek, Va., between Atlantic Coast Line train No. 85, the Florida special, and the second section of No 80, bounthbound. Both engines were badly damaged. Engineer Bradshaw on No. 85, assumes the blame, saying he forgot his orders. Hardy Dorsey, the fireman, was killed and a number of passengers slightly injured.

MARRIED TOO SOON.

Judge of Chancery Court Annuls Marriage.

Dresden, Texas.—After granting a divorce to Mrs. Bettie Hargrove from Walter Hargrove, Judge Jones, sitting in chancery court here, has annulled the woman's marriage to D. C. Shackett and fined the latter $25 for contempt of court.

Having secured her divorce, Mrs. Hargrove and Shackett were married without loss of time. Judge Jones hearing of the affair summoned the couple into court. Mrs. Shackett admitted that Shackett had employed an attorney for her and paid all the expenses for securing the divorce, and further that they had agreed to be married as soon as the divorce could be obtained.

Thereupon Judge Jones annulled the divorce granted and gave Mrs. Hargrove a divorce only from bed and board, which does not permit of a remarriage, and necessarily annuls the marriage with Shackett.

In addition Shackett was fined.

WOULD REFORM WITH A GUN.

Alaska Man Offers to Clean Up Chicago in Ten Days.

Chicago, Ill.—Fred M. Mills, who is a handy man with a gun, and whose residence is the Golden Gate Hotel, Nome, Alaska, has applied to Mayor Busse for a position. He wishes to clean out, a l aNome, the criminals of Chicago. He offers to "bring them all in, in one form or another," in ten days, and his letter assures the mayor that it is "no josh."

All he asks by way of compensation is a job in the detective department after he has made police work in Chicago an easy task, and after the last of the criminals is in the morgue or is hitting the trail for places where Mr. Mills is not. In his letter he says:

"After reading articles about Chicago being unable to cope with the criminal classes, I humbly offer my services and will guarantee I will bring them in, in one form or another, in ten days. If services are deemed worth keeping, I would apply for a position in your detective department. This is no josh or idle word of a dreamer. If you want a man who can shoot, and can shoot straight, I'm your man."

NOT SUITED TO JAPS.

Mexico's Climate Does Not Agree With Japanese Immigrants.

Mexico City.—According to a report submitted to Japanese Minister Arakama by the second secretary of the legation, the stream of Japanese immigration, which has been pouring into this republic by thousands during the past two years has considerably subsided.

This is a result of an investigation showing that they are unsuited for the hard work in Mexico and that the climate in certain parts of the republic is too rigorous for them. Of the thousands of Japanese who have entered Mexico in the past year only a comparatively few remain.

123 Girls Mormon Converts.

Boston, Mass.—By the steamship Republic from Liverpool there came 123 girls, converts to the Mormon faith, under the close guard of a dozen elders who had converted them in various parts of Northern Europe, and who hurried them off to Salt Lake as soon as the immigration officials passed them. They were bright and intelligent, but were not allowed to talk.

HAYWOOD NOT GUILTY OF STEUNENBERG MURDER

Judge's Instructions and Disbelief in Orchard Caused Verdict.

JURY WAS OUT 21 HOURS

Orchard Says He Is Satisfied to Meet the Punishment For His Crimes —To Call Pettibone Next—Trial in October.

Boise, Idaho.—Into the bright and light of a beautiful Sunday morning William D. Haywood, secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, walked a free man, acquitted of the murder of former Governor Frank Steunenberg.

Probability of acquittal was forcibly predicted after Judge Fremont Wood read his charge, which was regarded as strongly favoring the defense in its interpretation of the laws of conspiracy, circumstantial evidence and the corroboration of a confessed accomplice. It was also freely predicted that in the event of Haywood's acquittal the State would abandon the prosecution of his associates, Charles H. Moyer, president of the federation, and George A. Pettibone, of Denver. Statements from counsel and from Governor Gooding, issued, dispel this view of the situation. Governor Gooding said:

"The verdict is a great surprise to me, and I believe to all citizens of Idaho who have heard or read the evidence in the case. I have done my duty. I have no regret as to any action I have taken, and my conscience is clear. As long as God gives me strength I shall continue my efforts for government by law and for organized society."

"The State will continue a vigorous prosecution of Moyer and Pettibone and Adams and of Simpkins when apprehended. There will be neither hesitation nor retreat."

Not the least interesting of the comments made upon the verdict was that of Harry Orchard, the confessed murderer of Steunenberg and the witness on whom the State chiefly relied to prove its charge of a conspiracy among certain members of the Western Federation of Miners. When told at the State Penitentiary that Haywood had been acquitted, Orchard said:

"Well, I have done my duty. I have told the truth. I could do no more. I am ready to take any punishment that may be meted out to me for my crime, and the sooner it comes the better."

It was after being out for twenty-one hours that the jury, which at first had been divided eight to four for acquittal, and then seemed deadlocked at ten to two, finally came to an agreement shortly after the first faint streaks of the coming day showed gray above the giant hills which wall Boise to the north and east.

Things moved rapidly enough after this, and when at last the principal actors in the trial had been gathered into the courtroom at a few moments before 8 o'clock the white envelope handed by the foreman to the judge was torn open and the verdict read.

Tears welled to the eyes of the man who during the eighty days of his trial showed only indifference. Judge Wood made no effort to restrain his attorneys as they surrounded him to shake his hands and shout aloud their congratulations.

The court proceedings were over, the prisoner was discharged and the jury dismissed in less than three minutes.

The vindication came from the lips of twelve Idaho farmers, plain, blunt, uncultured men, representatives of the sturdy stock that is the backbone of this country.

Russell, former Justice of the Peace, Presbyterian and Prohibitionist, was the commanding force in the jury. He didn't believe Orchard.

When the first vote was taken it stood eight for acquittal, three for conviction and one not voting. The men who voted for conviction were Samuel D. Gilman, ranchman and former member of the militia; Thomas B. Gess, insurance and real estate dealer, foreman of the jury, and George Powell, ranchman. A. P. Burns, who in his early years was a member of the Carpenters' Union, refused to vote.

Darrow, with his sympathetic influence on the human heart, reached Russell. Russell argued the reasonable doubt construction of Judge Wood's instructions. He soon won over Powell, Gilman and Burns. At 6:30 o'clock a. m., Gess, the foreman, boyhood companion of Attorney Hawley of the State, was won over, and the verdict was reached.

One remarkable incident is that James A. Robertson, the oldest man on the jury, the man with whom Steunenberg lived for three years, voted first and last for the acquittal of Haywood.

New York City.—The most [illegible] fire in the history of Coney Island, ate thirty-five acres out of the heart of that resort in twice as many minutes.

The flames licked up Steeplechase Park and other property which cannot be replaced for less than $750,000, and on which the owners place a speculative value of a million and a half.

The fire started in a hamper of sweepings, mostly paper, gathered in the park and stored over night under the Cave of Winds.

Starting at 3.55 a. m., the blaze was not entirely out until after 2 p. m.

A fireman and two boys were seriously burned and injured [illegible] they are likely to die. Twenty firemen and patrolmen and a hundred hotel guests and residents suffered painful burns and cuts by broken glass. There were scores of narrow escapes from fire-traps [illegible] and daring rescues beyond count.

The fire started in George C. Tilyou's Steeplechase Park, in almost the identical spot where a small fire was discovered at 10 o'clock the night before, and which was put out without public alarm.

There is a grave suspicion that both were of incendiary origin, possibly started by one of many disgruntled workmen recently discharged.

Since last Christmas Mr. Tilyou has received no less than five Black Hand letters demanding large sums of money and threatening his life and the destruction of the amusement place if it was not forthcoming. The last of these letters was received but a day and resulted in extra precautions being put about the park.

After devastating the park the flames rapidly destroyed the Coney Island Post Office, thirteen hotels, six dancing pavilions, three cafes, [illegible] Dip, Uncle Sam's Cannon Ride, fifty stands and small buildings.

Owing to the almost primitive methods which prevail at Coney Island, practically no insurance was carried. For a time it seemed that the flames would sweep the entire amusement district, including Luna Park and Dreamland. The direction of the driving wind, the extreme pressure of salt water from a dozen mains, the lately installed system, and the bravery and persistence of firemen and citizen volunteers combined to save the remainder of the resort.

Everybody was working [illegible] to shoulder Circassian girls, fortune-telling snake-charmers, gypsy fortune-tellers and Greek peasant dancers. Armenians and Japanese, negroes and Italians were pitching in and shouting in as many languages as there are countries for the rescue of [illegible].

The braver men returned to their homes here and there some overcome with heat or by asleep amid all the terrible confusion. These, awakened, were led or dragged to safety and [illegible] some one bethought of fish [illegible] armless and legless freaks.

He was found trying to [illegible] himself to safety. He was [illegible] out and some one soon after [illegible] forty monkeys confined in a [illegible]. Their almost human cries [illegible] over walls and roofs added to the confusion. A cage of [illegible] was opened and the frightened animals fled to the beach, where their trainer found them afterward.

Is Peruna Useful for Catarrh?

Should a list of the ingredients of Peruna be submitted to any medical examiner, of whatever school or nationality, he would be obliged to admit without question that each one of them was of undoubted value in chronic catarrhal disease, and had stood the test of many years' experience in the treatment of such diseases. THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT ABOUT THIS WHATEVER. Peruna is a compound of the most famous and universally used herbal remedies for catarrh. Every ingredient of Peruna has a reputation of its own in the cure of some phase of catarrh.

Peruna brings to the home the COMBINED KNOWLEDGE OF SEVERAL SCHOOLS OF MEDICINE in the treatment of catarrhal diseases; brings to the home the skill and knowledge of the modern pharmacist; and last but not least, brings to the home the vast fund of varied experience of Dr. Hartman, the discoverer of catarrh remedies, and in the treatment of catarrhal diseases.

The fact is, chronic catarrh is a disease which is very prevalent. Many thousand people know they have chronic catarrh. They have visited doctor over and over again, and been told that their case is one of chronic catarrh. It may be of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach or some other internal organ. There is no doubt as to the nature of the disease. The only trouble is with the remedy. This doctor has tried to cure them. That doctor has tried to prescribe for them.

BUT THEY ALL FAILED TO BRING ANY RELIEF.

Dr. Hartman's idea is that a catarrh remedy can be made on a large scale, and he is making it possible that it can be made consistently, of the purest drugs and of the strictest uniformity. His idea is that this remedy can be supplied direct to the people, and no more be charged for it than is necessary for the handling of it.

No other household remedy so universally advertised carries upon the label the principal active constituents, leaving that Peruna invites the full publication of the critics.

New York City. The most [illegible] in the history of Coney Island ate thirty-five acres out of the [illegible] of that resort in twice as many hours.

The flames licked up Steeplechase Park and other property which cannot be replaced for less than $750,000 and on which the water place a speculative value of a million and a half.

The fire started in a barrel of [illegible] shavings, mostly paper, gathered up in the park and stored over night under the Cave of Winds.

Starting at 2:55 a. m., the fire was not entirely out until after 4 p. m.

A fireman and two boys were seriously burned and injured that they are likely to die. Twenty-five firemen and patrolmen and a hundred hotel guests and residents suffered painful burns and cuts from broken glass. There were scores of narrow escapes from fire-trap hotels and daring rescues beyond count.

The fire started in George C. Tilyou's Steeplechase Park, in almost the identical spot where a small fire was discovered at 10 o'clock the night before, and which was put out without public alarm.

There is a grave suspicion that both were of incendiary origin possibly started by one of many former workmen recently discharged.

Since last Christmas Mr. Tilyou has received no less than five blackhand letters demanding large sums of money and threatening his life and the destruction of the amusement place if it was not forthcoming. The last of these letters was received to-day and resulted in extra guards being put about the park.

After devastating the park the fire rapidly destroyed the Coney Island Post Office, thirteen hotels, six large pavilions, three cafes, Dip the Dips, Uncle Sam a Cannon Ride, [illegible] stands and small buildings.

Owing to the almost prohibitive rates which prevail at Coney Island practically no insurance was carried.

For a time it seemed that the flames would sweep the entire amusement district, including Luna Park and Dreamland. The direction of the [illegible] wind, the extreme pressure of salt water from a dozen main pipes, the [illegible] installed system, and the bravery and persistence of the firemen and citizen volunteers combined to save the remainder of the resort.

Everybody was working shoulder to shoulder. Circassian girls were helping snake-charmers, gypsy fortune-tellers and Greek peanut venders, Armenians and Japanese rug venders and Italians were pulling and shouting in as many languages for the same end.

The braver men returned to the fires and there some overtired and dizzy fellows amid all the tumult and confusion. These, awakened, were dragged to safety and then some one bethought of Sah Dora, the midgets and legless freak.

He was found trying to drag himself to safety. He was [illegible] out and some one soon after liberated forty monkeys confined in a cage. Their almost human cries as they [illegible] over walls and roofs added to the confusion. A cage of trained dogs was opened and the frightened animals fled to the beach, where their trainer found them afterward.

Antics of Our "Yellow Rich"

By the Editor of The Lightpost.

A well known writer has been traveling on the steamship Amerika, which may be said to be the last word in naval architecture and ocean splendor. He finds plenty to admire in a floating hotel that can accommodate about 1000 people, and that is fitted up with the same magnificence as may be found in the most luxurious hotel. But even magnificence is open to criticism and the appointments of the Amerika are the subject of caustic comment—directed against those vulgar ones who are irresistibly attracted, not so much by comfort and luxury as by the ample opportunity to spend money lavishly and to summon all the world and his wife as witnesses thereto.

The special occasion for animadversion is the Ritz-Carleton restaurant, which is to be found on the Amerika. There is no objection to the gymnasium, the children's nursery, the conservatory, the brass band, the two string orchestras, or the half dozen pianos. All these things can be defended on the ground of substantial comfort but there can be no palliation for the restaurant, which is simply a flowery excuse for spending money. This is what he says:

"This wonderful cafe, which in service is equal to anything on either side of the Atlantic, is ostensibly for the purpose of supplying a la carte meals to passengers who do not find it convenient to eat at regular meals. In reality it is a remunerative concession to that class of Americans termed by Owen Wister the 'Yellow Rich,' who wander up and down the earth consumed with a burning desire to exhibit to the public tangible evidence of their riches. All of the big modern liners that preceded the Amerika in the past ten years were amply provided with private dining rooms, where, if the traveler had the price, he could have meals served at most any hour in the twenty-four, but as these private dining rooms offered no opportunity for a public display of wealth the Ritz-Carleton restaurant became in a degree a necessity. Within its elegant glass walls the 'yellow rich' not only enjoy the privileges of paying four prices for a meal, but they are also permitted to show the common herd, which, for reasons economical and otherwise, must worry along on eight and ten course meals in the main dining saloon, that they actually have the price and glory in the opportunity for spending it. The cafe is, of course, a convenience for others who desire to sleep late or retire late and who drop in occasionally and order a meal to vary the regular saloon fare, but this class of patronage would be insufficient to remunerate the orchestra, which is a good one, and it is only through the heavy expenditure of the 'yellow rich' that the Ritz-Carleton pays even."

The trouble of this sort of thing is that it gives foreigners a false idea of Americans. We are told that on this particular voyage there was a baron, a count and "some minor sprigs of royalty," but they had not a valet between them. The Americans, on the other hand, had retinues of valets, gentlemen's gentlemen, man-servants, maid-servants and all the other representatives of the parasite tribe. There is certainly room for the moralizing that follows:

"There may appear in these notes evidence of a personal grievance and, to a degree, I plead guilty. But the grievance is not specific, and it did not have its origin on the Amerika. Neither is it altogether my grievance, for it is one that is murmured by thousands of other Americans who, annually, on business or pleasure, visit the Old World. Our 'yellow rich' have set a pace afloat and ashore that it is very difficult for the plain, everyday Americans to maintain. Some of the ex-puddlers in the Pennsylvania Steel Works never seem to have anything smaller than a sovereign for a tip, and the ostentatious manner in which they bestow it dazzles the eyes of the cringing minions to such an extent that the shilling of the 'American' American is overlooked or treated with haughty disdain. It is the effect of this ostentatious distribution of wealth of which we of the ranks complain, as it renders it very difficult for us to secure what is coming to us."

It would seem that smart society afloat is somewhat worse than smart society ashore.

The Strongest Wood.

Recent official tests of the many valuable hardwoods native to western Australia have made known the extraordinary properties of yate, believed to be the strongest of all known woods. Its average tensile strength is 24,000 pounds to the square inch, equalling that of good cast iron. But many specimens are much stronger, and one was tested up to 17 1-2 tons to the square inch, which is equal to the tensile strength of wrought iron.

A Scientific Opinion.

There is a certain cooking school in the loop district where every day in the week large classes of girls convene for instruction in the gentle art of raising the dough.

Last week a class of thirty rather impractical girls, as most of them are, was studying the doughnut scientifically.

One of the dullest pupils in the class, who never could learn to boil water without burning it, was rather inattentive while the teacher was lecturing on "sinkers."

Thinking to catch her and administer a rebuke on her inattention, the lecturer suddenly broke off and asked: "Miss Smith, what is the healthiest part of the doughnut?"

Miss Smith straightened up, flushed up, stood up and replied: "Why—why, the hole, I believe."—Chicago

Tall People and Disease Germs.

"Blessed are the tall, for they shall be long lived," said Martin Friedrich, health officer of Cleveland, tonight, as he was poring over the reports of deaths sent to the department.

"A six-footer," he continued, "has more chance to escape disease germs than the little fellow. Those built close to the ground must be on the lookout."

Friedrich was looking at the physicians' mortality reports and noticed that nearly all of the twenty-six cases of cerebro-spinal meningitis, or spotted fever, reported since January 1, were those of children. In explaining, he said:

"I believe that most of the disease germs are close to the ground. We know that these germs are taken into the system through the nose in breathing. They find a breeding place in the dirt of the streets, and as they are stirred up by the passing pedestrians they are drawn into the nose."—Cleveland Dispatch to the New York World.

BABY WASTED TO SKELETON.

In Torments With Terrible Sores on Face and Body—Tore at Flesh —Cured by Cuticura.

"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to have sores come out on his face. They began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton and was hardly able to walk. I sent to the drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind since, and I can sincerely say that only for the Cuticura Remedies my precious child would have died from those terrible sores. I used only one cake of Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D., No. 1, Woodville, Conn., April 22, 1905."

A Dreadful Operation Seemed to Be the Only Outcome.

Mrs. Clyde Pixley, Bridge St., Belding, Mich., writes: "I had inflammation of the bladder, and the trouble had gone so far in five years that my physicians said nothing but an operation would cure me. Awful bearing down pains, backaches and headaches tortured me, there were spells of dizziness and faintness, the kidney secretions were like blood and passed with intense pain. I had lost 30 pounds when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and was dreadfully nervous. In one week I felt better and to-day I am a well woman and have been for a long time."

Cannon Balls of Stone.

On either side of the entrance to the Naval Asylum on Gray's Ferry road, is an immense stone sphere, measuring about twenty-five inches in diameter. There is a legend that these were used or intended for use in a Turkish mortar, "the largest piece of ordnance in the world."

These balls were given to the institution soon after its founding by Commodore J. D. Elliott, who obtained them during a cruise on the frigate Constitution in European waters. An inscription on one of the balls relates that they were obtained on the Asiatic side of the Dardahelles, and it is within the realms of possibility that the Turks may have intended them to serve as shot in a mortar. It is also more than probable that with sufficient powder to project them the stones would have been badly shattered.

Commodore Elliott presented them in 1835, and ever since then they have ornamented the entrance and mystified curious visitors. — Philadelphia

OLD TIME PUNISHMENTS.

Cold Water Baths Helped to Cure Swearing and Scolding.

To punish a child in such a way that it will see the direct connection between the correction and the fault is one of the precepts of modern education. The judge of the eighteenth century was not worried by such psychological theories, but his decisions often had the grim humor of fitness.

What could be better for the scold than a cooling plunge or for the wife beater than a few lashes on his own back?

A number of tender handed English gallants joined a pioneer expedition to Virginia. The weather was cold and the work hard. When these soft muscled young men were set at chopping trees their hands were sorely blistered by the ax helves. With the cries of pain many oaths were heard.

The president of the company soon put a stop to this swearing by ordering a can of cold water to be poured down the sleeve of the guilty one at every oath he uttered.

In colonial days hog stealing was considered one of the most serious of crimes. At the first offense the thief's ears were slit, at the second his ears were nailed to a pillory, and at the third he suffered death "without benefit of clergy."

Deceitful bakers and careless fish dealers had to "lose their ears," while he who spoke detracting words had his tongue bored by a bodkin.

A Frenchman, traveling in America in 1700, describes the ducking-stool as a "pleasant mode" of punishing a scolding woman.

In 1635 Thomas Hartley of Virginia wrote of his witnessing the execution of a ducking stool sentence:

"Day before yesterday at 2 of ye Clock, I saw this punishment given to one Betsey Walker, who by ye violence of her tongue made her house and her neighborhood uncomfortable. They had a machine for ye purpose, yt belongs to ye Parish. It has already been used three times this summer.

"Ye Woman was allowed to go under ye water for ye space of ½ minute. Betsey had a stout stomache and would not yield until she had been under five times. Then she cried piteously. Then they drew back ye Machine, untied ye Ropes and let her walk home a hopefully penitent woman."—Youth's Companion.

PERILS OF BALLOONING.

An Exciting Trip In the Midst of a Wild Thunderstorm.

On one occasion, rising suddenly through a stratum of clouds 10,000 feet in the air into brilliant sunshine, the gas dilated. I let out a little. Down we dropped into a cold air current. The immediate condensation of the gas dropped us back into the cloud layer, which condensed the gas still more and accelerated the drop. We came out directly above a stretch of woods over which lay another cool belt. By this time we were falling like a rock. We were going so fast that the bagfuls of sand we threw out went up instead of down. Hastily we threw out the drag rope, the anchor, the lunch basket —to little purpose. We struck the trees with a terrific crash, but escaped, however, with nothing worse than a shaking up and a few bruises.

The most exciting trip I ever made was a record breaking voyage that began one Sunday evening. The weather was not propitious, but we cast off. We sailed across the Hudson river to New Jersey and plunged into a cloud. After traveling twenty miles I descended to drop a note to my wife, assuring her of our safety. Again we shot into a cloud. Presently we drifted over a village and, with that exaltation that accompanies the sensation of floating in the air, enjoyed to a strange degree the music of church bells drifting up from below. Before we were aware we plunged into the midst of a huge approaching thunder cloud. It seemed to open and swallow us into a pit of gloom and simultaneously into the heart of the wildest thunderstorm I think I have ever seen. The clouds rolled and tossed and twisted. The balloon would now be forced down, then tossed up and again spun swiftly about like a top. We lost all sense of direction. Thunder was crashing and rolling and crackling all around us. Lightning flashed, not in forked zigzags, but in great flashes of fire. It was frightful. We did not want to descend, but presently we heard the unmistakable sound of water not far away. Letting out a little gas, we shot downward. Faster we dropped and faster. Land was below us. The problem was to land in the high wind without damage. I let out more gas. We landed in a treetop with a jar that fixed the basket so firmly in a crotch that it could not be dislodged by the wind, for now we had dropped below the storm.—World's Work.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the gennerally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co. 50c.

GALA DAY AT MACEDONIA

The Childrens' Day at Macedonia (No. 2) last Sunday, July 28, was a sure success. The exercises were ably conducted by Bro. E. L. Smith. Mr. Smith took great pains in drilling the children for that day. He is the heart of that community. We need many more such men in dear old Chilton. The exercise by three little girls, pantomiming the song. "Nearer my God to Thee," was the most heart touching scene of the day. Hon. W. I. Mullins, E. B. Deason and Dr. P. I. Hopkins were expected to be there, but unfortunately they couldn't come.

The subjects for afternoon were discussed intelligently by Mr. Oliver Mullins and Mr. Hugh Mullins on "The Country twenty years ago and the country at the present time," respectively. Bro Young made a nice talk, urging the young people to take a more active part in the Sunday school cause.

We wish to extend our thanks to the ladies of Macedonia for their kindness and hospitality in preparing such a nice dinner. The dinner was plentiful and seemed to be enjoyed by all. Owing to the severity of heat, some sought shades and some buggies, but by the constant use of fans, we fared very well.

The sad part of the day came at noon when a good sister's baby child was bitten by a dog. The dog was thought to be hydrophobia, which we hope is a mistake.

Hoping the day benefited all, especially the young people, by planting a desire in them, to live a higher and nobler life in the future, I remain a friend to all.

HAD AN AWFUL TIME

But Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Cured Him.

It is with pleasure that I give you this unsolicited testimonial. About a year ago when I had a severe case of measles I got caught out in a hard rain and the measles settled in my stomach and bowels. I had an awful time and had it not been for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—SAM H. GWIN, Concord, Ga. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby

Bananas.

"Bananas," says an authority, "are by millions of people eaten green or ripe, raw or cooked, are served in all ways in which apples, grains and potatoes are used and are palatable, healthful and nutritious in every way in which they are prepared. They make excellent bread, cakes and pies, puddings, confectionery and coffee substitutes, yield brandy, beer, vinegar, sugar, oil and fibers. They are bought as a luxury by millions who may use them as a staple food. Yet they may be grown profitably in a small area only. Therefore banana culture affords a perfectly safe and gainful use of time and money."

A Cold Turndown.

"Bridget," Mrs. Housekeep called down to her servant, "I see Mrs. Gaddis coming across the street. Run out and turn that door mat upside down."

"Which one, ma'am?" asked Bridget.

"The one that has 'Welcome' on it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

CAN'T EAT

When your nerves are all unstrung, your appetite fails you and you feel as though the bottom had dropped out of your stomach, you are paying the penalty for the abuse you have inflicted upon yourself by hastily-eaten and improper food.

Your digestive organs, even though delicate, will stand a lot of service, but they resent ill-treatment.

Dr. Caldwell's

(Laxative)

Syrup Pepsin

is the greatest remedy in the world for correcting and curing all forms of stomach and digestive trouble.

It instantly imparts new life and vigor to these parts and keeps them in prime and perfect working condition.

Don't wait until you are in the grip of these torturing complaints, but get a dollar or half-dollar size of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN now at your druggist's and forestall the trouble.

Your money will be refunded if it does not benefit you.

Your postal card request will bring by return mail our new booklet, "DR. CALDWELL'S BOOK OF WONDERS" and free sample to those who have never tried this wonderful remedy. Do it now.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nausea, headache, constipation, bad taste, general debility, sour risings, and all disorders of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This remedy represents the natural juices of the stomach as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest tonic and reconstructive properties known to medicine. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this remedy cures all stomach troubles by its purifying, sweetening and strengthening effect upon the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., writes: "I was troubled with sour stomach for years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it regularly."

There is a number of people who are under an erroneous impression. They think that they never control enough money to start a bank account. In this they are mistaken. We solicit small accounts as well as large. And we handle the business of both with our best care. We believe that you ought to have a bank account, and we offer you our services.

This is Why

We deserve to be favored with a share of your banking business:

First, because OUR RECORD IS CLEAN, and a long record of honest dealing is the best guarantee of a prosperous future.

Then OUR POLICY is as liberal as is consistent with security, we are accommodating but prudent.

And finally, OUR LOCATION is central and accessible—right in the centre of business.

We ask your consideration.

Stanton.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in the dear old Banner to announce the death of G. W. Osborn of Stanton on the 23d of July, while working at the shop of W. C. Dyer. He was at work at a trim saw which had a weight to pull it back when using it. The cord either rotted or wore in two and when he cut the piece of timber the weight fell and that threw the saw against him, cutting him seriously. He was carried to the hospital, but it did him no good, death claimed him, and he was laid to rest in the Ebenezer cemetery. We thank his many friends for the sympathy they showed him. We blame the shop managers for his death, as it was carelessness. Mr. Osborn was a good man; he was up in the fifties and had been working for Dyer eight or ten years, but his work on earth is done, he is gone to a country from whence no traveler returns. He leaves a wife and three children to mourn his death. We will say to them to weep not for him, he is gone where there are no good byes, no more sickness nor pain nor death can ever come and where congregations break not up and Sabbath days never end, there to await the coming of his dear ones.

A FRIEND.

Thorsby.

Last Monday was a "red letter day" for our town. The opening of the park will long be remembered. One of the most enjoyable picnics was participated in by a number of citizens. The picnic was given under the auspice of the Swedish Lutheran Sunday school, however, everyone was cordially welcomed. Refreshments of most tempting quality were abundant during the day, also ice cream and lemonade at evening. Mr. Berlin's fine graphophone gave enjoyment during the day. A large bonfire lasted through the evening. From the stand the Thorsby Cornet Band discoursed music acceptably at intervals. "Old Glory" waved appropriately above merry groups of children. Mr. T. T. Thorson deserves much credit for his untiring industry in preparing and opening the grounds for the townspeople. The evident enjoyment of all on this convivial occasion testified to their appreciation.

Tuesday a large and sweet-toned bell rang for the first time its greet from the Swedish church.

Maplesville.

The Maplesville Barbacue will come off on Thursday, August 29, and instructive talks to farmers by competent speakers, including among them our Commissioner of Agriculture, will be the order of the day. A refreshment stand will be run for the benefit of the public road that day, and no other one. The Government Expert, Mr. Hill, will creosote sap pine posts that day and lecture on the method. Will expect the Editor. Everybody invited. T. U. Crumpton.

KILLED BY ACCIDENT.

Last Wednesday evening, while removing from Montevallo to Calera, Fayette Evans, well known in Chilton county, was accidently killed near New Salem church, about a mile from Calera.

Mr. Evans dropped the reins, and stooping down to recover them, his pistol fell from his pocket, and the hammer striking caused it to fire. The ball struck him in the abdomen, causing his death. He was about thirty years of age.

Lomax.

We have a nice Sunday school at our school house and also a singing school taught by Prof. B. F. Sassnett.

Bro. M. F. Lett gave a lecture at Cane Creek, Saturday, July 27, at 3 p.m., on the union warehouse, and at Lomax union at 7:30 p.m. Bro. Lett is a faithful worker in our union.

We went to Cedar Grove Sunday to the singing convention, and had a nice time. Success to the Banner and its readers. E. F. T.

Sandy.

The crops in this community are growing and look fine.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. Quite a crowd of Pleasant Grove Sunday school scholars were invited to Mr. J. A. Mize's to eat watermelon the fourth Sunday, and they report such a nice time. The same crowd enjoyed the first Sunday at Mr. Eugene McGee's.

Talk about blind tigers, I don't think they are very blind, there are plenty of young tigers about, and I think those that have the stuff are the ones that ought to be punished instead of the ones that got the punishment, and first thing they know the blind tigers will open their eyes. It is not fair to punish one when the whole business was in the mud. I know where the tiger was and the next time one gets the punishment I will wake up the whole business. It has caused very hard feelings and more trouble than one thinks they can bear. So nothing more at present, only we are sorry that Mr. Abram's family are going to leave our settlement. OLD MIKE.

Wreck at Maplesville.

As passenger train No. 21, from Birmingham, due to reach Selma at 4:25 a.m., was approaching Maplesville Sunday morning, the main line was left and into the siding went the train, crashing into two box cars. How the switch came to be thrown from the main line is not known, but before the engineer knew it he was speeding towards the cars, and barely had time to throw on the air brakes before the impact came. The passengers were badly shaken up and sustained a few bruises and scratche, but none were hurt to speak of. The fireman was slightly injured.

The engine was not damaged to any great extent, except tearing off the pilot and smashing the head light. The engineer was able to bring the train on to Selma with the disfigured engine and arrived about 7 o'clock.

The cyclone cloth, saner the Atlanta Journal, has become almost as famous as the peekaboo waist.

Gwendoline is hereby notified by the Atlanta Constitution that puppy-love has caused a considerable percentage of men to go to the dogs.

A man who can lose $500 on stocks and forget about it the next day, declares the Chicago Record-Herald, will complain for weeks about the loss of a $3 umbrella.

If the President favors the movement for a civil pension list it will be greatly strengthened. Certainly, of all suggested solutions of the perplexing problem of superannuation, observes the New York Evening Post, this one is the simplest and the kindest, while the objections are mainly that it is costly and that it violates the unbroken tradition of our Government.

Two things are to the interest of the West, asserts the Chicago Record-Herald. The first is to have the wholesale thefts of public land stopped. The second is to have liberal and intelligent 'and laws passed by Congress. The administration has done its share of the work. Congress must do the rest. If the representatives from Western States urge land law reform they will get it without delay.

Inconveniences of an Indian Jail.

A prisoner in Rampore Boalia jail has a clear grievance against the Government. There are certain inconveniences inseparable from prison life which all reasonable criminals more or less unwillingly accept, but the most complaisant draws the line at being marked down and clawed by a leopardess in the seclusion of the prison yard. The animal seems to have been inspired by a suffragette-like curiosity as to the inside of a prison, and having got in by the highly irregular method of leaping the wall, she ensconced herself among the low brick piers on which the old barracks are raised from the ground. In the early afternoon she espied a prisoner in the yard, clearing up, and like the impulsive creature she was, promptly leaped upon him, striking him to the ground and at once started to clawing his back. Then, with the fickleness of her sex, she suddenly changed her mind, and in an access of shyness ran away and hid herself among the brick pillars. Now Colonel R. R. Weir, Inspector-General of Prisons, happened to be in the village, and to him the incident was reported. Though it cannot be said that the duties of an Inspector-General of Prisons includes the destruction of vermin, Colonel Weir did not stop to consider technicalities, but borrowed a rifle. After some difficulty in getting within striking distance of the intruder as she lay in her fastness, he succeeded in planting his first shot behind her shoulders, after which nothing remained to be done but to drag out the carcass and record its tape measurement as more than seven feet.—London Daily Telegraph.

Bees and Blue Flowers.

Darwin's theory of "bees and blue flowers," or the evolution of "the largest and most brilliant flowers" by the preference for these of pollen-distributing bees, is challenged by Mr. G. W. Bulman in the current Nineteenth Century. Darwin's view was thus expressed in his "Origin of Species:"

"We may safely conclude that if insects had never existed on the face of the world the vegetation would not have been decked with beautiful flowers, but would have produced only such poor flowers as are now borne by our firs, oaks, nut and ash trees, by the grasses, by spinach, docks, and nettles."

Mr. Bulman adduces evidence that bees, far from resorting for pollen and nectar to flowers tinged with blue, as averred by Lord Avebury, exhibit no especial preference for them, or for yellow, orange, green, black, or white flowers; but will readily lade their hip pockets with honey from flowers quite despoiled of petals and color. The inconspicuous blooms of the lime tree, the holly, the willow, the currant, and the ivy are alike thronged with murmurous wings. The instinct of the "nature-loving bees" appears, after all, to be strictly commercial.—New York Times.

Some Youthful Definitions.

Among the answers to questions at a recent school examination were the following interesting examples of youthful misinformation: "Gross ignorance is 144 times as bad as just ordinary ignorance." "Anchorite, an old-fashioned hermit sort of fellow who has anchored himself to one place." "The liver is an infernal organ." "Vacuum is nothing with the air sucked out of it put up in a pickle bottle—it is very hard to get."—Harper's Bazar.

ALABAMA HAPPENINGS AS TERSELY TOLD

Items of Interest to Dwellers of The State.

WEEK'S EVENTS CONDENSED

Southern School for Farmers Is Now Going on at Auburn With Eighteen Experts, Besides Dr. Knapp, Representing the United States.

The fifth session of the farmers' summer school held under the auspices of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute began most auspiciously Thursday. A large number of farmers was present, representing many sections of the state. The interest in this movement grows from year to year. An address of welcome in the name of the college was delivered by President C. C. Thach. President Thach spoke vigorously on the necessity of scientific education for the uplift of the great profession of farming. Like every other business the working of the soil, he said, requires diligence in order to secure the best results. No profession, no section of our common country, no single community, can prosper without knowledge. At Auburn there is an organization known as the experiment station, consisting of eight experts, with ten assistants, a staff of eighteen in all, reared on the farm, highly trained in special lines who devote their lives to the cause of agriculture in the state of Alabama. Each member of this corps is engaged year in and year out in a study of the great problems and underlying principles connected with the forces that control plant life and animal life. These departments are: Agriculture horticulture, veterinary science, animal industry, bacteriology, botany, entomology and chemistry. The great aim and purpose of the institution is to get these men in touch with the great mass of farmers of the state of Alabama. One of the instrumentalities is the bulletin issued to 16,000 farmers about four times annually. Another instrumentality is the farmers' institutes. At its own expense, with its own faculty, without additional reward, the college goes into one-half of the state annually or the entire state every two years, arousing the farmers and discussing live questions pertaining to the betterment and progress of their work. The farmers' summer school is a general round-up of the year's work, or ten days again without extra remuneration the entire staff of the experiment station, together with outside experts, give instruction for ten hours a day along every line of agricultural, horticultural and animal interests.

"The old method," says President Thach, "common sense, is good, but common sense plus the new method that is, scientific investigation, is still better." Cordial response to the address of welcome was made in behalf of the farmers by Col. J. M. Thornton. He spoke in high terms of the great work for the cause of agriculture accomplished by the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Dr. Knapp, the celebrated authority on agricultural matters, representing the United States department of agriculture, will give lectures throughout the session of the school.

For two weeks a class of 50 farmers have been engaged in the study of sampling and classifying cotton under the direction of Col. J. M. Thornton. Colonel Thornton is one of the leading and most successful farmers of the state of Alabama, and the success of his work in this unique line of training has been extremely gratifying. There are representative farmers here from thirty-six counties. This work will continue throughout the farmers' school, closing about September 15.

Masons to Hold a Conference.

Harmony Lodge No. 46, A. F. & A. M., of Selma, is preparing for a district conference, which will be held there this month. There are fifty-four lodges in the district, and several hundred Masons from various sections will throng the city. The meetings will be secret and the degree work will be exemplified. Interesting lectures will be delivered, but there will be social functions also and a grand time is anticipated.

Assaulted a Preacher.

There is said to be much feeling against Billie Jones, of Oakman, who called Rev. W. R. Beal, a Methodist minister, from a train when it stopped for a while at that place and badly beat and stamped on the preacher. The cause was the preacher's movement to prevent the opening of a pool room by Jones after Jones had bought an outfit. Jones will be stoutly prosecuted by the church people.

Smallpox in Marengo County.

A report has reached the state health department that several cases of confluent smallpox have broken out at Linden, Marengo county, and that in one family three cases had developed. So far the dread disease has been confined to children. The physician in charge of the cases has reported that many people were exposed to the disease before it was reported, and that other cases are expected to develop.

Forty-six Companies Taxed.

The tax commission of the state has assessed the [illegible] values of forty-seven corporations, including railroads, lighting and street railway companies, at $16,175,971, upon which the state will collect taxes at the rate of six and a half mills. This will amount to over $85,000 a year in returns to the state. The full list follows:

Gadsden to Buy Water Works.

The city council has passed a resolution to purchase the water works from the syndicate of Gadsden citizens who recently purchased the bonds from the Baltimore bondholders. The bonds amount to $60,000, and the syndicate purchased them for $[illegible],000 cash and has offered the plant of the city at the same price, with 6 per cent interest from July 1 to the date of payment. The city has agreed to purchase the plant, and an election will be held at an early date authorizing the council to float sufficient bonds to take over the old plant.

Industrial Education in Alabama.

W. M. Alexander, vice-president of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, has written a letter to R. E. Pettus, of Huntsville, informing him that the society has undertaken the organization of a committee to carry on the work of the society in Alabama. The object of the society is to direct the attention of the public to the importance of industrial education as a factor in the industrial development of the nation. Mr. Pettus and other prominent Alabamians have been appointed as members of the committee.

Prohibitionists Rejoice.

Prohibitionists in Girard and Phoenix City are rejoicing over the action of the Georgia legislature in voting that state "dry," for, according to the enactment of, the Alabama legislature, the sale of liquor ceases in those two cities as soon as whisky selling is prohibited in Columbus, their big sister just across the Chattahoochee, in Georgia. At the hour that was set for the Georgia legislature to vote on the state prohibition bill the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Girard were on their knees in prayer.

A Barbecue.

John A. Norville and W. A. Williams, of the Klondyke Lumber Company entertained their friends at a barbecue at their lumber mill, two and a half miles from Livingston. The meat was prepared by the old veteran, George Williams, and thoroughly enjoyed.

Sues for Salary.

Ben Matthews, of Huntsville, has brought suit against the Tom Fritts Hardware Company, of Chattanooga, for $750 claimed as due for services. The company recently established a hardware business here, with Ben Matthews as manager. Mr. Matthews claims that his salary has not been paid, and he has attached the stock of hardware placed here by the company.

Saloons to Close.

Governor Comer signed the bill requiring all saloons in the State to close early at night. In towns of 10,000 and less the hour is 7 o'clock; 10,000 to 15,000, 8 o'clock, and above that 9 o'clock. The bill goes into effect January 1st next. This completes the prohibition scheme for the present session as follows. Local option by counties, prohibition of shipments to prohibition territory and early closing.

GEORGIA GONE DRY SALOONS WILL QUIT

Prohibition Passes By a Big Majority.

GOV. SMITH WILL SIGN IT

Opposition to the New Law Dies Hard, but Representatives of Liquor Interests Fought a Losing Fight From the Start.

Atlanta, Ga.—The Hardwick prohibition bill passed by the senate some days ago was adopted by the house Tuesday evening by a vote of 139 to 39. Two amendments added to the bill by the house will necessitate the bill going back to the senate for concurrence, of which there is no doubt, and the bill then will go to Governor Hoke Smith for his signature, which has been practically pledged, and prohibition will become a law in Georgia.

The amendments permit the sale of pure alcohol by retail druggists on the prescription of a reputable physician, and also allow wholesale druggists to carry pure alcohol in stock for sale only to retailers.

The bill prohibits the manufacture or keeping on hand in any place of business the sale or giving away to induce business within the state of any liquor that may produce intoxication. The new law is to become effective January 1, 1908.

After the first fight on the bill last week, in which the opponents of the bill showed their ability to keep the act from its third reading, and which culminated in a personal encounter on the floor of the house between two members of the house at the end of a fourteen hour session, an agreement was reached making the bill a special order for Tuesday, with the provision that a vote should be taken at 4 o'clock. This program was carried out. Twenty-one amendments were offered, thirteen of them by the prohibition forces. Only two were allowed, and both of these were introduced by the prohibitionists. The anti-pros made the hardest fight to secure the adoption of an amendment to postpone until January 1, 1909, the date when the bill should be come effective. This was lost—128 to 49. The bill as amended was put on the final vote at 6:45, which was completed forty-five minutes later, a few members taking the opportunity to explain their vote.

McQueen's Brainstorm.

Ottumwa, Ia.—Peter McQueen, wri Goodwater have had. Senator White has just secured the passage of a bill through the legislature providing for a term of the circuit court of Coosa county at Goodwater, which is of the most benefit to the town. When the train arrived with Senator White a band of musicians met him at the depot and the crowd took him up when he stepped from the train and carried him to the hotel on an express wagon drawn by the enthusiastic citizens of Goodwater.

Policemen Needed.

New York.—Appalled by the awful record of crime in this city the last month, the July grand jury upon retirement will, it is asserted, hand up a presentment recommending that Police Commissioner Bingham be allowed to increase the police force by a thousand. It is stated that the city's urgent need is more policemen, as the present force is inadequate to control crime.

Burned a Baby.

Oswego, N. Y.—A drunken Pole, a stranger in this city, entered the home of Charles Leonard, No. 238 East Second street, took a 7-months-old baby from a crib where it was sleeping and placed it on a red hot kitchen stove. The cries of the child brought the mother, who had left it for a minute. The police were called and the man arrested. The baby was badly burned.

Lay Cornerstone of Peace Palace.

The Hague.—The cornerstone of the Andrew Carnegie peace palace was laid here Tuesday afternoon, M. Neildof, president of the peace conference, officiating. The principal addresses were made by M. A. Vankarnebeak, president of the Carnegie foundation committee, and by M. Neildof.

Wireless Telegraph Towers.

New York.—The United States government has let a contract to the United States Steel Corporation for transmission towers which are to be utilized for wireless telegraph service in Alaska. The government intends to have a chain of the towers erected along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and on the Gulf of Mexico. The towers will be 176 feet high.

Mrs. Antoinette Blackwell.

Elizabeth, N. J.—Mrs. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, who was the first woman in the world to be ordained as a preacher, and who recently moved here from New York, still preaches occasionally, though in her 84th year. After she was 78 she made a trip to Palestine, and delivers lectures on what she saw in the Holy Land. She is the author of "The Philosophy of Individuality" and a book of poems called "Sea Drifts."

UNIONS NOW RECOGNIZED.

System Railway Officials Decline to Confer With Committees.

London.—Lord Chief John Hamilton, chairman of the Great Eastern railway, and Henry Cosmo Bunser, chairman of the Southeastern railway, speaking at the annual meetings of their respective companies, both emphatically refused to recognize the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, the executive committee of which had demanded the right to represent the railway employes in an effort to settle their alleged grievances. Both the chairmen declared that their directors were ready to discuss grievances with the employes themselves, but they absolutely declined to permit the interference of a third party. Lord Claud John Hamilton asserted that he intended, at all costs, to preserve for the directors of his company and the staff they employed the "right to continue to enjoy the privileges of free citizens, untrammeled by the coercion or tyranny of an outside, irresponsible body of men."

It is understood that the management of all the railroads in the United Kingdom have similarly agreed to refuse to recognize the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants as an intermediary between the directors and the men.

PEOPLE WANT LANDS.

Suit From Porto Rico Goes to the Supreme Court.

Washington, D. C.—The case of the people of Porto Rico vs. the Roman Catholic Apostolic church of Porto Rico was docketed Tuesday in the supreme court of the United States. It involves the right of the Catholic church to control the estates formerly owned by the Dominican and Franciscan orders in that island.

The lands of these estates were alienated by the action of the Spanish government in 1838, but the Catholic church claims that the act was not properly carried into effect, and it now seeks to have them restored, claiming that the church is especially dependent since the United States came into authority and separated the church from the state. The supreme court of Porto Rico decided in favor of the church, and ordered that all the lands and former convents be restored to the church. The property embraces three old convents and a number of rural estates.

ERIE CANAL BREAKS.

Canal Boats Are Drawn Into the Vortex.

Syracuse, N. Y.—The stone arches that support the bed of the Erie canal at a point near the center of this city, where it passes over Onondaga creek, gave way and four canal boats were drawn into the bed of the creek beneath. Fifty feet of the wall of the three-story Empire flouring mill fell into the water, and the Barters and Greenwa breweries, respectively on the north and south banks of the canal, were threatened with demolition.

Drank Carbolic Acid.

Memphis, Tenn.—After lying in an unconscious condition for nearly twenty-four hours as the result of horrible burns received by drinking a quantity of carbolic acid, William Francis Haddock, the 18-months-old baby of Mrs. Susan Haddock, died Tuesday. While his mother was out of the room Monday the baby crawled upon a chair and grasping a bottle of carbolic acid, drank a part of its contents. Mr. Haddock, who was at work near by, heard the screams of her child, and rushing into the room found the baby in convulsions. Physicians were hastily summoned, but their efforts were of no avail.

Cold Storage Plant Burns.

Chicago, Ill.—The plant of the Chicago, New York and Boston Refrigerator Company, at Fifty-first street and Central Park avenue, was damaged by fire to the extent of $200,000. The flames, which for a time threatened to destroy the entire establishment, originated by the bursting of an oil pipe in the steel shop.

Moyer Bailed.

Boise, Idaho.—After a delay of thirty-six hours, Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, was released Tuesday at a late hour from the Ada county jail. The bond of $25,000 was signed by Timothy Reagan and Thomas J. Jones, of Boise.

Strike Ultimatum.

Duluth, Minn.—Owners of the United States Steel Corporation have issued an ultimatum to the striking dock employes that unless they return to work in twenty-four hours the corporation would prepare for trouble and cease all intentions of granting concessions.

Koreans as Counterfeiters.

Honolulu.—United States Marshal Hendry has arrested several Koreans charged with counterfeiting $10 gold pieces. The bogus coins are of very good quality so far as appearances go but lack weight and ring.

Riots at Nantes.

Nantes, France.—Four dead, twenty-three officers and soldiers in the hospitals and scores of civilians injured were the results of rioting here.

SOUTHERN R. R. MAY ACCEPT STATE'S [illegible]

Then It May Fight It [illegible] Courts.

HARD TO TELL THE SIT[illegible]

Impression Prevails That [illegible] or Railway System will Away From Present Gro[illegible] Shortly.

Montgomery.—Will the [illegible] railway stop all intra-State [illegible] Alabama because its charter [illegible] revoked by the State? The [illegible] been so quiet over the w[illegible] some of the railroad men [illegible] gomery believe that the [illegible] accept the verdict of the [illegible] Alabama and stop [illegible] hauling freight from [illegible] State to other points [illegible]

The inter-State business of [illegible] will of course be continued [illegible] is protected by the inter-State [illegible] merce law.

If the road should accept [illegible] dict and stop business [illegible] one of the most revolutionary [illegible] trial movements that has ever been made in the State. For instance, a passenger could not go from Anniston to Selma. He would have to take a through train on a [illegible] ticket, and go to Meridian, Miss., ridian he could purchase another ticket and retrace his route until he got to Selma. The same would be true of a carload of freight. The cars for Selma would have to be sent through to Meridian and then shipped to Selma.

The Georgia or Mississippi merchants would be given every advantage of the Alabama merchants. In fact, the Alabama merchant [illegible] depends upon the Southern for transportation would simply be put out of business. The Alabama dealer on the line of the Southern would simply could do nothing but sit and watch the orders pile up on his desk. The trains would run through his town probably without stopping, and in a short time they would be carrying the cars filled with the goods of his out-of-the-State rival.

Will the Southern do this? In view of the situation shown there is not much else for the road to do. Every time an agent sells a ticket, every time an agent takes a load of freight, he is violating the law of the State and is subject to indictment in the State courts.

The State has forbidden the Southern to do any business in Alabama. This was the effect of the revocation of the license of the road. And if the Southern continues to do business, its agents and officers can be hauled into court and fined. So the Southern can continue to do business and violate the law, or it can stop hauling freight and passengers in Alabama.

The road may file a suit for injunction restraining the State from the provisions of Senate bill No. [illegible] has never yet been enjoined. But the State might take some action against the agents and officials who have continued to conduct the business of the road after the State had revoked its license.

So the situation contained [illegible] the strongest probabilities: First, the State would cause some [illegible] ments to be brought; second, the road would cease to do business.

The State has not yet [illegible] through its officials that [illegible] would be brought. Nor has the road announced through its officials that the road would cease its [illegible] business.

But it is in the air that [illegible] is going to happen. It is freely predicted that within two days the [illegible] nous quiet of the situation will be broken with some momentous [illegible] one of the contending parties.

No well informed lawyer [illegible] that the supreme court of the United States would declare illegal and unconstitutional the act by which the railroad was forbidden to do business if it took a case to the federal courts. This very point was discussed in the legislature last winter when [illegible] its question was a bill passing [illegible] the legislature.

A minority of both bodies held the position that no court would uphold the act of a State in breaking a contract and punishing the other party to the contract for something entirely outside of the agreement. But the bill was called an "administration measure," and under whip and spur it was hurried through both houses.

The same point as is covered in the act, but not on the same set, was exhaustively treated in the decision of Judge Jones on one of the "Two Cent Bills." The opinion has been lauded by competent lawyers to be one of the ablest deliverances on this subject in recent years, and inconstrovertible in any court.

Judge Jones held that a State [illegible] forbid a corporation from doing business in its borders. It could refuse to let it for a reason or without a reason. But the opinion held that after a corporation, and thereby entering into a contract with it, the State could not run the corporation out of the State, because of a law of its own making, while the corporation was complying with its contract agreement with the [illegible]

[illegible] and Charleston.

[illegible]—Miss Catherine Gilligan, [illegible] of 10 years and 4 months, [illegible] at her home in the Bronx, New York twenty-eight years, [illegible] from Ireland at the age [illegible] join her eight children. Mrs. [illegible] ascribed her longevity to her [illegible] walking outdoors at every meal [illegible] refusal to worry about anything [illegible] never tasted medicine.

Bingham of Harvard Has Been Stepping in South America.

[illegible] Hiram Bingham of Harvard [illegible] ersity, who, with Dr. Hamilton [illegible] of Boston, has been studying the [illegible] battlefields of Venezuela and Colombia, has returned aboard the Hamburg-American liner Prinz Joachim [illegible] going to South America the [illegible] stopped ten days on Crab Island, which he describes as one of the most beautiful of American possessions.

The island is also known as [illegible]. It is thirteen miles east of Puerto Rico, and is twenty miles long [illegible] six miles wide.

Prof. [illegible] says he was held up at a Colombian frontier town by four soldiers with Mausers, who appeared to [illegible] that the professor and his party were [illegible] of some sort because they had modern rifles and shotguns.

Prof. Bingham said:

"Bolivar on his march of 1000 miles lost all his horses. We lost four of the mules. We crossed swamps [illegible] seemed at first glance impassable; climbed mountains on which there were no roads. We had very little [illegible] subsisting on the wild birds that [illegible]. We were without sugar, coffee and salt for a long time. "My mother was just the same way. We all drink Postum now and, without coffee in the house for 2 years, we are all well.

"A neighbor of mine, a great coffee drinker, was troubled with pains in her side for years and was at times [illegible]. She was not able to do her work and could not even mend clothes or do anything at all where she would have to bend forward. If she tried to do a little hard work she would have such pains that she would have to lie down for the rest of the day.

"At last I persuaded her to stop drinking coffee and try Postum Food Coffee and she did so, and has used Postum ever since; the result has been that she can now do her work, [illegible] all for a whole day and mend and sew on the machine and she never feels the least bit of pain in her back, in fact, she has got well, and it was coffee was the cause of the whole trouble.

"I could also tell you about several other neighbors who have been cured by quitting coffee and using Postum in its place." "There's a Reason." Read in pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

THE STANDARD OIL CO. IS FINED $29,240,000

The Largest Fine Ever Placed on any Company in U. S.

CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Private Contract Stands Untenable—Public Rates Were 19 Cents Per 100, But Trust Allowed Six Cents and Were Fined for It.

Chicago.—Twenty-nine million, two hundred and forty thousand dollars, the greatest fine ever assessed against any corporation in any court in the world, will have to be paid by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey if the statement of United States District Judge Landis, delivered Saturday afternoon, is upheld by the supreme court of the United States.

The court stated emphatically that "while the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, a one-million-dollar corporation, is the nominal defendant, that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, whose capital is one hundred millions, is the real defendant."

At the close of the reading of the lengthy decision, another great surprise was caused when Judge Landis ordered the drawing of a grand jury for the purpose of indicting the railroads and officials charged with having paid the oil company illegal rebates for the acceptance of which the trust was indicted.

Chauncey W. Martin and Merritt Starr appeared representing the Standard, as John S. Miller and A. D. Eddy, the chief counsel, are now in Europe. District Attorney Edward W. Sims, his assistant, James Wilkerson and Robert W. Childs appeared for the government.

The assessment of the tremendous fine by the court almost caused a panic in the court room. The attorneys for the trust were for the moment almost unable to speak. They had believed the court would hesitate to assess the minimum fine of $1,000,000.

Attorney Starr was the first to speak. He made a brief argument in arrest of judgment. Judge Landis overruled the motion for an arrest of judgment, and declared he was anxious to have the case go to the supreme court for a review. After some further talk, however, Judge Landis granted the sixty days in which the defendants may prepare their bill of exceptions.

Wall Street Can't Pay It.

New York.—The $29,240,000 fine imposed by the federal court in Chicago on the Standard Oil Company for receiving rebates dazed Wall street. The case will be appealed. Otherwise it would be a disaster, for there is not $29,000,000 in cash available in Wall street for any purpose whatever just now.

Bad Ammunition Used.

Paris.—After the recent naval maneuvers reports were current that the shells used were bad and burst prematurely. These reports are confirmed now by Admiral Teuchard in an interview in the Matin. He says that the shooting was attended with results which candidly were bad. The premature bursting of sheels was not confined to the smaller guns. The battleship Suffern had six premature explosions out of twenty shells fired, the Republique one and the Carnot eleven premature explosions out of twelve shots fired, and some of these shells burst within fifty yards of the ship. Thanks to the initial velocity of the black powder used, the admiral said, there were no accidents, but that would not have been the result had melinite been used.

For States' Rights.

Elkhart, Ind.—Governor Hanley, of Indiana, in an address before the Chautauqua assembly here took issue with Senator Beveridge's child labor regulation ideas, with President Roosevelt's inheritance tax ideas, and the general proposition that the national government was to take charge of the affairs of the various states in the Union. He took ground upholding the sovereignty of the states, and declared that the states, and not the national government, should solve the problems that are coming up for solution.

Graft in Furniture Contract.

Beach Haven, N. J.—Charles D. Montague, of Brooklyn, an expert on metal furniture, showed by his report submitted to the Pennsylvania capitol investigating committee that the state was mulcted out of more than $1,500,000 on a $2,000,000 contract for metallic furniture. Mr. Montague estimates that had the contractors paid $412,000 they would still have made a handsome profit.

Emperors Present Prizes.

Swinemund, Prussia.—Emperor William conducted divine service on board the royal yacht Hohenzollern. Emperor Nicholas was present. At noon Emperor William with Prince von Buenow, the imperial chancellor, and his suite attended a special service and had luncheon aboard the Russian royal yacht Standart, and during the afternoon witnessed races between launches and cutters from the warships.

DIAMONDS FOUND IN ARKANSAS.

A Farmer Picks Up Dge Hundred and Forty Stones.

Little Rock, Ark.—Diamonds to the number of 140 have been picked up in Pike county, Arkansas, two and a half miles from Murfreesboro. The first find of two diamonds was made several months ago by John Wesley Huddleston on his farm. He sent them to Charles S. Riff, a jeweler and diamond merchant of Little Rock. They were pronounced genuine first by him, afterwards by the diamond experts of Mermod & Jaccard, King & Co., Boland & Sons of St. Louis, Arnstein Bros. & Co. of New York, and finally by Dr. George F. Kunzs, vice-president of the Tiffany Company, New York, and a member of the United States geological survey, who, however, said that diamonds had been found in twenty-nine different places in the United States, but they were of a glacial formation, therefore he would not go on record until after examining the strata where the diamonds were discovered. He afterwards declared the diamonds genuine.

MAGNIFICENT PAGEANT.

British Home Fleet Parades Before the King and Queen.

Portsmouth.—The 200 ships of war, constituting Great Britain's home fleet, paraded before King Edward and Queen Alexandra on the Solent, and incidentally furnished a magnificent pageant for the opening of the annual Cowes regatta week. Spread out in seven long lines between the Isle of Wight and the Hampshire shore, this splendid array of vessels, great and small, formed a floating steel city with a population of 35,000 officers and men. Never before have so many British men-of-war been seen together under the control of a single admiral. From the battleship Dreadnought down to the smallest submarine every vessel was decorated from stem to stern with flags. The crews were assembled on deck, and as the king and queen, on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, passed down the lines, each ship's company gave a rousing cheer. For eleven miles up and down the king and queen steamed between steel walls.

BURNED TOURING CAR.

Farmers Mob Automobile Party for Running Over Boy.

Chicago.—Mobbed by farmers after their big touring car had accidentally run over a little boy, S. B. Chapin, millionaire broker, a son of Louis F. Swift, millionaire packer, and two women companions, one of whom was Mr. Chapin's wife, are said to have been driven from the automobile in the vicinity of Deerfield, Ill., forced to stand and look on while the big automobile was incinerated in a big bonfire that the farmers built under it, and then compelled to walk two miles through the country before they could find an accommodating driver who would take them to the Moraine hotel, in Highland Park.

LODZ HAS FURTHER TROUBLE.

The Troops Meet the Strikers and Kill Thirty of Them.

Lodz.—This city is again the scene of a violent movement, accompanied by violence, disorder and death.

The troops have encountered the strikers in the center of the city and some thirty men have been killed or wounded in this fight alone. Business is at a standstill and fears are entertained of what a day may bring forth. The trouble came to a head Wednesday, and in spite of the aggressive stand taken by the authorities, the disorders are recommenced early on Thursday morning.

Will Take Four Night Courts.

New York.—There is so much crime in New York after dark that it probably will be necessary to establish four night courts instead of the one which was formally opened in Jefferson Market recently. The suggestion was made at a meeting of the board of magistrates after it had been stated that every prisoner arrested between 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 2 o'clock in the morning in the entire forty-two precincts of Manhattan would have to be arraigned in the one court, and that in the first seven days of July the number of arrests in those hours had made an average of 371 a day.

Father Murders Daughter.

Vienna.—A Hungarian peasant at Neusando, charged with murdering his 18-year-old daughter, admitted the crime, but pleaded that she was so ugly he had no chance of getting her married. The jury decided that this plea established extenuating circumstances and brought in a verdict of manslaughter. The court accepted this and sentenced the prisoner to three years.

Filipinos Can't Govern Themselves.

Washington, D. C.—As a result of the recent election in the Philippines, war department officials have concluded that the Filipino people are wholly unfit for self-government—even for the small measure of self-government provided for by existing law. It is planned to ask congress at its next session to repeal the enactment providing for the gradual participation of the natives in their governing and to return to absolute military control.

WILLIAMS WINS IN THE SENATORIAL RACE

His Majority Ranges From About 1450 to 2200

VARDAMAN, HASN'T GIVEN UP.

Already, It is Said, There is a Report That Governor Vardaman Will Oppose Senator McLaurin Four Years Hence.

Jackson, Miss.—There has been no material change in the senatorial contest since a canvass of the official returns, as reported by county executive committees, was completed at an early hour Sunday morning.

The nomination of Congressman John Sharp Williams is generally conceded by a majority ranging from 1,450 to 2,200 votes. Governor Vardaman, however, with characteristic tenacity, does not concede defeat, but at the same time he does not assert victory by a stated majority, thus giving rise to the belief that his assertion is based more on hope than actual figures.

Unless Governor Vardaman has a card yet to play of which his opponent has no suspicion, his chances for a seat in the United States senate are no better than those of any other citizen. Already, however, there is a report current to the effect that he will oppose United States Senator McLaurin four years hence, having fully demonstrated by this remarkable race that he is a political power to be reckoned with in Mississippi, both now and in the future.

The report is current in political circles that Governor Vardaman will demand a recount of the senatorial vote in several counties, being convinced that the vote as reported by the local executive committees is not correct. Nothing official to this effect has been given out, but the report comes from the governor's intimate friends.

Governor Vardaman makes no estimate, but insists that he will win by a small majority.

Later returns render it assured that the second race for governor will be between J. N. Noel and Earl Brewer, both with not over 500 votes between them.

JAPAN SENT IT.

New York Business Men Receive Petition From That Country.

New York.—The New York chamber of commerce has received from the chambers of commerce of Tokio, Osaka, Kiota, Yokohama and Kobe the text of a joint petition to use its good offices toward offsetting the anti-Japanese sentiment in this country. Copies of the same petition have been sent to other cities in the United States. The appeal is in Japanese, accompanied by an English translation, and it is signed by the presidents of the five Japanese commercial bodies. After speaking of the attitude of California towards Japanese residents and the attacks on them, the petition says that it is seriously to be feared that unless the ill feeling which Japanese are now constrained to harbor against the people of a single section may have an unhappy effect upon commercial relations between the two nations.

"DIXIE" IS NO GOOD.

So Say the Republicans of Indian Territory.

Tulsa, I. T.—The first applause elicited in the republican state convention was for Secretary of War Taft. A large banner bearing the words "Hear Taft Thursday at Oklahoma City August 24," had been stretched across the stand, and when the delegate spied it they cheered lustily.

Before the convention was called to order the time was spent in singing patriotic airs, a chorus of 150 young women leading. The hundreds of delegates and visitors had joined in singing "Marching Through Georgia," when a delegate suggested "Dixie." In a moment some one interposed: "We want no Dixie here. This is not a Dixie convention." Delegates near enough to the platform to catch the sentence applauded it.

Americans Expelled.

Berlin.—As the result of a fight between American and German tourists on the steamship Oceana, in from a cruise of Scandinavia, the captain expelled R. H. Hood and wife, of New York, at Molde, Norway. Americans and Englishmen denounce the captain for the act, saying he refused to refund Hood's passage money. Passengers say a German named Pick insulted Mrs. Hood. Hood knocked Pick down, and the German challenged him to duel with swords or pistols. Hood refused, but when Pick said, "I will shoot you like a dog," Hood said he would shoot in self-defense.

Left Business to Six Employes.

New York.—Dying in St. Vincent's Hospital from the wound inflicted by Frank H. Warner, who just before had killed his former cashier, Miss Nerling, John C. Wilson, a hat manufacturer, left his business and personal estate, valued at more than $100,000, to six of his employes and Bernard J. McCann, an old friend, to share and share alike. Mr. Wilson was unmarried and had no near relatives.

DROWNED LIKE RATS.

Train Jumps the Track When Entering Bridge and Goes Into River.

Algiers, France.—Forty passengers in a third-class railroad car and the engineer of the train were drowned in a railroad accident three miles southeast of this town. The locomotive of a crowded local train jumped the track when entering the bridge over the River Loire. The stone railing gave way and the engine plunged into the river fifty feet below, dragging down with it its tender and the baggage and third-class cars. Fortunately no other cars went into the water, as the coupling between the second and third cars broke.

The third car was well filled with passengers, but although part of the roof was blown off by the confined air as it sank, not a single passenger extricated himself and all were drowned like rats in a trap. The engineer perished beneath the locomotive.

CHINA DID IT.

And Not Japan—They Caused the Warships to Move.

Chicago, Ill.—A special to the Record-Herald from Washington says:

It is China, and not even remotely Japan, that caused the Washington authorities to choose the Pacific as the next practice ground for a big battleship squadron, according to the deductions of some students of affairs in the east.

China, as an entity, it is believed in certain circles, is a condition as precarious as the health of the dowager empress, and that when failing health of the latter leads to its inevitable end the empire will face a crisis that will make it wise for the United States to have a presentable naval force within easy sailing distance.

EDITOR IS ASSASSINATED.

B. M. Scott Is Found on Sidewalk With Bullet Holes in His Head.

Little Rock, Ark.—A special to the Gazette from Helena, Ark., says: B. M. Scott, city editor of the Helena World, was found on the sidewalk Sunday. Two bullets had entered his head, and although he lived a few hours after being found, was unable to make a statement. So far no clue to the assassin exists.

A month ago an attempt was made to kill Mr. Scott. He was attracted to the rear of his office by a noise, and on approaching to ascertain the cause two shots were fired at him. He began firing in return and his assailants fled. He was not able to identify them.

Rob Uncle Sam at Navy Yard.

Washington, D. C.—That the government has been robbed of thousands of dollars by a systematic plan of fraud carried on under the very noses of officials of the navy yard is the report that was circulated at the navy department. According to the reports the yards' authorities became suspicious of the light weight of some of the cars and upon reweighing the cars which had been loaded a large shortage of material, consisting of scrap brass, copper, etc., was discovered. The navy yard officials immediately compared weights of other cars upon which the contractor had paid freight to the railroad company with the yard weights and a discrepancy was discovered in this consignment of nearly 70,000 pounds of scrap bronze and copper.

Littleton Chief Counsel for Thaw.

New York.—Martin W. Littleton, former president of the borough of Brooklyn, has been appointed chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw, and will continue as such until after the next trial of the young Pittsburg millionaire on a charge of killing Stanford White. It was understood that Mr. Littleton will receive a fee of $25,000 for his work. After the announcement of his retention had been made by Mr. O'Reilly, the young Brooklyn lawyer said: "I have accepted this case with the distinct understanding that no one is to interfere with me in any manner, and that I shall have the sole conduct of the case. Mr. O'Reilly and Mr. Peabody will assist me."

Another Assassination.

Piatigorsk.—General Karakozoff, ex-governor-general of Odessa, was shot and killed in the center of the town early Monday morning. The assassin escaped. General Karakozoff was a commander of the Lubna Dragoons when, July 3, 1905, he was appointed governor-general of Odessa. Early in August of the same year he banished M. Yaroschanko, mayor of Odessa, for having represented Odessa at the Moscow zemstvo congress and later he took severe measures to repress disturbances, instructing the police to fire directly into the mob. He was succeeded as governor-general by General Kaulbars on October 31 1905.

Mrs. Herrick Sues Doctor for Alimony.

Toledo, O.—Social circles here were startled when Mrs. Ray May Herrick, 35 years old, filed suit in the common pleas court against Dr. Parmalee, one of the oldest and most prominent physicians of Toledo, for $10,000 as damages for blows she alleges he took without her consent. She says the physician embraced her when she visited him professionally last January.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Probably there would be no fun in feeling lazy if we didn't have to work.

A financial genius is a man who can have a family and money at the same time.

The man who invented curling tongs has made more curly heads than the Lord.

A girl can pretend she doesn't want you to kiss her till just the minute you do it.

A man doesn't care whether you call it income or just plain pay if there is plenty of it.

A woman does a lot of worrying just to satisfy herself that she is a good mother.

A woman would rather be right in an argument with her husband than have him president.

A man is so proud of his strong will that he brags about never eating a thing he doesn't like.

Smoking costs a lot, but swearing off costs a lot more trying to find as much enjoyment in something else.

A man imagines he is having a fine time if he can sit on the piazza in his shirt sleeves even when he is cold.

Some women are so conscientious they won't spend any more money on clothes than they can get hold of.

A man has an angelic disposition when he doesn't say the coffee is cold because his suspender button came off.

There are lots of women that the others would never speak to if they weren't afraid they'd miss the things they say about people.

What a woman likes about giving a reception is the way all the people tell her what a good time they had when she knows they didn't.

A nice thing for people who are engaged is it doesn't seem to make any difference to them how big fools they make of themselves, and that's the way to have fun.—From "Reflections of a Bachelor," in the New York Press.

SKIN SORE FOR EIGHT YEARS

Spent $300 on Doctors and Remedies, But Got No Relief—Cuticura Cures in a Week.

"Upon the limbs and between the toes my skin was rough and sore, and also sore under the arms. I had to stay at home several times because of this affection. Up to a week or so ago I had tried many other remedies and several doctors, and spent about three hundred dollars, without any success, but this is to-day the seventh day, that I have been using the Cuticura Remedies (costing a dollar and a half), which have cured me completely, so that I can again attend to my business. I went to work again to-night. I had been suffering for eight years and have now been cured by the Cuticura Remedies within a week. Fritz Hirschlaff, 24 Columbus Ave., New York, N. Y., March 29 and April 6, 1906."

Self-Complacency.

When Nelson's famous signal, "England expects every man to do his duty," was given at Trafalgar, a Scottish sailor complained to a fellow countryman. "Not a word o' pair auld Scotland." Guarding the Honorable Toes of Japan.

London despatches, dated May 7, say that after some backing and filling, and much discussion and many jibers, formal notice has been sent to Mrs. D'Oyly Carte that "The Mikado" must not be produced in England, and she has given orders withdrawing it from the stage. It may return sometime, when Japanese approval is less essential to British comfort than it is at present. Meanwhile the mass of ethnological knowledge has been enriched by the observation that the Japanese have the most extended and sensitive toes in the world. It seems inconvenient for the moment to ascertain how hard a nation with such toes can kick.—Harper's Weekly.

Family arguments are always run under forced draught.

It is scarcity of their remarks that makes some women remarkable.

The work of exhuming the bodies of eighteen pioneer citizens of Gainesville was begun under the supervision of Undertaker Dorsey, of Gainesville. The lot where these bodies were buried is on the same block with the city hall, almost in the center of the business portion of the city. In the years past, when these bodies were laid to rest in the quiet church yard, a city at that place was then unthought of.

JOSEPH F. JOHNSTON was duly elected to the U. S. Senate last Tuesday for the short and long term, to succeed the late E. W. Pettus. The short term expires March, 1909, and the long term in March, 1915.

THE license of the Southern railway to do business in Alabama has been revoked by the action of Secretary of State Julian, for violation of Senate bill, No. 86, effective July 1, 1907. The railway company is doing business as usual, however.

IN the U. S. District Court at Chicago, Judge Landis fined the Standard Oil Co. $29,240,000 for violation of the law against accepting rebates from railroads. Counting the cash will be an interesting time.

Newspaper Prices.

Several newspapers in the State have increased their prices and others are discussing it. The Birmingham Ledger increased its subscription price and put on a larger news service and has enjoyed a very large increase in subscription, holding almost entirely its old subscribers. It was a highly profitable move for the paper and its readers.

The great increase in the cost of everything entering into the cost of a newspaper, justifies the increase in subscription price. The Ledger believes that where a paper covers its field and the editors do their duty in the way of putting brains and energy into their papers they can get two dollars a year as readily as one. The papers are worth it.

The Ledger has before it at this moment six weekly papers that are easily worth $2. They are carefully edited, they are filled with the local news and they have intelligent comment on the news of the State and Nation.

The Ledger believes that if the papers are made excellent and command the respect of the people, they cannot only get a fair price for subscription and advertising, but a higher degree of respect. There is no sense in a newspaper man being a public burden bearer, just for love of his profession. He can get more if he demands it properly.—Birmingham Ledger.

Absurdity of War Talk.

War in modern times presupposes some fundamental dispute or antagonism that cannot be dealt with by diplomacy or arbitration. Furthermore, war is usually attended by deep feeling on both sides. But it so happens that there does not now exist, nor has there ever existed, any cause of war whatsoever between Japan and the United States. Nor is there any warlike feeling in this country against Japan. On the part of the public men and influential people of Japan, furthermore, there is no warlike feeling toward the United States. Neither is there any question of interest involved, such as leads nations sometimes to find pretext of war because of some conquest or acquisition they desire to make. Japan posses nothing that we could acquire or could possibly wish to gain. We, on the other hand, have nothing that Japan could hope to gain and hold with benefit to herself, as the result, even of a successful campaign.—From "The Progress of the World" in the American Review of Reviews for August.

In New Zealand and Australia, women have had the full ballot for many years, but are rarely chosen to municipial office. In Kansas, they have had the municipal vote for twenty years, and are occasionally elected mayors and city councillors. In Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Idaho, where women have the full ballot, they are of course eligible to municipal office, and they are in especial request as city and town treasurers, perhaps because of their honesty.

ANOTHER WAREHOUSE FOR CLANTON.

Farmers of Chilton county held a meeting at the court house, Clanton, Monday, Aug. 5, and decided upon building a second warehouse in Clanton. The majority of those present were members of the Farmers' Union, but this is not an official movement of that body, but an entirely independent one, although in consonance with the ideas of the Farmers' Union. R. J. Williams was elected chairman of the meeting, and J. N. Dennis, secretary.

After considerable discussion it was resolved to form a stock company, with a capital stock of $5,000. The company was organized with L. H. Reynolds, president, and J. N. Dennis, secretary and treasurer. Seven directors were elected, but we were unable to obtain their names. Sixty-six of those present subscribed for stock in the new company, the amount subscribed for not being given.

The meeting adjourned until next Tuesday, Aug. 13, when the organization will be completed.

ALABAMA STATE FAIR,
At Birmingham, October 8-16, 1907.

The management of the Alabama State Fair to be held in Birmingham October 8 to 16, inclusive, is making extensive preparations for a complete exhibition of the State's industries and resources, including complete Agricultural, Mineral and Mechanical displays, with a full exhibition of domestic industries, comprising all species of woman's work and a demonstration of pure foods and educational exhibit.

Much attention will be given to stock and poultry and a fine racing programme is arranged for each afternoon.

Contracts have been made for clean, high-class amusements, midway athletic and pyrotechnic entertainment. The entire program has been arranged to furnish amusement for each visitor to the Fair, and is replete with instruction and enjoyment.

A full catalogue and premium list has been compiled, offering liberal money prizes for work in all classes, besides many handsome special premiums for the merchants of Birmingham for prize winners, among them a magnificent piano to be given away on the last day of the Fair. The catalog will be sent to any address upon request to the Secretary, Birmingham, Ala.

The Fair is a State enterprise, and invites the interest, patronage and co-operation of every citizen in Alabama.

The Man On The Corner.

Abe Kanter, but everyone knows Abe, of W. Kanter & Bro., the original and only Abe. For ladies' goods there is no better place to deal between Montgomery and Birmingham, and Abe is so polite the ladies always appreciate it.

Who doesn't know Spigener & Jones, the hardware people? W. D. Spigener is quiet and always ready for business, while his partner, C. F. Jones, is the model of elegance and politeness. An iron pot purchased of Mr Jones assumes at once the elegance of a silver vessel.

My Hair is Scraggly

Do you like it? Then why be contented with it? Have to be? Oh, no! Just put on Ayer's Hair Vigor and have long, thick hair; soft, even hair. But first of all, stop your hair from coming out. Save what you have. Ayer's Hair Vigor will not disappoint you. It feeds the hair-bulbs; makes weak hair strong.

CHILTON COTTON REPORTS.

The following reports have been received by President Seymour of the Alabama division of the Southern Cotton Association, in reply to the following request:

"What changes for the better or worse have crops of cotton and food stuffs undergone in your county in the last two weeks? What percentage of an average crop of cotton and food stuffs in your county do you think can reasonably be counted on this year? With most favorable condition from now on, what, in your judgement, is the greatest possible yield of cotton that could be expected?"

Reports are based upon conditions obtained August 1.

Chilton County. F. A. Gulledge—Conditions in past ten days stationary. Under most favorable conditions from now on 85 to 90 per cent of full crop. Corn improved in last two weeks 50 per cent, though it has suffered some from heat and dry. Everything favorable, can't make over 75 per cent of a crop.

Chilton County, W. H. Killingsworth—Crop conditions have not improved in the past two weeks. Corn is suffering for rain. Cotton is not doing well on account of rust and insects. With most favorable conditions, dont think we will average more than 50 per cent cotton.

APPLICATION FOR CHANGE OF DISTRICT.

At the regular July meeting of the Chilton School Board the following applications were made and accepted, and notice of final hearing was set for Saturday, August 10, 1907:

For a change of the lines between Districts No. 80 (Maple Springs) and No. 67 (Samaria) so as to include W. C. Giles and Greer Culver in district No. 67 (Samaria).

Done by order of the Board in session this 6th day of July, 1907.

Remedy for Diarrhoea, Never Known to Fail.

I want to say a few words for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I have used this preparation in my family for the past five years and have recommended it to a number of people in York county and have never known it to fail to effect a cure in any instance. I feel that I cannot say too much for the best remedy of the kind in the world."—S. JENISON, Spring Grove, York County, Pa. This remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

NOTICE.

On the 10th of August we will meet at Old Mount Hope grave yard for the purpose of cleaning it off. All that have any interest please attend. Respectfully.

Pleasant Grove.

Now is the time to sow your turnip patch, if you have not already done so. I have sowed my patch and they are up and looking nice. I heard a renter say he was not going to sow any turnips because he was not going to live at the same place next year. Now, Mr. Editor, just such as this is a great drawback to our country. If every family would plant a turnip patch, it matters not where they live next year, they would have a turnip patch.

Show me a man that is afraid to have a turnip patch, or plant a fruit tree, clean out a fence corner, or put a rail on the fence, or clean off a ditch bank, and I will show you a man that is in a bad row for stumps. Show me a man, though he may be a renter, that is not afraid he will do something that will help someone, and I will show you a man that can always find a good home.

Next winter if I should be eating turnips and pot-liquor those rainy days, and my neighbor don't have any, he can't blame me for it, for he had as good a chance as I had.

Now, Mr. Editor, I can see my neighbor's faults, and why can't I see my own? BIG IKE.

Richburg, Miss., Aug. 5, 1907

As we have not been heard from for some time, we will give you the news of our town.

Health of our community is very good.

Miss Pearl Woodly is progressing nicely with her school.

The entertainment at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McClure Saturday night was a succes; was enjoyed by all who attended. Mr. and Mrs. Harington returned Sunday night after a short honey moon.

Mr. J. S. Ruddick and Miss Lizzie Harbin were quietly married at the home of the bride Sunday at 5:30 p.m; we wish them a long and happy life.

Best wishes to the Banner and its readers. BROWN EYED GIRL.

"We never repent of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to everyone without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

Avondale, Ala., Aug 5, 1907

We are sorry to say Miss Lela Henley and her brother, James Henley, have been on the sick list, but glad they are improving.

Miss Fannie McCary is visiting friends and relatives at McFall, Ala Hope for her a nice time.

Miss Ira Lentz is visiting Athens, where she will spend several weeks

Miss Maggie McPherson left last Tuesday for Lacon, to spend a couple of weeks.

The young people enjoyed the entertainment at Mr Bushe's very much Saturday night; hope to have another one soon.

What has become of the writers from Sardis? Are you all dead? I have not seen a piece from them in some time. Come again, Blue Eyes, I enjoy your pieces very much, but would enjoy them better if they were longer.

Well, I don't see so much about the "spencery" now. All must have red eyes by this time. PUG.

Enterprise.

Rev. Robert Jones will lecture at Enterprise on the night of August 21. I hope all the Cheerful Addie Mercy Band members will be present. Come one, come all.

Yours sincerely,
W. L. DAVIS.

Flint Hill.

There will be a public meeting at Macedonia by Flint Hill Union, on Saturday, August 17, to broaden the course of unity, which will be ably discussed by Tipton Mullins, P. F. Barker, L. H. Reynolds and others. Come all, especially the ladies, and bring your baskets.

EX-GOVERNOR JOHNSTON NOMINATED SENATOR

Legislature in Joint Session Thursday so Decided

ELECTED FOR TWO TERMS.

In a Brief Address He Pledges His Best Energy to the Service of the State of Alabama, the Nation and the World.

Montgomery, Ala.—Joseph Forney Johnston was Thursday declared the democratic nominee for the next federal senator from this state to succeed the late Edmund Pettus, for the short and the long term.

The house and senate held a joint caucus at 1 o'clock. A committee of five was appointed to notify Governor Johnston of his election. Cheers and prolonged applause greeted the former governor as he entered the house and took his place at the rostrum to address the legislature.

Governor Johnston began by saying that for many years he had had an ambition to represent the people of Alabama in the senate, and after many struggles he stood before them and acknowledged thanks for the honor. He promised faithful service and that no hope of reward would stand between him and his sense of duty.

He had, however, no elation in his heart and no pride of success, because his duties in the office were overshadowed by the memory of the illustrious Pettus.

He congratulated the legislature on their work and went on to say that he would stand for democratic principles in the senate and local self-government (great applause), and that he was opposed to government by injunction. (Prolonged applause.)

He said that the preservation of state's rights was one of the gravest issues that now confronted the people and spoke of the aggression of the central government and urged the states to stand firm.

The former governor concluded by saying that he would stand in the senate first for the interests and welfare of Alabama, second for the people of the United States and third for the world at large. (Laughter and applause.)

St. Andrews Bay Road.

A committee looking after the interests of the Birmingham, Columbus and St. Andrews Bay railroad was in Brundidge Monday and interviewed the citizens regarding the project of bringing the road through there, instead of the original route proposed along the Chattahoochee. A public meeting was held Monday night, at which time the matter was discussed, the result of which being that a committee was appointed to ascertain what inducements Brundidge would offer to get the railroad. The committee consists of Messrs. B. H. Boyd, T. C. Bass and M. Lightfoot. It is understood that one of them has obtained several thousand dollars in subscriptions. The railroad men went from there to Union Springs, where they held a similar meeting Tuesday.

Illinois Central at Red Bay.

The Illinois Central railroad reached Red Bay Saturday, the track being laid through the town that day. Tracklaying will continue about two miles south of Red Bay, where it will be stopped by grade work for probably four months longer. The railroad people have notified shippers that they will be prepared to handle freight from Red Bay to the north in a very short time. Several cotton buyers will make that point headquarters this season, and it is expected that heavy shipments will go forward from there. Five saw mills in and around the town are rushed to their full capacity supplying the numerous local demands for building material that has sprung up with the building of the new town.

Horse Swappers' Convention.

The annual horse swappers' convention of DeKalb county will meet in Collinsville on Thursday before the second Saturday in August and continue in session for three days, embracing the 8th, 9th and 10th. A big barbecue will be held and substantial prizes offered to those making the greatest number of trades.

Tuscumbia Papers Merge.

The North Alabamian and Tuscumbia Dispatch, owned and published jointly by John W. Davis in Tuscumbia, have been merged into one paper, to be known as the Alabamian-Dispatch, the change being made with the issue of last week. Editor Davis has owned the Dispatch for the past two years and the North Alabamian since last February. The merger gives Tuscumbia but one weekly.

Postoffice for Selma.

New fixtures for the postoffice have arrived and will soon be placed in position.

A STRANGE STORY.

Validity of the Charter of Washington's School Attacked.

New York.—Lawyer Alfred Cowen, in a brief submitted in the courts here, questions the validity of the charter of Booker T. Washington's institution at Tuskegee. The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, trustee under the will of Catherine Ann Tenyck, is seeking to have the estate partitioned. Lawyer Cowen is opposing on behalf of the eight defendants who contest the will of Mary E. Shaw, one of the legatees under the Tenyck will.

The contest has brought about a strange story. Catherine Tenyck, a mulatto, whose husband was a servant in the house of the old Dutch Tenycks, amassed a fortune and was known as the richest negro in the north.

Among Catherine E. Tenyck's servants was Mary E. Shaw, for whom she developed a strong affection. She made her residuary legatee, with authority to dispose of it by will to such persons or person as she saw fit. In possession of the property, Mary Shaw went to Europe, where she spent $100,000 trying to break into society. She failed and returned here broken in health. She was accompanied by a West Indian negro, for whom she left her husband. She made a will bequeathing $50,000 to her husband, the remainder of the trust and estate to friends and relatives, the Tuskegee Institute and other institutions.

Lawyer Cowen cites authorities to show that a person is not a corporation; that the Shaw woman's will did not comply with the provisions of the Tenyck will. He then refers to the charter of the Tuskegee Institute, which he attacks.

A COPPERHEAD DID IT.

Snake in Keg of Beer Causes the Death of Four Persons.

Ashland, Ky.—A copperhead snake, which had crawled into a beer keg and died, caused the death of "Red" Popham, Samuel Biggs, Will Simpson and Carey Rurner in an outing camp at Welch, fifteen miles distant in the mountains, and will probably end the lives of Samuel Willis and Walter Johnson.

This is the story of Randolph Dunbar, who came from the camp and returned with a doctor, an undertaker and four coffins. He told this story:

"With seven other men I went to Welch, intending to remain one week. We took several kegs of beer. The journey over the mountains is rough, and I assume the beer accumulated an extra amount of gas. One keg was partly submerged in a spring and the bung flew out. All who drank the beer became ill and four quickly expired. An investigation revealed a big copperhead snake in the keg. I left Joe Strange with the dead and dying and boarded a tram car and hurried down the mountain side to Ashland."

PEARY TO START.

Steamer Is Now Being Fitted for the Trip to the Pole.

Portland, Me.—Commander Robert E. Peary, who is staying with his family at Eagle Island, states that he will start for New York and then for the north just as soon as the boilers are installed in the Roosevelt. He could not state definitely when that will be, but hopes to start within a week. He expects to be in winter quarters by September 5. There will be no change either in his general course or in the size of his party, which this time will not be divided at all, but will be kept in a compact body.

Commander Peary said that he had acquired no "new-fangled ideas" and that he knows just what he needs and will take that and nothing more. None of his family is going with him.

SCHMITZ STILL FIGHTS.

Former Mayor Believes He Still Holds Executive Office.

San Francisco, Cal.—The issue between the board of supervisors appointed by Mayor Taylor and the fourteen men named by ex-Mayor Schmitz for the same offices was brought into the courts, when presiding Judge Coffee, on application of counsel on behalf of Taylor's appointees, issued a temporary restraining order to prevent Schmitz from making any move toward assuming office. It is asserted that Police Chief Dinan intends to aid the fourteen unlicensed men in a raid upon the supervisor's offices, and the court is asked to restrain them all from doing anything in this direction.

Will Not Be a Candidate.

Detroit, Mich.—"Uncle Joe" Cannon in an address to visitors at Mackinac Island was introduced to the meeting by the chairman as possibly the next president. "You are premature in making that announcement," said Speaker Cannon, "for I will not be a candidate." Mr. Cannon's lecture was on Abraham Lincoln.

Insane Mother's Deed.

Baltimore, Md.—During a recurrence of insanity which has caused her to be thrice confined in an insane asylum, Mrs. Christine Nenadel, aged 36, the wife of Joseph Nenadel, strangled her two small children.

St. Paul, Minn.—Judge Van Deventer has enjoined the secretary of state of Arkansas from forfeiting the right of the Rock Island to do business in Arkansas.

State News.

Water for Wylam.

The Birmingham Water Works Company has had a man soliciting Wylam this week to ascertain the number of people who wish to subscribe for water. A large majority of the citizens want it.

Heat Prostration in Huntsville.

Jake Tatum, a negro drayman, was prostrated by the heat Thursday afternoon and fell from his dray unconscious into the street. This is the third prostration that has occurred there during the week.

Worship in Open Air.

The Pastors' Association of Florence has inaugurated a novel arrangement for the comfort of churchgoers these hot Sunday nights—a union service in the City Park each Sunday evening from 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock.

Fire at Marion.

Fire destroyed the Southern railway freight and passenger station at Marion, together with several thousand dollars' worth of freight. The entire building and contents, books, papers and records, were destroyed.

To Have Union Warehouse.

The Jefferson County Farmers' Union, at its meeting this week at Mount Pinson, located the county warehouse at Bessemer and appointed a committee, consisting of J. R. Reeves, M. M. Gwin and J. P. McLain, to take charge of the matter to solicit stock and subscriptions

Furnace May Resume Work.

Rumor has it that the Talladega furnace has been sold and will be put in blast, but it had from authoritative source that the deal is not yet made, but negotiations are progressing favorably, and a final consummation of the deal is looked forward to with a great deal of certainty.

An Ice Famine.

The ice plant at Gadsden had a breakdown during the early part of the week and the reserve was soon used up, and it has been impossible to catch up again. Several carloads have been brought in from nearby cities, but customers and drays are standing in waiting and the supply from this source is soon exhausted.

Selma to Have New Power Plant.

It is stated that Col. F. M. Abbott, president of the Selma Street and Suburban Railway Company, has purchased the water rights on Mulberry creek, in Autauga county. It was also stated that the contract for building the dam and for the erection of a power house had been closed and that the work would be started within a short time.

Second Death in the Family.

The 12-months-old daughter of Mr. S. W. Compton at Demopolis, county superintendent of education, died on Wednesday and was buried Thursday in the family burial ground near Myrtlewood. This makes the second death in Mr. Compton's family in less than two weeks, another little daughter having died at about that time.

Is Given Ovation.

The return of Senator D. M. White to Goodwater was the occasion of the greatest demonstration the people of ter, war correspondent and close friend of President Roosevelt, has made the statement that the president should be king of the United States. McQueen denounced self-government such as exists in the United States.

Father O'Reilly's Monument.

Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock the ceremony of unveiling the monument to the memory of the Rev. Father P. A. O'Reilly was held on the grounds adjoining St. Vincent's hospital, Birmingham. The monument represents a recognition of the love and esteem which the citizens of Birmingham and the district entertain for the memory of the deceased.

Did Damage of $10,000.

Fire in the boiler rooms of the Holland-Blow Stave Company at Decatur burned the engine and boiler rooms and damaged the heading sheds. The estimated damage to machinery and building is between $8,000 and $10,000, covered by insurance. The plant will be rebuilt at once.

Mill at DuPont's Explodes.

Two men, a negro night watchman and a white man in charge of the glazing mill, were blown into atoms, and both the corning and glazing mills completely wrecked by an explosion at the E. I. DuPont Powder Company's plant, which is located about two miles beyond North Birmingham, and about a mile and a half west of Boyles.

Injured Under Car.

J. H. Rudd, an employe of the Legarde Lime and Stone Company, was seriously injured at the company's plant near Gadsden. A car which runs on an incline track broke loose and struck Rudd, breaking his right leg and crushed his left hand and arm into a pulp. Several other workmen were slightly injured, and it is a miracle that they were not killed, as the car was heavily loaded and dashed upon the men without warning.

THE GOVERNOR OF NORTH CAROLINA SAID TO THE GOVERNOR OF SOUTH CAROLINA—"

—Cartoon From Judge.

Copyright 1907, by Judge Publishing Company.

THE "DRY" SOUTH

Not a State in the Cotton Belt But is Affected by the Temperance Movement.

MOST STARTLING DEVELOPMENT IN SOUTHERN POLITICS

New York City.—Kentucky, where "whisky straight" was supposed to bubble from the earth, has gone dry Ninety of Kentucky's 119 counties are "no license." Mr. Edward Lissner enumerates in a recent issue of Harper's Weekly the Southern States that, in part or altogether, officially abstain from the cup and flowing bowl. All Tennessee, except Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga; ninety counties of Texas; most of the counties and all the rural districts of North Carolina, South Carolina and Mississippi have renounced the revenues of the rager, and last week, by the passage of the Hardman-Covington bill, Georgia joined her sisters under the prohibition banner. Not a State in the cotton belt but is affected by the temperance movement. Mr. Lissner reproduces The Knoxville Sentinel's comparison of local criminal records for two years, one year "wet," the other "dry," which has been much quoted by the Anti-Saloon League:

WITH SALOONS.

Criminal record, two years 1901-2.
Criminal cost	$5,074.76
Jail record, one month, February, 1903: Commitments for public drunkenness	23
Number cases, in criminal court, two years, 1901-2	236
City school	$7000
Population, 1903, estimate	3500

WITHOUT SALOONS.

Criminal record, two years, 1904-5.
Criminal costs	$2,076.21
Jail record, three years, nine month, 1903-1907: Commitments for public drunkenness	14
Number of cases 1904, two years	105
City school	$8500
Population 1906, estimate	5000

That is a good showing, so far as it goes. There is a powerful impulse to the Southern movement for prohibition, lacking in the wave that swept the Northern States many years ago, in the effort to suppress the crimes of drunken people. But the South's most important cities remain obdurately "wet."

Politicians in the South have come to a realization that the prohibition movement in their region is one which must be taken with the utmost seriousness. The politico-temperance crusade, with its new life and energy, constitutes the most startling development in Southern politics today. The advocates of compulsory abstinence are growing more powerful day by day. The movement is not so much against the consumption of whisky and other alcoholic beverages as against saloons, rum-shops, bars and the like.

The average American is in the habit of regarding Kentucky, Tennessee, the Carolinas, and, in fact, most of the other Southern States, as distinguished for the production and consumption of liquor. It is interesting, in view of this, to have attention directed to the fact that in the State of Kentucky ninety out of one hundred and nineteen counties are "no license." That is to say, in none of the ninety counties will be granted a license to sell liquor. The whole State of Tennessee is "dry," save for the cities of Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga. In the "dry" districts no alcoholic beverage may be bought—not even a glass of beer or claret with dinner.

The State of Texas is said to contain ninety counties that have abolished saloons. North Carolina, Mississippi and other States of the South tell the same story. Anybody may have spirituous beverages sent to him in any of the "dry" districts; but throughout these regions every saloon has been extirpated. One may travel up and down the rural parts of Kentucky and Tennessee without finding one bar or cross-roads saloon such as may be found in profusion throughout, say, New York, New Jersey or Pennsylvania.

GEORGIA TO BE DRY.

A Prohibition Bill Passes House With Only Two Amendments.

Atlanta, Ga.—The Hardman-Covington prohibition bill, passed by the Georgia Senate some days ago, was adopted by the House by a vote of 139 to 39 Two amendments added by the House will necessitate the bill going back to the Senate for concurrence, of which there is no doubt, and the bill then will go to Governor Hoke Smith for his signature, which has been practically pledged, and prohibition will become a law in Georgia.

The amendments permit the sale of pure alcohol by retail druggists on the prescription of a reputable physician and also allow wholesale druggists to carry pure alcohol in stock for sale to retailers only.

The bill prohibits the manufacture or keeping on hand in any place of business, the sale or giving away to induce business within the State of any liquor that may produce intoxication. The new law is to become effective on January 1, 1908.

After the first fight on the bill in which the opponents of the bill showed their ability to keep the act from its third reading, an agreement was reached, making the bill a special order.

Twenty-one amendments were offered. Only two were allowed, and both of these were introduced by the Prohibitionists. The anti-prohibitionists made their hardest fight to secure the adoption of an amendment to postpone until January, 1909, the date when the bill should become effective. This was lost, 128 to 49.

The passing of a prohibition law in Georgia adds a Southern State to the stronghold of the "drys;" in the Far West, Kansas; in the extreme East, Maine; in the extreme North, North Dakota, and in the heart of the Union, Tennessee.

At the beginning of the year the number of people living under statutory prohibition in Maine, North Dakota and Kansas was only 2,500,000. By the end of the year Tennessee and Georgia will nearly have trebled the number.

Georgia is the largest State that ever passed a prohibitory law, if we except New York's abortive attempt many years ago. Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island and Iowa have all tried and abandoned prohibition, yet the number living under it will soon be larger than ever before. Adding those in the Territories under Congressional prohibition the total number will be about 8,000,000.

One-third of the remaining citizens live in "dry" communities under the operation of local-option laws, or in the South in counties where high license fees are practically prohibitive.

Figures show the United States to be one of the most temperate nations. Nearly half its people live in communities where getting a drink means breaking the law.

Army Supplies For Philippines.

Large quantity of ammunition and supplies for the army in the Philippines are being forwarded by the transports Logan, Warren, Crook and Buford, which will sail from San Francisco. In addition they will carry 3000 men of the Twenty-fifth and Twenty-ninth infantry, besides prominent officers

INTERNATIONAL LESSON MEDITATION FOR AUG. 11 BY REV. I. W. HENDERSON

Subject: The Sin of Nadab and Abihu, Lev. 10:1-11 — Text, Prov. 20:1 — Verse, 8.

Nadab and Abihu formed groundwork for the temperance son of the day. Evidently they drunk when they went to their usual duties before the At least it would so appear immediately following the their foolish actions and grievous obedience to the commands of we have the record that the specifically commanded Aaron his other sons that they should refrain from following after drink.

What God expected of Aaron's priest He expects of every one as His children, especially those of us who are sealed to Him by sacrifice of Jesus Christ. For Proverb says, "wine is a mocker It is a sign not of a man's strength of his lack of it when he indulges liquor. It not only makes fools men but it makes beasts of men It not only makes monkeys of men but it makes raging fiends brutes of them. It is a delusion a snare.

If it was a good thing for Aaron and his sons to let the sort of wine they used in their day alone certainly wise that we should let stuff that is sold to-day alone the wine of Israel could make of the priests of the tabernacle man can accurately predict the alcoholic drinks of to-day will with men. For the likelihood the wine of that primitive time used by the priesthood was as good as can be procured. But the stuff that is sold to-day is not as bad as can be procured. The age man to-day when he drinks wine, or beer, or liquors of any cannot even be certain that purchasing what he wants. But the alcoholic drinks that are sold to the public to-day is poisoning itself under the black flag of terfuge.

But whether they be pure or ous alcoholic beverages let be left alone. No man can fool with them. We see demonstances of the folly of even intelligent, moral men tampering with liquor. It is as sensible per with liquor as it is to tickle tleenake. Statistics will never the number of the bright, trious, brainy, useful men pered with liquor and not God alone knows the awful those who have gone down drunkard's grave because competent to curb and control as fierce a monster as ever man. Alcohol as a beverage fraud. It is even questionable whether it is useful as a medicine. For its chief medicinal value preservative and solvent. Its tive value is so negligible that easily dispensed with, and is replaced. As a stimulant it is a sham. For its retroactive powers are too thoroughly pronounced.

There is nothing whatever gained by the use of alcoholic beverage. First of all it has no natural acquirement. Water is the natural beverage. Water always satisfies the thirst. Alcohol intensifies and excites the thirst, creates an abnormal desire. It is unsatisfying. Secondly, alcohol is expensive. None of us though we be the riches of Rockefeller is rich enough to spend a dollar on alcoholic drinks. And the poorer we are the more we need the money for necessities. The man who has a right to spend on drinks had better put the money on his family, clothe himself. For practically all the money spent on liquor is an economic loss. Alcohol as a beverage robs the money of the drinker without affording society commensurate return. In the measure that alcohol is incommensurate it is an economic loss. Thirdly, alcohol as a beverage is dangerous. It is the handmaid of hell. It is the devil's best agent.

The strange thing is that the Church of Jesus Christ and the courts of the land recognize the beverage liquor traffic as a legitimate source of the vilest and most soulless miseries of this country, while the church takes no more than a mild and defiant and aggressive attitude against it than she does against the courts of the land permit it to exist in open defiance of the most sacred constitutional guarantees to the pursuit of happiness, large of undisturbed and undisputed opportunity to pursue a peaceful existence in liberty and happiness under the law. The strange thing about it is so unpopular even to-day that it fails to arraign the citizenship of the states and endorses and protects the saloon to exist for a consideration, even the Christian citizenship of America. The strange thing is that the courts permit such a business to exist. For every child of a drunkard's father is denied the elementary opportunity for wholesome life, liberty and happiness that makes us equal before the law. Every child born of drunken wedlock is handicapped inevitably in the race of life. The weak willed son is aided on the road to misery and sorrow by the saloon license of the State. Every mother is robbed of a furnished home, deprived of the necessaries of life, is a standing indictment for the intervention of the church and State. You cannot make men moral by law, but you can remove the legalized protection and suggestion to immorality by law. That is a duty of the church and of the State.

It needs no argument to prove more or less unwholesome digestion, chronic dyspepsia, headaches, a sense of headache after eating all go to show that there is something wrong somewhere. According to Professor Fisher, fifty-six in the method of every hundred in the decline of food.

"Back of my admiration for these grand old veterans there is a little sentiment. In the first place, I have part of the name of the senior senator, and I think it certain we have a common ancestry. In the second place when my father was a young man just entering his professional career he left his New England home and located in Selma, Ala., the town in which both Messrs. Morgan and Pettus have lived for many years. This was in 1826, when both my senatorial associates were at a very tender age. Incidentally, my father did not remain in the south long, because of the attracting power of a young girl up in New England, whom he eventually made his wife."—Washington Herald.

Tit for Tat.

Young Stevens was on his way north to spend the week end with his parents, and felt in a particularly jovial mood.

The train in which he was traveling had stopped at a small village. As a farmer who was sauntering up and down the platform came opposite Stevens' compartment he was asked by the youth if he knew that the Duke of Devonshire was in the train.

Immediately the man showed great interest and said:

"No! Is he?"

"I think he is not," answered Stevens. "I only asked if you knew that he was."

The former said nothing, but continued his walk on the platform. As he came opposite the window again he remarked that their town had been experiencing some excitement.

"What's the matter?" asked Stevens.

"The authorities wouldn't let some folks bury a woman," replied the farmer.

"What was the reason for refusing?"

"She wasn't dead," was the laconic reply.

And then he strolled away, leaving young Stevens biting his lip.—Judge's Library.

He Took a Rest.

As it is undoubtedly true that one man's meat may be another man's poison, so it happens sometimes that what seems like work to one person is regarded as recreation by another.

"Had a good lecture on Alaska, didn't we, Eb?" asked one of Mr. Dodd's neighbors, meeting him the day after the lecture. "To sit there peaceful as pie for two hours, hearing him reel off the information and seeing those pictures cast on the screen was a grand rest for me, beat out with cranberrying as I be."

"It was a good enough talk," admitted Mr. Dodd, in a grudging tone, "but it didn't rest me any to speak of. Between having to set stock-still without a chance to get in a word for two mortal hours, and crane my neck looking at those views, I was pretty well wore when I got home.

"But I took the lantern out into the woodshed and by the time I'd split up a week's kindlings I felt kind o' rested an' calmed down."—Youth's Companion.

Sunday School Workers

Thorsby, Ala., Aug. 6, 1907

To the Christian People of Chilton county, Alabama.

Greeting:—At the County Sunday School Convention held at Mulberry church on July 20-21st, the writer of this epistle was elected President of the County Association for the ensuing year.

Now, listen, while I try to tell you how badly and truly I need our collective as well as individual co-operation in this great and glorious work which lies out before us, and needs to, and must be done, in order that it may be a success, and an honor to the cause of the Master who commanded: "Go ye into all the world, and teach this gospel to all the people, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Let us transpose that last promise, and we read. And, lo, I will be with you all the time.

The work of the Sunday school is truly a work of missions, and in order that we may enter upon the duties thereof, we must be filled with the spirit for missionary work. Then, would it be asking too much, to ask each one to take with me, the following obligation, thereby covenating ourselves, in one-ness of purpose? viz.

Believing it to be the duty of the church of Christ to preach the gospel to every creature, it is my purpose to pray, to give, to study and to work as God may give me opportunity, that the church of this generation may obey this command.

After having given our consent to the above, then this should be our motto as Sunday school workers. Chilton county for Christ.

Let us now bow our heads and say: Thy will, oh, Jehovah, be done in me, and in us. Now after having taken upon us anew this covenant with God, and with each other, we are ready for the work which we find facing us in Chilton county. And that it is no small or trivial undertaking, grows out of the astonishing fact that our county has a white population of 10,000, and only 4,000 of whom are enrolled as Sunday school attendants. Thus leaving 6,000 out from under any Christian influence or training whatever. Brother, Sister, Friend can we, as professed followers of the blessed Christ, afford to face this state of facts in the judgment day, where we will have to render a strict account of our stewardship here? Can we? I answer, nay, verily. Then let us everyone up and at the work that lies plainly before us.

I have as yet no definately worked out plan, how or in what manner we can reach and iterest this six thousand people in Sunday school work, but would be pleased to receive suggestions from anyone who have any to offer. Remember kind friends that this work is as much yours as mine, and that upon you I must depend for help and co-operation, for of myself I would be sure to make a flat failure, but with your help we can go forward, and with God's blessings resting upon us accomplish great results, much more than the present outlook would warrant us to think possible. For with our faith firmly fixed on the promises of God all things are possible. Then let us ask largely and expect wonders to be performed, for as our faith is so shall it be unto us. Truly the harvest is great, and the laborers are few, but the promise is that we shall reap if we faint not. Let us then take God at His promises and go forward in His name, and all things shall work to our good, and to his glory.

Yours fraternally,

A. HORN, Co. Pres.

Georgia Goes Dry.

A large crowd of enthusiastic prohibitionists watched Governor Hoke Smith attach his official signature to the prohibition bill and the act has become a law of the State, effective January 1, 1908.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the gennerally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co. 50c.

EDUCATION.

The devil is a robber, a liar and a deceiver.

It is not necessary for me to prove the above subject, for every bible reader and Sunday school pupil knows it is true. The devil in his efforts to deceive the people and rob God of His honor began with the weaker class of people by offering something most desirable. After he deceives the weaker vessels, he then uses them to deceive the stronger.

Now, as education has become very desirable to the people of this day and time, the devil is using it as a breastworks to fight his battles behind.

He first came to the poor and uneducated people and said give me a special tax to rob the rich and I will give them better schools, and when he got that he turned to the rich and said the poor have voted for a special tax to rob you. Now, you give me a dispensary to rob the poor and needy and to tear down the country churches where they have no police protection and I will give thee better schools. Now, we see it was all a lie. I believe we have a smaller per cent of the children in Chilton county in school this year than ever before.

I heard of more confusion and more schools being broken up than ever before; Verbal with 85—127 children turned up with 35 average against 65 last year. Well, someone will say what is the matter, you had more money? I will answer the question by asking if you ever saw a good thing come from a bad one? The devil's work always brings confusion and confusion in tears down our schools and churches and brings strife, misery and grief in our homes. I am ready to fight the devil anywhere, but I think it best to put him out on first base. So let us do away with the special tax and dispensary too and go to work to build up our schools, ourselves and quit trying to make the other fellows build them up, for that is the devil's work and we will never succeed at it.

I could say much more, but I believe I will close and see what the other side has to say about it. With best wishes for all.

G. W. EDWARDS.

HAD AN AWFUL TIME

But Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Cured Him.

It is with pleasure that I give you this unsolicited testimonial. About a year ago when I had a severe case of measles I got caught out in a hard rain and the measles settled in my stomach and bowels. I had an awful time and had it not been for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—SAM H. GWIN, Concord, Ga. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Maplesville, Aug. 14, 1907

Editor Banner—Please give me space in your most valuable paper to say a few words to the young people of our county. As it will soon be time for boys and girls who are interested in going away from home to college, or some normal school, I would like to say that it is of great importance for you to make a good choice in choosing the school which you desire to attend. The best feature of a good school is a good faculty, and without this any school is a failure. Knowing this, let me suggest that all who can try the State Normal College at Troy. Having attended this school, I think I can safely say that it has the best equipped faculty of any normal in Alabama. I do not say this because I am a student of the school, nor altogether in behalf of the school, but for the good of the young people in whom I am interested. I think I know whereof I speak. I have examined catalogues, and made inquiries of all the normal schools in Alabama and surely Troy is the school for a progressive young man or lady. Wishing you success wherever you go, I am, Very truly,

J. F. Bone.

Some people are better when they are sick than at any other time

Stanton.

Death has visited our little town again and taken little Grady Warren, son of Joseph Warren, who has been confined to his bed for part of two months. His last words were "Don't cry, mother I am ready to go." The sympathy of the entire community is extended to his bereaved parents.

The old soldiers meet at Stanton, Saturday, the 17th, and will have a picnic. The Rev. Starr of Selma will make an address. They invite all old soldiers and their friends to come; also bring a nice basket and help them enjoy the day.

Our barbecue on Saturday last passed off quietly. All seemed to have had a good time. The Stanton boys played Sardis boys in a ball game, Stanton beating Sardis 16 to 0. Come again, boys, there are no flies on Stanton ball players. Best wishes to the Banner. Climax.

Stanton.

We, the undersigned, have read the card published in the Banner, Aug. 8th, and signed "A Friend." As we are well acquainted with the facts in the case, we hereby denounce the statement "that the accident was due to carelessness of the shop managers," as maliciously false and slanderous.

HOLINESS MEETING.

The meeting at the new holiness tabernacle, three miles east of Clanton, will continue until next Sunday night, Aug. 18th. Rev. L. P. Adams is the leader.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

If the several parties who have received notice of their lands being escaped, or of their land being increased in tax value, will appear before the County Tax Commissioner at Clanton before the 2d day of September they will have a better opportunity to have the matter adjusted in a satisfactory manner than if they wait until court day.

NOTICE.

We, the Commissioners' Court, have decided that it will take more than one day to pass on the escapes and tax raises, so we hereby give notice that we will be in session Monday, September 2, to Wednesday, September 4, so if those interested cannot come on Monday, they can come either on these three days and we will stay longer if necessary. We assure every taxpayer of the county fair treatment and that no taxes will be raised unjustly.

SHOES BY THE CAR LOAD!

On account of this IMMENSE PURCHASE of SHOES we are compelled to close our present line out at a SACRIFICE to make room for the Fall line. Our Shoes are all absolutely new, not one pair of old stock in the house. We would like to have more money for them of course, but we are compelled to make a price that will move them out at once.

We are making the same REDUCTION on Clothing and Straw Hats.

Our buyers will leave for New York in a few days to buy goods for our six different stores, and for this, too, we will need a little money to pay train fare. Come in and see—no harm if you don't buy.

COAL FOR THE PACIFIC.

Fourteen Vessels Are Chartered for the Purpose.

New York.—News which has reached the maritime exchange and shipping offices here is to the effect that the navy department, through its agents in New York, Baltimore and Newport News, has chartered a total of fourteen vessels to carry coal to the Pacific coast ports. The coal is for the use of the great battleship fleet which is to be sent to the Pacific in the fall.

The government's needs are now satisfied, it is said. A majority of the vessels engaged have sailed already, a lot of 76,000 of the 100,000 tons of coal needed on the coast having been dispatched.

Big Fire in Manila.

Manila.—Fire in Kanila destroyed 120 native houses and made 600 people homeless. The damage is estimated at 68,000 pesos. The fire originated from an electric wire and swept over a space of 100 yards square. A heavy rain prevented the flames from spreading. No one was injured. The homeless are being cared for.

Injunction Is Denied.

New York.—The application of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad for an injunction restraining the United States interstate commerce commission from enforcing an order compelling the company to deliver oil in Brooklyn, was denied by Judge Lacombe in the United States circuit court.

At Last.

Chicago, Ill.—James H. Banta, 69 years old, the oldest engineer on the Illinois Central railroad, was struck by an engine and instantly killed while crossing the tracks. For forty-four years Banta has driven or stoked engines over the tracks on which he met his death and had survived four wrecks without injury.

Railway Strike Still in Force.

Washington, D. C.—The national government has failed as peacemaker in the strike of the switchmen of the Colorado and Southern railroad and Labor Commissioner Charles P. Neill has announced that all hope has been abandoned of bringing about a satisfactory adjustment of the differences.

Philippine Lawmakers Meet.

Washington, D. C.—The first gathering of the Philippine assembly, according to advices from Governor-General Smith, will meet on October 16. Secretary Taft has promised to be present at the opening of that body and if the steamship schedules are maintained he will arrive in Manila on October 14.

Tied Jailor and Escaped.

Mayfield, O.—Noah Coffee and Fon Frazier, young white boys, are in jail here, charged with store breaking, while in the jail yard fastened the keeper in jail and made their escape over a high wall. It was an hour before the jailor was rescued from prison.

Priest Shoots Two Brothers.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Ludwig Szczgil, said to be an unattached Polish priest of Chicago, walked into a Southside hotel at 1111 Carson street and without warning, it is said, shot and fatally wounded the two proprietors, twin brothers, named Steven and Andrew Starzynski.

Great Storms in Austria.

Vienna.—An enormous amount of damage has been done to the grain crops, orchards and vineyards in many parts of Austria by heavy thunder storms, which frequently were accompanied by devastating hail storms. Several villages in Eastern Bohemia have been devastated by a cyclone.

Catholic Total Abstinence.

Cleveland, O.—The thirty-seventh annual session of the Catholic Total Abstinence of America was convened here. The opening services consisted of a solemn pontifical mass at the cathedral. This was followed by the general sessions of the convention forenoon and afternoon.

Thirty-eight Convicts Turned Loose.

Nashville, Tenn.—As a result of Governor Patterson's visit to the state prison here thirty-eight convicts will, it is announced, be pardoned without delay. Of these eighteen are boys under 16 years of age, fifteen are suffering from tuberculosis and five are aged and infirm.

President of Union Sick.

TELEGRAPHERS STRIKE ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

Four Thousand Men Now Idle. Others to Follow

THE FIGHT IS TO A FINISH

Status of the Strike Is Assuming More Serious Proportions Each Day and Complete Paralysis of Commercial Business Is the Outlook.

New York.—President Samuel J. Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, through Percy Thomas, his representative in this city, announced Saturday night that a general strike of all the union operators in the country would be called.

The order which went out included the operators of wires leased to stock brokers, newspapers and press associations.

Encouraged by their success in hampering the facilities of both commercial telegraph companies in Chicago the striking operators are now planning to carry the warfare to all parts of the United States and Canada. Instructions were telegraphed by National Secretary Russell to the men in New York and other cities where they are still at work "to save their money and await orders."

Another telegram was sent to President Small, of the Telegraphers' Union, who is in San Francisco, urging him to take the first train to Chicago to look after the situation, as it is the announced intention to engineer the fight from Chicago.

The telegraph officials are preparing to meet the issue, and declare they will fight to a finish. They declare they have been temporizing with the union for months and that they will hold no further negotiations with the representatives of the men on strike. Cots have been installed in the buildings of both companies in Chicago for the accommodation of strike breakers and other preparations for a bitter struggle are being perfected.

Approximately there are 4,000 operators now on strike who were employed by both companies in thirty-nine cities throughout the country, and the list is being added to. The points already affected and the total of strikers are as follows.

Western Union—Chicago, 150; Houston, 30; Kansas City, 30; Topeka, 8; Oklahoma City, 10; Pueblo, 8; New Orleans, 100; Nashville, 75; Columbus, 70; Memphis, 60; Dallas, 105; Meridian, Miss., 10; Jackson, Miss. 15; Minneapolis, 60; Milwaukee, 30; St. Louis, 225; Helena, Mont., 45; Salt Lake City, 36; Colorado Springs, 10; Denver, 75; Fort Worth, 40; El Paso, 30; St. Paul, 100; Los Angeles, 50; Forga, 10; Omaha, 60; Sioux City, 25; Knoxville, 15. (Others not tabulated at this hour.)

Postal—Chicago, 500; Kansas City, 70; Topeka, 59; Oklahoma City, 10; New Orleans, 60; Dallas, 40; Memphis, 50; Jackson, Tenn., 5; Augusta, 35; St. Louis, 80; Milwaukee, 15; Birmingham, 83; Omaha, 25.

TOWN BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Car of Nitro-Glycerine Explodes Near Detroit.

Detroit, Mich.—Two men were killed, three more probably fatally injured and scores of people were slightly hurt by the explosion of half a car of nitro-glycerine at the Michigan Central railroad station at Essex, Ont., seventeen miles inland from the Detroit river, Saturday. Practically every building in the little town of 1,500 was damaged, many of them being blown to pieces. The shock of the explosion was plainly felt for twenty miles. It was so heavy in this city that windows were broken in a Jefferson avenue automobile garage.

Every Man Can Answer.

Washington, D. C.—Every two years the postoffice department sends out a list of questions concerning the condition of postoffices for use in the government blue book. One of the questions is, "What are your marital relations?" The idea was to learn whether postmasters are single, married, widowed or "grass widowed." Some of the recipients mistook the scope of the query, as is evidenced by three of the answers that have reached Clerk Chance. One official laconically but expressively filled in the blank space with "Hell." Another announced with exuberancy that his relations were "fine and dandy," while a cautious third admitted only that they were "just tolerable."

Diamond Monopoly of the World.

New York.—News has reached here that the deBeers Diamond Company, of South Africa, has bought the control of the Premier mine, which gives the company practically the diamond monopoly of the world.

DYNAMITE 100 PERSONS.

Depot Fire Is Accompanied by Fearful Explosion.

Boulder, Col.—Flames started early Saturday in the Colorado and Southern freight depot here, destroyed the depot, with a quantity of freight, and, spreading a distance of 100 feet, enveloped a powder house containing 1,000 pounds of dynamite, which exploded with a terrific shock, injuring perhaps 100 persons and breaking the plate glass in every business house in the city, as well as the windows in hundreds of residences. It is believed that two of the injured will die. The property loss is estimated at $250,000. The fire originated from some unknown cause, and is believed to be incendiary. Twenty-five of the injured were taken to local hospitals. The others were removed to their homes.

Engineer David Cottrell and Mrs. Mary Morton, of Ypsilanti, Mich., a passenger on the train, were severely but not fatally injured.

Scores of the residents of the little town were cut by filing glass or injured by falling walls, but none of them so far as known is seriously hurt. It is reported that one man is burned in the ruins of Green's elevator.

Everything for a radius of 300 yards from the depot is in ruins. The car containing the nitro-glycerine was sidetracked Friday night near the freight shed to be taken to a quarry at Amherstburg, Ont. The train was being made up when, it is said, Brakeman McNary discovered that the nitro-glycerine was leaking in the car. He started to open it and stop the leak when the explosion occurred.

The explosion tore the new stone depot to pieces, destroyed the freight sheds and near-by cottages, leveled Green's elevator and smashed Laing & Ritchie's mill like kindling. The engine and tender of the train, with the other cars, were reduced to scrap iron, and where they stood there is now a hole twenty feet deep and fifty feet wide.

The financial loss will probably be about $300,000.

COSTLY FIRE AT BALTIMORE.

Damage About $290,000, Partially Covered by Insurance.

Baltimore, Md.—Two fires caused a total damage of $290,000, partly covered by insurance. In the first the Baltimore and Ohio grain elevator at Henrietta and Howard streets, containing 56,000 bushels of grain, was burned. The total loss is estimated at $200,000, of which the loss on the elevator is $150,000. The railroad company carried an insurance of $106,000 on the elevator. The building contained 56,000 bushels of grain. It will be rebuilt at once.

Another fire which broke out in the Baltimore Transfer Company stables, corner Front and Low streets, and communicated to Hechinger Brothers & Co.'s chair factory, caused $90,000 damage, all but $20,000 of which was on the chair factory.

BACK SALARY ALLOWED.

Comptroller of the Treasury Gives Georgia Man Good Sum.

Washington, D. C.—The comptroller of the treasury, R. J. Tracewell, has rendered a decision overruling the auditor of the war department, B. F. Harper, and allowing a claim of the state of Georgia amounting to $2,825.03 for salary of the assistant adjutant-general of the state of Georgia during the mobilization of the Georgia troops for muster into the United States service for the war with Spain.

Promises to Porto Rico.

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—A memorial which has been unanimously adopted by thirty-five of the members of the house of delegates of Porto Rico, petitioning that Porto Rico be given the right to elect members of the upper house, was presented to President Roosevelt by Jose De Diego, speaker of the house. Mr. Diego said that the president remarked that the present system of government in Porto Rico is but temporary, and that if congress would direct all that he wished Porto Rico would have little of which to complain.

Ten Killed When Trains Crash.

Hendaye, France.—Ten persons were killed and scores injured in a collision between a southern express bound from Paris to Madrid and a freight train in the Otzaurte tunnel Saturday. Fire started, adding to the horrors of the wreck, and several persons were roasted to death.

Belfast Strike Settled.

Belfast, Ireland.—The dispute in the coal trade here has been settled and work will be resumed. The troops again took possession of the streets, the factories are opening and the normal conditions of business are gradually returning.

Electricians in Session.

Norfolk, Va.—The entire day's session of the twelfth annual convention of the International Association of Municipal Electricians was devoted largely to the subject of municipal electric lighting, with many conflicting views and recommendations.

Figures may not lie, but, carefully padded, they are calculated to deceive.

ALABAMA EVENTS FROM OVER THE STATE.

Interesting Items to Dwellers in the Commonwealth

A BRIEF WEEKLY SUMMARY

R. A. Parsons, a prominent merchant of Taylorsville, was the victim of a deadly assault as he lay in bed asleep beside his wife on Wednesday night. A would-be assassin entered the room and struck at Mr. Parson's head with a blunt instrument. In the darkness the blow missed the sleeping man's head and struck his shoulder, paralyzing him and rendering him speechless for several hours. Mrs. Taylor was awakened by the noise of the blow and saw a man run out of the room. There was no one to send after help, and the affair did not become known in the community until breakfast time.

Cotton Crop Around Decatur.

The latest estimates place the cotton crop around Decatur at about 75 per cent of the crop of last year. With a late frost it is thought that the crop may be even better than the present estimates would indicate. This estimate is from 15 to 20 per cent higher than the estimates of three weeks ago. This is due to the fact that the past ten days has witnessed a marked improvement in the condition of the cotton crop in this section of the state.

Annual Reunion.

Commander R. A. D. Dunlap, of Emma Sansom camp, Confederate Veterans, of Gadsden, has named August 22 and 23 as the days upon which the annual reunion of the camp and Confederate Veterans of Etowah county will be held. The place selected is Moore's Springs. All veterans of Etowah and adjoining counties are invited to attend.

They Want $50,000.

R. T. Dorsey, B. I. Hughes and John R. Reynolds have filed with the deputy clerk of the United States court at Anniston, through their attorneys, Knox, Acker & Blackmon, of Anniston, a suit to recover $50,000 from the Southern Steel Company, or the Alabama Steel and Wire Company, of Gadsden, for alleged trespassing, removing of iron ore from the property of the plaintiffs in Cherokee county and for converting chattels belonging to the plaintiff, the alleged offenses having been continued since September 1, 1904.

Furnace Blown in at Bessemer.

Furnace No. 2 of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company's plant at Bessemer was blown in after ten months' idleness, during which the iron maker was thoroughly repaired, relined and additions made. The daily capacity will be between 150 and 200 tons. There is such a strong demand for pig iron that the blowing in of the furnace is hailed with delight. It is stated that arrangements have been made for a better supply of raw material than has been experienced in that section and ere long the iron production will be decidedly better than it has been in some time.

Veterans of Calhoun.

The eleventh annual reunion of William H. Forney camp of Confederate Veterans, of Jacksonville, was held at Shenk's Sulphur Springs, Calhoun county, August 7 and 8. Between 3,000 and 4,000 people from Calhoun and surrounding counties and from some of the surrounding states attended. Perfect order was maintained and everybody very highly enjoyed the occasion. About 100 veterans answered roll call, and these were photographed at the close of the meeting.

To Be Held in Montgomery.

The next meeting of the Alabama Hardware Dealers' Association, which was organized in Birmingham Tuesday, will be held in Montgomery in the spring of 1908.

Gin Works Are Crowded.

The Continental Gin Company's works at Prattville are crowded with orders and are doing their best to get all ready for the fall ginning season. The superintendent says they are behind with 200 orders, but he will rush them along until he will be able to furnish all by the time agreed. It has been several seasons since these works were crowded so much with orders as at present.

They Have Electric Lights.

Friday the new electric light plant was put in operation and Goodwater lit up for the first time. The lights are pronounced by experts to be the very best made. The plant is owned by the city and run with water power. The plant has 200 horse-power from a twelve-foot dam across Hatchet creek. It was more like Christmas there than August, fireworks of all kinds being set off by men, women and children in the streets.

All Machinery Has Arrived.

All of the machinery for the sinking of the oil well at McWilliams, Wilcox county, has reached that place. The work of erecting the machinery has been started, and it is believed that the actual work of drilling the first oil well in Wilcox county will be started Monday, August 13. An expert oil driller will reach the McWilliams field Monday and will take charge of the sinking of the first well. After the boring of the first well has been started it is thought that it will be known within less time than a month whether oil will be struck.

New Survey.

The Louisville and Nashville road has a large force of surveyors in Limestone county working on a new survey which seems to have in view the change of the present roadbed, leaving the present track several miles in some places. The people of Elmnot, in the northern part of the county, a thrifty little village, seem very much alarmed for fear that the road will leave that town out of its course. The surveyors are finding some dissatisfaction about rights of way, and the entire country to the north is disturbed over the matter. Some fifty or sixty men are at work on the survey.

Tobacco Raising a Success.

Stimulated by government experts, who pronounced the soil adaptable to tobacco raising, several farmers near Selma have grown the weed this year, just as some in Perry county have done for several years, and specimens recently pulled by them from the ripening crop have been pronounced as of very good Sumatra grade. The proceeds will be about $500 gross per acre. Next year the crop will be much larger.

Young Man Killed by His Pistol.

J. H. Evans, night foreman of the Birmingham Southern at Ensley, was struck in the yards by a piece of metal flying from the two railroad cars which had collided and which was wrenched from them. The missile struck his hip and the jolt shook his pistol from its scabbard. The pistol in falling shot the young man through the neck, and he died a few hours afterward. It was the first time he had carried a pistol.

Musters Out Company.

An order has been issued by Colonel McKleroy, commanding the Third regiment, to muster out the Florence company, which did not attend the Huntsville encampment. Major W. H. Long, of Decatur, is designated as the mustering officer, the company being one of his battalions. Another order was issued ordering a company of eighty men mustered in at Athens. Major Long will muster in the new company. This company gives the Third its full quota of companies.

Printers' Strike Short Lived.

The employes of the Anniston Hot Blast composing room went on strike as the result of an alleged failure on the part of Editor and Business Manager Smith to pay them off on the 15th of the month, or semi-monthly, as they had demanded. A compromise was effected, however, by Mr. Smith promising to start the semi-monthly payments on October 15, and the men are now at work as usual.

To Hold Business.

To evade the new Alabama law prohibiting the shipping of whisky into "dry" counties of the state, the Holberg Mercantile Company, of Mobile, and probably S. Richards & Sons and Weiss Echold & Co. and several other whisky houses in turn will open branch houses in New Orleans to care for this territory.

Baby Show in Troy.

Nothing since the municipal election has stirred Troy with such interest and emulation as did the baby show, which interesting contest began at 5 o'clock at the Hotel Annex and took possession of the square as the procession of gaily decorated buggies proceeded around the sidewalks.

Pike Commission.

The pike commission of Limestone has organized, and just as soon as the civil engineer in charge can formulate some plans the commission hopes to begin the erection of the roads. The work will most likely be done by contract.

Losses by Stealage.

Silks, satins and other expensive dry goods valued at something like $2,000 or $4,000 have been recovered from the residence of Fritz Brann, in Birmingham, the night watchman who has been employed at the store of Loveman, Joseph and Loeb for a number of years, and who was arrested Wednesday morning after being spotted by Detectives Murphy and Patton.

Bonds Are Sold.

The general council of Mobile sold the refunding bond issue to the City Bank and Trust Company under their former bid of 92. The council also endorsed the three sidewalk ventures submitted by the board of public works and adopted a resolution requesting the board of public works to include in their next paving contract Broad and Conception streets from Government south.

MOORS ARE SHOT BY FRENCH

Casa Blanca Bombarded in Hands of Europeans.

A FIERCE NATIVE ATTACK

Eight Europeans Killed and France and Spain Expeditions—Spanish Force.

Tangier.—Casa Blanca, on the Moroccan coast, has been bombarded by French cruisers. The bombardment is reported to have been directed in large numbers, and the attack on Sunday night has been followed by the possession of the town by French and Spanish troops.

The first shots were fired by the Moors. The French replied with a bayonet charge and battered down the gates of the native quarter with shells. The French consul was wounded, but no other European residents were killed.

The occupation of Casa Blanca is the outcome of a native attack which resulted in the killing of eight Europeans at Casa Blanca. Both France and Spain sent warships with troops on board to various points on the Moroccan coast for the protection of foreigners. The terms of the Algeciras treaty give these two powers a share in the policing of the seaports of Morocco and their action at Casa Blanca was brought no protest from the other signatories. The states of Europe have signified their willingness that France and Spain restore order in Morocco and other countries are invited to do so.

OLIVER MAY GET

If He Is Successful Many Supplies Will Come From

Washington, D. C.—W. J. Oliver, of Knoxville, Tenn., who pushed more railroad contracts to completion than any other railroad builder in the country, is here. He has been asked to furnish dumping cars, track material and steel for the Panama canal.

If he is successful it is said that a great proportion of the supplies will be purchased in Alabama. The bids have been opened, and in a few weeks it will be decided by the Panama commission who will get the contract. The superintendent of the works in Panama will be here in addition soon. His opinion will be of considerable weight.

Secretary Taft is quite friendly to Mr. Oliver, and so far as he can in advance matters would be glad to see a Tennesseean have a share in the peculiar system of bidding. Instead of the way the specifications are drawn up, and the contract is let, the instance does not necessarily go to the lowest bidder.

Mr. Oliver is constructing the $4,000,000 dam near Chattanooga, which will furnish immense power for the Panama canal. In speaking of the Muscle Shoals project in Alabama, he said he considered them among the most important and promising of any in the United States, and his understanding is that actually several large power plants will be in operation at the shoals.

Elgin, Ill.—Dr. Leonard [illegible], one of the most successful physicians of the west, died, a martyr to his profession. In May he performed an operation which saved his patient's life, but which has resulted in the loss of his own life. In some way a wound after an operation became infected. Dr. Taylor pierced his thumb with a needle. He applied the usual remedies, but the poison entered the blood, and his whole body was affected. The doctor was 40 years old. He is survived by his widow and three children.

House—Tuesday.

A bill providing for the establishment of high schools in every county in Alabama was passed by the house after much debate. It was framed so as to make no exception of the state having colleges, agricultural schools, etc. High schools in such counties, however, will be erected after the plan in other counties are built.

"'There must be!' I gasped.

"'No; no break!' cried Louis Labarge. 'The river, he—' He lapsed into his native patois, and crossed himself.

"I did not know what to think now. I saw Burton shoot a glance first to one and then to the other of the rough walls that hemmed us in. Then a startled outcry of human voices from the top of the left wall of the canon seventy-five yards down drew all eyes to a little knot of five men standing there on the brink, gesticulating and shouting to us in tremendous excitement.

"'Stop, or you're all dead men! River blocked. Water goes under the jam in worst whirlpool you ever saw!'

"No one of us in the bateau could find tongue to answer for a second or two, and again came the booming voice:

"'River goes under the jam! It's death if you go on!'

"'Stop the bateau in this current! How can we do it?' I screamed back, too bewildered yet to think.

"'Pull over and throw us your rope; we'll see what we can do!' came the answer.

"Burton had already sprung to the big, tangled coil of stout rope lying in the centre of the bateau, and the rest of us now fell to the oars and worked like maniacs to swing the bateau across the furious flow of the torrent. But the water was too quick for us. Within a dozen seconds we were racing down almost opposite the point where our would-be rescuers stood, and Burton had not yet succeeded in getting the snarled-up rope ready for a cast.

"The men on the ice saw that we were going to slip by them before the rope could be thrown, and they began to run along the edge of the canon, hoping to keep abreast of the bateau. The jammed ice was so uneven, however, that they could not run with any speed. We came on, shot past, and left them behind, as an ocean liner would distance a ferry-boat. By the time Burton finally got the rope free and ready for a cast, there was no one within reach to cast to.

"On and on down the swift current, quite close in to the left wall now, we rushed, all of us staring back at the scattered, fur-clad figures still bobbing along over the broken surface of the jam in a vain effort to overtake us. With the whole volume of the river plunging down under the jam in a great vortex at the end of the canon, as the men had said, we felt that our doom was sealed. There were narrow ledges projecting out at intervals from the sheer face of the ice-wall on each side, but we saw that to attempt to leap even to any one of the lowest of these shelves would be suicide.

"This was the first time that I had ever stood in 'the valley of the shadow.' Each of the other men had faced death time and time again during the long years spent in that cruel north country. It was no new thing to them.

"The stolid Indian blood in the veins of the voyageurs made them accept the situation with apparent indifference. Burton, the most taciturn of Yankees, too, was unshaken. As for me, I was ashamed to exhibit the whirlwind of emotion that swirled within me, and I tried hard, standing there with the forward oar in my hands, to remain silent and rigid like the others.

"The bateau was running at least fifteen miles an hour. I calculated that it would not take more than a minute and a half for it to reach the end of the canon. 'Ninety seconds more to live,' I whispered to myself, and looked up at the pale void of the sky overhead.

"At this instant a broad band of soft radiance shot up to the zenith, and I knew that the sun had just risen for a midday peep over the mountains to the south. The next moment I had a great longing to look upon its face just once more, but the ice-wall of the canon intervened.

"Then suddenly Burton's voice rang out sharply:

"'That log fast in the ice! Pull a little closer to the side!'

"He was pointing with his hand, and the rest of us saw for the first time, not more than a hundred and fifty yards ahead, extending out three or four feet beyond the canon wall and two yards above the water, the mangled and splintered end of a sturdy spruce log that had been carried down and buried in the ice when the jam had been formed.

"No one needed to be told that Burton intended to attempt the lumberman's trick of 'snubbing' with a swiftly handled rope, but I know we all doubted that he could even slacken the bateau in that current. However, men in desperate peril are not prone to cast away any chance of escape, no matter how slim, that relenting destiny deigns to offer.

"With two sweeps of the oars the three of us forced the bateau over until the near side was within five feet of the ice-wall. Burton quickly made fast one end of the rope to an iron ring at the rear of the craft, and gathered up several feet of the slack coils ready for a throw.

"As we came even with the protruding log, Burton easily flung a wide loop of the rope so that it curled round the two-foot timber and caught fairly clear up next the ice. Then he recklessly seized upon the line as it ran hissing out from the heap of coils in the bottom of the bateau, and held back as much as he could. I sprang to help him, and together we drew with considerable force upon the rope. But the wild career of the bateau was only slightly checked.

"Though the hemp was tearing through our hands at a rate that was burning out the palms of our thick arctic mittens and searing the flesh beneath, Burton called:

"'Hold harder!'

"It was impossible to do so. Seeing that the whole length of the hundred-and-fifty-foot rope would soon run out, he dropped his great knees upon the whizzing line and pressed it hard against the bottom boards of the bateau. I was carried down with him, and quickly followed his example by pressing upon the rope with my own knees. The bateau now began to slacken speed perceptibly.

"But at this moment Felix Campau shouted that we were rushing down almost upon a ledge of ice projecting out from the wall just above the water.

"'Then jump for your lives, all of you!' cried Burton. 'We're not going to stop the boat.'

"The two 'breeds' gathered themselves for a spring.

"'But you?' I gasped to Burton, for he made no motion to leave the rope.

"'Go—jump!' he thundered. 'I'll hold it for a moment.'

"It was no time to argue. I sprang up, gained the side of the bateau, and leaped close behind Campau and Labarge, as they flung themselves like agile cats upon the little shelf, two feet wide by ten long, extending along the canon wall so low down that the water almost lapped over it. I landed on the extreme edge of the ledge, and was just able to save myself from falling backward into the racing torrent.

"Burton had no opportunity at all to jump until the bateau was well by. But if ever a man in a crisis 'used his head,' it was this rawboned Yankee.

"When the rear end of the craft was fully twelve feet below the ledge, he planted a foot on the back edge-board and hurled himself toward us, at the same time shutting tight his grip on the rope playing through his hands. His huge body, drawn by the impetus of the bateau, fairly flew upward through the air, and landed in the whirling flow of ice-filled water more than half-way up the length of the ledge. Then two of us—Felix Campau and I—reached out, clutched him by an arm and the fur collar of his coat, and drew him upon the ledge beside us.

"For a moment we all stood there silent on the narrow shelf and looked after the bateau, mercifully empty of its human freight, dashing on down the rush of waters; then we heard the voices of the men as they came running down toward the place where we were, and we gave them a joyful hail. Soon three of the men were standing above our heads, telling us that the other two of their party had gone ashore to their sledges for a line to draw us up from the ledge.

"Within five minutes these two returned, and we were quickly hoisted up, one after the other, to the surface of the jam. By this time Burton was sheeted in icy armor, and was so numb he could barely stand, and to save him from freezing, we had to hurry him to the river-bank and build a roaring fire.

"Our 'friends in need' proved to be miners from the Birch River district traveling to Dawson, and curiosity as to the remarkable formation of the jam had drawn them out to the edge of the canon in time to give so opportune a warning to us. Now that the bateau was lost, we were forced to turn back to Dawson with the miners. But before starting we gratified a desire to view the whole of the terrible death-trap from which we had escaped by so narrow a margin, and we followed the canon down until it terminated in the great ice-pack that blocked the whole width of the river for three-quarters of a mile.

"And there at the canon end we saw the mad current go swirling down, in a whirlpool sixty feet in diameter, into the hole it had torn under the jam.

"Great cakes of ice ran into this vortex with the speed of a railway-train, up-ended, and instantly dived beneath the pack. Below they came out all ground to mush. Even the water, when it appeared after its plunge, was nothing but a gush of foam. It was easy to see just what would have happened to us four if the spruce log had not been found protruding from the wall of the canon."—Youth's Companion.

The Legislature

Senate—Wednesday, Last Day.

The first matter which came before the senate was the governor's amendment to the Greater Birmingham bill. The amendment was the governor's preparation for his withdrawal from his announced position of opposition to the bill. The governor's amendment provided that North Birmingham should be taken into Greater Birmingham. The governor's amendment was immediately adopted.

The governor sent back the bill appointing a commission to investigate the affairs and management of the insane hospital at Tuscaloosa to the house. He suggested an amendment allowing $2.50 per day for expenses and providing for the necessary stationery and for stenographers' expenses. The amendment was adopted.

"To me," said the senator from Marshall, "tonight there falls a pleasant duty. What I am about to do is an administration measure. It is my privilege to present to you, Lieutenant-Governor Gray, this loving cup, the gift of the Alabama senate, whose members are your friends."

The senators who had gone on record in favor of the Mastin dog tax bill had become alarmed for fear of the wrath of their country constituents. As a result there was one of the most even contests fought out in this session of the legislature. Once the vote was tied and President Gray had to cast the deciding vote. On the final decisive vote killing the bill for the session the vote was ayes 16, nays 15.

House—Last Day.

At the morning session the house listened to an amendment made by the senate to the sheriff bill, which amendment provided that the sheriffs of the different counties should be allowed money to feed their prisoners at the rate of 50 cents per prisoner when the number is less than ten. For over ten and less than twenty the amendment fixed the rate at 40 cents; from that on thirty, 30 cents; to fifty, 25 cents, and from fifty up, 20 cents per day. Passed.

A resolution by Mr. Lusk authorizing the clerks to have two weeks in which to prepare and compare the journal of the senate was passed.

The general bill regulating the issuance of bonds by cities and towns was the next general measure on the special calendar which was up for quick passage.

The bill appropriating $1,500 to equip and furnish the office of the state mine inspectors was passed.

In behalf of the house Mr. Pitts, of Dallas, presented C. B. Brown, the clerk of the house, with a silver loving cup.

The flag of the state of Alabama, with its St. Andrew's cross, was run down from the dome of the capitol at midnight and the historic legislative session of 1907 of the legislature of Alabama had adjourned sine die.

A bill was passed to place a monument for Jeff Davis on the spot where he stood when made president of the Confederacy.

Speaker Carmichael received a loving cup from his colleagues of the legislature.

CURE FOR MENINGITIS.

Wealth of John D. Rockefeller Made It Possible.

Chicago, Ill.—A special from Cleveland says:

According to private advices received from New York and Castalia, O., the wealth of John D. Rockefeller has made possible a cure for meningitis.

Twenty Buildings Burned.

Little Rock, Ark.—The entire business section of Portland, Ark., was destroyed by fire. Twelve stores and eight residences were burned. There is no fire department at Portland, and the flame burned itself out. A stiff wind carried the flames to the rescued household goods in the streets, burning them and leaving many people destitute. Neighboring towns have subscribed funds to aid the people of Portland and are rushing supplies there.

Fined for Rebating.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Judge Page Morris in the United States district court Saturday afternoon fined the Wisconsin Central Railroad Company $17,600 for rebating, of which it was convicted last April. Burton Johnson and G. T. Hoey, freight officials of the road, were fined $1,000 and $1,000 respectively for paying rebates to shippers.

THE SOUTHERN R. R. AND GOV. COMER FIX RATES

Actuated By Patriotism is the Claim of the Officials

2 1-2 PER MILE THE CHARGE

Result of Agreement Between the Governor and Railroad is that Public Will Benefit and Other Roads Will Fall in Line Also.

After three days of conference the state came to an agreement with the Southern railway Thursday afternoon, as a result of which the license of the company, recently cancelled, is to be restored, and in return the road puts into effect, beginning September 1, the 2 1-2 cent passenger fare and the law fixing rates on 110 commodities. The result is a complete victory for the state, securing the enforcement of two acts, out of which the people expect to realize large savings in freight and passenger charges.

The final conference was held at the office of Governor Comer. Besides the governor the following railroad officials were present: J. S. B. Thompson, assistant to President Finley, of the Southern; Alex P. Humphrey, general counsel at Louisville, and H. L. Russell, vice-president of the Mobile and Ohio.

After, going over the ground it was given out that the agreement along the lines mentioned had been reached. An order was entered in the United States court providing for a modification of the restraining order now in force against these acts in order to allow the agreement to become effective.

The Frisco system was the first road to follow the Southern road. They wired the governor Saturday to that effect.

BITES OF RATTLESNAKES

Said to Have Cured New York Farmer's Wife of Cancer.

Chicago, Ill.—A special to the Inter-Ocean from Port Jervis, N. Y., says a remarkable cure of cancer has been effected on Mrs. Wilhelmina Ludwig, a farmer's wife.

Mrs. Ludwig has suffered of cancer on the left leg just above the knee for a long time.

While out picking huckleberries two weeks ago she was bitten on the ankle by a rattlesnake. Her nephew, Karl Ludwig, came to her assistance and killed three rattlesnakes.

The woman's leg was swelled to an enormous size, but the swelling did not go above the cancer. The cancer, which had always had the appearance of ink, fringed with red, turned into a running sore.

It remained in this condition for four days.

On the fourth day the discharge stopped and proud flesh began to make its appearance. The snake poison had worked all through the cancer, the swelling disappeared and the heretofore ugly looking cancer began to heal, and turned to a healthy flesh color. Last Thursday the wound began to heal, and yesterday Mrs. Ludwig was in town almost cured.

WOULDN'T TARRY LONG.

Standard Oil Company Would Have to Pay Up.

New York.—The right honorable lord chief justice of Ireland, Baron Palles, who has arrived here for a visit to the Adirondacks and Canada, in speaking of the big Standard Oil fine recently imposed said:

"If the Standard Oil fine had been imposed in Ireland the Standard Oil Company would either have to pay the $29,000,000 fine at once, or if they appealed the case, the appeal would have to be heard and decided without delay. Then, if the decision was sustained, we would collect the fine on a judgment immediately.

"We would hardly tarry so long as they do in the American courts before making the Standard Oil pay up."

Massacre in Java.

Batavia, Island of Java.—A detachment of infantry, commanded by two lieutenants, has been massacred by rebels in the Mori district of the Island of Celebes, the victims, including some convicts, numbering forty-five.

Balloon's Successful Trip.

Paris.—The dirigible balloon, LaPatrie, visited President Fallieres at his country seat at Rambouillet Thursday. It left the shed at Calais at 7:30 o'clock, faced a wind blowing twenty-five miles an hour, and arrived at Rambouillet before 9 o'clock. Returning it took forty-six minutes to cover twenty-one miles at the crow flies. The journey was interesting, as it came the time for the balloon's arrival and the plan for landing was carried out according to program.

Swedish Bank Fails.

Stockholm.—The Credit Bank of Stockholm has suspended. The action of the directors is attributed to extensive forgeries by a prominent politician and an army officer. Many firms and private individuals are heavy sufferers.

It appears highly probable that Governor Comer will call an extra session of the legislature sometime next winter.

The Daily State, of Montgomery after a brief but glorious career, has suspended publication, promising, however, to resume at an early date.

And now the telegraph operators throughout the country are on strike, to the detriment of the daily papers and commercial men generally. Looks as if it may be a bad fight, the men and the companies both declaring they are bound to win.

First bales are being reported. The first bale of Alabama's new crop was sold at Headland last Saturday for the neat sum of 20½¢ per pound; it was then forwarded to Montgomery, where it brought 10½¢. No sentiment about first bales in Montgomery.

The weekly mean temperature for the entire State, 81 degrees, was one degree above the normal, and 2 degrees higher than the mean for the previous week. Afternoon temperatures were quite high during the first four days, when they ranged between 90 degrees in the southeastern counties and 100 degrees in some of the central portions of the State; over the northern counties, however, the temperature was not so high.

Lower Fares in Twenty-One States.

An analysis of the general results shows that passenger fares were either actually reduced or affected in twenty-one States: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Two-cent rates now prevail in Arkansas, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin; and in Ohio, since 1906; two-and-one half cent rates in Alabama and North Dakota. North Carolina has established a two-and-one-quarter-cent rate; West Virginia a two-cent rate for railroads over 50 miles in length; Iowa, a sliding scale of from two to three cents a mile; Michigan, a two three and four-cent rate; Kansas, Maryland and Mississippi, two-cent rates for mileage books; the railroad commissions of Georgia and South Dakota have been ordered to establish a two-cent and a two-and-one-half-cent rate, respectively; and Oklahoma specifies in its new constitution a maximum charge of two cents for passenger fare. Virginia's Corporation Commission has adopted a two-cent rate for trunk lines, a three-cent rate for minor roads, and a three-and-one-half-cent rate on one or two lines. Kansas may adopt a flat two-cent rate on the supposition that what is remunerative in Nebraska should prove equally remunerative in Kansas! Georgia's Legislature is in session as we go to press.—From "The Legislatures and the Railroads," by Robert Emmett Ireton, in the American Review of Reviews for August.

Remedy for Diarrhoea, Never Known to Fail

I want to say a few words for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. GOOD ROADS.

U. S. Department of Agriculture
Office of Public Roads, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: Statistics recently compiled by this office show that there are nearly 2,500,000 miles of public roads in this country, only a small percentage of which are improved. Necessarily it will be many years before a large percentage of this great mileage will be improved, and in the meantime it is of the utmost importance that we make the best possible use of facilities at hand. An expenditure of nearly $80,000,000 per annum is being applied to the maintenance of these roads, and it is safe to say that the loss from improper methods is well up in the millions.

There are certain principles which underlie the art of road building and maintenance, and certain methods known to many engineers and road builders which are easily understood and as easily put into practice. Unfortunately, these simple principles and methods are not universally known. The press is the only agency through which it is possible to reach every road district in the country and insure a general consideration of the subject. I therefore ask your co-operation in a great educational campaign to be conducted through the columns of the newspapers in each county in the United States.

Our plan is to send out to each paper once a month a plain, practical article not to exceed 1000 words in length, designed to give such information as can be easily applied to local road conditions. This article will be specialized to meet the conditions prevailing in each section of the country. We ask that you give this article a prominent place in your paper, and conduct in connection with it a question column in which your readers may set forth the difficulties they encounter in the maintenance of the roads under their charge. These questions may be forwarded to this office at stated intervals under a franked envelope, and the answers will be made as quickly as practicable.

I trust that you will let me hear from you at the earliest possible moment, and I should be glad to have any suggestions from you as to the best plan of co-operation between the Government and the press in this educational campaign.

Very respectfully,
Director.

Editor Banner—Please allow me to say a few words in regard to the tax commission business. Who are they, and how come us to get such a set on hand? Where did they come from, and where are they bound? It is funny to see how they do business. I gave in my land for over $2 per acre and they have raised it one-third higher, and one of my adjoining neighbors gave his land at $2.50 an acre, and his land lies on the creek and is worth twice as much as mine and his tax is not raised. I am in favor of paying as much per cent on real estate as any man living, but I don't want to pay more than anyone else.

Of course I want to fill up the treasury with money, for when we get a Democratic set in at next election we want plenty of money to start us, but is it right to make a few sagers pay so much on old piney woods land, timber all gone and gullies? We don't want our home sold for taxes, but we can't stand it to be raised every year unless all are raised alike. Things are getting in a pretty bad fix when a man knows his own land and gives it in under oath and then cannot be trusted. But someone else who doesn't know a thing about the premises and cares less, says "raise the tax, that fellow swore a lie when he gave it in."

Now, some may get offended at this short letter, but this is the way it looks to me. If we cannot be trusted to value our own property, what is the use to leave our work and meet the assessor and be qualified and not be trusted. Better let some fellow sit up in the court house by a good warm fire with a fine cigar stuck in one corner of his mouth and run the whole business.

Now, I want to hear from someone else on the subject. Equal rights to all and special privileges to none, is my motto.

Letter to J. M. Wooley
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir: Take a two-story house and reckon the cost with different paints; you will be surprised. Say the house has a total of 3210 square feet.

Divide by 300; you buy 11 gallons. That's the rule; but it never comes out so.

Buy any other paint than Devoe, you will have to buy more, up to possibly 22 gallons. Paint Devoe, and you'll have a gallon or two to return. Here are some experiences.

N R Watkins, Lott, Texas, used 13 gallons on his house before; bought 13 gallons Devoe for same house and had 6 left.

C B Edwards, of Edwards & Broughton, printers, Raleigh, N C, used 30 gallons paste paint on his house; bought 30 gallons Devoe for same house and had 16 left. Go by the gallons.

Yours truly
27 F W DEVOE & CO

Stanton.

Rev. Martin preached a very good sermon at the Methodist church, Sunday, to an attentive audience.

Our Sabbath school is still flourishing nicely.

We are glad to say that Mrs W. C. Dyer is improving from a spell of fever

Died at his home near Stanton on the night of the 9th, Grady Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Warren. He had been sick for nine weeks. He was buried on the 10th at the Stanton cemetery. We extend our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved ones.

The old soldiers will have a picnic at Stanton on the 17th. Everybody invited to come and bring a basket full of something good to eat.

We regret to say that Dr. Moody Parnell is dead. His illness was very brief. The remains were brought to Stanton and laid to rest in the Stanton cemetery. Our sympathies are with those who are bereft.

Our barbecue came off fine last Saturday; there were lots of people and some good ball playing.

What has become of our Saginaw correspondent? With best wishes to the dear old Banner, will ring off

Guess Who?

"We never repent of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to everyone without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

Sheriff Catts made a trip to Pickens county this week, returning with Sims Henley, wanted for selling whiskey.

Mineral Springs is becoming the fasionable resort of Chilton county, the cottages being well occupied.

ROCKEFELLER'S PREDICTED SPAN OF LIFE.

July 8, 1839--John D. Rockefeller born.
July 8, 1933--Date to which Mr. Rockefeller reasonably may expect to live, according to his family physician.
His Predicted Age--Ninety-four years.
Yet to Live--Twenty-six years.

Cleveland, Ohio.—That John D. Rockefeller will live to more than ninety-four is the prediction of Dr. H. F. Biggar, his family physician.

Dr. Biggar watched Mr. Rockefeller play golf over the Forest Hill links, and at the finish declared that the Standard Oil magnate was likely to live more than a quarter of a century longer.

Mr. Rockefeller, who looked particularly well, said he had never felt better in his life and that he could eat anything.

William Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller's father, is still living and is ninety-four. Dr. Biggar said he sees no reason why the master of Forest Hill should not live longer than his father.

"He is the best-trained athlete in the sixty-year-old class in the world to-day, and he's sixty-eight, at that," he said. "He'll live longer than his father, I'm sure. Did you see his strokes on the links this morning? Did they look feeble? I tell you, Mr. Rockefeller has been born twice physically, and he is only fourteen years old now. He is growing up again, and growing up scientifically, adding to his muscle, to his lungs, to his heart power with every breath of fresh air he takes on Forest Hill, and with every drive he makes at the Golf Club."

And it cost Mr. Rockefeller $5,000,000 for this second life. Those are his own words. It happened in this wise, according to Doctor Biggar:

"Mr. Rockefeller came to Cleveland in 1893, in the middle of the panic period, completely broken in health and spirit. He could eat nothing which would nourish him. His appetite was gone and his nervous system was a wreck.

"Doctor, I'm a sick man, I'm afraid I'm going to die. But it is not on account of the financial situation that I am sick," he told the doctor. "It is through disappointment of my friends."

He asked the doctor to help him. After a few days Dr. Biggar went to Mr. Rockefeller with this prescription: Drop all business cares, take regular exercise, keep in the open air, forget everything but play, and play as though your life depended upon it.

"I was happy at the result," said Dr. Biggar. "Mr. Rockefeller made me a remarkable patient, an ideal one. Although he had a terrible weight of responsibility then, he dropped everything to get healthy.

"A few years afterward we were talking of his recovery and Mr. Rockefeller said to me: "Doctor, do you know how much it cost me to get well?' I told him, of course, I didn't. 'Well, doctor,' he said, 'it cost me just $5,000,000. I lost that much by dropping business.'

"But he never for a moment regretted that, and neither have I, for it gave him a second life. He's stronger now than I am. He is stronger than any business man in the city of Cleveland to-day who is anywhere near his age. He is a wonderful man, full of vitality. He never touched a drop of liquor in his life. He does not smoke. He is leading the most simple life imaginable, and yet it is the strongest life. He can swing an axe as easily as he can a golf club. Why, Mr. Rockefeller is husky, actually husky. He'll live to see all of us in our graves."

The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON

Subject: Receiving the Spirit.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, Hamburg avenue and Weirfield street, on the above theme, the pastor, Rev. I. W. Henderson, took as his text Jno. 20:22, "Receive ye the Holy Spirit."

He said: The reception of the Holy Spirit in the inner sanctuary of the human heart is the condition of entrance into the kingdom of God. The possibility of the immediate and present incoming and welcoming of the Spirit is reason enough for us to believe that the kingdom begins in this life and at once, if you will. The fact that the coming of the Spirit into the heart is contemporaneous with the entrance of the individual into the privileges of divine citizenship is sufficient demonstration that spirituality is the key to, and the essence of, and the first requirement of admission to the kingdom. The one and only way to participate in the joys and blessings of the Spirit filled life is to cease from hardness of heart, and from intellectual self-glorification and self-trust, and to become as little children in humility and receptivity to truth. Spirituality and divine citizenship are one and the same thing. Growth in spirituality is the test of efficient citizenship. The man who has stopped depending upon his own strength, his own wisdom, and has opened his heart and eyes and ears and mind to the influences and manifestations of the Spirit in his life is ready to receive, and in all conscience will get, the papers and rights of a citizen of the kingdom of the God of Jesus Christ. And that soul only is being sanctified unto God-likeness and fashioned into the image of Jesus Christ who is growing daily, hourly, momently, in the gifts and graces of the spiritual life. To be spiritual is to become child-like. To attain spiritual development is the aim and the calling of those who are Christ's.

The Holy Spirit, the personal, purifying, propelling presence of God in the life of man, is the means unto the spiritualizing of human natures according to the divine decrees. The entrance of the Spirit spells death to sin. The yielding of self to the gentle ministrations of the Holy Ghost is the first step toward individual transformation. The communion of the spirit of man with the Spirit of God brings peace, contentment, rest and a wisdom and energy which are more than sufficient to meet the demands and the opposition of the world. No mere impersonal, unreal, unattainable something is this Spirit which Christ bade His disciples receive, and of which at a later time they received a fuller measure. It is the real, helpful, personal presence of God in the life. The spirit of man is a prey to all sin save the Spirit of God as a constructive, controlling force comes in. The transfusion of the soul with the vitality of the Spirit fills the dying heart of man with life.

There are three characteristics of the Holy Spirit to which I wish to direct your thought. The Holy Spirit is a constant presence in the life of the world, a controlling energy, a soul satisfying comforter.

The Holy Spirit is a constant presence and factor in the life of the world. The entire list of graces and gifts and blessings which are ours at the hands of our heavenly Father are constant. The gift of the Spirit is no exception to the rule. When God promises to men the presence and uplift of the Holy Spirit upon the fulfilment of certain conditions upon their part He means just what He says. Our Father is not fickle or changeable or inconstant. He is the same to-day, yesterday and forever. And His Spirit, which is His own real, personal presence in the hearts of men, is as constant as is all else with which He has anything to do. When we were far away from duty and were serving sin the Spirit of the living God was knocking ever at our hearts. And though we hated ourselves and the depth of our own iniquity, though the world may have despised us and forsaken us, though everything in life may have held us as "unclean" with the leprosy of sin, still the Spirit of the living, loving Father of us all stood waiting to reveal to us the wealth and beauty of the love of God and to revive our dying souls with the fullness of power unto eternal life.

The constancy of the Spirit as a factor in life is nowhere better illustrated than in the experience of Christian men who have given themselves up, in less or greater measure, to His dominion. What a joy, what a comfort, what a stay it is to know that whenever and wheresoever we may turn to the Spirit for the portion of refreshment that our souls so sorely need we shall always find Him ready to supply our wants.

There is no sense and no reason in much of our constant petitions to God to infill us with His Spirit. The influences of types of thought and of prayer are hardly escapable. We have grown so accustomed to ask God to fill us with His Spirit of power. But I submit, would we not pray better and more to the point if we thanked our Father for the favors of His love and acknowledge to Him in person, what He already knows, our shortcomings and our lack of appropriation of the gift of His Spirit. The showers of spiritual blessings are forever falling free, full and sufficient upon human souls everywhere. Our prayers should be not of petition that God may give us showers, but rather of thanksgiving for past, present and future blessings and of dedication of self, through the riches of His grace and powers to a finer and more fruitful life for Him. The presence and influence of the Holy Spirit in the life of the world is a constant gratuity. If you are not the deeply grounded spiritual man that you should be the fault lies not with the Spirit, of whom there is abundance unto all men's necessity, but with you who have refused that [illegible] of a spiritual power which under God, might be yours if you would. Everywhere and continually the Spirit of the Lord is active. He knocks ever at the door of the sinner's heart. He is forever pouring out the inexhaustible waters of spiritual life upon the parched souls of men. But neither God nor His Spirit can fill an inverted cup. The showers of blessing can not flood a closed heart.

Then, too, the Holy Spirit is a controlling energy in the life of the man who is susceptible to His influence. Christ tells us that His Spirit shall lead us into all truth; that He shall be our Guide, our Teacher and our Helper. The catalog of the activities of the Spirit in the life of man is strengthening and sustaining. By Him we are led into the entirety of divine self-revelation and of eternal truth. Under the guidance of the Spirit of the living God we may progress from truth to truth as the wonders of God's universe are revealed to us and the application of everlasting verities brought home to our hearts. May no man flinch to follow the Spirit whithersoever He may direct. As Dante went through hell and heaven and the intermediate regions of the world beyond, and told in allegory and song the wonders that he witnessed and the sights he saw, so may we, with the Spirit as our guide, be given grace to look truth squarely in the face and portray it faithfully to the world. And if we as Dante, or beyond him Christ, shall be hounded by those who fear the light of truth we shall yet be certain that the truth, the truth alone, is worth men's fealty and shall make them free.

The Spirit as the Comforter appeals to the heart of every Christian. Who of us does not joy in the fact that above us and within us is this comforting Spirit of the Lord our God? The human heart cries out for comfort when distress and danger and destruction come upon it. When our hearts are bowed in anguish and our souls are crushed with grief, when every human tie is severed and no mortal hand may avail to dispel our utter darkness, then the spirit of the loving God strengthens, sustains, sanctifies the soul. "Save me, O God, for the waters are come into my soul," we cry out with the Psalmist. In the Judah wilderness of the world our souls thirst for Him, our flesh longs for Him as in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is. Then the Spirit comes, and with His entrance the live springs of refreshment minister to our souls' deep need. The Spirit as the Comforter is God in His presence ministering to the humblest of mortal needs. No man can live happily without Him. No man can weather the trials of tribulation and the temptations of prosperity without Him. Lending the sorrowing light hearts He keeps the successful level headed.

The sense of the constant presence of the Spirit of God in the individual and world life is the certain indication of a true religious experience. No man who lives near to God is without it. It is elemental in Christian experience. And this consciousness of God's abiding and guiding is the mainstay of the soul. Without it progress is impossible in the truest sense. With it we may fight with fearlessness, with hope unquenchable, against principalities and powers, against the wickedness of high places and the sins of mighty men. For the abiding Spirit of the living God is the controlling energy in the life of humanity. Bad men may defeat Him temporarily; evil policies may frustrate His purposes and hurl themselves against His plans; but the Spirit of God is unconquerable. He is the controlling, the overruling energy in the world. In this Spirit we should find our strength. From Him we should derive the comfort of our souls.

Let not your heart be troubled. Come what may, be the storms of life what they will, God will not leave us comfortless. He will not leave us orphans. He is with us. He will abide with every soul who bids Him enter. He will constantly refresh us all. He will give us courage and be our strength. He will suffuse us. He will comfort us. And He does.

The Great Lesson of Life.

What a vast proportion of our lives is spent in anxious and useless forebodings concerning the future—either our own or those of our dear ones. Present joys, present blessings slip by and we miss half their favor, and all for want of faith in Him who provides for the tiniest sunbeam.

Oh, when shall we learn the sweet trust in God that our little children show us every day by their confiding faith in us? We, who are so mutable, so faulty, so irritable, so unjust; and He who is so watchful, so pitiful, so loving, so forgiving? Why can not we, slipping our hand into His every day, walk trustingly over that day's appointed path, thorny or flowery, crooked or straight, knowing that evening will bring us sleep, peace and home?—Phillips Brooks.

Events Are God's

God hath a thousand keys to open a thousand doors for the deliverance of His own, when it has come to the extremity, once said Samuel Rutherford. Let us be faithful and care for our part, which is to do and suffer with Him, and lay God's part on Himself and leave it there; duties are ours, events are the Lord's.

When our faith goes to meddle with events, and to hold a court (if so to speak) upon God's providence, and beginneth to say, "How wilt Thou do this or that?" we lose ground. We have nothing to do there. It is our part to let the Almighty exercise His own office and steer His own helm.

The Cross.

In our days there are many who would leave the cross out of Christianity. They want an unsuffering Christ, a teacher, an example, a friend, yet not an atoning Saviour. But the cross is at the heart of the Gospel. We can be saved only by the One who suffered for us. Without shedding of blood there is no remission. Then in our lives, too, we must accept the law of the cross. We must die if we wish to live. We must lose if we would gain. We must suffer if we would reign. We can help others only through self-denial and cost.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUG. 18 BY THE REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: The Day of Atonement, Lev. 16:5-22—Golden Text, Heb. 7:25—Memory Verse, 2—Commentary.

The day of atonement and the ceremonies thereto attendant impress upon our minds facts that are inseparable in our religious experience. First, the fact of sin. Secondly, the necessity for confession of sin. Thirdly, the forgiveness of sin. Fourthly, the forgetting of sin.

The day and the lesson of that day, which we shall study, impress other thoughts upon us but we shall confine ourselves to these.

The day of atonement is a recognition of and an emphasis upon the fact of sin. The offering is for sin. The confession is a confession of sin. The scapegoat atones for sin, is an earnest of the forgiveness of sin, is the example of God forgetfulness of forgiven sin. And all this rests upon the basic consciousness of human sinfulness. For whatever may be our opinion as to how and when and why sin enters into the life of the individual and of humanity we must all agree that sin is a fact, that the consciousness of sin is the first step toward the affirmation of proper relationships with God after we have fallen away from Him. Whatever the ideal life may be we are to-day sinning against God. However useless and fruitless and wicked and unnecessary sin may be from any point of view the fact of humanity's present and prevalent sinfulness remains. The fact of sin is inescapable.

Equally conscious are we that the only hope of escape from sin lies in the confession of our unworthiness to the living God. However philosophical we may be, and however learned we may be; whatever may be the peculiar twists of our statements of the problem of sin and salvation, we must all come, and all of us do come, to this common ground that without confession of and repentance for sin there can be no forgiveness, no salvation.

Also we know that forgiveness follows in hot haste upon confession. Perhaps we had better say that forgiveness meets confession—and more than half the way. Even as God met the high priest on the earth as the commissioner of the people so He stands just beside the confession soul and holds forth pardon for confessed sin.

The scapegoat never carried a sin so far into the dessert of forgetfulness as God can and does. When God forgives He forgets. And He expects in the proper sense to do the same and if experience counts for anything He aids in this process of a proper forgetfulness of sin. Forgiveness that is not correlated with forgetfulness is no forgiveness at all. We would not want even God to hound us with the memory of forgiven sins.

All these lessons are linked with the story of the day of atonement. It is no wonder that the day of atonement is even to-day the mighty day in the Jewish calendar. The modern Jew may not go to synagogue for fifty weeks a year, but he is no Jew who forgets the day of atonement. Why? Because the day of atonement touches the universal note in the Jewish heart. It taps the spring of his deepest experience and of his direst need.

The fact of sin is one that we ought not to overlook. It ought not to be overemphasized, but it had rather be overemphasized than forgotten. Man is made in the image of God. He is created a little lower than Jehovah. He has inalienable birthrights as a son of God. But man is also a sinner. And his sin is worse as we understand his relation to divinity and his ancestry. We must not let men forget the fact of sin. We must not withhold condemnation of their evil. We must portray the exceeding viciousness of sin.

For if we do not convict men of sin they will not confess it. And no man without a comprehension of the real nature of the consequences of his wilfulness will confess his sin. We must make men understand the enormity of sin or they will not confess it. And conscious unconfessed sin is the worst hell that God or man can devise. "Confession is good for the soul" is more than a phrase.

Forgiveness follows confession. And forgetfulness completes the work. God pardons and He erases the record. His forgetting enhances His forgiving. And He not only forgets, but He enables us to forget. And it is right we should. The memory of sin is one of the most spiritually debilitating things that we can imagine. To be sure, we should profit by our mistakes. But we should not be unnerved by our remembrance of them. What you were you were. Forgiven of God in Christ you are no longer what you were. Behold, all things are passed away. You are a new creature. You are what you are. There are few, if any, greater joys in life than the sense of forgiven and forgotten sin. A sin unconfessed is a scar unhealed. A sin confessed is a sin healed.

The day of atonement is a profitable subject of study because it is linked with facts. And it is linked with facts that we can well discount or avoid if we are as a church to do our work for the regeneration and salvation of the world to God through Christ. Christ recognized the fact of sin and we shall be imbeciles if we shut our eyes to it. The solution of its problem in the world is our work. God grant we shall face it with courage.

GOOD BIBLE AS CIPHER.

Verse from Solomon Told of Marriage Engagement.

When she left her home in the small town to come to New York to take up a special course of study, her pet sister was fast reaching the crisis of a love affair. The pet sister was a most winsome young lady, and had long kept a goodly train of suitors a-sighing. Was this affair to be the grand affair? The older sister hoped so, for she liked the young man cordially—thought he was just the sort to make a proper brother-in-law.

But the weeks passed and not a bit of definite news about the progress of the affair did the older sister receive in her city boarding house. She became anxious. Louise, she thought, must not go on recklessly trifling in such important matters.

Then one night about 10 o'clock, just as she was going to bed, came a telegram. The servant brought it up. The older sister was country girl enough to be thoroughly frightened by the pale manila, black-inked envelope. How ominous is looked! At length she gathered courage to open it. This is what she read:

Solomon six three. LOUISE.

Solomon six three! Whatever in the world! Oh, yes, stupid, it of course meant the Song of Solomon, sixth chapter, third verse. But—and her cheeks flushed with shame—she had no bible.

There was a great scurrying about the boarding house to find a copy of the sacred Book. The girls were routed out in vain. On all sides the cry arose, "Who's got a bible?" Just think of the sister trying to sleep that night without knowing what that verse was! It would have been just like a woman to lie down to pleasant dreams, content to know that she could satisfy her curiosity in the morning—not!

The landlady, good soul, came to the rescue. She was no heathen. She had a Bible. U pto her room with it flew the sister, and shut the door. Such a turning over of pages by eager, nervous fingers! Solomon six three. She found it, and then she cried "Hurrah!" and laughed for the verse was: "I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine."—New York Press.

Blind Boy Earns Schooling.

There have been many cases in Cleveland where boys have worked their way through high school, and a few cases where girls have done so, but it is doubtful if there has even been a case where a blind boy has worked his way through school.

At the graduation exercises which are to be held at East High next Friday, a young man who is totally blind will receive his diploma. He is Frank Brady, and has not only been at a physical disadvantage, but he also has been obliged to earn money necessary to keep him in school.

Nine years ago Brady entered the school for the blind at Columbus, but found that the rest of the inmates at that institution could not keep pace with his mental development. Two years ago he left and entered East High as a junior. His work since has been remarkable. He is so well acquainted with the keyboard of a typewriter that he writes all of his examinations on a machine.—Cleveland Leader.

Speaking of Julia Ward Howe, the Brooklyn Eagle asserts that President Roosevelt is now "The Battle Him of the Republic." But for the matter of sex, Mrs. Carrie Nation doubtless feels that it might have been Ben Hur.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

People often ask what is a good brand of Salmon. "Argo Red Salmon" is the best possible answer.

THE PRIZE WINNERS

In the Seal Brand Candy Contest.

In this issue will be found the names of:

1st.—Dolly Studstill, Capitol Hill School, Montgomery.

2nd.—Robert H. Coker, Brewton, Ala.

3rd.—John Fred Thornton, Jr., Sayre Street School, Montgomery.

4th.—Walter Warren, Enterprise, Ala.

5th.—Carrie Ross, 403 Monroe street, Montgomery, Ala.

6th.—Edward Smith, 934 Hull St., Montgomery.

The lucky winners in the Seal Brand Candy Contest for the first week. There are three more weeks in which every boy and girl who writes to the Huston Biscuit Company, Birmingham, have an opportunity to win a prize. Six prizes will be given each week to the Boy or Girl that sends in the best letter of one hundred words or less concerning Seal Brand Candy.

That each child may write intelligently concerning the new pure twisted stick, all sugar candy, the condition is imposed that with each letter must be enclosed a Seal Trade Mark cut from a package of Seal Brand Candy.

Seal Brand Candy is on sale at most drug stores, grocery stores and candy stores. Seal Brand Candy is packed in sealed boxes, averaging 15 sticks to a box. Is a delicious candy—so good that when you have eaten one box you crave more. Buy a box now. Cut out the Seal Brand Trade Mark, and send to Huston Biscuit Co., Birmingham, with your letter. If you are lucky, you may win a $5 prize.

Life may be a tough conundrum, but nobody wants to give it up.

Argo Red Salmon is rapidly becoming a household word in this locality. At all grocers.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co 50c.

BEES IN WARFARE.

Two Instances In Which the Insects Were Used as Weapons.

History records two instances in which bees have been used in warfare as weapons against besieging forces. The first is related by Appian of the siege of Themiscyra, in Pontus, by Lucullus in his war against Mithridates. Turrets were brought up, mounds were built, and huge mines were made by the Romans. The people of Themiscyra dug open these mines from above and through the holes cast down upon the workmen bears and other wild animals and hives or swarms of bees.

The second instance is recorded in an Irish manuscript in the Bibliotheque Royale at Brussels and tells how the Danes and Norwegians attacked Chester, which was defended by the Saxons and some Gallic auxiliaries. The Danes were worsted by a stratagem, but the Norwegians, sheltered by hurdles, tried to pierce the walls of the town when "what the Saxons and the Gaeidhil who were among them did was to throw down large rocks, by which they broke down the hurdles over their heads." What the others did to check this was to place large posts under the hurdles.

What the Saxons did next was to put all the beer and water of the town into the caldrons of the town and boil them and spill them down upon those who were under the hurdles, so that their skins were peeled off. The remedy which the Lochlans applied to this was to place hides outside on the hurdles. What the Saxons did next was to throw down all the beehives in the town upon the besiegers, which prevented them from moving their hands or legs from the number of bees which stung them. They afterward desisted and left the city.

Mullins Academy

Dear Editor—Here comes Pen Vines to tell you of South Alabama. I have been intending to write about South Alabama for a long time, and now for the first time I have the time. South Alabama has plenty of mosquitoes and they don't forget to bite. Most of the country is level. Agriculture is not very important, though it's a growing industry. It seems as though it was once a timbered country. The timber being almost gone, the people resort to other occupations than the gathering of naval stores, though there are saw mills and a turpentine distillery every few miles. Consequently the people depend more upon agriculture. Some raise fruit, others raise stock and hay. It seems that the land is better in that country than ours, or they have been farming on the scientific and intensive plan.

I will mention some important facts concerning a farm in Washington county. From one acre in beans (shipped to northern markets) $125 was realized as clear profit; and $50 from one acre in muskmelons or cantaloupes. Six acres in cotton made over four bales after being damaged by the September gale. Corn good in proportion.

There not being many farms in that country leaves a great range for stock and cattle, which delight on the fine grass which lasts much longer than our grass on account of warmer climate. I have seen people cut several tons of hay from the meadow after the stock and cattle have run on it all the spring. Just start out with the mower and cut hay anywhere, 'twill be handiest for wagon.

The country at present is very thinly settled in many places, but it is rapidly being filled up by Poles from Chicago.

The streams swarm with many kinds of fish. Therefore fishing affords much pleasure during the summer months There are a few deer and also a few turkeys left. Plenty of quails. I do not wish to worry you with unimportant writing, and thanking the Editor in advance for his trouble, I will bid you adieu. Good luck to Banner.

JAS. A. EDWARDS.

HAD AN AWFUL TIME

But Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Cured Him.

It is with pleasure that I give you this unsolicited testimonial. About a year ago when I had a severe case of measles I got caught out in a hard rain and the measles settled in my stomach and bowels. I had an awful time and had it not been for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—SAM H. GWIN, Concord, Ga. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby

STOMACH ACHE

You have more or less trouble with your stomach, your bowels and your liver—everybody does. And when these delicate and easily-disordered organs do get out of order, they are the worst things in the world to you. If you took the right kind of care of them, you wouldn't suffer, but you don't.

The only way you can correct the trouble you do have and prevent these parts from getting out of order is to use

Dr. Caldwell's

(Laxative)

Syrup Pepsin

Everybody knows that PEPSIN is good for the stomach, but in combination with certain plant drugs by DR. CALDWELL'S formula, its natural value is highly increased.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN is the best thing in the world for correcting and curing all forms of stomach trouble—you'll say so when you try it.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN can be obtained in both dollar and half-dollar sizes at all druggists, and your money will be refunded if it fails to benefit you.

Your postal card request will bring by return mail your booklet, "DR. CALDWELL'S BOOK OF WONDERS" and free sample to those who have never tried this wonderful remedy. Mail your postal today.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

On Monday Clanton had the ...asure of entertaining Congress... W. B. Craig, who is touring ... district in the endeavor to find ... what his constituents need. If ...igent enquiry will discover all ... needs of the constituency, Mr. ...ig means to find it.

Last Friday a mass meeting of ...publicans and old time Populists ...held at the court house for the ...rpose of consolidating the two ...rties, which has practically been ...complished any time the last six ...ars. A joint county committee ...s elected, and the Populist party ...clared dead. J. T. Blakemore, ... Birmingham, Charles H. Scott ...d W. F. Aldrich, addressed the ...eting.

The proposed high school is ...using the enthusiasm of the ...ed people of Chilton. At a ...eting recently, the Clanton com...ttee passed the following resolu...n:

Resolved, that this committee, ...re and now, pledges itself to con...se its efforts until the necessary ...ount of money for locating the ...gh school for Chilton county at ...anton, shall have been raised.

The good people of Jemison are ...o stirred up, and sent a delega...n to Montgomery, with a strong ...commendation. Those from Jemison were Prof. ...A. Rasco, J. A. Skaggs, W. A. ...eynolds, J. W. F. THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

Solicits the business of all business men in this vicinity—those who borrow, and those who do not. Both classes are welcome and cordially invited to transact business with us, as we have good facilities for serving both. As borrowers we seek only such as will use our money as safely as we use theirs, and will be prepared to return it at the proper time, as we are to return theirs.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space for a few words in regard to the State Tax Commission.

There seems to be some misunderstanding about them. They were created by the legislature to better provide for the revenue of the State, and the more efficient assessment and collection of taxes. Now, this tax problem is a hard one, and has caused more disturbance than any other legislation in all governments. I endorse what Mr. Atchison says in regard to unjust raises in taxes. I think that all should pay according to the value of their land, the location and such like. Some of our people are jumping on our County Tax Commissioner. Now, this is the State Tax Commission after him. Of course a man should know the value of his land better than some fellow who may be has never seen it, but some of them, when the assessor comes around, don't give it in at its value; they have two values (tax and selling) and for this purpose the legislature created the State Tax Commission.

Riderville.

As Riderville is on such a boom, and it seems as if the people of Chilton county don't know it, will give you a few dots.

The big saw mill of E. E. Jackson is running at its greatest capacity, also the turpentine still of E. T. Haines and the saw mill of Reynolds Bros.

The water melon cutting given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Gay, last Wednesday night was highly enjoyed by a very lively crowd. We were entertained first by a "propo-al game," Mr. H. Dashiell and Miss Nellie Hemphill won the prize for giving the best proposal and refusal. After this game we enjoyed the ice-cold water melons.

Those who attended the barbacue at Arnold's mill last Thursday say 'twas the best one they have attended this summer.

We are very sorry to say that Mr. Hemphill is sick.

Mrs. Moses, who has been in the infirmary at Selma, is much better and will be home in a short while.

Mrs. J. F. Gregory is visiting relatives in Georgia and North Carolina.

Mr. W. W. Wynne left Saturday for his home in Tombigbee.

Mrs. Joe Cunningham has returned home after a very pleasant visit to relatives in Randolph.

With best wishes to the Banner will ring off. GUESS WHO.

Stanton.

Editor Banner—I want to find space in the dear Banner for a little talk. The health of our community is generally good. We have had nice rains and the crops are good, especially corn. Cotton is much better than was expected. We have every reason to thank the Creator and the Giver of all good.

Mrs. C. A. Marlar and Mabel and Collier Martin, her two little children, visited her parents, Wm. Broadhead, near Stanton last week. Also Miss Jesie Marlar accompanied her, looking for a school; we hope she will get it.

Mr. C. A. Marlar visited Mr. Wm. Broadhead and family last Sunday.

Well, I want to tell you about the barbecue and the reunion of the old soldiers. The barbecue was a success and everything passed off nicely. The old veterans were there, it makes our hearts rejoice to see them and to think they stood on the battlefield and many of them died for the cause of the South. We love them with a love that will never die. One old fellow told me walked 1100 miles to get home after the surrender and was glad to get to walk it. Judge Reynolds made an excellent speech, for which I know he was thanked.

I could say much more, but for fear of worry I will ring off.

A FRIEND.

Dear Sir: Why do people send us such tales as this?

D G Smith, Madison, Fla, had his mother's house painted Devoe 11 years ago, and the house looks better to-day than other houses painted with other paint 3 or 4 years ago.

They are full of goodwill for Devoe.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

If the several parties who have received notice of their lands being escaped, or of their land being increased in tax value, will appear before the County Tax Commissioner at Clanton before the 2d day of September they will have a better opportunity to have the matter adjusted in a satisfactory manner than if they wait until court day.

NOTICE.

We, the Commissioners' Court, have decided that it will take more than one day to pass on the escapes and tax raises, so we hereby give notice that we will be in session Monday, September 2, to Wednesday, September 4, so if those interested cannot come on Monday, they can come either on these three days and we will stay longer if necessary. We assure every taxpayer of the county fair treatment and that no taxes will be raised unjustly.

FARMERS' UNION MEETING.

The Chilton County division of the Farmers' Union will meet with Shiloh Local, No. 750, on Sept. 5-6, 1907. We are also requested to say that Bro. G. T. McElderry of Talledega will address the Union. Afternoon of first day will be public.

Pleasant Grove.

Dear Editor—Please give me a small space in the dear old Banner to say a few words in regard to the singing school that has been taught at this place. We think it was one of the most successful singing schools that has ever been taught in our community. Our teacher was Prof. Willie Culp. We all learned to love him (especially the young girls) and I am sure he did his part in trying to teach his pupils. We all learned very fast and I, for one, can recommend him very highly to any one as a teacher, and also as a man of fine character. We hope to have him with us in school again very soon, but if we do not, I certainly wish him much success in teaching, and in life also.

Crops in this community are looking fine at present, corn is very good. TWO BLUE EYES.

Original Providence.

Rev. R. M. Honeycutt filled his regular appointment Sunday and preached an excellent sermon.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the management of Bro. W. A. Sims.

Health in this community is good at present.

Mr. J. F. Lowery and family spent the past week with Mr. J. A. Lowery's family.

Some of the farmers are pulling fodder. I guess they will soon have to go to picking cotton; I don't guess they will have much corn to pull.

Prof. J. H. Anderson is getting along fine with his school at Mars Hill and we hope to have him for our future teacher.

I will close with best wishes to the Banner. SUNSHINE.

Mr. James T. Hester was married on Sunday to Miss Reeves of Montgomery. We wish them much happiness.

CLANTON, ALABAMA.

A Jersey Magistrate in a "speed" case referred to the automobile as "this car of Juggernaut," when the owner interjected "Mistake, your Honor; my name is Smith."

The Contemporary Review contains an article in which figures are handled in a manner which indicates the writer's familiarity with his subject. His conclusion is that "about ninety-five per cent of the entire wealth of the United Kingdom is owned by about one-ninth of its population." This is really worse, notes the New York Sun, than any fair and reasonable showing that can be made regarding the concentration of wealth in the United States.

The record of 1581 miles in twenty-four hours by Edge in his specially built motor car on a specially built track in England is interesting, because for the time and the distance human being perhaps never went faster, on the ground or in the air, remarks the New York Press. The average was sixty-six miles an hour, and the highest speed reached for a single hour was seventy-two miles. Electric railway trains in Prussia have beaten this latter record by many miles, but not for several hours consecutively. What is the practical value of the demonstration, however? When we have specially built roads fit to show such speed as Edge's car, the police will set traps to catch the flyers, and a sentiment will develop to put in jail those who break the limit. There is no doubt that long ago motor car construction arrived at the point where it filled all practical requirements in the way of speed. What is most needed now is more durable and at once more economical construction of cars fit to go over the good roads we have and able to climb all the hills the tourist cares to mount.

A decided step toward the establishment of a juvenile-court in Texas was taken the other day by the Woman's Club of San Antonio, which voted unanimously to work for the establishment of a school farm where refractory boys may be sent to keep them out of jail. In Utah the women have founded a home for friendless boys called "Carlon Crest Farm," where agriculture and the trades will be taught. In Iowa the Art Committee of the State Federation has voiced a protest against the colored supplement of the metropolitan Sunday paper as an obstacle to the cultivation of a love for the beautiful. Down in Mississippi the Musical Department has done much to promote an interest in music. Crystal Springs has a Beethoven Club, with an orchestra and choral class connected with it. Kosciusko has a Schubert Club composed of girls, besides the Twentieth Century, which has music on its programs and makes a point of bringing good musicians to the town. The Merry Musicians, of Jackson, is an organization composed entirely of little girls. Carrolton has a Junior Music Club, while Verona has a music club with a membership of three married women and ten little girls.

There are still, apparently, many persons who derive their views on hygiene from the personal habits of grandfathers and other ancient authorities. Their lives are ordered according to that practical philosophy usually denominated common sense, but perhaps more aptly labelled by Huxley common ignorance. Those opponents of the pasteurization of milk who base their opposition on the statement that heat "kills the milk" and destroys its food value belong to the above class of hygienists. In the course of his paper on pasteurization, read at the meeting of the Anti-Tuberculosis League in Atlantic City, Nathan Straus quoted the following statement regarding this "dead milk" theory from a letter by Captain Franklin, who has charge of the cadets' mess at West Point: "The best proof of refutation of this theory is an exhibit I can show you or any one else who is interested at any time, namely, nearly five hundred young men whose physical equals and whose health record it would be hard to equal anywhere else in the world, the United States corps of cadets, and ninety-nine per cent. of them drink milk freely at all meals. We use an average of 180 gallons of pasteurized milk per day, and the boys who do drink it are the picture of health."

ALABAMA HAPPENINGS AS TERSELY TOLD

Items of Interest to Dwellers of The State.

WEEK'S EVENTS CONDENSED

The Cotton Factory at Cottondale Burns With $300,000 Loss—Supposed That It Caught From a Lightning Bolt.

News reached Tuscaloosa of a disastrous fire at the Tuscaloosa mills, located at Cottondale, eight miles above there. All of the old plant was burned to the ground, and also one of the warehouses filled with manufactured goods and the dye works were burned. It is not known exactly how the fire originated. There are two theories: One that the building was set fire by a lightning bolt, which struck the building during a thunder storm; another is that it caught from some hot rollers in one of the work rooms. This plant is one of the largest in that section of the state, and the destruction of so much of it will put a large number of workmen out of employment. In fact all of the town of Cottondale practically is engaged by these mills. The estimated loss is $300,000. The hosiery department, which is a recently constructed building, did not suffer any damage. D. L. Rosenau is the president of the Tuscaloosa mills and Will Sanders superintendent, both citizens of Tuscaloosa.

Williams Hears It.

When a newspaper man called at the county jail in Birmingham shortly after receiving a long distance telephone message from Montgomery announcing that the governor had decided to commute the death sentence of John Williams, convicted for the murder of State Senator R. L. Clipp in Cullman county two years ago, to that of life in the penitentiary, and told the condemned man of the change the old fellow could hardly talk for a moment. A big tear was seen to collect in his eyes and he looked up and said: "That is better than hanging."

Explosion at Powder Plant.

The glazing mill of the Jefferson Powder Company's plant near North Birmingham was destroyed by an explosion of 300 kegs of powder Wednesday night shortly after 8 o'clock. No one was in the mill at the time or near enough to be injured by the explosion. Night Foreman Wineman was not far from the building and would probably have entered it in a few minutes. The shock of the explosion was felt for some distance, but was not so terrific as the recent explosion at the duPont mills.

Increase in Tax Valuations.

The Jefferson county board of revenue, taking the position that the stock of the First National Bank is worth $150 per share, has sustained the raise from $800,000 to $900,000 made by Tax Commissioner Thompson. The board assesses on the basis of 60 per cent. The tax commission of Etowah county has raised the valuation of the Southern Steel Company $ 0,000 by agreement, making the total valuation $300,000, which is very reasonable, as the company has a blast furnace, steel plant and coal and ore mines in the county.

Cotton Warehouse.

Florence has scored another victory in the selection of that city as the location for the cotton warehouse to be established by the Farmers' Union of Lauderdale county. Several other localities were in the contest, and their claims were considered by the board of directors. The site chosen is on Terrace street, where the old butter dish factory formerly stood. A meeting of the board was held and the legal questions arising were discussed with the attorney for the warehouse company.

Trunk of Shoes Puzzles Police.

What to do with a large trunk full of children's and ladies' shoes which has been in the police station at Decatur for the past several days is a question that is now worrying the police force. The trunk was found by the police in a negro house and had evidently been stolen from a freight car, but an owner cannot be found.
